Y. M. C. A. BOYS ARE PENNANT WINNERS IN THE CITY LEAGUE

Concluding Games of Saturday Saw Y. M. C. A Defeat St. Marys and Hopes Fall Down Miserably to Safe Works.

LOTS OF BASEBALL ON LABOR DAY.

TWO DECIDEDLY ONE-SIDED GAMES WERR PLAYED SATURDAY AFTERNOON —QUARREL AMONG HOPE PLAYERS.

Y. M. C. A. Completely Out-Classed St. Marys From the Very Start of the Game—Some Good Contests Were Played Yesterday—Y. M. C. A. Divided Honors With Scotch Plains—Hopes Took Two From the Clinton Avenues—Safe Works Beaten at High Bridge.

THE FINISH IN THE CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

THE LAST LEAGUE GAMES.

Y. M. C. A., 16; St. Marys, 3.
Safe Works, 10; Hope Y. M. A., 0.

The pennant in the City Baseball League has been won. Saturday's games completed the league series and definitely decided that the team from the Young Men's Christian Association was the winner. From the showing which the Y. M. C. A. has made during the season, there is not the slightest doubt that the honor was fairly and honestly won by the strongest team in the league.

Saturday's games contained the possibility of a tie for first place between the Y. M. C. A. and the Hope Y. M. A. teams. It was a forlorn hope for the latter nine and it failed to rise to the occasion. Instead of a desperate effort, the Hope players, with one exception, put up the worst exhibition of baseball they have shown since the season commenced and fell easy victims to the Safe Works aggregation which continued on its triumphal march. It not only lost Hopes' chances for a tie but resulted in a division of second honors with the Safe Works team.

The Y. M. C. A. played winning ball while the St. Marys were in a demoralized state. From the initial inning, the association boys began their demonstration which continued with much regularity until the St. Marys almost forgot that they were in the game. It was a crushing defeat.

Both of Saturday's games showed the failure of one team to meet the delivery of a pitcher and the strong batting prowess of the other. While large crowds witnessed both contests, neither was close enough to be really exciting. The people found much to enjoy, however.

Thus ends the season for the City Baseball League. According to the original schedule, it should have ended a week ago but rain compelled the postponing of two games which were played off Saturday. For some the final result was a surprise but it was generally conceded that the Y. M. C. A. should win if it was able to keep its team together. The defeat was felt most keenly by the followers of the Hope team who had been so confident of winning up to the last moment and then beheld their favorite team conclude its season with defeat.

HOPE'S DOWNFALL.

After playing championship ball all season, the Hope team crossed bats with the Safe Works nine, Saturday, and went through nine innings of a burlesque on the national game. No contest in the League series was more half-heartedly played on one side and but for the work of Shortstop Shortman the spectators wouldn't have got their money's worth. When the farce was over, Hope had suffered another shutout, the score being 10 to 0.

While the Hopes were wandering about in demoralized fashion, the Safe Works aggregation continued its triumphal march, started several weeks ago. Burns was in magnificent form and he had almost perfect support. Four hits were made off him but they were scattered and never resulted in getting a Hope runner any further than third base.

The Safe Works boys fell upon Hewit's delivery with much joy. One run, largely on hits, was made in the second inning. Six scores were tallied before they finished with Hewitt in the fourth. Then Montross smiled sadly from the pitcher's box while the Iron Workers toyed with his curves for runs in the fifth, seventh and eighth innings. The ninth inning, as far as the Safe Works nine was concerned, wasn't necessary.

Nothing in the game of the Hope boys is worthy of special mention, as it was a simple case of demoralization all around, except for the fine exhibition given by Shortman. In reality he played the whole game and even a blow from a pitched ball, squarely in the stomach, failed to abate his enthusiasm and he went back in the game with renewed determination. Besides putting out five men, making five assists, taking part in a double play and making another unassisted, he came out without an error. He made one out of the Hope four hits.

Errors and misplays occurred with surprising frequency on the Hope side and Right Fielder Gordon even forgot his position. He tried to double up on center, leaving a gap for Allen to drop a fly that shouldn't have landed but one base but instead gave him three. It was clearly evident that something was wrong and there was. A dispute which occurred between the players, Friday night, is said to have been the cause of several avowing they wouldn't support others—and they certainly didn't.

ONE HORSE LOST IN FIRE

AN INCENDIARY BLAZE DESTROYED CHARLES JETER'S BARN.

One Horse Was Found in Field All Bridled—The Window Had Been Covered Up.

Fire, supposed to be of incendiary origin, destroyed a barn, in which a horse was burned to death, belonging to Charles Jeter, on Belmont avenue at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The crackling of the blazing building awoke the family of Mr. Bird living across the street, and the alarm was given immediately from box 132. The borough department promptly responded.

Two horses were stabled in the building. Chief Campbell found one of them in a near-by field with a bridle on. The animal had evidently been ridden a short time previously. It is thought that either some miscreant entered the barn to steal a horse and then set fire to the building to cover up his tracks or that a tramp looking for a resting place accidentally dropped a match and intended to utilize the horse to make good his escape. A blanket had been fastened over the window, thus preventing the discovery of the fire until it had gained good headway.

The total loss, comprising horse, barn and hay stored therein, is in the vicinity of $500.

KING SHOOT.

Members of Independent Gun Club Blazed at Eagle and Won Many Prizes.

The Independent Gun Club held its annual king shoot at the Maple avenue range yesterday. The shooting was at an eagle placed on a fifty foot pole at a distance of fifty yards. Henry Haurand shot away the head, entitling him to be crowned king. John Lloyd knocked off the neck, taking second prize, valued at $5. Third honors, worth $4, the right wing, went to Adolph Berri, who also accidentally shot off the left wing, and the prize reverted to the club. Charles Jensen shot away the body, entitling him to the king medal.

The women immediately afterwards held a queen shoot. Mrs. Adolph Berri gave the finest exhibition ever seen on the range, making 101 out of a possible 108. Mrs. John Lloyd also did some remarkable shooting, making 89 points. Prizes were then awarded to the successful competitors. During the day several selections were rendered by the Saenger society.

CARPENTERS' PICNIC.

Fully Five Hundred People Were Present at the Affair.

Fully five hundred people attended the carpenter's picnic on the grounds near Johnston's drive yesterday. The day was spent in the manner characteristic of such outings. The general committee in charge of the day's programme was W. C. Bodine, J. T. Case, John Eberly, George Wyckoff, R. A. York, Gus Rupert, J. N. Apgar. John Hummer, M. Keefe and I. Shepard had charge of the dancing pavilion. Jimmy Burns was on the scene with his cane rack and other appendages and did a good day's business.

JOB GOES BEGGING.

Mail Authorities Having Trouble to Get a Local Messenger.

James H. Rogers, colored, has been hired to carry the U. S. mail between the postoffice and the railroad station, succeeding David Martin. Rogers did not submit a bid, in fact none of those who bid for the job were considered as it is believed their figures were too high. A special agent came to Plainfield last Friday and made a tour of the town. He found Rogers willing to take the job and he is now doing the work. It is believed that the postal authorities were obliged to increase the salary to get him.

Few Coming Back.

At the Columbia Tool Works this morning four men and four girls from the ranks of the strikers returned to work. Two more of the strikers and two new men returned to work at noon. The management considers that the backbone of the strike has been broken.

To be in Charge.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel will go to the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, tonight. The party will leave the Chapel at 7:30 by special car. The meeting will be in charge of Miss Helen Hall.

—No better fruit is to be canned than Bartlett pears—that is, when they are the kind Neuman Brothers sell. 125 baskets tomorrow.

PYTHIAN FIELD DAY.

Thousands at Long Branch Yesterday to Witness Annual Field Day of Pythian Knights.

The annual field day parade of the Knights of Pythias of New Jersey took place at Long Branch, yesterday. Fifty lodges and twelve uniformed divisions were in line and the procession was witnessed by twelve thousand spectators.

Perseverance and Unity Lodges, of this city, were well represented, the members in attendance marching with District No. 34, composed of the Elizabeth lodges. Owing to the absence of all of its officers in California and other places, Crescent Division, uniformed rank of this city, did not attend. Four of its members, Harvey L. Patterson, William Feiring, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and William Flack, took places in the ranks of Blank Prince Division, of Newark, which captured second money in the competition drill. Palestine Division, of Jersey City, took first money.

OYSTERS R HERE.

The Luscious Bivalves Are Again in Season and Local Dealers are Ready for Them.

With the advent of September, the luscious oyster is once more in season. Already the bivalves are arriving in large numbers and the dealers claim they are of a most delicious flavor, even excelling those of former years. At the local stores they are to be found in every variety, the Rockaways and Blue Points mingling with Maurice Cove and others from the Delaware.

At the Rogers Seafood market the Rockaways and Blue Points will always be found until the R months pass away. The Patchogue oyster will be featured by Foss & Jeter and Fred Endress will have them from Maurice Cove, the Rockaways, Millponts and Blue Points. All these dealers are enthusiastic over the prime quality of their first shipments and predict a heavy output during the fall and winter.

AFTER AUTOS.

Scotch Plains Gathered in Two—One of the Cases Will be Fought in the Courts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, September 2—Scotch Plains has been gathering in more automobiles. Sunday a man who told the magistrate his name was Edward Mayence, of Short Hills, was fined $25 by Justice Clark for speeding his "red devil" along Mountain avenue. The man took Officer Guerrier, who arrested him, to Short Hills, paid him $25, and then gave him a ride back.

Township Committeeman Buchman last evening arrested Herman Unger, of Unger Brothers, Newark, charged with breaking the auto ordinance. Mr. Unger proposes to make a test of this case. W. R. Stansbery went his bondsman to appear at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Won in One Week.

After one week's courtship, Miss Emma Naylor, of this city and Dennis Mahony, of Garwood, formerly of High Bridge, were quietly married at the home of Justice Clark, at Scotch Plains, Sunday afternoon. The only attendants were P. McNally, an intimate friend of the groom, and Mrs. M. J. Cox, of this city. The couple will live at Garwood where the groom is employed in the Aeolian factory.

Clerk and Money Gone.

A well known butcher's clerk has suddenly severed connections with the firm he worked for, taking with him, it is said, sundry dollars that didn't belong to him. It is said he has been collecting bills for months past for which no returns were made at the store. One customer claims to have paid him $200 for which no credit has been given her, although her bills are all receipted.

Hop at the Netherwood.

The evening of Labor Day was celebrated at the Hotel Netherwood by a full dress hop. The event attracted a large number of people from the city. Last night's affair did not interfere with the regular weekly hop, which was held as usual Saturday evening with marked success.

Sprained His Ankle.

William L. Smalley, Jr., of Somerset street, while walking in the long grass near the Park Golf Club grounds, yesterday, stepped into a hole and twisted his foot in such a way that he sprained his ankle. The injury will keep him confined to the house for a few days.

Back to Plainfield.

Dr. F. E. Moldenke, formerly of Plainfield, and a prominent worker in the German Lutheran church, preached to that congregation Sunday. He has been absent from the city ten years.

MANY OFFENDERS IN COURT

MOST THRILLING WERE TWO WHO ENJOYED A PITCHED BATTLE.

Given Forty Days Straight—Colored Man Fined $5 for Sitting on Officer.

At yesterday morning's session of the court, Peter Dickingon, colored, was fined $5 for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. He was taken into custody by Patrolman McCarthy, Sunday afternoon, but refused to accompany the officer to the station. The policeman was thrown down in the struggle and Dickinson sat on him.

Theodore Dunlap was arraigned for drunkenness and sentence was suspended. He was arrested by Sergeant Frederickson.

At this morning's session, forty days straight was the disposition made in the cases of Stephen Koje and John Miller, who disturbed the peace and quiet of the city in the vicinity of East Third and Richmond streets yesterday afternoon, by throwing beer bottles, cobblestone and other missles at one another. Koje lost a square inch of scalp during the fight and Miller's head was so badly cut by flying beer bottles a physician had to be called. The row was stopped by Roundsman Mattox and Patrolman Lunger.

James Street was arraigned on complaint of Addie McCann, charged with assault. The fracas took place in front of McCann's wife's home on Pond place, whither he had gone to see his son. He was refused admittance and was then thrown off the porch by Street, a star boarder. The latter continued the row twenty minutes later when he met McCann at the corner of Lee place and South Second street. Street was fined $5.

William Haggerty was arraigned on complaint of Patrolman Vanderweg, charged with drunkenness. Sentence was suspended.

HUGE SUCCESS.

Such Was the Labor Day Excursion of the Grocers' Association to Coney Island.

Nine hundred Plainfielders took advantage of the grocer's excursion to visit Coney Island, yesterday. It was the most successful affair of this kind conducted by the local association, not an accident or delay occurring to mar the day's pleasure.

The trip was made by the New Jersey Central to Jersey City, thence by the Iron Steamboat line to the island. The steamboat company put itself out of the way to take care of the Plainfielders in order to make amends for the annoyance caused by its blunders two years ago. Fred W. Dunn was chairman of the committee which had the affair in charge and was assisted by all members of the Grocers Association.

Axe Just Missed Eye.

Daniel Kiederling, aged twenty-eight years, of East Fourth street, was chopping wood at his home last evening, when his axe caught in a clothes line hanging over his head. The sharp blade came down with much force striking Kiederling over the eye, inflicting two deep gashes. The man went at once to Dr. Browning's office and had the injury attended to. The doctor said that if the cuts had been a trifle lower the man would have lost the eye completely.

Was No Evidence.

Walter Jones, charged with stealing $10 from Mrs. Clara White's pocketbook, Saturday, was arrested that evening and locked up at police headquarters until yesterday morning, when he was given a hearing before Justice Huff who issued the warrant. The case was dismissed by Justice Huff for lack of evidence.

Injured by Foul Tip.

While catching behind the bat in a baseball game at Berkely Heights yesterday Richard Rogers, of Watchung, was struck in the mask by a foul tip. The blow was so hard that it broke the mask and drove one of the wires into his forehead, inflicting a painful wound.

Death of Miss Cornell.

Miss C. D. Cornell, of East Second street, who went south several months ago for her health, died yesterday at Asheville, N. C. The remains are to be brought north at once and interred beside those of her parents at Jamaica, L. I.

Many to Mauch Chunk.

The New Jersey Central's excursion to Mauch Chunk took nearly 100 from this city yesterday. In all, two trains of eleven cars each were required to transport all those going from points along the line.

TWO DAYS OF ACTIVITY AT THE PLAINFIELD GOLF CLUBS

Saturday and Labor Day Marked Resumption of Active Season Among the Hillside and Park Golfers.

IDEAL WEATHER AND FINE COURSES.

TWO UNUSUAL WEEKLY COMPETITIONS WERE HELD AT THE TWO LOCAL GOLF CLUBS SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Labor Day Winners Were C. T. Runyon, C. A. Stover, D. H. Barrows and Miss van Herwerden—Park Club Championship Narrowed Down to Four—S. R. Titsworth, W. A. Townsend and Miss Townsend Carried Off Honors in Other Events at Park.

Saturday and Monday saw a resumption of activity at the two local golf clubs. While the usual weekly competitions have been held with much regularity, many of the golfers have been absent on their summer vacations and other events have been given up until they should return. Saturday saw the regular events at the two clubs, honors at the Hillside going to A. D. Beers and C. W. Abbott, while N. A. Miller was low man at Park. Yesterday, events at Hillside went to Carroll T. Runyon, Charles A. Stover, Dudley H. Barrows and Miss van Herwerden. At the Park Club, the club championship was narrowed down to four, Morgan T. Townsend, Charles B. Morse, Roberts deS. Newhall and Dr. A. W. Anderson. The honors in the other events were carried off by Sydney R. Titsworth, William A. Townsend and Miss Townsend.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

Saturday afternoon's event at the Park Golf Club was the weekly competition for the President's cup which brought out a fair field. The weather was fine and the course remarkably fast. There were several surprises and the leadars in the race for the trophy failed to score. Dr. A. W. Anderson is gradually becoming an important factor in the contest.

N. A. Miller played a great game and captured first place with the aid of a fat handicap. Morgan T. Townsend was in fine form and nearly equalled R. deS. Newhall's record for the course, making a 42 and a 45. Dr. A. W. Anderson also showed a decided improvement.

Saturday's scores, better than 100 net, were as follows:

Nelson A. Miller, 106, 30—76; Morgan T. Townsend, 87, 9—78; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 103, 22—81; Samuel Townsend, 112, 30—82; S. St. J. McCutchen, 101, 15—86; Charles L. Nichols, 119, 29—90; Chas. B. Morse, 105, 14—91; William R. Faber, 111, 20—91; Roberts deS. Newhall, 103, 4—99.

The standing for the President's cup is:

	Points.
Charles B. Morse	13
S. St. J. McCutchen	11
Charles L. Nichols	6½
Roberts De S. Newhall	5¾

The fine weather and the favorable conditions of the course were continued yesterday when the Labor Day programme of events passed off in a very satisfactory fashion. Chief interest was centred in the club championship which was narrowed down to four. In the other events of the day, the honors were easily carried away by Sydney R. Titsworth.

The contest for the club championship was started in the morning when the qualifying round of medal play was held. The first eight qualified. The scores were: Morgan T. Townsend, 91; Roberts deS. Newhall, 91; Charles B. Morse, 101; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 105; S. St. John McCutchen, 106; Charles L. Nichols, 111; Samuel Townsend, 112; William R. Faber, 113; E. Maxwell Honeyman, 114; William A. Townsend, 115; Nelson A. Miller, 116.

S. R. Titsworth was among those who qualified, making 109, but he withdrew from the contest.

Most of those who played in the morning competed in the ball sweepstakes, handicap, the same scores counting for that event and the club championship. The scores better than 100 net, were: Sydney R. Titsworth, 109, 30—79; Charles L. Nichols, 111, 29—82; R. deS. Newhall, 91, 7—84; Samuel Townsend, 112, 27—85; Charles B. Morse, 101, 14—87; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 105, 18—87; E. Maxwell Honeyman, 114, 25—89; S. St. J. McCutchen, 106, 14—92; William R. Faber, 113, 20—93; Nelson A. Miller, 116, 22—94.

The eight who qualified for the championship in the morning were paired off for match play in the afternoon. The results were as follows: Morgan T. Townsend defeated S. St. John McCutchen 4 up and 2 to go; Charles B. Morse defeated Samuel Townsend, 2 up and 1 to go; R. deS. Newhall defeated Charles L. Nichols 4 up and 2 to go; Dr. A. W. Anderson defeated William R. Faber 1 up in 19 holes. Saturday M. T. Townsend will meet Morse and Newhall will met Anderson.

The medal scores made by these players and a number of others counted for the Holiday cup in the afternoon. S. R. Titsworth's handicap had been reduced ten strokes but he managed to win that trophy, defeating E. Maxwell Honeyman by a single stroke. The scores, better than 100 net, were: Sydney R. Titsworth, 97, 20—77; E. Maxwell Honeyman, 103, 25—78; Charles L. Nichols, 114, 29—85; William R. Faber, 106, 20—86; S. Townsend, 115, 27—88; Frank Rogers, 111, 23—88; S. St. J. McCutchen, 108, 14—92; Dr. A. W. Anderson, 110, 18—92; Charles B. Morse, 109, 14—95.

An approaching and putting contest was held late in the afternoon. There was a tie for first place but Miss Townsend and William A. Townsend won on the play off from Miss Mabel Van Deventer and George T. Rogers. Miss May Shreve and Samuel Townsend were third. The others who competed were Miss Alys M. Chandor and I. H. Townsend and Miss Lydie E. Loizeaux and Roberts deS. Newhall.

HILLSIDE CLUB.

Albert Beers was the only contestant for the Boys' cup on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course, Saturday morning, and according to the rules of the club he receives three

PAULIST PRIESTS PROPOSED

NEW ORDER STARTED TENTATIVELY IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Is Claimed That the Middle West Has Need of Such an Organization.

A movement started tentatively some months ago to organize an order of St. Paul in the Episcopal church, has so far succeeded as to have a constitution drawn up and a preliminary head in Rev. C. R. Birnbach, of Pittsfield, Ill., who announces that a meeting will be called soon in the interests of the plan, and that pending the holding of such meeting he desires suggestions.

The constitution restricts membership to ordained men, but has a provision for laymen who are studying for ordination.

Only men in Episcopal priests' orders are to be eligible to vote in the conduct of the organization. It is provided that no priest of the order may labor in a diocese without consent of the bishop, and that upon parishes coming to be financially able to pay salaries of $1,000 a year if in the country, or $1,500 if in the city, the Paulist priest shall retire to make room for a regular priest, if requested by the bishop to do so. It is still further provided that Paulist priests may not, save under very strict conditions, become candidates for the vacant rectorates of the parishes which may have been built up by them.

This introduction of the distinction between regular and secular priests comes about in the Episcopal church in America in almost the same way that it came into the Roman Catholic church in Italy and France and for the same reasons. The establishment of an order of priests in the Episcopal church, while it copies the Church of Rome, and is historic, is not startling to the religious world, as it might have been forty years ago; for all religious bodies are today adopting plans, and even terms, from each other or from the past, wherever such plans and terms seem to be of service. The new Episcopal order of Paulists is designed chiefly for work in the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri and Michigan, but is of course available everywhere. All Paulists are required to serve without pay, and, unlike most of the Roman regulars, may not live in community or acquire support by endowment. Like the apostle whose name they have adopted, they are to labor with their own hands, unless independent by possession of private means, and do the work of priests of the Episcopal church besides.

Founders of this new Paulist order give as reasons for their action the facts that many towns in the middle west are unable to support an Episcopal clergyman; that the leisure class from whom may be expected men willing and able to labor as missionaries and support themselves is just coming to exist in this country as it has long existed in England and France, and that Episcopal church extension in America and abroad can be thus accomplished in places where it cannot be by the usual means of a paid missionary supported by a central mission board.

Miss Katy Huff and Miss Nettie Dunn, of Hooboken, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dodge, of Lincoln place.

Berthold Schreiner, of R. J. Shaw's pharmacy, left by boat from New York yesterday afternoon for Old Point Comfort. From there he will go to Richmond, Norfolk, Washington and then home. He will be away all of this week.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. Randolph.

—The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held tomorrow afternoon at the church at 4 o'clock.

CAN'T KEEP IT UP.

Can't Deceive Plainfield People Very Long—They Learn Quickly.

It is sometimes an easy matter to fool the public, but you can't keep it up very long. They are sure to find you out; and every time a man is fooled another skeptic is made. We are naturally skeptical when, reading a published statement given by some stranger residing in a far-away place, but the circumstances are entirely different when home endorsement is presented. The testimony of local citizens renders deceit impossible. It is so easy for you to investigate. Read this case:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

THE MERGER SUIT.

Defendants File Their Answer In the Famous Case.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 2.—The defendants in the merger suit brought by the state of Minnesota have filed their answers in the office of the clerk of the United States circuit court.

The suit was brought by the state against the Northern Securities company, James J. Hill as president of that company, James J. Hill as an individual, the Great Northern Railway company and the Northern Pacific Railway company.

There is one answer for the Securities company and Mr. Hill in his character as president and individually, one for the Great Northern and one for the Northern Pacific.

But the answer of the Securities company and of Mr. Hill sets up all the matters of defense, and the pleadings in their proceedings simply follow the Securities company's answer, with such changes of phraseology as are required by their diverse characters.

The main answer, that of the Securities company, is more than merely direct and plain for a legal pleading.

Scholes Beaten on the Harlem.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Louis Scholes, the Toronto Rowing club crack, was beaten to a standstill by Frank Vesselly of the Bohemian Boat club at the thirteenth annual regatta of the Middle States Regatta association, rowed on the Harlem river. It was the most surprising incident of an excellent day's sport, and hundreds of dollars changed hands on the result. The water was in fair condition for rowing, and the time in several races was very fast. The course was along the Harlem River Speedway and the distance one mile straightaway.

Whitney's Gunfire Wins Race.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Thirty thousand men and women, the biggest crowd that ever packed itself into Sheepshead Bay race track on Labor day, saw William C. Whitney's Gunfire capture the Twin City handicap, running the one and one-fourth miles within a fifth of a second of the track record and Alsono, the property of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mrs. Herman B. Duryea, win the second race on the programme.

New World's Running Record.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—A new world's record for running horses was set at Harlem when Scintillant won the Twentieth Century handicap, a mile and three-sixteenths, in 1:57 2-5. The previous record for the distance was 1:58½, and was made by Domenarges at Washington park July 1, 1898. Scintillant, carrying 109 pounds, won in a gallop by four lengths.

Champion Outwheels Elkes.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Albert Champion beat Harry Elkes and Will Stinson in a twenty-five mile motor paced race at Charles River park. Up to the last mile it was an exceedingly close fight, but at that point both Stinson's and Elkes' motors went wrong, and the two rode unpaced.

LABOR'S GREAT DAY

Records Are Broken In Many Cities.

NOTED SPEAKERS ADDRESS THRONGS

President Mitchell at Philadelphia. W. J. Bryan, the Orator, at Lincoln, Neb. Debs Discusses the Coal Strike In Iowa.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Throughout the land, in every city and town of any size, there were parades and celebrations of workingmen in honor of Labor day. In all of the large cities previous records were broken both in the numbers and of the orderliness of the paraders.

In this city the parade was the most successful outpouring of laboring men witnessed since the first public display in 1882.

The column swept down Fifth avenue to the music of a score or more of bands and the waving of thousands of banners and flags. It moved through solid lines of men, women and children, who cheered the paraders and the floats with the utmost enthusiasm.

It had been planned to make the Labor day parade this year the largest and most pretentious that has yet been seen in this city. The various unions were urged to turn out and make a good showing. While the parade was composed almost entirely of the building trades, it was estimated that there were nearly 50,000 men in line.

From Fifty-seventh street straight south to Park row they marched and then disbanded to join their families and go to various resorts for the day.

The parade was reviewed at Fifth avenue and Twenty-fifth street, where a reviewing stand had been erected. Here Borough President Cantor, Acting Mayor Fornes and other city officials formally reviewed the men.

The parade was chiefly remarkable for the big showing made by the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's unions. Clad in brilliant red shirts and wearing white hats, they held the right of line and got the lion's share of the cheers of the dense crowds that lined the avenue.

Mitchell Spoke In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Labor day was generally observed here by the various trades unions, and more than ordinary interest was displayed in the celebration from the fact that John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was the central figure of the demonstration. The weather was perfect, and it is estimated that 15,000 men participated in the street parade of labor organizations. The principal event of the day was a picnic at Washington park, on the Delaware river, where two addresses were made by President Mitchell.

Debs on the Coal Strike.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Sept. 2.—Eugene V. Debs spoke at the joint celebration of Labor day by the labor unions of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline, Ill. Discussing the coal strike, he said that it was a struggle between thousands of men on one side and half a dozen on the other, who really represented only one man, J. Pierpont Morgan. However the strike might end, Debs declared, it would be a success because of the manner in which it called attention to the danger of one man power in the business world.

The Day In San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Celebrations of Labor day in this city were more generally observed than ever before, it being the first time in the history of unionism in this city that the laboring classes have been brought together in one great body, making the parade the largest ever seen here. Fully 40,000 men and women formed the procession, representing every union in this city. Immediately after the parade Mayor Schmitz and other leaders delivered addresses.

Chicago's Big Celebration.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—More than half the usual business of Chicago was at a standstill in honor of labor. The plants of nearly every industry represented in more than 300 local labor unions as well as all banks and the Stock Exchange and board of trade were closed while organized labor celebrated its annual holiday. During the morning hours a great throng of workingmen passed in review through the downtown streets.

Great Parade of Miners.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 2.—Twenty thousand men marched in the labor day parade here. It was the biggest labor demonstration ever seen in this city. The striking mine workers formed the entire first division and were more than 12,000 strong. The other divisions were made up of various trades unions. After the parade a picnic was held at Lake Ariel. There has been no such universal observance of Labor day here before.

Boston Suspends Business.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 2.—The observance of labor's holiday in this city was marked by the suspension of all industrial pursuits except those having for their object the pleasure and entertainment of the holiday makers and by two great parades. The weather was that of an ideal summer day and brought thousands of spectators out to see the parades. Fully 20,000 men marched.

Bryan Speaks at Lincoln.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 2.—Labor day had its first general observance here since the inauguration of the holiday. There was a parade of uniformed trade unionists, followed by speaking and amusements at the park. W. J. Bryan was the principal orator.

BALDWIN'S FAILURE

Story of Feud In Arctics Told by Swedish Captain.

LONG STRUGGLE WITH SHIP'S CAPTAIN

Trouble on the America Began at Dundee Over the Engineer—A Question of Who Was Master of the Ship.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 2.—The Tidningen publishes a long interview with Captain Dreilick, a Swedish member of the Baldwin-Zeigler arctic expedition.

In this interview Captain Drellick says the difficulties between Mr. Baldwin and Captain Johanssen of the America began at Dundee in a disagreement as to the fitness of the engineer of the vessel. Captain Johanssen, according to Captain Drellick, ill treated the crew of the America, who made no complaint. Upon arriving at Tromso, Norway, on the outward trip, Mr. Baldwin proposed to the mate of the America that he take command of the ship. This offer was repeated at Vadsoe and Archangel, but it was always declined. Captain Johanssen overworked the crew, and Mr. Baldwin did not interfere.

Continuing, the Swedish captain says that one day when the America was surrounded by ice Captain Johanssen reasonably refused to anchor, a maneuver which, according to the ice pilots, would have been dangerous. A heated controversy then arose between Mr. Baldwin and Captain Johanssen, the former insisting that the captain was not master of the America, but only sailing master. Captain Johanssen produced his papers to prove that he was master of the ship.

Further trouble arose when the captain wanted certain explosives removed from underneath the cabin. This was violently opposed by Mr. Baldwin, but the explosives were eventually removed as the captain desired.

The climax was reached one night during a terrific storm. The ship's anchor was dragging, and Captain Johanssen offered Mr. Baldwin the choice of losing the anchor or the bowsprit. To this Mr. Baldwin answered "Bosh!" The vessel was ordered astern, and the reversing of her engines broke the anchor chain. She narrowly cleared some icebergs which were descending upon her.

The captain was discharged March 29, and Mr. Baldwin, who was starting on a sleigh ordered the crew to obey Hart, the engineer. The mate and the crew replied that such action would be mutiny, as they had made their contracts with Captain Johanssen. Mr. Baldwin then threatened the crew with punishment for mutiny against him, the owner and leader of the expedition. Captain Johanssen advised the crew to avoid trouble.

On returning from the sleigh expedition, May 21 Mr. Baldwin communicated in writing to Captain Johanssen the announcement of his discharge, and Captain Johanssen requested the mate of the America to take command.

Upon returning to Norway Captain Johanssen telegraphed the agent of William Zeigler of New York not to forward money to Mr. Baldwin. Mr. Zeigler is the financial backer of the expedition. Mr. Baldwin received, however, $10,800, which he deposited at Gothenburg, Sweden, to the credit of the Swedish crew of the America.

The failure of the Baldwin expedition is ascribed by Captain Drellick to internal troubles and Mr. Baldwin's incompetency as a leader.

It should be noted that the American members of the expedition were forbidden by the terms of their contracts to make any communications to the newspapers, while the Swedish members were not so bound.

THE FRITHJOF SIGHTED.

Not Likely to Reach Franz Josef Land With Supplies.

TROMSO, Norway, Sept. 2.—The Baldwin-Zeigler supply ship Frithjof, which left here July 1 for Franz Josef Land, was spoken Aug. 14. News of her was brought by the sealing yacht Soeblomsten, which has just arrived at Alten fiord and brought a letter from the Frithjof.

The vessel was spoken Aug. 14 in latitude 76.50 north and longitude 40 east. She reported all well on board and added that the ice was very bad and that she had been unable to reach Franz Josef Land.

It is generally believed here that unless the wind breaks the ice the Frithjof will be compelled to return without reaching Franz Josef Land. The America's early return was the result of her strong power combined with the choice of a fortunate route. After the receipt of the information brought by the yacht Soeblomsten Mr. Baldwin considers there is no reason to proceed in search of the Frithjof, and he will await her return at Tromso.

On Aug. 9 the Frithjof reached latitude 78.30 north, longitude 46.39 east, which was about the same place Mr. Baldwin, on the America, had come through a fortnight previously. This point was the nearest approach of the Frithjof to Franz Josef Land.

Up to the date of the letter the America encountered heavy ice in that vicinity. The Frithjof did not dare go through this ice. The latter vessel pushed thirty miles through the ice from the open sea and sailed for more than twenty miles along the side of a single iceberg without sighting its end. Quiet and foggy weather had prevailed throughout the Frithjof's voyage, with the exception of two days, when it became necessary to anchor in the ice.

The bad ice conditions made the Frithjof's catch a poor one. It amounted to fifteen seals and eleven bears.

FARLEY ARCHBISHOP.

Corrigan's Successor Decided Upon at Rome.

ROME, Sept. 2.—That the Right Rev. John M. Farley, bishop, has been chosen archbishop of New York to succeed the late Archbishop Corrigan is confirmed.

Mgr. Farley was elected to this exalted position by the almost unanimous vote of the Congregation de Propaganda Fide.

Cardinal Martinelli, who was charged to set forth the case to his colleagues, made a minute and detailed report about the different candidates. The information received showed that Dr. Farley was qualified as the most worthy candidate for the post, both in the lists of the priests and bishops and in the reports of the archbishops of the United States. After a discussion in which all the cardinals present participated Cardinal Gotti summed up the expressions and opinions of those present, with the result that the choice of Dr. Farley was unanimous. The ratification of the pope is necessary to make the appointment definite.

Mgr. Veccia, secretary of the propaganda, will report to his holiness some time during this week. The formality of the confirmation of the decision reached by the cardinals, however, is sometimes delayed.

The qualifications of the candidates for the post of coadjutor to the archbishop of San Francisco were outlined by Cardinal Satolli, whose eulogy of the Right Rev. George Montgomery resulted in this prelate's nomination almost without discussion.

It is expected that Dr. Farley will ask for an auxiliary bishop on account of the size and importance of the archdiocese of New York.

ANOTHER COLLIERY OPEN.

Delaware and Hudson Company Has Daily Output of 15,000 Tons.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 2.—The opening of the Bliss colliery at Nanticoke makes five collieries and five washeries that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company has in operation. The Delaware and Hudson company is operating one colliery and three washeries, the Ontario and Western company three washeries, and other companies and individuals have a dozen more washeries in operation. The daily output of coal from the Lackawanna district, according to a rough estimate by Superintendent Bryden of the Ontario and Western coal department, is 15,000 tons a day.

Richard Williamson, a watchman at Richmond No. 3 colliery of the Ontario and Western company, while returning from work was set upon by a crowd of strikers and given a brutal beating. He was left on the roadside for dead, but will recover. He emptied his revolver at his assailants, but as far as is known no one was hit.

The guards at the Pancoast pumphouse in Throop were fired upon during the night from the opposite side of the river. The guards got under cover and allowed the attacking party to exhaust its ammunition by peppering the heavy planking of the pumphouse.

TWENTY-SIX KILLED.

An Excursion Train Wrecked at Bercy, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Sept. 2.—The engine and six coaches filled with negroes on an excursion train coming to Birmingham from Greenville, Miss., were wrecked at Bercy, Ala.

H. Dudley, trainmaster, and twenty-five negro passengers were killed outright and twenty-five more fatally hurt. Engineer Crook was fatally hurt. Doctors from Birmingham, Columbus, Corona and all along the line were sent to the scene.

Against the Prizefight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 2.—The Rev. W. L. Lloyd, pastor of the Fifth and Walnut Street Methodist church in this city, who preached a sermon denouncing prizefights, has received a letter from Governor Beckham expressing the disapproval of prizefighting in Louisville and throughout Kentucky and stating that he hoped the Louisville authorities would take the necessary steps to prevent the contest between McGovern and Young Corbett which is scheduled to take place in this city Sept. 22. The governor did not state whether he intended to take any action in the matter.

Strike's End Predicted.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Persons close to the coal operators were inclined to coincide with the views of Senator Thomas C. Platt that the coal strike is nearing its end. The senator speaks unhesitatingly and clearly on the matter. "The coal strike will be settled within a week or within two weeks at the outside," he says, and adds, "It will be settled in such a way that it will not be a political issue of any kind this fall." The estimated losses and expenses caused by the sixteen weeks' strike are $92,300,000.

Eighteen Ships Wrecked.

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 2.—Eighteen vessels, mostly sailing craft, have been driven ashore in a gale at Port Elizabeth. Five of them were dashed to pieces, and all the members of their crews were lost. Two tugs are also reported to have foundered, and a score of lighters are ashore. It is feared that there has been great loss of life.

Balloon Was Wrecked.

DENVER, Sept. 2.—The balloon which left here in an effort to reach New York was wrecked in a hurricane near Florence, Colo.; none killed.

6-foot Extension Table, Solid Golden Oak, $6.98

THE picture does but scant justice to this excellent table. It is 6 feet long when extended, made of selected oak, with a handsome golden finish, nicely polished, the legs are heavy and substantial, nicely fluted, giving the whole table a handsome and graceful appearance.
If you do not care to spend so much on a table, we have others from $2.69 up. A mail order will place one in your dining room.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

Visit to Vermont Ends With an Ovation at Brattleboro.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2.—President Roosevelt concluded his tour through Vermont at Brattleboro and passed last night at Northfield. The reception accorded him at Brattleboro was among the prettiest, well conducted and most enthusiastic which he has received in his tour of New England. Upon arriving at the station he was met by a company of infantry, headed by a band, and escorted to the common, where he delivered a brief address, in which he spoke of Abraham Lincoln as the man of the hour in the great civil war. He feelingly referred to the venerable ex-Governor Holbrook, who was on the platform and who accompanied the president a short distance through the state, as being one of the few men who had received the distinction of being a war governor.

The president's progress through Brattleboro was a continuous ovation. On the line of march his carriage was stopped in front of the leading hotel, and from the balcony men, women and children showered loose flowers and bouquets upon him. Arriving at the common, where he delivered his address, the pavilion steps were strewn with flowers by little girls, who were drawn up on both sides.

Labor day was generally celebrated throughout the state. Wherever the train stopped holiday crowds were out to extend the president a welcome. The heat was excessive, but the president seemed to suffer but little from its effects. His remarks on the subject of labor were confined mostly to a tribute to the people of Vermont, and he expressed his pleasure at being greeted by the representatives of organized labor because, he said, the typical American is the man who works.

The president began the day's journey at Burlington, reaching that city from Shelburne, the home of Dr. W. Seward Webb. After a drive about the city the presidential train started southward, stops being made at Vergennes, Middlebury, Brandon, Proctor, Rutland, Ludlow, Bellows Falls, Chester and Brattleboro, and his Vermont trip was ended. He crossed into Massachusetts and went to Northfield as the guest of William R. Moody, son of the noted evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, at the Northfield hotel. The president went to Round Top this morning to visit Mr. Moody's grave.

The president spoke at every stop during the Vermont trip, but most of his addresses were brief. That of greatest import was the one delivered at Proctor, the home of Senator Proctor, wherein he defined his idea of the Monroe doctrine.

The most unique speech of the day was that delivered last night in the auditorium here.

A PHILIPPINE SURPRISE.

Tariff Receipts on Imports Disappointingly Small.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Surprising results have followed the compilation of tariff returns on goods imported from the Philippine Islands during the first five months of the operation of the Philippine tariff act approved March 8 last.

Under that act 75 per cent of the Dingley rates were to be collected on Philippine imports into the United States, and this was to be held as a trust fund in the United States treasury. Although when the act was passed it was realized that the imposition of any duties of this kind would be restrictive of trade, it was argued that as the receipts would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $500,000 per annum that consideration would outweigh the drawbacks of maintaining a tariff system against the Philippines.

The returns just published in the treasury report show the total receipts for the five months of March, April, May, June and July were but $11,194, a sum so small in the opinion of the officials, as to scarcely meet the cost of collection. Moreover the returns by months do not show any increase, but rather a decrease in the collections. These facts will be brought to the attention of congress at its next session.

Chinese Edict Rescinded.

PEKING, Sept. 2.—The edict abolishing the likin stations throughout the Chinese empire, which was published in the Gazette Aug. 29, has been practically rescinded. A correction of this edict which appears in the Gazette today says: "The first edict was mistranslated. It should read: 'The likin will be abolished when all the foreign governments have agreed to the increase of customs duties.'"

Florence Strike May Cease.

FLORENCE, Italy, Sept. 2.—The indications are that the general strike which has been in progress since last Friday and which has rendered about 40,000 men idle will end shortly. A conference has been held between representatives of the metal workers and the managers of the Pignone Iron works, where the strike originated. Florence is quiet, and there is no disorder.

Havana Customs Decrease.

HAVANA, Sept. 2.—The customs receipts at Havana for the month of August amounted to $735,885, a decrease of $133,840 from the amount collected in August, 1901. This decrease is attributed largely to the recent five days' strike of the Havana dock laborers, which suspended operations at the custom house.

Father of Twenty-four.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 2.—David Gossard is dead in this city, aged seventy-five years. He was twice married and the father of twenty-four children, twenty of whom are living. He is also survived by eighty grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

TWO HUNDRED DEAD

Mont Pelee Again Spreads Devastation.

FIERCE, LONG CONTINUED ERUPTION

The Village of Morne Rouge Meets With St. Pierre's Fate—A Tidal Wave Sweeps Over Le Carbet. Heavy Showers of Ashes.

CASTRIES, St. Lucia, Sept. 2.—The British steamer Korona, which has arrived here from Fort de France, island of Martinique, reports that a terrible eruption of Mont Pelee occurred at 9 o'clock Saturday night and that people who arrived at Fort de France from the northern part of the island reported that the village of Morne Rouge, near the district previously devastated, had been destroyed and that Le Carbet, a village on the coast close to the southern end of the territory which was destroyed at the time of the great eruption, had been swept by a tidal wave.

About 200 persons lost their lives.

Mont Pelee has been in constant eruption since Aug. 15. There was an enormous fall of ashes from the volcano the night of the 25th. There was a very severe eruption the night of the 28th, when the volcanic rumblings were heard at a great distance. The mountain burned fiercely that night, and out at sea passing vessels were covered with ashes. The night of the 30th there were three separate eruptions.

It is impossible to approach the ruined town of St. Pierre from the sea. The people of the village of Le Carbet, on the coast, are terror stricken and flying, to the interior. Hot water is pouring down on Lorrain and Basse Pointe, villages to the northeast of the crater. Terrific detonations were heard, the ground rocked and quaked, and articles on tables were thrown to the floor.

The governor of Martinique has ordered every available boat to remove people from the coast villages to Fort de France.

At 8 o'clock in the evening of Saturday, the 30th, the sky was cloudless. Suddenly and without warning one-half of the horizon was obscured by a pitch black cloud of dust. This cloud was the center of most magnificent electric effects, the flashes of light surpassing the most elaborate fireworks. Flames and ashes continued to burst from the cloud until nearly midnight. Columns of flame shot from the crater of Mont Pelee to explode about the cloud in showers of balls of golden fire, which fell through the darkness in myriads of sparks. Three large aureoles were seen in the sky over the opening of the crater.

A tidal wave rushed upon Fort de France, and the terrified inhabitants of the port fled in large numbers to the interior. The wave was not severe and did but slight damage.

At midnight of Aug. 30 Mont Pelee was quiet. Shortly after this hour there came another shower of ashes, accompanied by vivid sheet lightning.

In addition to the 200 persons reported to have lost their lives at Le Carbet and Mourne Rouge, many other persons are said to have been killed all over the northern districts of the island. The governor of Martinique is believed to have started for the scene of destruction.

When the steamer Korona arrived here, she was covered with ashes and scoria.

President Denies Story.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2.—The attention of the president having been called to the published statement that Attorney General Knox's name was being considered with the view of appointing him to a justiceship on the supreme bench to succeed Justice George Shiras, it can be said on the authority of the president himself that not only does he not contemplate such a move, but Justice Shiras has not resigned. The president classed all such statements as without the least foundation and that they only come into his mind when he sees them in print. The same published statement also credits him with having reached the conclusion to place the construction of the isthmian canal under the jurisdiction of the army, with General Leonard Wood as chairman of the canal commission.

Carrie Nation Hissed.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the Kansas saloon smasher, in a lecture at Point of Pines before 5,000 persons, aroused the ire of her audience by a fling at President Roosevelt and was roundly hissed. Undaunted, Mrs. Nation defied those who were hissing her. "Stand up, you who are hissing, and let's see what you look like!" she cried. No one responded, and then she called the hissers cowards and said they were of the kind of men who vote for the brewers and break women's hearts.

Laurier Dined in Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Canadian colony of Paris gave a banquet last night at the Palais d'Orsay to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, prime minister of Canada. M. Ribot, a former French premier, presided at the function. The 200 guests present included Lady Laurier, W. S. Fielding, Canadian minister of finance, and a number of prominent French statesmen.

Large Orders For Locomotives.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 2.—The Seaboard Air Line railway has just given an order for thirty-one new locomotives. This order includes twenty-two heavy consolidated engines. It is understood that these engines are for use on the Birmingham extension, which, it is thought, will be in operation within the next twelve months.

TWO WAYS.

With so many automobile accidents happening, it is not surprising that the newspapers all over the country have taken up the need of providing better control for the horseless vehicles which are now dealing death and injury among their passengers and unfortunate passersby. The trouble is not with the smaller carriages of comparatively low speed but with the fast motor cars which possess intricate mechanism.

The Newark News makes the sugy gestion, which is by no means new, that all chaffeuers be compelled to take out a licence before being allowed to operate these machines. Such a license would only be granted after the proper examinations had been passed which would show the chaffeuer's thorough knowledge of the subject and his ability to control the machine under all occasions. This is the plan which is generally in force in the European countries and is there found to work with much success. While the automobiles are far more numerous on the other side of the Atlantic than they are here, the percentage of serious or fatal accidents seems much less. That the operators there are more capable and experienced is undoubtedly a very important facter in reducing the number of accidents.

Another Jersey newspaper believes that the State should pass a statute controlling the speed of automobiles throughout the State. While it might have a wholesome effect, it certainly would not prevent men, ignorant of the intricacies of these motor cars, from operating. The Newark News' idea seems to promise the best results, even if it might work a hardship in some few individual cases. The trouble is that the simple and less speedy machines have to be governed by the same laws as do those powerful and compilcated motor cars. The evolution of the auto may be expected, however, to eventually solve the problem which is now so troublesome to municipal and State authorities as well.

It is welcome news to the football enthusiasts of the city that Plainfield is to have a representative eleven on the gridiron this fall. The game has many followers in this city who are always willing to turn out to see a good game. If the management of the Alis team keeps its promise, the coming football season in Plainfield will be an unusually bright one. That team has been steadily gaining strength until it should now be able to make a showing with the strong teams in thisepart of Jersey.

David Young, general manager of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, now says that the merger of the trolley lines in this part of the State is nearly completed. He looks toward its completion in the near future. This change will be a important one indeed to the trolley interests of New Jersey.

The holiday passed very pleasantly in Plainfield. While there were large crowds to leave this city, taking advantage of the several excursions planned for the day, there were enough who remained to enjoy themselves in various ways. Outdoor sports were the chief attractions.

A skunk jumped on board a trolley car near Rahway, one night last week. The conductor did not attempt to collect a fare.

DUNELLEN.

The Y. M. C. baseball team had a busy time of it Saturday and yesterday. On Saturday they met and after a close contest were defeated by the Orange Field Club, of Plainfield, by a score of 9 to 8. Yesterday morning they easily defeated the St. Mary's second team of Plainfield, in a one sided game, by a score of 20 to 4. Both games drew large crowds as the Dunellen A. C. had no games on either day.

The Sunday-school class of Miss Louise Doolittle will give a dime sociable Thursday afternoon in the lecture room of the Metheodist church. Miss Doolittle, who has recently returned from an enjoyable trip to Europe, will be present and will relate her experience while across the water. The talk promises to be very interesting and all are invited to be present.

The holiday here was spent in the usual manner. In the morning the baseball game drew a large crowd. In the afternoon almost every body journeyed out of town. A large number went to the horse races at New Brunswick. In the evening Riverside Park was the chief attraction.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening at the home of President W. J. Hamilton. All of the teachers were present and plans for the coming year outlined and talked over.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Giddes entertained their son, Fred Giddes, of Philadelphia, over Saturday and Labor Day and yesterday entertained their son, Arthur, and wife from Staten Island.

Horace Garrabrandt and family, of Prospect avenune, will remove to the west this week as Mr. Garrabrandt has secured a position there.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bodine have recently returned to their home after an enjoyable summer in Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Terry, of Plainfield, visited Mrs. Emily Apgar, yesterday.

Mrs. Edward Brooks entertained relatives from Philadelphia yesterday.

Harry Apgar, of Philadlephia, spent Labor Day with his parents in town.

Sandford Staples and family spent yesterday with out of town friends.

Charles Adams, of Philadelph, spent Labor Day with G. F. Schenck.

Charles Lake entertained a friend from New York over Sunday.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley spent Sunday and yesterday at Sewarren.

NEW MARKET.

The public schools throughout Piscataway opened for the fall term this morning. The usual large attendance was recorded. One new teacher has been added to the force at the local school.

The holiday was spent in the usual manner yesterday most of the people spending the day out of town or going out to enjoy themselves.

Dr. M. J. Whitford is enjoying an extended vacation through the west. Before his return he expects to go as far west as Nebraska.

Mr. Morgan, of Plainfield, with his family, has taken possession of the Faulkner place which he has recently purchased.

No services were held in the First Baptist church Sunday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

James Walsh, of Plainfield, while filled up on Scotch Plains lightning, endeavored to defeat all comers in front of Ivamy's Hotel Saturday night at 10:30. Officers Pangborn and Vanderbilt assisted him to one of the township cells where he remained until Sunday afternoon when he appeared before Judge Clark. The fun cost Walsh $5 and costs. The fine was paid.

School reopened this morning with a large attendance of pupils. Within a few days all will have returned from their vacations and outings and the school work will settle down to its usual even tenor of its way. The following is the corps of teachers for the year: Principal, Howard D. White; assistants, the Misses Squiers, Miss Poole, Miss Reger and Miss Little.

Dennis Mahony and Miss Emma Naylor, both of Plainfield, were made happy Sunday evening by Judge Clark who united them in marriage. The Judge has decided a number of matrimonial cases during his term as Justice of the Peace but never a happier one. Bride and groom received congratulations from the court before leaving again for Plainfield where they will reside.

Miss Sadie Reger has returned from her summer vacation part of which has been spent at her home at Sucassuanna, this State, and part at Boston and points of interest along the New England coast.

Dr. J. C. Buchanan, one of the former pastors of the Baptist church but now pastor of the Pemberton Baptist church, was a welcome visitor at the morning service at the Baptist church, Sunday.

Wm. VanValkenburg led the weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union in the church parlors Sunday evening, subject, "Communion and Transformation."

The Misses Squiers returned Monday from their vacation of two months which has been spent at Asbury Park and their home at Rahway.

Mrs. Augusta Miller and daughter, Miss Cora, returned yesterday from a pleasant visit of several days with friends at Tottenville, S. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harvey and child, of Bay Ridge, have been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Edw. L. Hand.

Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street, is spending a few days with friends in Brooklyn.

George A. Clark and family, of Front street, enjoyed Labor Day at Boynton Beach.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The South Plainfield school opened this morning with a large attendance. The corps of teachers this year is the same as that of last year, with one exception. Miss E. M. Higgins, of Bound Brook, who was principal here last year, is succeeded by Miss Nellie B. Manning, of this place. Miss Higgins has been assigned the principality of the South Bound Brook school. Miss Manning taught last year at Fieldville. The other teachers are Miss Meta Soper, of Metuchen, and Miss Imogene Smith, of Dunellen.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Vinie Brighton, who died Friday night, were held from the home yesterady. The deceased had been a sufferer from consumption for over a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Voorhees and son, of Brooklyn, were entertained at the home of Oscar Thorne, yesterday.

Miss E. M. Higgins, of Bound Brook, visited at the home of Miss Laura Manning, yesterday.

Bert Randolph, Charles Randolph and Frank VanNest enjoyed Labor Day at Boynton Beach.

Albert Brundage is riding a new wheel.

NEW SCHEDULE IN EFFECT.

One Change in Announced Schedule to Accommodate the Public.

At the request of the city officials, Manager Akarman, of the local street railway, has decided to start cars on the Netherwood and Dunellen lines at 6 o'clock in the morning instead of 6:10 as was intended under the new timetable. It was done in order to accommodate the employes of the West End shops who can accordingly report for duty at 6:30 as heretofore. The new schedule on the system went into effect today.

—The canning season is now at its height. Neuman Brothers have prepared for it by receiving large consignments of peaches, Bartlett pears and many other fruits.

Fred Beamey and sister, Miss Louise, of Middleboro, Mass., returned home today after a pleasant visit at the home of Joseph Kingston, 518 East Second street.

In the afternoon there was a goodly number of contestants for the Golf Committee cup and most of the scores were low. First honors were won by C. W. Abbott, while G. Harry Squires and Howard deP. Wright were awarded second and third honors. All of the scores were quite close. The course was in the pink of condition.

C. W. Abbott is now tied with D. H. Barrows and W. L. Glenney for second place, while G. Harry Squires improved his position. Howard deP. Wright is sixth in line.

The scores for the Golf Committee cup were as follows:

C. W. Abbott, 86, 10—76; G. Harry Squires, 92, 15—77; H. deP. Wright, 79, 0—79; E. T. Barrows, 98, 18—80; E. T. Newkirk, 92, 12—80; Olaf Saugstad, 95, 15—80; Walter Peterson, 87, 5—82; Robert Abbott, 85, 0—85; Harold Serrell, 121, 27—94.

The scheduled team match with Englewood was postponed to September 11, for the reason that many of the Hillside members are away at present.

The opening of the fall season at golf was an auspicious event at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club yesterday. All day there was a good crowd on the course, which was in fine condition. It was noticeable that many members have returned from their summer outing, but there are a great many more away. It will be fully another week before the full quota will be home.

In the morning there was a men's foursome and this event was won by Carroll T. Runyon and Chas. A. Stover. The scores are as follows: Carroll T. Runyon and Chas. A. Stover, 95, 17½—77½; R. F. Murray and W. F. Murray, 90, 11—79; Robert Abbott and C. W. Abbott, 85, 5—80; G. H. Squires and H. deP. Wright, 88, 7½—80½; E. T. Barrows and E. J. Patterson, 103, 21½—81½; F. A. Clark and Walter Peterson, 97, 8½—88½; Reeve Stockton and J. E. Erickson, 108, 17½—90½; D. H. Barrows and E. T. Newkirk, 104, 11—93.

In the afternoon there was the play for the Holiday cup and there was a goodly number of entries. The interest was good as the scores were low and close. Dudley H. Barrows scored a preliminary win. Howard Wright made a score of 76 from scratch, which has only been duplicated a few times this year in a tournament.

The scores for the Holiday cup are as follows:

Dudley H. Barrows, 85, 10—75; Howard deP. Wright, 76, 0—76; Roger F. Murray, 84, 7—77; Reeve Stockton, 88, 10—78; E. T. Newkirk, 91, 12—79; Chas. A. Stover, 99, 20—79; W. F. Murray, 94, 15—79; C. W. Abbott, 89, 10—79; J. W. Sandford, 93, 13—80; F. A. Clark, 93, 21—81; W. L. Murray, 96, 15—81; Walter Peterson, 88, 5—83; G. H. Squires, 99, 15—84; Dr. G. W. Endicott, 103, 18—85; C. C. Burke, Jr., 106, 20—86; E. T. Barrows, 105, 18—87; J. R. Blake, 109, 20—89; E. J. Patterson, 113, 18—95.

In the clock golf contest in the afternoon Miss vanHerwerden and Miss May Tracy tied for first honors with a score of 25 and in the play off Miss vanHerwerden won by a score of 24.

WESTFIELD GOLF CLUB.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 2—There was considerable interest in the Labor Day Handicap at thirty-six holes, medal play, on the course of the Westfield Golf Club yesterday. There were prizes for the best net and gross scores. M. L. Fouquet made the best gross score, while W. J. Bogart, Jr., made the best net score. There were twenty entries in all.

The scores are as follows:

M. L. Fouquet, 183, 15—168. W. J. Bogart, Jr., 184, 23—161; C. E. Halstead, 190, 12—178; R. I. Townley, 193, 21—172; J. A. Woodward, 195, 23—172; C. E. Marsters, 217, 45—172; E. R. Perkins, 210, 30—180; W. N. Townley, 218, 27—191.

Saturday R. I. Townley won the cup for the August competition with a total of eleven and one-half points.

TAKEN HOME.

Miss Dewey, Ill With Typhoid Fever, Was Removed to Brooklyn.

Miss Dewey, daughter of H. T. Dewey, the wine merchant of Fulton street, New York, who was taken ill with typhoid fever last week Wednesday, was removed to her home in Brooklyn Sunday forenoon. Miss Dewey and her father occupied the Huntington house on Franklin place for the summer and the lease on the property was soon to expire when Miss Dewey was taken ill. For this reason the daughter preferred to return home. Her condition was such that the change was made with very little risk. She was taken to the station in the ambulance, and with the assistance of Dr. Endicott, who had been attending her, and Miss Ella Conover, a trained nurse, together with other attendants, she was taken into a Pullman coach on a fast train, which was stopped here for the purpose. At Jersey City an ambulance was awaiting to take the woman to her home in Brooklyn.

Started Spilled Oil.

Mrs. Guinee, of West Third street, returning home with a can of kerosene oil Saturday evening, accidentally upset the fluid near the gate. A young man, passing a few moments later, threw a lighted match on the ground where the oil was spilled. The result was a slight conflagration that destroyed part of the picket fence.

Mrs. P. R. Palmer and son, Lester, of East Second street, returned home yesterday from a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. P. Laire, "Maple Crest," Stanton, Hunterdon county.

Petit Jurors.

CHINAMAN AND THE PEN.

It Was the First of the Kind He Had Ever Seen, But It Was No Puzzle to Him.

A certain newspaper man who was induced to "try" a stylographic pen got it out of order by reckless treatment and took it to a penshop for repair. The man there soon showed him that there was nothing serious the matter with it, the only trouble being that he had neglected to do some little thing in using it. Then he began to take the pen apart for the newspaper man's instruction, so that he might see how very simple a thing it is, relates the Philadelphia Record.

"Simple!" cried the indignant owner of the instrument; "it is as complicated as a Chinese puzzle! I don't wonder that I cannot make it go when I want to!"

The penman laughed.

"You remind me," he said, "that there is a Chinaman in this town who used a stylographic regularly. He came here to buy one several years ago, and when I showed it to him he began to take it all apart. I hurriedly stopped him, supposing that he would do it an injury, but he at once put down the value of the pen, saying that it was his, and then continued the dissection of it. I give you my word that he handled the pen more deftly than the man who made it, and in five minutes he had put it together again so that it worked better than it did at first. Those fellows beat the world at understanding little details. Now, an Irishman or an American—I beg your pardon—could never have done that; and, remember, it was the first pen of the kind the Chinaman ever saw."

MARRIAGES INCREASING.

Figures Gathered in England Confirm the Fact as Regards That Country.

It is a little surprising to learn that the marriage rate is substantially increasing. In 1900 it stood at 16 per thousand, which, though below the rates of 1898 and 1899, is higher than the rate in any other year since 1876. This fact should furnish a sufficient answer to such questions as: "Why don't the men marry?" which periodically reappear in the dull season. Marriage, so far from being a decadent and unpopular institution, is more flourishing to-day than it has been for at least a quarter of a century, says the London News. It is in the industrial and urban centers that the marriage rate is highest, London leading the way with 18 per thousand of the population. In the agricultural districts marriages are relatively fewer, falling to 11.9 per thousand in Rutlandshire. Although the majority of marriages continue to be performed in the Anglican church, the proportion is not so great as formerly. There were 257,480 marriages in England and Wales in 1900, and 672 per thousand were solemnized by the Church of England, against 684 in the five years 1895-99. The decline in Anglican celebrations is balanced by an increase in those performed in nonconformist churches, and at the offices of the registrars.

A DIET OF WOOD.

German Chemist Invents an Animal Fodder with Sawdust as Principal Ingredient.

Wood is to be the newest food, says Heinrich Reh, a professor of chemistry in Berlin. He has secured a patent upon a form of animal fodder which has sawdust as its chief ingredient, says a London report.

He argues that animals have a decided liking for young shoots, roots of shrubs, tree bark and other heavy food of the same nature, and, since experiments have proved that the nutriment contained in such growth remains in it even after it has become wood, he observes that with a little salt and water added to it the sawdust will prove to be a highly nourishing diet.

He has statistics to prove it. Pine, birch, alder, acacia, beech and walnut woods and straws have been analyzed chemically by him and he finds that the wood has vastly more albumen, nitrogen and fatty substance than the straw.

The inventor claims that "a very cheap cattle food can be prepared in this manner, to which may be added potato peelings, corn husks and shells of grain and the residue from the sugar beet after the sugar has been extracted."

The Superstitious Czar.

The czar wears a ring in which he believes is embedded a piece of the true cross. It was originally one of the treasures of the Vatican and was presented to an ancestor of the czar. Some years ago the czar was traveling from St. Petersburg to Moscow. He suddenly discovered that he had forgotten the ring. The train was stopped immediately, and a special messenger sent flying back on an express engine for it, nor would the czar allow the train to move until several hours afterward, the messenger returned with the ring.

Historic Trees.

Litchfield, Conn., has more historic trees than any other town in New England. Among others are two elms planted by John C. Calhoun; a sycamore said to be one of the 13 planted by Oliver Wolcot, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and named after the 13 original colonies; an elm which served as a whipping post in colonial days, and a willow tree which grew from a walking stick stuck in the ground by Col. Talmadge, an American officer who captured Maj Andre, the British spy.

Shopping in Peking.

The Chinese are "peculiar" for many other things than those set down by Bret Harte in his immortal chronicle, and among them is the extraordinary custom among the merchants of Peking. A Japanese correspondent has been recently explaining to his businesslike countrymen the great waste of time in shopping in the Chinese capital. Frequently a whole day is wasted in trying to find a small article of daily use. This is largely due to the fact that trading is despised by the higher classes in Peking, and the merchants are scattered over the city and over a space of three miles outside the city wall. In order to purchase a quire of paper the Japanese had to go to Ling Chang, three miles outside the city, and had also to get out of the city to buy beef. Hours a day were spent in going from shop to shop, often several miles apart. In what seems to be the shop, very few articles, and they of the lowest quality, are kept, the goods being upstairs, and will be overlooked unless the customer is aware of that peculiarity. The shopkeeper is quite ready to detain a customer in gossip in the lower shop for several hours. The shops are open from eight or nine o'clock in the morning until five or six in the afternoon, and at night all are closed except restaurants and drug stores.—Japan and America.

Shot Down Danish Flag.

In view of the purchase of the Danish West Indies, pardon me for recalling an incident of twenty-odd years ago that nearly caused serious international complications. An American marksman, paying a visit to Charlotte Amalia, amused the governor by an exhibition of skill with the rifle. Sitting on the veranda of the government house, he said he could cut with a bullet the signal halyards on the flagstaff of the fort, and lower the Danish standard to the ground. As the lines were almost invisible in the distance, the governor was willing to bet that he could not do it. The shot rang out and the flag fell. Presently a horseman dashed up, informing the governor that some one had fired on the flag. There was great excitement. The governor, none too popular, it seems, with the military, ruined his political future by admitting that the affair was a joke in which he connived. Report being sent to Copenhagen, highly colored, of course, by the commandant, his excellency was summarily removed.—N. Y. Press.

What Puzzled Tommy.

Tommy had been worrying papa with the usual number of unanswerable questions, and had been threatened with condign punishment if he did not keep quiet. He fidgeted about in silence for some time, but at length broke out:

"Pa, they say the rain falls alike upon the just and the unjust, doesn't it?"

"Yes, yes. Don't ask silly questions."

"And it isn't just to steal another man's umbrella, is it?"

"Certainly not. If you ask any more—"

"But, pa, the rain doesn't fall upon the man that steals the umbrella, and it does on the man that had his stolen. Funny, ain't it, pa?"—London Answers.

In the Same Situation.

A funny story about a physician at Monroe City is going the rounds of the state press. A resident of the town set out four shade trees for the doctor. A short time later the physician was called to attend the mother-in-law of the man who had set out the trees. The old lady died and the physician presented his bill. After paying it, the citizen, thought of the trees, and made out and presented a bill for them. "But the trees died," protested the doctor. "So did my mother-in-law," retorted the other man. The doctor paid the bill.—Kansas City Journal.

Helping the Lord.

Pension Commissioner Ware, who was at the capitol the other day, is very much interested, as all new officials are, in his correspondence. One of the letters which he received amused him greatly. It was from a widow out in Illinois, and this is what she said:

"Dear Mr. Ware: I am trusting in the Lord to get my pension, but as I need the money, I do hope you will give a little help yourself."—Washington Post.

A False Statement.

"See here!" angrily replied the machine politician, "in your report this morning you say 'Councilman Grabb admitted it was so that he was getting out of politics.' I never said that."

"I thought you did," replied the reporter.

"No, sir! I said 'dough' not 'so.'"—Philadelphia Press.

The Retort Unkind.

Benham—There's no place like home.

Mrs. Benham—If there were you wouldn't know it.

"What do you mean?"

"You are not at home enough to know what home is like."—Brooklyn Life.

A Gentle Hint.

Lenders—Do you ever think of that "ten-spot" you borrowed of me?

Borroughs—Don't worry. I still have it in mind.

Lenders—Don't you think it about time you relieved your mind?—Philadelphia Press.

SALARIES OF STATE JUDGES.

They Range from $2,250 a Year in West Virginia to $7,000 in New York.

While many who draw government salaries and who were excessively unhappy until they "got on the payroll," are now crying out for more, let us turn to the statistics of the salaries of state judges, who, as a rule, are superior to the men who, "not making headway at the bar, seek United States judgeships," as Thad Stevens said. And they are as hardworking, if not more so, than the federal judges. The chief justices' salaries are as follows, according to the Washington Post:

Alabama	$4,000	Missouri	$4,500
Arkansas	2,500	Nebraska	2,500
California	6,000	Nevada	2,000
Colorado	3,250	New Hampshire	2,400
Connecticut	4,000	New Jersey	6,200
Delaware	2,500	New York	7,000
Florida	3,000	North Carolina	2,500
Georgia	3,000	Ohio	3,000
Illinois	6,000	Oregon	3,000
Indiana	4,000	Pennsylvania	7,000
Iowa	4,000	Rhode Island	4,500
Kansas	3,000	South Carolina	3,500
Kentucky	6,000	Tennessee	3,500
Louisiana	7,000	Texas	3,500
Maine	3,000	Vermont	2,500
Maryland	3,000	Virginia	2,500
Michigan	4,000	West Virginia	2,250
Minnesota	4,000	Montana	2,600
Mississippi	3,500	Wisconsin	5,000

Territorial judges, whose courts are analogous to the District of Columbia supreme court, get $2,000, and I think territorial chief justices now receive $3,000.

The list of great jurists who first presided in state courts and became federal judges afterward would be very long, and from Joseph Story down would be equally illustrious. A more industrious, conscientious, and competent class of men than that of the state courts cannot be found in this nation. In themselves they illustrate the superiority of the elective system.

TROPICS ARE AT OUR DOOR.

Americans Are Large Consumers of the Products of Warmer Climes and Have Them Handy.

Americans live better, perhaps, than the people of any other part of the world. They are not content with the products of their own country, but draw largely upon the tropics for condiments and delicacies that add to the pleasures of the table. The increase in the contributions of the tropics to the daily life of man has been general throughout the countries where prosperity or an activity in manufacturing and commerce is the rule, but it seems to be especially marked in the United States, which now imports more than $1,000,000 worth of tropical and subtropical foodstuffs and raw materials every day in the year. The increased reliance upon the tropics is probably greater, proportionately, in the United States than in most other countries, since a much larger share of our sugar is drawn from the tropics than is the case with other, and especially the European countries which in most cases now produce their own sugar from beets.

The United States has during recent years consumed nearly one-half of the cane sugar of the world which enters into international commerce, and more than one-half of the coffee of the world. In the year just ended the importations of goods usually considered as of tropical or subtropical production amounted to $400,000,000, or considerably more than $1,000,000 for every day in the year, including Sundays and holidays, while 30 years ago they amounted to but $143,000,000, or less than $400,000 per day.

AMERICAN HAWTHORNS.

Surprises in the Field of Botany That Have Come in the Last Few Years.

The explorations of botanists have developed, during the past few years, certain facts concerning the American hawthorns which constitute one of the surprises in the field of botany, says the Boston Transcript. To the merely lay mind the mention of the hawthorn commonly suggests only an attractive ornamental tree of English, or at least of European origin; the idea that there are species indigenous to our own soil proving generally an interesting but quite novel bit of information. And it may be added that although students of the North American sylva have always been well aware of a number of fine native species, they too, it seems, until very recent years, had but a faint comprehension of the somewhat astonishing facts.

So far as is now known, the principal home of the hawthorn is North America. England has but a single species, Crataegus oxyacantha, which with a few others of continental Europe have, in the hands of gardeners and hybridizers, been so greatly differentiated that their various origins have become a perplexed question. Japan, too, for a wonder, has only one species, and but two or three are yet known as indigenous to China, though this great field may yield others to more exact research. American forests, however, abound in them. They are distributed from Newfoundland to the Pacific, and southward to Texas.

Ordeal for Diplomats.

Foreign ambassadors in China are required to go through a difficult ordeal, as the following incident shows:

Young Lu, a cabinet minister, recently invited the foreign representatives at Peking to a dinner, which began at ten o'clock in the morning and did not end until three o'clock on the following morning. During that time 126 different dishes were placed before the guests. "As dinners of this kind are not rare," says one of the foreign representatives, "it is evident that no one should go as an ambassador to China who has not a good stomach."

LIGHT GOWNS.

Grass Linen Revived—Bright Colors Out of Style.

Grass lawn has been revived this season, and the robes, which come chiefly from Paris, are wonderfully tucked and incrusted with lace. The new robes in soft silk and wool materials are much appliqued with Arabian and guipure lace, and the designs form not only the borders and flounces, but have tunic arrangements and are appliqued in yoke fashion around the hips.

A great deal of gray is worn, but chiefly in very pale tints, and the silvery shade with pinkish tones is the most popular of all. Bright colorings are completely out of style. All the blues, pinks and heliotropes are soft and delicate, and the misty pastel tones are much affected.

Black lace is a good deal worn even on light colored gowns, and dresses of black or white taffeta are tucked and adorned with black lace set on in transparent fashion. A handsome gown of this description invariably has an air of distinction and can be worn either day or evening.

The plain but effective gown shown is of black chantilly over white silk. The collar is of white mousseline de sole. Dainty touches are afforded by the bows of liberty satin and the little square brilliant buckles.

DRESSY AND SIMPLE GOWNS

Popular Models That Are Being Worn This Summer.

Delightful linen costumes for young girls consisting of blouse and skirts in simple designs bordered with Russian cross stitch embroidery are all the rage for morning wear. Either in coarse blue linen embroidered in white and red or in white embroidered in blue, these are very fresh and youthful looking. Large straw hats slightly turned up all-around are worn with these and are decorated with silk scarfs the color of the gown.

To be smart this year your hat must be trimmed to match your gown, and this style will continue during the fall and early winter.

Medallions of silk are inlet into even cotton gowns, and, while plain colors are used, Persian designs are the favorites. A pretty gown of brown veiling illustrated this fad by being decorated with medallions of orange and brown Persian taffeta.

The smart dress shown is of coffee colored veiling with a fichu and yoke of ecru chiffon and a pale pink rosette.

"It don't look exactly right. There should be a light there," replied the other. "But since there is none, why, we must supply it." So saying, he took a folding dark lantern out of his pocket, shook it into shape, lit the candle within, and said, grimly, "We have gone too far to retreat now, so come on, and the devil take the hindmost." With this, holding the lantern in one hand, he scrambled over the sill of the window and let himself drop to the floor. He was followed a little later by Inspector Thorne.

"It's suspiciously silent," muttered Barnes, as he waved the lantern back and forth, and peered into the corners of the room.

"And was it here that you expected to find him?" asked the other in a whisper.

"No, in the last room beyond," nodding toward the partition that ran through the middle of the basement, "I don't like the looks of things a bit, but keep your gun handy and come on," at the same time leading the way through the open door, flashing his lantern to right and left as he went along.

The next room was empty, too, but for some old barrels and chairs up in one corner. Barnes paused for a moment to listen.

"Hear anything, Thorne?" he asked.

"No, do you?"

"Yes; sounds like heavy breathing."

"More like steam escaping somewhere," replied the other, who seemed to hear the sound as well as his companion.

The chief advanced to the door that communicated with the last room.

"It is here that we shall find something, I think. Why, the deuce! It seems to be locked on the inside," as he tried the knob. Then, with a push of his huge shoulders, he broke the door in, and kicking aside the shattered wood, they stood within the room. It seemed to be vacant, too. The chairs about a table in the center, the butt of a cigarette and a glass showed that it must have been recently occupied.

"If I only had a decent light," grumbled Barnes, for his lantern was so faint that it only illuminated a small space of the room at a time.

"There is that queer rushing sound again, like escaping steam," muttered Inspector Thorne.

Barnes, peering about with his lantern, suddenly uttered an exclamation, and then, stooping, lifted up some heavy body from the floor. As the inspector stepped forward to help him he saw that it was a man and insensible. He it was who produced the strange sounds they had heard. They lifted him into a sitting position on one of the chairs. His eyes were closed, but his heavy breathing sounded loud in the silence of the room.

The expression on his chief's face made Barnes ask this question: "Do you know this man?"

"Know him," with a harsh exclamation. "Well, rather. This is the chap that brought us here—look at him now." Then, with anger he could not conceal, he began in a more vigorous than kindly way to attempt to shake Ellison into a condition of consciousness.

"He needs something worse than a shaking," grumbled Barnes, "for our man by this time must be miles away."

CHAPTER XX.

JUST A HANDCLASP.

Job Hendricks was so much interested in studying the face of the man seated at the table that if he was at all uneasy he did not betray it. Who was this person who had evidently set a trap for him? He could not remember under what conditions he had seen him last. There was something about his features that recalled the strange being he had caught a glimpse of through the window on the day he had visited James Ellison. But there could surely be no connection between that ragged individual and the smiling and well-dressed person on the other side of the table. His thoughts ranged into the past, and there the face appeared again younger but still the same, and then was lost in the haze of memory.

"When you have quite done studying me, we can talk business," said Ellison, pleasantly.

Hendricks' only reply was to grasp his knotted stick a little tighter in his hand, but it was suddenly snatched out of his grasp and at the same time he was forced down into a chair. Turning his head he saw that a man was standing on each side of him. It was hard to distinguish their features smeared with lampblack. They stood there silently like grim spectres, evidently awaiting orders.

"Just take away his weapons, and then you may go," said Ellison.

Job struggled to his feet, and made a violent effort to break away, but the odds were against him, and he was forced back in the seat, his pistol was taken from him and a huge jackknife.

"Now tie him to the chair, but leave his arms free."

"Anything else?" after this was done, asked one of the men.

"No, that is all, for the present; but I expect the police here in a few minutes, so you had better, both of you, make yourselves scarce."

One of the men, the tallest, showed his teeth in a fierce grin.

"Sure you can manage him yourself?" he asked.

"Why not? There is but one way out of here, and the police will come at my call," and he laid a revolver on the table. "So vamoose, or you two might be gathered into the net."

Noiselessly in their bare feet they slipped out of the room.

"I suppose you wonder why I have arranged this pleasant little surprise party," said Ellison.

Hendricks was silent, still thinking where he had seen this man before, but the search baffled him.

Ellison lit a cigarette and puffed it with keen enjoyment.

"You are an escaped convict—a man of note, and worthy of a better fate," he said in a bantering voice. "I would like to let you alone, but you are a worry to certain persons. So, for the good of society, you must go back from whence you came."

Hendricks sighed as if the melancholy prospect of his future life rose before him.

"Before you go, however," continued his tormentor, handling his revolver carelessly, "you must do me a favor."

"I am not in a position to do any one a favor," replied Job, grimly conscious that there was little chance of freeing himself from his bonds, as the knots must have been the work of sailors, they were so cunningly made.

"You have a paper—a certain agreement, which should properly be in the hands of one James Ellison."

Job involuntarily made a motion in the direction of his breast.

"Ah, you keep it there, do you! Very wise to carry it about with you, for then you know that it is safe."

Job withdrew his hands and began to drum on the table. He saw that he had unconsciously betrayed that he carried the paper with him. He had never in his life been compelled to guard a treasured possession, and therefore did not know how to care for such things.

"I left your hands free out of politeness, so that you might hand that document over, and not compel me to resort to violence, which I abhor," said Ellison.

Hendricks did not make any motion to do so, which seemed to anger the other, and the smile disappeared at once from his face, to give place to a forbidding frown.

Queen of the Night.

That a large proportion of creatures with gorgeous wings were not made for man's special delectation is proved by the fact that so many of our most beautiful moths fly only at night. Therefore is it that he who, in an afternoon ramble, discovers the great Luna moth, clinging to some twig like a splendid leaf, always regards the event as an original discovery, and honestly believes that no one ever had such an experience before. So perfectly does its color protect it from careless eyes in its leaf hiding place that it is rarely found in daylight, although it is a very common insect. At night it may more often be seen hovering near a light like the ghost of some great passion flower, and in piring the beholder with a thrill of wonder that is akin to awe. Viewed closely, it is easy to understand why this moth has been called "queen of the night;" the ermine-clothed body, the green robe bordered with purple and embroidered with eye spots and prolonged into a train, all indicate royalty.—Country Life in America.

Shaving Mules in the South.

Martha McCulloch-Williams, in the course of the narrative of "Next to the Ground," explains many customs and superstitions peculiar to the negroes. Not the least interesting of these is the reason given for the shearing of mules. "When it came to shearing mules," Mrs. Williams writes, "Dan was an artist. He had spent two hours or more at it the day before. Manes were trimmed to half-inch upstanding fringes, tails banged to the perfect tassel tip, even the ears had been shorn of their long inner hairs. Dan had a firm faith in witches. Now, a witch, it is well known, cannot ride a horse or mule unless there are hairs long enough to twist into a stirrup. Dan had not left a single long one—hence he was satisfied the teams would thrive and stand up to their work, not to name being ever so much more biddable, since witches, working unhindered, put the devil into even the best broken of them."

Keeping Things Tidy.

"Marie," said Culberson, in a tone of forced patience, "I do wish you would keep this room a little more tidy. Seems to me things are always lying about in the middle of the floor."

"I'll try, dear," said Mrs. Culberson, meekly.

That night Mrs. Culberson took tea with a cousin. When she returned she found Culberson raging about in a vain search for his dressing gown.

"This is a pretty state of affairs!" he began. "Here I come home and can't find my slippers, nor my paper, nor my pipe, nor my glasses, nor anything else. When I left this morning they were here all right."

"Yes," said his wife. "They were in the middle of the floor. I think if you will look in the cupboard and on the writing desk and the parlor table, you will find them all safe."

And they were safe.—Chicago Journal.

International Bird Protection.

An international agreement for the protection of birds useful to agriculture was concluded in Paris this spring. The parties to the agreement are Belgium, France, Greece, Austria, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Spain, and a few smaller states. All birds useful to agriculture are to enjoy unconditional protection, and the destruction of their nests and eggs is prohibited. Certain other birds are named as michievous. Sporting rights are protected. Italy, a country in which the capture of northwardbound birds is a regular trade, does not appear as of the treaty signers.—N. Y. Sun.

Keeping Within the Law.

"Are you sure the automobilist was going faster than the law allows?" asked the judge.

"Absolutely certain, yer honor," replied the policeman.

"But it is possible to be mistaken on such a point."

"Not in this case, yer honor. It was going so fast that Ald. Clancey, who was trying to pass him, couldn't do it, and he was driving a trotter what does his mile on the road right along in :15 and better."—Automobile Magazine.

Has a Big Salary.

The lord chancellor of Ireland, says a correspondent of the Law Times, is probably the most highly paid holder of judicial office in the empire. His salary is £8,000 per annum. The lord chancellor of England gets £10,000, but of this sum £4,000 is paid to him as speaker of the house of lords.—London Mail.

Willing to Pay.

"You are charged with killing two men while speeding in your automobile," said the magistrate.

"All right," replied the rich chauffeur, taking out his pocketbook, "how much are they worth apiece?"—Ohio State Journal.

Up on History.

"What other instance besides Mont Pelee have we of a fatal volcano?" asked the teacher.

"Th' wun wot killed Mr. Pompeii," replied the boy on the back seat.—Ohio State Journal.

Well-Paid Poet.

The highest price ever paid for a poem of 6,000 golden crowns paid to Sannazaro by the citizens of Venice for his eulogy on their city—a poem of six lines only.—Bookman.

A New Way for Some.

For some people a new moneymaking scheme would be the old-fashioned way of earning it.—Chicago Daily News.

WASHINGTON'S FACE IN STONE

Features Appear in a Rocky Wall on the Boston Post Road After a Blast.

Where the old Boston post road turns toward Orienta Point, just south of Mamaroneck, the rock adjoining the old Disbrow house was blasted away about 15 years ago to improve the grade, says the New York Tribune. A ragged, rocky wall was left, and nothing peculiar was noticed in it until last August, when the wife of a well-known resident on the point, while driving to the village, suddenly saw the features of Washington in the stone. She looked again and again, and the more carefully she scrutinized the rock the more distinctly she saw the features of the father of his country.

The woman told her friends of her discovery, and they told others, and within a month all Orienta Point and most of Mamaroneck had gazed upon the striking accidental likeness. It is not at all difficult to see when one is told it may be found there, and is in plain view for a distance of nearly 100 yards to within one-fourth as many feet. The image is about six feet the longest way and about four the other way across.

The eyes, nose and mouth are naturally darker spots in the stone, which, being apparently softer than the remainder of the mass, broke out to a greater depth, so the image is there in bas-relief as well as in color. The outside of the face is almost perfectly formed by the edges of the broken rock. The image is best lighted from 12 o'clock until 12:30 on sunny days.

DEEP WELL BORINGS.

United States Geological Survey Has List of Many in This Country.

The deep well borings of the United States, made for water, oil and gas, are the subject of a statistical report by N. H. Darton, in the series of Water-Supply and Irrigation Papers of the United States geological survey. The list of deep wells is arranged by states, in alphabetical order, and appears in two pamphlets known as Water-Supply Papers Nos. 57 and 61. All wells 400 feet or over in depth are carefully listed. Depth, diameter, yield per minute, and other characteristic data are given, and many instructive details are noted indicating for what purpose the borings were originally made, the character of the product obtained, and whether the wells are in use or abandoned. For the benefit of persons desiring more detailed information concerning wells in any particular region, references are given to the literature or other sources from which the data were obtained. The large product of natural gas in the east and the west, the enormous output from the oil fields in California, Texas and the east, and the considerable and indispensable water supply furnished by the deep wells on the plains and in the arid and humid states, make concise and accessible information of this nature valuable for economic and scientific purposes.

BILLIARD MAN'S LAMENT.

The Craze for Ping-Pong Has Caused Billiard Halls to Be Deserted.

"Ping-pong has undone us," complained the proprietor of a well known Broadway billiard parlor the other day, reports the New York Times. "Look at those $1,500 billiard tables covered over with boards and turned into ping-pong tables. We had to do it. No help for it.

"Our customers grew fewer and fewer, and I was hardly making expenses. One day I saw several of my best patrons going into a place around the corner, and I read the reason on a cheap sign: 'Ping-pong, 50 cents an hour.'

"A fellow who couldn't get together enough capital to buy one billiard table had set up a lot of cheap wooden tables and was coining money running a ping-pong place. I surrendered. Carpenters came next day and fixed up half my fine billiard tables for ping-pong.

"Too bad, isn't it? I feel I ought to apologize ten times a day to every table. But my patrons are coming back. There's consolation in that."

To Free Palestine.

Plans for freeing Palestine from Moslem rule now take the shape not of an armed crusade, but of a money crusade. The sultan is poor and the Christian nations are rich. The Christian world does not feel exactly easy in its mind to see the Holy City in the possession of the unbelieving Turk. The agitation for its redemption is not dead by any means. With all its quietness, it is gaining strength and enlisting the interest of people of wealth. It will not be surprising to see, some day, a powerful religio-commercial syndicate arise, full-panoplied in its resources of millions, ready to buy Palestine from the Turkish government and organize it into an independency under the protection of the great powers.

Electric Bath.

The electric bath is one of the newest things, although it isn't a bath at all. A thick robe is entwined with wires, and this is donned. Then a current of electricity is switched on, and the wearer of the electrical robe soon finds his body getting warmer, until in a little while he perspires as freely as if he were in a Turkish bath.

Great Tea Drinkers.

Australians hold the world's record as tea drinkers, consuming 7½ pounds a head yearly. New Zealanders drink 7¼ pounds.

Y. M. C. A.'S EASY WIN.

Y. M. C. A. had no giant's task in trying to defeat the St. Mary's Saturday afternoon. Dupee was invincible, Doyle was easy; Y. M. C. A. was in fine fettle, St. Mary's was never more erratic; the result was a ratio of 16 to 3 in favor of the association nine. To the Y. M. C. A. players the winning of the game might have meant the winning of the pennant. And the trophy floated into their camp without even a suspicion of a ruffling breeze to disturb its folds.

Y. M. C. A. was first at the bat and began its steamhammer tactics immediately. Moore started off with a double, Barnes and Bowman followed with singles each; Bolsterle got a double, George Dupee a single, George Schoonmaker a base on balls, and every man of them crossed home plate before the inning ended.

The smashing proclivities of the Y. M. C. A. were in evidence again in the sixth. Four singles and a double, combined with a brace of errors in the field netted six runs.

St. Mary's made its only runs in the sixth and seventh. Taylor singled, got to third on a bad throw and came home on Lederer's hit. Lederer scored on a fly to left. Doyle went to first in the seventh on an error and tallied on Barry's double.

Barnes played a great game behind the bat and made three singles and a double. Berry Egan was back at first. Keefe, of St. Mary's, was unable to play and Madden was substituted at right field. Scott replaced Doyle in the box in the sixth.

'PLAINS GAME.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, September 2—The local ball team took the strong Celluloid team, of Newark, into camp Saturday afternoon after one of the prettiest contests the most ardent supporter could wish for.

Not until the seventh innning were the visitors enabled to bring a man across the plate. Two pretty singles by Hohmeyer and Powers tallied their one lone run in their half of the seventh. The locals began their scoring in their first inning, making one run. In the fourth three more were added to the score by timely batting and in the eighth three more, making a total of seven runs. Harvey struck out six of the visitors, while Parker, of the Celluloids, made four of Scotch Plains fan the air.

Following is the lineup and score by innings:

SAFE WORKS DOWNED.

The Safe Works baseball team received at High Bridge, yesterday, a dose of the medicine it has been dealing out to the Hope nine. The crack Plainfield aggregation was shut out to the tune of 12 to 0. It would have been a different result, however, if the game had been played on respectable grounds, as the diamond is located in swamp where sword grass is as high as the players' knees. Manager Muir protested when he first saw the state of affairs but was finally induced to place his men in the grass lot. It was impossible for the Plainfielders to get about and the defeat resulted.

TWO FOR HOPE.

The Hope Y. M. A. team batted out victory at both morning and afternoon games against Clinton Avenue A. C. yesterday. In the morning game the Hope colts clinched the game in the second inning by batting out six runs. The Clinton Avenue boys hammered "Silent" Tune Hewitt, but at critical points they failed to connect with the leather.

Y. M. C. A. VS. 'PLAINS.

Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains split even in a double-header yesterday. The morning game was a splendid exhibition of baseball. It was impossible to pick the winners till the last ball had been pitched. The association nine finally won out by the score of 3 to 2.

'Plains tallied a run in each of the first two innings. Y. M. C. A. made its score in the eighth. Moore singled, went to second on Lederer's single, and both scored on Bolsterle's three-bagger. Dupee's hit brought Bolsterle home.

In the fourth inning, with two men on bases, Lederer made a catch at left field, the like of which is not often seen. Harvey smashed one out that looked like a three-bagger. After a long run with the ball, Lederer finally captured it on the tip of his fingers, and by an assist to second made a double play. Keen, of the St. Mary's team, caught for Y. M. C. A.

The closeness of the morning contest attracted upwards of 1,500 people to witness the afternoon game. Scotch Plains won by 12 to 7. It was a combination of slugging and errors. After rejecting an opportunity to shut out the side in the second, loose playing in the infield gave 'Plains eight runs before the third man was retired. The lead was too great to overcome, but Y. M. C. A. played a good uphill game.

The Scotch Plains lineup was practically the same as in the morning, except that Davis replaced Harvey in the box. Bowman pitched for Y. M. C. A., Dupee going to left field. McLaughlin played at filst till relieved by Barry Egan in the fifth. Barnes caught.

NO HEARING FOR DUNAVAN

The Charges Against Fireman Dunavan Were Withdrawn and Others Substituted.

HEARING ADJOURNED.

All Was Ready for Hearing Before Common Council Last Night When Corporation Counsel Marsh Decided Charges Were Too General and Introduced New Ones.

During the early part of the session of the Common Council last evening, Mr. Lee moved to introduce the matter of Griffin H. Freeman against Louis M. Dunavan, members of the city fire department, for infraction of the rules and regulations of the department. Craig A. Marsh, corporation counsel, was present to represent the city, while Lawyer Robert M. Clark was present to represent Louis M. Dunavan. Both the accuser and accused were in the ante-room, as were also several witnesses. The lobby was also filled with interested spectators.

The result was that an adjournment was taken to Monday evening, September 8, at 8 o'clock, in the Council rooms, when specific charges will be preferred against Mr. Dunavan, in place of the original charges which, according to Mr. Marsh, are too general in their scope.

In the beginning Mr. Marsh stated that the charges were not specific enough and he desired to submit amended charges, and if agreeable to the defendant, he was ready to go on with the hearing. He misunderstood the defendant's counsel, believing him to be ready to go on with the hearing. Mr. Clark quickly replied that he was not willing to go ahead with the amended charges, but was willing to abide by the original charges.

Mr. Marsh then moved to discontine the original charges, and after this was done he submitted the amended charges, but not until Mr. Clark made an objection. He could see no reason why the original charges should not stand, but the Council could see no reason why they should and overruled his objection.

The amended charges were then presented and read by Clerk MacMurray, that is the first part in which the complainant and defendant are mentioned and the fact that the latter is charged with violating section 41 of the rules and regulations of the fire department, and giving the defendant a right to a fair trial is not to be denied. This was all read, until the specific charges were reached. Then at the suggestion of Clerk MacMurray, President Coriell referred the matter to the fire and building committee to be reported on later. According to the provisions of the resolution fixing September 8 as the time for a hearing, a copy of the charges must be served upon the defendant within two days from the date of presentation before the Council.

Upon the adoption of the resolution fixing the date for the hearing, the matter was dropped temporarily to be taken up next Monday night.

PREPARING FOR WINTER.

Officers of High School Cadets Will Meet September 10.

A meeting of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Plainfield High School cadets is called for Wednesday afternoon, September 10, at 3 o'clock. Examinations for corporals, sergeants, first sergeant and lieutenants will be held Thursday, September 11, at 2 o'clock. Application slips may be obtained from Commandant J. D. Macnab. Cadets wishing to be measured for uniforms may meet the outfitter Wednesday afternoon, September 17. First Sergeant F. T. VanAuken has been commissioned to be first lieutenant.

Pensions to Plainfielders.

The following pensions have been allowed Plainfielders during the month of August: Margaret Stickle, widow's, minors and dependent relatives, $12; Elmore D. Moffett, original, $8; Patrick Moran, increase, reissue, etc., $10; Lucien C. Sheppard, increase, reissue, etc., $8.

WILLIAM WATTS GONE; TROUBLE IN ACCOUNTS

His Employer, Peter Zimmerman, Has Made Complaint to the Police.

WAS A BUTCHER CLERK.

ACCORDING TO ZIMMERMAN, SHORTAGE IS NEARLY $1,000.

Watts Has Been in Zimmerman's Employ—How the Shortage Was First Discovered—Since Then Watts Has Left Town.

Peter Zimmerman, proprietor of the Plainfield Packing Company, made complaint to the police, yesterday, that William Watts, a clerk who has been in his employ for the past fifteen months, had disappeared, leaving his accounts in a badly muddled condition. Since he quit work at the shop, Saturday night, no trace of him has been discovered but every effort is being made to locate his whereabouts.

According to Mr. Zimmerman, Watts' accounts show peculations amounting to nearly a thousand dollars. He has been in the employ of various butchers in the city and borough and for the past fifteen months worked as a delivery clerk for Mr. Zimmerman. His method, it is said, was to collect bills from the customers on his route, but made no returns to the book-keeper. By chance a customer called at the store whose books showed to be charged with $200 worth of meat. In the course of conversation Mr. Zimmerman asked for a remittance and was astounded when the astonished customer denied owing anything. She immediately repaired to her home and returned with receipts, signed by Watts, for the full amount. Nothing was said at the time but the suspected clerk evidently scented trouble and quickly took his departure. The investigation of his accounts is still going on and it will be some time yet before the exact amount taken can be ascertained.

Watts is twenty-eight years old, unmarried and has been living on West Fourth street. It is said his manner of living called for an expenditure that more than equalled his salary.

PRESIDENT INJURED.

Trolley Car Struck Carriage in Which He Was Riding—Both Horses Were Killed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 3—The first accident to the Presidential party since starting on its present tour, occurred here this morning, when a carriage in which President Roosevelt was seated was struck by a trolley car. The President was thrown from the carriage and slightly injured. He was able to regain his feet without assistance.

The force of the collision was so strong that the team of horses drawing the carriage was killed and the carriage was completely wrecked.

LEARNED OF WIFE'S DEATH.

Mrs. Henry Opdyke Died at Frutigen, Switzerland, Sunday.

Henry Opdyke, of Farragut avenue, received word this week of the death of his wife, Mrs. Mariam Whiton Opdyke, which occurred on Sunday last at Frutigen, Switzerland, of heart failure. Mrs. Opdyke, together with one of her sons and a daughter went abroad a year ago last June for their health. Mrs. Opdyke had suffered more or less with heart trouble, but the trip was believed to be doing her much good.

The funeral services were held in the Episcopal church, Zurich, yesterday. Arrangements for bringing the body home have not yet been made.

Been Absent Over Twenty Years.

Fred C. Boehme and daughter, of Middlebury, Mass., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kingston, on East Second street. This is Mr. Boehme's first visit to Plainfield in twenty-two years. He was the first night clerk at the Hotel Netherwood and he has many friends who have been pleased to meet him after so long an absence. He thinks Plainfield has changed very much.

Wheel Ran Over His Foot.

Lewis Randolph, of Park avenue, met with a very painful accident while returning from Florida Grove Saturday afternoon. The young man dropped something from the carriage, and while getting out to recover it the horse started suddenly. The rear wheel passed over his foot.

FACTIONAL FIGHT IN MANY JERSEY COUNTIES

Newark News Summarizes the Situation in Republican Ranks Through the State.

WHAT'S THE TROUBLE.

HOST OF NATIONAL, STATE, COUNTY AND CITY OFFICES TO BE FILLED.

Complexity of Issues Involved Together With So Many Nominations Makes It Very Hard for the G. O. P. Leaders.

With the Congressional nominations completed in six of the ten districts of the State, Republican leaders are turning their attention to the making of county tickets for the fights ahead, and in several sections of the State are having no easy task, declares one of the political writers on the staff of the Newark News. In many ways it is one of the most complicated campaigns the party managers have ever had on their hands. Besides ten Congressmen, eight State Senators and sixty Assemblymen, there are to be elected seventeen sheriffs, three county clerks and seven surrogates and a host of minor county officials, while in the thirty-two cities whose elections were consolidated by the Meeker act long lists of municipal officers, from mayor down, are to be chosen.

The complexity of national, State, county and city issues involved, and the difficulty of fixing up tickets with out breeding factional fights is giving the leaders about the biggest task they have ever had, and symptoms of returning life and activity among leaders of the Democratic party, imbued with a hope of regaining lost ground in the approaching campaign, is adding not a little to the trials and worries of the Republicans.

A factor that is playing an important part in several counties in the fight for Assembly nominations is the announced intention of certain leaders and others to turn down legislators eager for renomination who failed to meet with the approval of their county managers last winter in the attitude they assumed at the elections for United States Senator and State treasurer. The avowed refusal of the Assemblymen in question to be turned down without a struggle has started factional fights that will have to be threshed out in the county conventions, and the outlook for several particularly lively nominating scenes on convention floors is good.

One of the members of the last House of Assembly who is said to have been marked for slaughter is George Holman, of Ocean county. Holman served his first term in the Legislature last winter, and early in the session made himself conspicuous by pledging his support to John W. Griggs for Senator before the scramble for votes in the contest for Senator William J. Sewell's seat was far advanced. Later, when Congressman John J. Gardner, the veteran Atlantic statesman, got into the fight, Holman was urged to withdraw his pledge to Griggs and take up the cause of the First District representative, whose district then included Ocean county, but refused to do so. When the contest for State treasurer came on, Holman again braved the wrath of some of his Ocean county associates by voting for Frank O. Briggs as George B. Swain's successor.

Senator George Shinn, of the same county, was in the combine of Upper House members who believed themselves bound by "Senatorial courtesy" to support the candidacy of Senator Charles A. Reed, of Somerset, for the vacant berth, and among Reed's backers were W. H. Fischer, a Senate clerk, indebted to Reed for favors and his position, who took upon himself the task of delivering Holman's vote for the Somerset man. Reed was beaten by one vote in the caucus, and his defeat was charged up against Holman. After the caucus Fischer and other Reed boomers announced to Holman that he would be made a "yearling" for his attitude in the two caucuses.

In the remainder of the legislative session Holman made himself prominent by his efforts to secure oyster legislation for his county, and finally succeeded in passing an act that had the opposition of the majority leader and State Oyster Commission. When the bill became a law he was welcomed back to Ocean as a hero by the oystermen, and his interest in the subject was rewarded by his appointment by Governor Murphy on the special

ALL-PLAINFIELD TEAM PICKED

Will Meet the Crack Westfielders in a Series of Games Beginning September 13.

ARRANGED BY PRESS.

All-Plainfield Team Will Play Under Management of Y. M. C. A., Winners of Pennant, But Includes Best Players in League—First Game at Westfield—Meet Here Sept. 20.

Now that the City Baseball League is over, the local fans are awaiting with much interest the series of games between the Westfield team and an All-Plainfield nine which has been arranged through the offices of The Daily Press. The series will open a week from Saturday at Westfield, the second game will be played here a week later and the third at Westfield on Saturday, September 27. It will be the pick of the City League against the strongest team that has ever represented Plainfield's old rival on the diamond.

When Westfield first issued a challenge to Plainfield and the league officials took no action, it was accepted by The Daily Press. The Daily Press stood ready to turn it over to the league itself or to the management of the winning team in the league or, to organize a team of Plainfield's best players and send them against Westfield's crack aggregation. It was decided by the executive committee of the league not to take up the series. Arrangements have since been made with the management of the Y. M. C. A. team to assume the management of the All-Plainfield team which will meet Westfield in the series which will practically decide the championship of Union county. A team composed of the best players of the City League has been selected and will be ready to line up against Westfield Saturday afternoon, September 13.

Westfield has a strong semi-professional team and has been beating the strongest nines in the metropolitan district. It has made a wonderful record for itself and has made known the name of Westfield in places where that town was never before heard of. It will be hard proposition for even Plainfield's best and three of the hottest games of the season may be looked for when the two teams meet.

In order to make as good a showing as possible against the Westfield cracks, the very pick of all the league teams has been selected to form an All-Plainfield team. It is a very difficult thing to decide what players are entitled to the honor but capable and disinterested ones have looked over the available material and the following is announced as the All-Plainfield team which will meet Westfield:

Pitchers, Burns, (Safe Works), and Dupee, (Y. M. C. A.)
Catcher, Allen, (Safe Works.)
First base, Egan, (Y. M. C. A).
Second base, Martin, (Hope.)
Third base, Barnes, (Y. M. C. A.)
Short stop, Bolsterle, (Y. M. C. A.)
Left field, Lederer, (St. Marys).
Centre field, Moore, (Y. M. C. A.)
Substitutes, Schoonmaker, (Y. M. C. A.,) Winn, (St. Marys,) Montross, (Hope,) Keen, (St. Marys.)

There is great material there, good players every one. They have demonstrated that on the diamond this summer. It only remains for them to get a little practice together. Many of them played on the picked team which made such a strong showing against the Xavier Deaf Mutes. If they succeed in defeating the Westfield team, it will be a victory which will show that The Daily Press' trust in them was not in vain. Even if they fail to win, one can feel assured that such a team will make a showing worthy of this city which has long been one of the most enthusiastic centres of baseball interest.

Will Give Him Reception.

The Hope chapel Sunday-school contemplates according Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards a farewell reception before he severs all connection with the Crescent Avenue church. A committee, of which I. W. Travell is the chairman, is making preparations.

—It requires good peaches of the best quality for canning. Neuman Brothers have the proper kind, including Mountain Rose, Old Mixen, Stumps, Albertas and Crawfords.

FEDERAL LAWS ABOUT SHIPMENT OF GAME

Timely Warning Just Issued by the United States Board of Agriculture.

ILLEGALLY CAPTURED.

MOST IMPORTANT PROVISIONS OF THESE LAWS BRIEFLY STATED.

Desire of Warning is to Secure a More General Observance of Act to Prohibit the Transportation of Game Illegally Killed.

A timely warning has been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture in order to secure a more general observance of the act of May 25, 1900, to prohibit the transportation by interstate commerce of game killed in violation of local laws. The department invites attention to the provisions of the federal and State laws relating to shipment of birds and game. These laws are intended to preserve for the common good certain animals and birds that are valuable as food, sport, or as destroyers of pests. They are generally supported by public sentiment, but are frequently violated through ignorance, as comparatively few persons realize the rapid increase in protective legislation or the numerous restrictions which have been imposed on the trade in game.

Sportsmen, market hunters, game dealers, commission merchants, railroad and express agents and all other persons concerned should, it is said, familiarize themselves so far as possible with the regulations now in force. A summary of the federal, State and county laws may be had on application to the Department of Agriculture.

The most important provisions of the various laws are briefly stated in the New York Tribune as follows:

It is unlawful for any person to deliver to any common carrier for transportation from one State or Territory to another, or for any common carrier or consignee knowingly to receive any wild animals or birds killed in violation of local laws. This prohibition applies, not only to game killed out of season, but to that captured in an illegal manner by traps, nets, etc., or for illegal purposes, as in some States for sale or shipment.

Every package containing game or birds, or any parts thereof, when shipped by interstate commerce, must bear a statement of the contents and the shipper's name plainly marked on the outside. Inattention to these details renders the shipper liable, not only to loss of his game, but also to heavy penalties for evasions of the law.

Shipping game in trunks, butter boxes or egg cases, concealing it among other goods, marking it "butter," "dressed poultry" or "household goods;" addressing it with a tag made especially to hide the shipper's name and statement of contents, or resorting to any other device to conceal the nature of the shipment are all evasions of the law and subject the shipper to the same penalties as for its direct violation. False marking of packages is treated as a serious offence under some State laws, and is punishable by special penalties.

Four-fifths of all the State and Territories prohibit export of deer at any season; all those in which quail occur, except three in the South, prohibit export of these birds at all seasons, and practically each State where prairie chickens are found prohibits their export. As a result of these restrictions, it is almost impossible in the West to ship quail or prarie chickens to market outside of the State without violating some law.

Robins, swallows, cedar birds, meadowlarks, flickers, night hawks or bull bats, and a few other insectivorous species, as well as such birds as longspears, snow buntings and shore larks, which are useful in destroying seeds of weeds, are occasionally killed as game. They are, however, generally protected, and under no circumstances should they be sent to market or shipped out of the State.

Statutes even more stringent than those protecting game birds have recently been enacted by many States for the preservation of birds which are not included in the game list. Under these statutes birds which are in demand for millinery purposes are protected through the year, and the sale and possession, as well as killing, are prohibited. It should be remembered that the principal centres for millinery supplies are nearly all lo-

PROPERTY VALUES IN SOMERSET GOING UP

Annual Meeting of Somerset County Board of Assessors Was Held at Somerville.

INCREASED VALUATION.

ELSTON M. FRENCH, OF NORTH PLAINFIELD, RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN.

Net Increase in Valuations Amounts to $71,713—The Losses in Farming Districts Were More Than Made Up in the Towns.

The Board of Assessors of Somerset county held its annual meeting at the court house in Somerville yesterday for the purpose of apportioning the taxes among the different townships.

For the fourth year Elston M. French was re-elected chairman of the board. Mr. French has come to be regarded as a recognized authority upon the taxation law. This fact was illustrated yesterday when it became known that some members without any intention of violating the law, have been illegally allowing reductions. Mr. French called attention to the fact and had the amount in error added to the total valuation. Chas. L. Voorhees was elected secretary.

The net increase in valuation over last year amounts to $71,713, almost the same as the increase of the previous year. Gains in valuation were made as usual in the towns, but are partly offset by losses in the farming townships, as the following statistics show:

Losses—Branchburg, $11,000; Franklin. $20,000; Montgomery, $51,000; Rocky Hill, $2,000. Total, $84,000.

Gains—Bedminster, $37,000; Bernard, $41,000; Bridgewater, $10,000; Bound Brook, $35,000; Hillsboro, $8,000; North Plainfield township, $23,000; North Plainfield borough, $1,000 total, $155,000; net gain, $71,000.

The figures given are in round numbers and approximately correct. Mr. French states that the incerase in the borough ratables would have been larger but for the fact that the amount sworn off for indebtedness was greater this year than last.

DEATH OF J. H. HAROLD.

Prominent Resident Passed Away After Being an Invalid Sometime.

James H. Harold, of East Fifth street, died at his home yesterday, following an illness of long duration. For several years Mr. Harold had been an invalid and was unable to leave the house. He was a resident of Plainfield about fifteen years and previous to that time he lived at Dunellen, where he was postmaster for two terms. He served in the Civil War, being a member of a New York regiment. He was also a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city.

Mr. Harold leaves a wife, a daughter and two sons, Fred M., and Herbert J. Harold, all of whom live on East Fifth street.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afernoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late residence, 142 East Fifth street.

Primary Union's Birthday.

The Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will be seven years old Saturday, September 13, and in honor of the event the members will hold a birthday party Monday, September 15. There will be a special programme of interest to every member. Another event being looked to is the fall institute to be held in October. It is proposed to make this one of the best ever held.

Injured While Racing.

Frank Schroeder, a ten-year-old boy living on Sycamore street, fractured his right arm in two places, Monday, by falling from his bicycle. He was racing with John Reed when the latter swerved in front of him and caused him to lose control of his machine. He was taken to Dr. Long's office where the fractures were reduced.

Divorce Proceedings.

In the case of Mary Leason Allen Thatcher, petitioner, against Herbert S. Thatcher, absent defendant, an action for divorce, Vice Chancellor Stevens has issued an order requiring the defendant to appear and answer the petitioner's petition on or before October 28.

A Popular Sport.

Ping-pong has become such a popular pastime at the Y. M. C. A. that it has become necessary to add another table and appurtenances to accommodate the players.

CONTRACT FOR NEW SEWERS

Awarded by Common Council to James Maybury & Son, of Passaic.

WERE LOWEST BIDDERS.

Eight Bids Were Received for the Extension of the Sanitary Sewers Through the West End—Some Other Business Done at the Council Meeting Last Night.

The most important business considered, at the regular meeting of the Common Council last evening was that in reference to receiving and opening bids for the extension of the sanitary sewers in the West End of the city, according to a recent action taken by the council. There were eight bids in all and James Maybury & Son, of Passaic, were the successful bidders, their figures being $15,744. The next lowest bidder was Patrick J. Moran, of New Brunswick, his figures being $16,790, while Charles M. Meeker, of this city, was third, his bid being $17,594. The other bidders were Rice & Company, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; P. Frank Hawman, of Reading, Pa.; Jacques & DeRosa, of Elizabeth; Viscount & Company, of Elizabeth and William Hanna, of East Newark. These bidders were all very much higher than the third lowest man.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution accepting the bid of James Maybury & Son and awarding the contract to that firm, after the usual formalties are gone through with. The work of building the sewers is to commence not later than September 20, and the contractor is given to December 15 next to complete the same. Of course, extensions of time can be given and probably will be.

In connection with the extension of these sewers it should be stated that a considerable part of the expense will be paid by the property-owners who are to be benefitted. There will be commissioners appointed to assess the property-owners for the improvement, and no doubt all but a few thousand dollars will be paid by them. The sewers are to be all eight inch, and this being one of the smallest sizes, the chances are the city will pay a small proportion of the entire cost. It is doubtful if it will be necessary to issue bonds for the work. This will be decided upon later.

Frank Linke, formerly manager for the Eastern Bottling Company, asked the Council for the return of his bond given when a license was given to the company in his behalf as manager. The matter was referred.

Mr. Mellick reported on the bond of W. F. Arnold, city treasurer and custodian of school moneys, for $25,000 additional on account of his duties as custodian of school moneys, stating that Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh has approved the same. The bond was recorded and filed. A resolution by Mr. Mellick provided for the transferring of $1,000 from the general fund to the fire fund. After the adoption of this resolution the Council took a recess of ten minutes upon the motion of Mr. Mellick as he had a few matters which he wished to bring before the members in private session.

After the members returned to regular order, Mr. Lee moved that when Council adjourn it be to meet Monday evening, September 8, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of granting a hearing in the case of Griffin H. Freeman against L. M. Dunavan, for violation of the fire department rules. The Council then adjourned.

TENNIS AT HOTEL.

Morris and Hatfield Won the Men's Double Tournament.

In the tennis tournament concluded at the Hotel Netherwood Monday Morris and Hatfield defeated Jacka and Lutkins 6-4, 6-0; Morris and Hatfield defeated Snow and Reisgo 6-2, 4-6, 8-6; Stevens and Strout defeated Snow and Reisgo 3-6, 6-3, 6-1; Stevens and Strout defeated Jacka and Lutkins 6-3, 6-8, 6-4; Morris and Hatfield defeated Strout and Stevens 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1. The prizes, two imported steins, went to Morris and Hatfield.

In Justice Hand's Court.

In Justice Hand's court, yesterday afternoon, the cases of Stephens against Smith and Harris against Smith, on contract, were adjourned for one week.

cated in States which have such laws, and the purchase of native song birds, as well as herons, pelicans, gulls, terns or sea swallows, grebes or other plume birds, should be avoided. The shipment of these birds or any part of their plumage is prohibited by the provision of the federal laws. Ostrich feathers are not subject to these restrictions.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Automobiles are doing queer things these days, but one of the most peculiar incidents on record occurred this morning on West Front street, nearly opposite Hill & Shupp's store. Dorsey W. Hyde was riding in his brother's machine, going toward Park avenue, when the two wheels nearest the trolley tracks struck the groove in the track and quicker than one could tell it reversed the machine completely so that it was heading the other way. The performance was so quick that many persons who saw it could scarcely believe their eyes. No damage resulted to the machine or occupants.

The new edition of the Code of Constitutions and Laws of the Royal Arcanum, governing the supreme, grand and subordinate councils and members, as amended at the twenty-fifth annual session of the supreme council, has been printed in the usual form, and with the volume of Proceedings of the Supreme Council, sent to the secretary of each subordinate council. The exhibit of membership at the beginning of the present month shows that during last month there were 199 deaths, 578 suspensions and expulsions, 45 reinstatements, and 2,098 members admitted during July. The membership at the beginning of the month was 246,156. New Jersey's share was 10 deaths, 28 suspensions and expulsions, 4 reinstatements; members admitted during July, 121; membership at beginning of month, 18,600.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. PERSONAL.

Martin Cronce, of Essex street, has been entertaining relatives from New York.

Charles Hartfelder, of Whitewood avenue, has returned from a short stay at Asbury Park.

William Clifton, of West Fifth street, left Saturday for Niagara Falls to remain a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Millard and son, Colin, of East Second street, have returned from Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Simmonds, of New York, have been spending a few days with Plainfield relatives.

Emile Luersson, of East Third street, has gone to Ballston Spa, N. Y., for a week's stay with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dixon, of West Fifth street, left yesterday for Holyoke, Mass., where they will spend two weeks with relatives.

Miss Helen G. McLaughlin has returned home to Troy, N. Y., after spending a very pleasant week with her cousin, Miss Kittie McLaughlin, of Netherwood.

Lingering Summer Colds.

Don't let a cold run at this season. Summer colds are the hardest kind to cure and if neglected may linger along for months. A long siege like this will pull down the strongest constitution. One Minute Cough Cure will break up the attack at once. Safe, sure, acts at once. Cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. The children like it. L. W. Randolph.

commission pamed to investigate the oyster industry of the State and recommend new and more general legislation on the subject.

As a rival candidate to Holman, the opposing faction have put forward Mayor William Butler, of Beach Haven, and it is said that the opposition is prepared to make an energetic campaign that will not fail for lack of the sinews of war. Holman, however, is not without friends, and among them are numbered a majority of the representative and influential Republicans of the county. Senator Shinn, despite his former allegiance to Reed, has allied himself with Holman in the contest.

Other echoes of the Senatorial fight of last winter are being heard in Passaic and Bergen counties. In the latter, Assemblyman Joseph Tillotson, who early in the fight went over to the Dryden forces, incurred the especial enmity of former Governor Grigg's friends in that county, and may have opposition in his third term aspirations, while in the home county of Mr. Griggs there is a feeling of resentment against the five Assemblymen from there who made Mr. Dryden's election possible by giving him their votes, that may result in the selection of an entire new delegation for next November. For different reasons, largely local in their nature, John Boyd Avis, the young Gloucester member, is being opposed for the Republican nomination by Joseph Gaunt, master of the State Grange, and William T. Brown, of Morris, may have to fight for renomination for a second term.

The only county where Assembly nominations have been made is Cumberland, and unless the Democrats capture the majority in Chancery Clerk Stokes's bailiwick, the next Assemblymen from there will be Lieutenant Louis Miller, of the Naval Reserves, who made his first appearance in the House last winter, and B. Frank Buck, a young newspaper man of Millville, who is to succed William Moore, of Bridgeton.

The counties that are to elect sheriffs this fall are Atlantic, Burlington, Camden, Cumberland, Essex, Gloucester, Hudson, Hunterdon, Mercer, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Ocean, Salem, Sussex, Union and Warren. State Senators are to be elected in Camden, Essex, Gloucester, Monmouth, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren; county clerks in Essex, Gloucester and Sussex, and surrogates in Atlantic, Camden, Cape May, Hunterdon, Middlesex, Morris and Union.

PERSONAL.

John F. Auten, clerk at the Hotel Kensington, is enjoying a vacation of one week.

Fred K. Armstrong, of Duer street, has returned home from Brown's Mills, N. J.

A THOUSAND KILLED

Latest Advices From Martinique Swell Death List.

GUADELOUPE COVERED WITH ASHES

Remarkable Volcanic Phenomenon on the Island of St. Vincent. Kingstown Severely Shaken by Heavy Explosions.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—A thousand persons were killed at Morne Rouge and Ajoupa Bouillon during the recent volcanic eruption in Martinique, according to a dispatch from Port au Prince.

The village of Le Carbet was damaged by a tidal wave, which was also felt at Fort de France, where the people were panic stricken. The French cruisers Suchet and Tage are embarking people in the northern part of Martinique.

An undated cable message from the governor of Guadeloupe reports that a heavy rain of ashes fell over the whole of that island Aug. 28. No explosion was heard, and no earthquake was felt. As the volcanoes on Guadeloupe are inactive the inference in judging from the direction of the wind is that the ashes must have come from Martinique.

STARTLING PHENOMENON.

Kingstown Shaken by Terrific Explosions at La Soufriere.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 3.—A remarkable volcanic phenomenon occurred here between 9 and 10 o'clock at night. There was a startling series of detonations from La Soufriere, louder than any since the terrible eruption of May 11. Each explosion shook the buildings of this town. The noises were terrific and gave the impression in every town and village of this island that the scene of disturbance was only about two miles away. During the period of intense anxiety which attended the detonations two luminous circles, like rainbows, appeared in the cloudless sky to the northwest. They were presumably the reflection of the flames in the crater of La Soufriere. Subsequently a dense cloud of steam arose from the crater, but this soon dispersed. The weather now is fair.

Telegraphic reports have been received here from the islands of Grenada, Trinidad and Barbados saying loud detonations were heard at these respective places at the above mentioned hour. These explosions were similar to those heard when Mont Pelee, on Martinique, and La Soufriere were previously in eruption. The people of Grenada were greatly alarmed at the detonations.

A Terrible Visitation.

BASSE TERRE, Guadeloupe, Sept. 3.—It has been learned from the gendarmes of the island of Martinique that 1,060 persons were killed and 1,500 injured during the last eruptions of Mont Pelee. Acording to an official account, the eruption of Aug. 30 was one of the most severe that has been experienced. Morne Rouge and a great part of Ajoupa Bonillon were destroyed. The zone between the river Capote and the valley of Champ Flore and Fonds Marie-Reine has been devastated. Mont Capote suffered severely.

Venezuela Shaken.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Sept. 3.—A strong earthquake shock was felt at Carupano, a seaport town of the state of Bermudez, Saturday night, at 9 o'clock. It was accompanied by a noise which was heard along the whole shore of the Caribbean sea. This earthquake was almost simultaneous with the eruption of Mont Pelee which destroyed Morne Rouge.

Shock Felt In North Africa.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Sept. 3.—A strong earthquake shock accompanied by subterranean rumblings have been felt at Mollidia.

Well Known Lawyer Dead.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Edward Taylor Schenck is dead. He was born in Montgomery county Dec. 27, 1815, of Holland Dutch parentage and was a resident of New York city from 1860 until a few years ago. He was one of the best known lawyers in that city, being an associate of Hon. William M. Evarts, William Fullerton, Joseph H. Choate, General Pierpont and Henry L. Clinton. Mr. Schenck was the chief counsel for the defendants in the famous Wood will contest. He was graduated from Princeton in 1837 and was admitted to the bar in 1840.

Drunken Italians In a Fight.

DILLONVALE, O., Sept. 3.—Five drunken Italians hacked and shot one another in Dominick Ozellos' speak easy until it resembled a slaughter house. Ozelios was shot near the heart, a second Italian through the arm and a third through the kidneys, all by one man. He also shot a fourth victim, who had already been stabbed and who was afterward spirited away. A Slav participant was stabbed and a gash cut in his head with a hatchet. Two may die.

Sealed Lofty Mountain.

GREAT GLACIER, B. C., Sept. 3.—Miss Marion Raymond of Boston, accompanied by two Swiss guides in the employ of the Canadian Pacific railway, has reached the summit of Mount Sir Donald. This is the second ascent of this peak by a lady, Mrs. Birus, an English woman, having climbed it last season.

Treaty Trouble Settled.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 3.—The difficulty in the way of the conclusion of the Anglo-Chinese commercial treaty has been satisfactorily settled. A new edict will be issued, and the treaty will be signed after certain technical alterations have been made.

In case of a tie in estimates, the amount offered will be divided equally among those entitled to it. Distribution of the awards will be made as soon after January 1st, 1903 as the figures are obtainable from the Internal Revenue Department of the United States for December.

Write your full name and Post Office Address plainly on packages containing bands. The Postage, or Express charges on your package must be fully prepaid, in order for your estimate to participate.

You do not lose the value of your bands. Receipts will be sent you for your bands, and these receipts will be just as good as the bands themselves in securing Presents. One band from "Florodora," or two bands from any of the other Cigars mentioned above, will count in securing Presents the same as one tag from "Star," "Horse Shoe," "Spear Head," "Standard Navy," "Old Peach and Honey," "J. T." "Master Workman," "Piper Heidsieck," "Jolly Tar," "Boot Jack," "Old Honesty," "Razor," or "Planet" Tobacco; or one "Sweet Caporal" Cigarette Box Front.

Send each estimate on a separate piece of paper, with your name and address plainly written on each. Blank forms for estimates will be mailed upon application.

Illustrated Catalogue of Presents for 1903 and 1904 will be ready for distribution about October 1st, 1902, and will be mailed on receipt of ten cents, or ten tobacco tags, or twenty cigar bands.

NEW YORK WON.

Record In Hilton Trophy Shooting Match Unsurpassed.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 3.—The record in the Hilton trophy match, a total of 1,098 out of a possible 1,200, established a year ago by the District of Columbia, was surpassed by New York 39 points today, the team representing the Empire State rolling up a total of 1,137. New Jersey finished in second place with 1,124, while the District of Columbia was third with an even 1,100.

The shooting was watched with the greatest interest. When the last shots had been fired and it became known that New York had captured the famous and much coveted trophy, a mighty cheer for the victorious team was given. The New Yorkers were photographed in a group before proceeding to their tents.

Major General Heywood, commanding the United States marine corps, was prominent among the onlookers while the match was in progress. The Hilton trophy was won by New York in the years 1878, 1879, 1881 and 1891, its highest total until today being 1,065 points. Every man shooting in the match fires seven shots each at 200, 500 and 600 yards. The trophy is held for one year by the state winning it, while a medal is presented to the team members.

Both Hal H. Leizear of Pennsylvania and Dr. Hudson of New Jersey broke the record for individual scores in the Hilton match. Each attained a total of 101 out of a possible 105. Leizear is entitled to the highest honor, he having the best score at the longest ranges.

The Clarks Honored In London.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—There was a large gathering of members of the Christian Endeavor society in the Metropolitan tabernacle last night, at which Mr. Harry Harmsworth presided. Mr. Harmsworth wished Godspeed to the Rev. Francis E. Clark, president of the society, who starts for the United States tomorrow. Mrs. Clark was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers. Both Dr. and Mrs. Clark addressed the meeting and received ovations. Miss E. M. Weatherley and the Rev. Mr. Swift also spoke.

Riot In Porto Rico Town.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 3.—The residents of the town of Juncos, a few miles distant from Humacao, have been greatly alarmed over an incipient riot in their town which was attended by considerable shooting, but no casualties. The claim is made that the police were implicated in the disorder. The governor of the island was appealed to, and the riot was quelled.

Chicago Pupils Carry Water.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Chicago's public schools opened with an attendance approximating 240,000. Fully 100,000 heeded the warning of the board of health and carried bottles of water, owing to the typhoid fever epidemic.

President Roosevelt Speaks In Many Cities.

WARMLY WELCOMED EVERYWHERE

Important Utterances on the Trusts at Fitchburg and on the Philippine Question at Springfield. Governor Crane's Guest.

DALTON, Mass., Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt took advantage of his return visit to Massachusetts by delivering at Fitchburg an open speech on the trust question in order that he might fully answer his critics and to more clearly define his attitude on that subject. He also launched into a defense of the army in the Philippines during his speech at Springfield. The impression had gone forth that any views he might express regarding the acquisition of territory by the United States would be sure to be coldly received, but the demonstrations of approval which greeted his utterances dispelled this idea.

In the course of his tour of the New England states the president has availed himself of each opportunity to make complimentary references to the members of his official family. Last night Secretary Cortelyou came in for his praise.

Governor Crane entertained the president overnight. The town was beautifully illuminated, red, white and blue lights being display everywhere.

President Roosevelt was greeted by more than 75,000 people in Springfield, fully a third of whom heard him deliver an address in Court square. The presidential train arrived late at 5:03 p. m., and, with Mayor Ralph W. Ellis in charge, the party was driven in carriages to the United States armory. Lieutenant Colonel F. H. Phipps, commandant, directed the firing of a salute of twenty-one guns, and then the president visited the armory office.

Through streets jammed with people he was then driven to Court square, where about 25,000 people were gathered. Directly in front of the stand stood three companies of the Second Massachusetts regiment, which camped beside the rough riders at Santiago. To these the president spoke directly many times. He dwelt particularly upon the duty of American citizens to respect the soldiers fighting the warfare of a tropical jungle and subject to many temptations, taking this subject because Springfield is the home of some of the well known critics of the Philippine campaign.

Afterward he addressed the Grand Army veterans at their headquarters, speaking from his carriage.

The first important stop of President Roosevelt after he had resumed his travels through Massachusetts was at Fitchburg, where he found the people keeping a general holiday. A stop of an hour was made, and the president delivered an address, thousands of people being assembled to hear him.

A one minute stop was made at Erving. At Athol and Gardner speeches also were made. At the latter place fully 10,000 people greeted him. Harvard flags were everywhere in evidence, and as the president ascended the platform a number of college boys gave the college cheer.

At all of the places where stops were made the president spoke upon the necessity for good citizenship in order to be successful in life.

Friction In Manila School Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Manila mails which have just arrived give evidence of friction which may prove serious in the end in the workings of the educational bureau in Manila. It is hard to find anything in the nature of tangible charges, but there are general expressions of discontent among the teachers with the system under which they are operating, which may cause some important changes in the personnel in a few months.

Government Circulation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. — The monthly circulation statement issued by the comptroller of the currency shows that at the close of business Aug. 30, 1902, the total circulation of national bank notes was $361,282,691, an increase for the year of $3,863,536 and an increase for the month of $2,298,507. The circulation based on United States bonds amounted to $319,407,587, a decrease for the year of $8,998,764.

Reconstruction In South Africa.

BLOEMFONTEIN, Orange River Colony, Sept. 3.—Reconstruction is proceeding much quicker and more easily in the Orange River Colony than in the Transvaal. The difficulties of amalgamating the Dutch and English elements have been nearly overcome, and everybody is apparently determined to settle down and obliterate as far as possible the recent bitterness.

Lipton's Challenge Coming.

BELFAST, Sept. 3.—Mr. Carmichael, private secretary to Sir Thomas Lipton, is authority for the statement that Sir Thomas will immediately issue a challenge for the America's cup. The challenge will be made through the Royal Ulster Yacht club.

Syracuse Gets $40,000.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—By the will of Frank B. Hoyt of Mottville, just offered for probate, Syracuse university will get $40,000, a trust fund, the income of which is payable during their lives to the widow of the testator and his sister.

COMING EVENTS.

September 4—Meeting of Plainfield Board of Education.

END OF THE LEAGUE.

The expected happened. The Y. M. C. A. team maintained its hold on the City Baseball League pennant and held it to the end. The Hope Y. M. A. nine disappointed its followers by closing the season with a miserable exhibition of baseball. There was the possibility of a tie between the two teams but the possibility did not materialize. A dispute among the Hope players brought about a state of things in the concluding game which was greatly to be deplored and which disappointed every lover of good sport.

There can be no doubt that the league accomplished its object this summer in bringing about an interesting series of games between local teams. There was much good play and the sport was, with very few exceptions, remarkably clean and enjoyable. The result has served to demonstrate that the Y. M. C. A. possesses the strongest team. There can be no doubt of that. The pennant was won fairly and squarely and the winning team is fully deserving of all the pleasant things which have been said about it. There was a tie for second place which it would be interesting to see broken but which, it is hardly likely, will be.

The future of the league has not been decided. Those who were instrumental in its organization seem quite enthusiastic over the prospects for the future. They believe that the league can be continued next year with more success than ever. It is possible, however, that there may be some radical changes either in the league or in the teams which compose it before the league is put in working order again.

The efforts of The Daily Press to bring about a meeting between an All-Plainfield team and Westfield's crack aggregation have met with success. The refusal, which The Daily Press obtained on games with the Westfield Club have been turned over to the management of the Y. M. C. A., the winning team in the league. Under the direction of that club an All-Plainfield team will be selected which will meet Westfield on the three successive Saturdays, September 13, 20 and 27. Westfield has a powerful team but Plainfield possesses some good ball players who may make things lively for the team down the road before the series is over. The first and last games will be played at Westfield and the second one here.

The card tickets were welcomed back yesterday by the local commuters and the order of the Jersey Central Railroad, which disposed of the coupon books, won for that company many words of praise. The cards are far handier for the conductors as well as the patrons of the railroad company and everybody is happy because the change has been made. It is pleasant to know that the management of the Central is willing to admit a mistake when it makes one and is anxious to correct it as soon as possible.

The new schedule of the local trolley system has gone into effect and the public is trying to get used to it. It has its advantages and its disadvantages. Only time will tell which will be the greater.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Gavett is showing something nice at present in the latest products in art vases, green creta and quezal glass. The usual large display of china and cut glass in all varieties is still to be seen.

For a well-appointed butcher shop there is no establishment in the city equal to Smalley Brothers', North avenue. When you buy meat at Smalley's you know you are getting a good thing.

J. R. Blair, the Park avenue men's furnisher, has a large, varied and assorted line of goods. The quality is always the best, and the prices are the lowest. Save money by dealing at Blair's.

If you need anything in men's or boys' clothing examine the large stock at Weinberger's store on West Front street. He has a fine assortment of the best quality of clothing and he is selling very cheap.

If you want to be satisfied and feel that you are getting staisfaction with your groceries, W. W. Dunn, Lincoln place, would be a profitable man to interview on the subject. Stock the best, prices the lowest.

At this season of the year every household needs a replenishing of articles in the kitchen, pantry, etc., and you can do no better than to make your purchases at the Gayle hardware store. All goods first-class and reasonable.

In having painting or papering done at your home it is essential to have the work executed to your satisfaction. This will be done if you give your work to Charles Conover & Company, of Elmwood place. The telephone number is 226 A.

There is only one kind of time to have and that is the best and most accurate time. You can have this sort if you buy of J. Hervey Doane, the Park avenue jeweler. He guarantees his timepieces and his jewelry and besides he does first-class repair work.

To each purchaser of a dollar's worth of goods this week, Callahan & Son, the Richmond street grocers, will give—one dollar's worth. That's saying a great deal in these days when it requires experience to get what you pay for. Callahan & Son make a specialty of cash bargains.

The season is growing late for ice cream but Warnock continues to send out large orders daily. The superiority of his product cannot be denied and its popularity with the public never decreases. Orders 'phoned to 1134 will be attended promptly and delivered any day in the week.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Theodore Hooper, of West Third street, left yesterday for Chicopee Falls, Mass., where he has accepted a position.

—Prof. J. S. Riggs, of Auburn Seminary, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday morning and evening.

—Forget your troubles of an evening and go to Tier's and get a plate of that ice cream, which everyone says is the best ever tasted.

—Stanley Mosher, of West Fifth street, who up to this year has been a student at Alfred University, will not return this fall. He has secured a lucrative position in the draughting department at the Potter Press Works and will remain there.

Dr. Buchanan Honored.

At the annual convention of the Grand Castle of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, held at Trenton, Monday, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, of the borough, was elected grand sir herald. The constitution of the order was amended making Trenton the meeting place annually.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening in the Whittier School. All of the members were present. Only routine business was transcted and a number of bills were ordered paid. A delegation of citizens from the south side of the tracks was present to protest against the change which has been made in the schools. The first, second and third grades are all in Lincoln School at present and children from the south side have a long walk and as they have to cross the railroad tracks sometimes a dangerous one.

The brass band made one of its regular serenading tours last night and added considerably to the fund being secured to buy uniforms. The torch lights, which they were carrying to play by, went out early in the evening and so stops could only be made under electric lights.

A team from the Park Tennis Club will go to Plainfield Saturday to play a match with the Borough Tennis Club.

J. H. L. Peters' new house is well under way and its completion is expected before cold weather sets in.

A considerable number from here will enter the Plainfield High School when it reopens next week.

William Kennedy has taken the place in Schenck's store vacated by Clarence Carmen.

Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer has been confined to the house by illness for the past few days.

Herbert Richardson has returned after a vacation spent with his family in Connecticut.

The Misses Sheppard, of Front street, entertained out of town friends yesterday.

The Juniors held their regular weekly meeting in Apgar's Hall last evening.

A large number of hands are wanted for steady work at the new factory.

Prayer meeting will be held in the local churches at 7:30 this evening.

Another refreshment stand has been set up at the trolley terminus.

A party will go from here to Riverside Park this evening.

NEW MARKET.

The attendance at the first day of school yesterday was the largest in some time. Active work has already been entered upon.

The farmers throughout Piscataway are preparing to cut corn. Although it is rather early the corn has had a rapid growth.

Regular prayer meeting will be held this evening in the First Baptist church at the usual time.

Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson entertained relatives from out of town yesterday.

Mrs. James Hallet made a trip to Plainfield yesterday.

Mrs. Ella Mechlin visited in Plainfield yesterday.

C. E. Kelley is in New York on business today.

AUTO CASE WASN'T TRIED

HERMAN UNGER'S TEST CASE WAS LAID OVER AT THE 'PLAINS.

Adjournment Made to Give Counsel a Chance to Look Into Facts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, September 3—Before Justice Clark here yesterday afternoon, the case of Herman Unger, of Newark, charged, on the complaint of Township Committeeman Buchmann with breaking the auto ordinance on Labor Day, was adjourned for one week to give counsel for the defence an opportunity to review the ordinances and make out his case.

Mr. Unger, the defendant, perceptibly bored, occupied a front seat in the little court room, accompanied by his bondsman, William Stansbery. W. R. Codington was present in the interests of the township, and W. A. Coddington was on hand to look after the interests of Mr. Unger.

Emerging from the court room Mr. Unger got into his auto and the chauffeur started off at a reasonable rate, but it was easily fifteen miles an hour. This fact was admitted by the officers and others standing about the court room. It is the general sentiment of the community that to limit the speed of autos to eight miles an hour is a ridiculous ordinance. Mr. Unger proposes to make a test of this case, and will carry it to a higher court if necessary.

No home game will be played by the local ball team Saturday afternoon but from present indications all the lovers of the game in town will be seen on Hope Common, and help root the boys to victory in the deciding game with the Y. M. C. A. team, of Plainfield.

Miss Louise Robison entertained a small party of friends Monday evening at her home. Cards, music and social chat, during which refreshments were served, passed away a very pleasant evening for all.

Miss Isabella MacDermott, a former member of the corps of teachers in the public school but now connected with one of the large publishing houses of New York, has been visiting Miss Susie Parse, of Front street.

The Misses Hollingsworth entertained a few friends at ping pong, last evening. The affair was arranged in honor of their guest, Miss Theresa W. Bartlett, of Atlantic City.

Miss Alice Shott, who is making an extended visit with friends in New York, has been spending a few days with her father, Rev. G. M. Shott, at "The Mause."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flannery, of New York, have been spending a few days with Mr. Flannery's sister, Mrs. George H. Johnston, of Westfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. M. Paff, Jr., have been entertaining Mrs. Paff's mother, Mrs. T. A. Gere, of Brooklyn, for a pleasant visit.

George W. Marsh, who with his family are spending several weeks at Saratoga, has been in town several days on business.

Henry Guerrier has been detained at home for several days suffering from a severe cold.

George H. Lyons, of New York, was the guest Sunday and Monday of friends in town.

There will be the usual Wednesday evening dance at Ivamy's pavillion tonight.

Harry Messler, of Rahway, has been visiting at the home of friends in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Camp No. 1, P. O. of A., will hold a peach festival in Washington Hall, tonight.

Prayer meeting was held at the Baptist church, last night, at 7:45 o'clock.

Clarence Hoffman has secured a position at the Pond Tool Works, Plainfield.

Lewis C. Meeker is recovering from an attack of malaria combined with grip.

Mrs. Frank Harris has been entertaining friends from out of town.

Philip P. Smith is spending the day at Boynton Beach.

Heptasoph Meeting.

A large and enthusiastic number of Heptasophs gathered together last night at their rooms, North and Park avenues, to witness the drawing for the parlor lamp. Number 15 was the lucky number drawn and whoever has that number can secure the lamp by presenting the same at Nagle's pharmacy, where the lamp has been on exhibition.

Nothing But Routine Business.

A regular meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon when nothing but routine business was transacted, which included the presentation of the monthly report by Health Inspector William Addis.

NAUGHTY BOYS LOCKED UP

THEY MADE LIFE UNBEARABLE FOR A CHINESE LAUNDRYMAN.

Police Gathered Them in and City Judge Runyon Ordered Them Locked Up.

"You are all a bad lot; Chief, put them all in cells and let them think this matter over" was the way City Judge Runyon disposed of six boys who lined up before his desk this morning. They were William Willis, who glories in the alias of "Gee Wah" although of African extraction, "Man Eater" Mullen, "Richie" Edmundson, Ray, alias "Boc" Hall, Ben Wyckoff and Oliver Peel, who generally answers quicker to "Peelie." All without exception have been in court from one to five times before and it is said they do more to make the police earn their salary than any other band of boys in town.

For several weeks past they have been making night hideous for residents in the vicinity of the Rink building and Charley Sing, a laundryman, was beginning to think life wasn't worth living. The end came yesterday when the Celestial preferred complaint against the gang and Roundsman Mattox corralled the bunch.

As is usual in such cases, the boys were sure they were being imposed upon and the police had arrested the wrong crowd. They continued to deny being the guilty ones until the judge lost patience and instructed Chief Kiely to put them behind the bars. They are still there and will serve an indeterinate sentence.

FELL OFF ROOF.

Burglar Was Frightened and Let Go His Hold—But He Succeeded in Making His Escape.

A bold burglar attempted to effect an entrance to the residence of Geo. Belcher, of East Fifth street, at an early hour yesterday morning.

Wm. Burroughs, who occupies a room on the second story, was awakened about 1 o'clock just in time to see a man making his way to the house by way of his window, and already with one leg in the room. Mr. Burroughs in jumping out of bed so frightened the burglar that the marauder lost his grip and his balance, rolled to the tin roof on the sloping shed below, thence fell to the ground and made good his escape.

Examination showed that the man had climbed to the roof by way of the water pipes.

MARRIED QUIETLY.

Chas. V. Kronimus and Miss Irene Epner, Wedded in New York.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Irene Epner, of this city, and Charles V. Kronimus, formerly of New York but now of Plainfield. The ceremony was performed quietly at the Beekman Hill M. E. church, East Fiftieth street, New York. The couple was attended by Miss Lillian L. Epner, sister of the bride, of this city, and Louis Gerlach, New York. Mr. and Mrs. Kronimus have taken up their residence in Plainfield, where the groom holds a position as bookkeeper and cashier at the seafood market of D. W. Rogers on West Second street.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

HOW TO SAVE.

Plainfield Trust Company Inaugurates New Method to Assist in Saving Earnings.

The Plainfield Trust Company inaugurated a novel method today which is sure to assist the people of Plainfield in saving their earnings. Upon opening an account of $5 the company will loan the depositor a handsome and useful clock auxiliary savings bank. You take the clock and whenever you are able you may drop in the top of it. When you think you have a sufficient amount for a deposit take the clock to the company's place of business, 139 East Front street, where the money will be taken out and placed to your credit.

The company holds the key to the clock and thus all temptation to remove the money after placing it therein is removed. The clock is a good time-piece and is an ornament. It must be wound up every day, thus the person is daily reminded that he should place something away for safe keeping. Already a number of clocks have been given out and the success of the plan is assured. An additional feature is that this money deposited in the savings department will draw 3 per cent. interest.

THREE NEW FIREMEN.

Were Received at Last Night's Meeting of Warren Engine Company, No. 1.

At the regular monthly meeting of Warren Engine Company last evening three new men were elected to membership in the company. They are Warren McLaughlin, George Hummer and Phillip Kirch. Thirty-six men will attend the convention in Atlantic City next week, accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, composed of sixteen men. Eight from Elizabeth have accepted invitations to join the Warrenites on the trip.

PREPARING FOR WINTER.

I. C. T. Club Begins Preparations for Fall and Winter Social Life.

Preparations for the first reception of the season of 1902-1903 was made at last evening's meeting of the I. C. T. Club. A committee, composed of George L. Apgar, chairman, William Waters, Hiram Humes, Charles Overbaugh and George Cose, was appointed to arrange all preliminaries. A feature of the coming season's dances will be the attendance of a full orchestra of five pieces.

Other business transacted was the election of two new members and the receiving of two propositions.

JUST TIRED.

John Doe Explained That He Wasn't Drunk—Other Borough Offenders.

In the borough court before Recorder Doud last evening Samuel Bolston, arrested by Patrolman Fahn on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was fined $3 or the alternative of three days. He paid up.

John Doe, who said he was simply tired and not drunk when he lay down by a Somerset street fence and went to sleep, was given a piece of the court's mind on the matter with further sentence suspended.

Service at Camp.

The members of the Hope chapel Christian Endeavor Society journeyed by special trolley to the Netherwood Fresh Air camp, last evening, where they conducted a song service. Addresses were made to the children by Miss Helen Hall and Henry Pearce. Afterward the society enjoyed a trip about the camp.

Miss Ethel Bowen, of Watchung avenue, is the guest of Mrs. George Strong, of Central avenue, at her country home, East Hampton, L. I.

EMPEROR AT POSEN

Polish Citizens Turn a Cold Shoulder to William.

EXPECTED DISORDER UNREALIZED.

German Residents Give Their Ruler a Fitting Reception—Nothing of a Political Nature Said or Done.

POSEN, Sept. 3.—The emperor and empress of Germany have entered the provincial Polish capital, the German faction of the city cheering, ringing bells and waving flags and handkerchiefs to welcome them. The Polish majority of the people was silent and looked gloomily at the brilliant show from houses without decorations. Not one disorderly cry was heard.

The vague expectations of insult to the emperor or tumult among the people of this city which have been hinted at by newspapers and inferred from the unusual police arrangements for the protection of his majesty and which began two months ago were mistaken and not realized.

Nothing but a decorous reception was accorded their majesties by the moderate sized crowds which were banked behind the double rows of troops on either side of the streets leading from the railroad station to the residence of the commanding general, about two miles away. There were in all about 8,000 infantrymen present, and Emperor William's entrance to Posen was a German festival. His majesty lodged in the residence of the commanding general.

This visit of the emperor is made to give the Germans heart in their passionate race dispute. The Germans of Posen poured out subscriptions for the beautiful decorations consisting of flower pieces and ropes of evergreen looped from mast to mast along nearly the entire length of the emperor's line of march. Nearly every German girl in Posen was wearing a black, white and red sash, but the Polish nobles of the city closed their town houses and withdrew to their country estates. With the exception of Prince Anton Radziwill, not one Polish noble took part in the reception to the emperor. Prince Radziwill holds his title from Prussia, and he has long been identified with the Prussian court. The archbishop of St. Alescy was present when the municipal notabilities received his majesty at the city gate.

The principal hotel of Posen, where the Prussian court had engaged fifty rooms for their stay here, is under Polish management and refused to decorate in honor of the emperor's arrival. The principal dry goods store of the city also refused to decorate and has consequently been boycotted by the German ladies of Posen.

The empress, who preceded her husband in a carriage, looked especially well in a light gray costume and bowed to the people continually. Emperor William, in the white uniform of the Garde du Corps, rode alone, walking his horse slowly. He is thought to have shown much courage in this. Behind him on horseback or in carriages were fifty of the great personages of the empire, princes, secretaries of state and generals.

Nothing was said or done of political import. It is understood that the burgomaster of Posen, Herr Wittig, had prepared a long address in which he reviewed the race question, but when this was revised in Berlin everything except a bare allusion to this question was eliminated.

Macedonian Leader Arrested.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3.—General Zontcheff, president of the Macedonian committee, has been arrested at Dubnitza and brought here. The arrests of other members of the committee are imminent. The Macedonian committee recently held a congress at Sofia. M. Sarafoff, formerly president of the committee, was then accused of misappropriating funds and of being the chief agent in the kidnaping of Miss Stone, the American missionary.

The Public Debt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt, just issued, shows that at the close of business Aug. 30, 1902, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $968,091,321, a decrease for the month of $5,818,646. This decrease is principally accounted for by a corresponding increase in the cash on hand.

Terrible Railway Wreck Reported.

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 3.—An unconfirmed dispatch comes here from Chihuahua that a terrible wreck took place on the Mexican Central near Bermejillo. Many persons are said to have been killed in the accident, and the injured list is long. Local officials cannot confirm the report.

Capital Stock Increased.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Secretary Charles M. Lux of the Rochester, Syracuse and Eastern railroad (trolley) announces that the capital stock of the company will at once be increased from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000. The company intends to build a branch from Clyde or Lyons to Sodus bay.

A Surplus For August.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The monthly statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of August the total receipts were $48,005,812. The expenditures for the month were $43,113,610, leaving a surplus for the month of $5,492,202.

Big Load of Opium.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—Over $1,000,000 worth of opium was brought to this port by the Japanese liner Hongkong Maru. It came in the ordinary course of trade, and its arrival attracted no more than passing notice.

VERMONT ELECTION.

Results In Doubt After a Heated Contest.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 3.—Election returns from 150 cities and towns out of 246 do not show a majority over all of any one gubernatorial candidate. These returns include the cities of St. Albans, Barre and Vergennes, but do not include the large cities and many large towns.

If the remaining cities and towns give a corresponding vote, there will be no election for governor and lieutenant governor by the people.

The state election in Vermont yesterday will go down in history as the most interesting ever known in the Green Mountain State, there having been a spirited contest from the time the conventions were held until the last ballots were deposited. This was brought about by the bolting of many of the delegates to the Republican state convention, headed by Percival W. Clement, after an effort to place in the platform a plank favoring high license local option had failed. The convention did adopt a somewhat milder plank drafted by former Governor John W. Stewart of Middlebury, which had a referendum clause providing that the law shall take the place of the present prohibitory law that has been on the statute books for fifty years upon its receiving a majority vote when presented to the people.

Those delegates following Clement's leadership accepted this plank and were on the point of calling the attention of the convention to the alleged claim of bribery in the election of certain delegates when they were stopped by parliamentary procedure, and claiming that they could not be given a hearing the high license local option delegates bolted. Percival W. Clement was their choice for governor, and at a convention held in Burlington he was chosen to lead the ticket, while Frank W. Agan of Ludlow was nominated for lieutenant governor. The convention was an enthusiastic one, and as a result a movement was started that had never before been considered in the state. The high license local optionists worked early and late in their endeavor to defeat the regular Republican ticket, while but little attention was paid to the Democratic ticket, except to ask the voters of that party to assist them in electing representatives who would vote for a high license local option liquor law, with a referendum clause attached.

NO SIGNS OF THE END.

Coal Miners Determined; Mitchell Confident.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 3.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has returned from Philadelphia. He said so far as he was aware there was no change in the strike situation. The miners were as determined as ever and did not propose to return to work until the operators granted their demands or agreed to arbitration. Mr. Mitchell said he placed no credence in the reports that certain mines were in operation and were turning out a large amount of coal for the market.

The Bliss and Pettibone collieries of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company have resumed operations. The breakers are running, but just how many men are at work in the mines and what the output of coal is is not known. The officials of the company refuse to give out any information beyond saying they are well satisfied with the situation.

Strikers In Ugly Mood.

BRAMWELL, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The situation in the Flat Top coal field is extremely critical, and the skirmish between the strikers and the guards at the Pocahontas Collieries company's works after the firing of the mine by the strikers has greatly enraged the miners from the fact that several of their side were severely injured. The outbreak probably will result in the calling out of state troops.

Mayor Johnson Won.

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 3.—Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland won a decisive victory in the preliminary meetings of the Democratic state convention, which convened here today. Ever since he was selected as chairman of the convention by the state central committee it has been the general opinion that this occasion would be made the initial public opening of his candidacy for the next Democratic nomination for the presidency. In that respect his success has been phenomenal. No Ohio candidate for the presidency ever had more unanimity of sentiment in his favor among the delegates at a state convention than was shown at the meeting last night by congressional districts for the selection of officers and members of the various committees.

Big Deal In Lumber.

DULUTH, Sept. 3.—The Mitchell & McClure Lumber company have transferred to Alger, Smith & Co. for $750,000 80,000,000 feet of standing pine, thirteen miles of railroad, camps, sawmills, teams and other outfits. It is reported that the Diamond Match company is negotiating for the purchase of from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 feet of standing pine in northern Minnesota for about $2,000,000.

THE THREE-QUARTER COAT

An Attempt Is Being Made to Substitute It For the Bolero.

We have had the three-quarter coat for some time in the form of a wrap or dust coat, and now we are going to have it tight fitting and trimmed with braids and strappings. The old fashioned jacket is coming into vogue with the short medium and three-quarter lengths. It is making its appearance in biscuit colored cloth and even in black satin.

Tailors have been trying for a long time to bring in the three-quarter tight fitting coat, but the always becoming Eton and Russian blouse will not be thrown aside without due consideration. Some of the smartest furs for the coming winter are made in the bolero fashion, with the addition of little swallowtails, and there will be a feature of the tailor made frocks as well as the coming mode of furs.

Yachting caps this year are, quite charming and no longer resemble a man's headgear. They come in linen serge or the material of your gown, and they are trimmed with a colored scarf, which somewhat softens the outlines.

The simple but effective waist shown is of white taffeta trimmed with beadings and narrow black velvet ribbon.

massed flowers and the brim profusely draped with folds of tulle or chiffon.

One of the latest models was a semi-marquise shape in panama simply trimmed with ribbon and having a couple of Mercury wings standing out at each side fastened with a large cabochon of jet or pearls.

The black chiffon ruffle shown in the cut would be a useful addition to any dressy gown. It is made cape fashion, with three accordion plaited ruffles and long stole ends, the edges of which are finished with ecru applique.

Spoiled a Deed of Heroism.

"Uncle," said little Johnny, "tell me how you charged with your war horse up the San Juan hill at the head of your troops."

"Well," said the battle scarred veteran, "I mounted the fiery animal, drew my sword from its scabbard, rose in my stirrups, cried, 'Forward!' and sank the spurs deep in the quivering flanks of my gallant steed."

"Yes!" exclaimed the boy breathlessly. "Go on, uncle. Tell me the rest of it."

"There isn't any more to tell, Johnny," said his uncle, with a pensive sigh. "The horse balked."—Chicago Tribune.

Stairs of Sand

By

ERNEST DE LANCY PIERSON.

Copyright, 1901, by Street & Smith.

"You had better," he said, and his white teeth shone in the light of the lamp. "My friends of the police will be here in a moment, and there is no reason why this simple transaction cannot be conducted in a genteel way."

As he said this, he held out one hand while with the other he trifled with the shining revolver, and there was a look in his eye that showed him not unaccustomed to the use of weapons when it became necessary.

Job sighed, and then, with an air of resignation, thrust his hand in his bosom, drew out the document and then tossed it sullenly on the table.

"This is the real thing, I hope," said Ellison, and then as he opened the paper and glanced over it, his face lighted up. "Yes, I know those signatures only too well."

He had taken the precaution to place his pistol out of reach while he was running his eyes over the document. So interested was he in its perusal that for a second his eyes were off the man bound in the chair.

Suddenly he felt a hand pressed against his. There was nothing aggressive about the movement, and he looked at his companion in amazement.

"Would you like to have this ring?" asked Job, with a smile on his face, and Ellison, looking down, saw on the red and knotted finger extended a curious ring set with dull blue stones.

"How do you men—do I want it?" he asked.

"Buy it, I mean—you will find it a wonderful piece of jewelry? Then you owe me something, for you must be well paid for what you are doing?"

"I see nothing wonderful about your precious ring. The poorest bit of prize package jewelry——" but he suddenly stopped short, for Job had seized his wrist with a dexterous twist so that he could not move, to get possession of his pistol. At the same time he felt a sharp, prickly sensation. Job had pressed the ring against his hand and the sharp edges of the stones cut the skin. What did it all mean? He struggled to free himself, but held in that firm grip, forced against the edge of the table, he could do nothing. And what a strange sensation suddenly seemed to dart through his hands from the point where that cursed ring had abraded the skin; it ran through his veins like fire! And still he struggled to get to his feet, feeling the weakness slowly creeping over him and something like a strange fluid coursing through his blood. At last, with a cry, he fell forward, face down, on the table.

Job, with a smile, removed his hand and wiped the ring on his coat.

"He will learn not to despise such a humble bit of jewelry as this again," he said to himself. "Now, if I were only supplied with a knife I might get rid of these ropes that are cutting me to pieces."

Then, reaching out his powerful arms, he seized hold of Ellison and lifted him by sheer strength up on the table.

"That was a valuable present, that ring," he muttered. "Its virtues were not overrated by the man who gave it to me—I only hope he will recover," and then, hearing the loud breathing of the other, he smiled and finding a knife in one of Ellison's pockets, proceeded to cut his bonds.

"Ah! this is something like!" as he rose and stretched himself, and then, seeing the paper on the table that had caused so much trouble, he thrust it back in his pocket with a sigh of relief. "I may need you yet. They shall never find it again on me, living or dead."

He looked at the insensible figure for a moment in silence, still ransacking his memory for the identification of his face.

"Bah! Why should I worry myself about him at a time like this. I must try and find my way out."

He stole softly over to the door in the partition that divided the room from the rest of the basement, and, having unlocked it, peered out. Then he shook his head and returned to the room, again locking the door behind him.

"No use of my trying to find my way out in that direction, for, as I heard them say, the police are guarding the street."

He was surprised to find Ellison half sitting in a chair before the table. Was he recovering from his unconsciousness? But, after an examination, Job believed that he had slipped back through some muscular contraction. He was like one in a sound, deep and heavy sleep. Taking up the lamp from the table, Job made a circuit of the room in search of the revolver, which he felt he needed in case of trouble, but he did not find it, and, as time was precious, he had to give it up. Round and round the room he went, seeking for an outlet and finding none, knowing that at any moment the police might arrive, for their patience must in time be exhausted.

"The place was well chosen, for there ain't a hole for a mouse to escape," he muttered, bitterly; not a door or a cupboard or a window, and beyond, in the street, the police waiting.

He sat down for a moment by the table out of sheer weariness, to ponder on the situation. What was to be done? Should he attempt to force his way out through the bluecoats in waiting? No, there was little chance of escaping in that way. While he sat there, he suddenly felt a drop of moisture on his forehead, then another. Instinctively he looked up, and saw that it proceeded from a crack in the ceiling. This crack was square, and suggested a trapdoor, though painted over like the rest of the ceiling.

Ready to seize at anything, he lifted up one of the chairs to the top of the table, and then mounting on it, lamp in hand, proceeded to examine the strange square above his head. Certainly, a hole was there, filled in by a square board. It might have been used at one time to let barrels and goods down into the basement.

His examination of this was interrupted by a sound from below, and as he glanced down, he saw that Ellison had risen to his feet, and stood there for a moment, swaying unsteadily, like a drunken man. Hendricks had uttered an exclamation at the sight, which attracted the other's attention. For a moment they were silent, regarding each other fiercely, as if ready to fly at each other's throats.

Job watched him without any threatening movement, for it seemed hardly probable that one who was in such a weak condition could do him any harm. He expected to see him collapse at any moment. But Ellison seemed to become more steady on his feet after a pause, and then, suddenly taking hold of his revolver, fired into the air.

At this unexpected happening, Hendricks had let the lamp fall, and it clattered down on the floor, and at once went out with a sputter. The two men were alone there in the dark, but Hendricks knew that it would not be for long. At the sound of that pistol shot, which was evidently the signal that had been arranged for, the police waiting for it would come forward on a run. He fancied he detected voices already in the alley. And now he was trying with all his strength to force open the door in the ceiling.

There was no mistaking the sound of steps now. They had entered the basement—were close at hand. He could hear low talking he thought. Of what use was the strength of which he always prided himself when he could not force out that miserable plank that stood between him and liberty? They were at the partition door now, he heard the cracking of the wood, as they forced it in, and then with a great effort something above his head gave way; he reached out, drew himself up, and then, letting the board fall back in place, sank down on it in a state of helpless exhaustion.

Australia's Blackberry Pest.

Blackberries thrive more luxuriantly in Australia than in Europe or America, their growth being so rapid that in many places they are regarded as an agricultural pest. Like the first rabbits, the original blackberry vines have grown and multiplied until they bid fair to cover the face of the country. The bushes are not cultivated—they can look after themselves, as many Australian agriculturists are painfully aware—but the jam made from their fruit is sufficiently tempting to make one forget their unwelcome presence on the farm.—The Garden.

World's Quietest Capital.

As residents we are never weary of disclaiming against the ceaseless hum and roar of London's crowded traffic. Yet travelers hail London as the quietest of the world's capitals. When M. Alphonse Daudet visited London a few years ago he confided to the Figaro that "in spite of the enormous, the unequaled activity of the traffic, the vast and ever changing multitude that fills the streets—the first startling impression was the universally prevailing silence."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Idle? O, No!

Mrs. Wanterknowe—I should like to know, Mr. W., why you are so cross when I ask questions? Surely, you don't think I have idle curiosity?

Mr. Wanterknow (savagely)—Idle curiosity! Great Scott, no! Yours is the most pernicious, active, wide-awake, sleepless, energetic curiosity it was ever my fate to encounter.—Stray Stories.

Torpedo Mail Boats.

In Norway torpedo boats are now carrying the mail between Christiania and Bergen. The naval authorities have long been anxious to increase the efficiency of the officers, and men on board of these boats as much as possible, and they finally decided that this object could be achieved by letting the boats run regularly between the two greatest cities in the country. For three reasons this plan was preferred to any other—first, because during the trips the boats could be thoroughly tested; second, because the officers could become fully acquainted with that portion of the Norwegian coast, and, third, because the postal service would be benefited. There is no railroad connection between Bergen and Christiania, and all postal communications between the two cities are delivered by boat. In doing this work the torpedo boats far excel the ordinary mail steamers.—N. Y. Sun.

He Ate "innards."

An actor who was accustomed to spend his summers in Wilton, Me., noted when, as the custom was, a farmer "killed a critter," the liver, sweetbreads, kidneys, etc., were thrown away. He offered to purchase these delicacies, but, though he got the goods, the "sturdy farmer scorned his proffered gold." Not long after he observed as he walked through the village that he was the cynosure of all eyes, and was followed by a wondering, if not admiring, crowd, chiefly composed of the young. "Aha!" thought he, "I cannot escape my fame; my glory as an actor has followed me even to this obscure hamlet." And he was mightily puffed up till he overheard one yokel shout to another: "Bill, there goes the feller what eats innards!"—Boston Journal.

Admonition That Admonished.

Patrick and Bridget, with their bright young son Mikey, of whom both were excessively fond, were taking a walk in Central park one Sunday morning. Mikey was not a bad boy, and did not intend to be disobedient; but he couldn't long remember, amid so many diverting sights and incidents, his mother's oft-repeated caution to keep off the grass. At last Patrick noticed, became vexed, and decided to interverne in the interest of family discipline. Removing his dudeen from his mouth and glancing fiercely at Mikey for a moment he thundered to the terrified youngster: "Look a-here, ye young shpalpeen, when yer mither tells ye not to do anythin' hereafther ye do it! Do ye understhand?"—N. Y. Times.

Why Rats Are Safe in India.

Although the famine over the greater part of Rajputana, Gujerat, and the Central Indian states, is less widespread than hitherto, there will nevertheless be much suffering during the next few months, and 400,000 people are already on government relief works. The rats have to a large extent disappeared, but have destroyed a considerable portion of the cotton crop. The inhabitants of Gujerat are convinced that the rats are reincarnations of their friends who died in the last famine, and it is for this reason that the British officials have found it impossible to get any assistance in destroying the pests.—London Mail.

He Followed Directions.

Murphy being sick and alone in his cabin, Hogan volunteered to take care of him. The patient had been getting very little sleep, so the doctor left some powders and told Hogan to give Murphy one about bedtime.

About seven o'clock in the evening Hogan went out for a few minutes and when he returned Murphy was fast asleep. He slept soundly until ten o'clock, when Hogan went to the bedside, shook the sleeping man vigorously and shouted:

"Wa-ake up here, Moorphy, till Oi give yez these powdhers t' ma-ake ye sleep!"—Colorado Springs Gazette.

Statesmen Who Refused Peerages.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt has refused a peerage. His action is not surprising. Neither Pitt, Canning, Peel nor Gladstone accepted a peerage. Fox was so cordially hated by George III. that he was never offered a peerage, and probably would not have accepted if he had been, for no great debater cares to be transferred from the house of commons to the dull atmosphere of the house of lords.—Detroit Free Press.

A Busy Man.

"The villain is below, sir," announced the footman.

"Oh, bother!" exlaimed the hero. "Tell him to call some other time. I'm too busy to foil him now. The tailor has just sent six new costumes and I've got to pose for my portrait in each one of them."—Judge.

WAR GAME ACCIDENT.

Two Killed at Fort Wright by an Explosion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—While the guns of Fort Wright, Fisher's island, were firing on Rear Admiral Higginson's fleet Edward Roy was instantly killed by the premature explosion of a twelve inch gun.

Harry A. Davis died later at the hospital from injuries received. Samuel Clevenger was severely wounded. Several others suffered slight injuries. All the men were privates of the Second company coast artillery of the regular army.

Roy was No. 2 man at the gun and was handling the powder. He had put a thirty pound charge into the gun and had just pushed the breech block into place with it, locking it when the explosion occurred.

It is supposed that a piece of burning rag had been left in the gun. Roy was literally blown to pieces. Davis was hit in the chest by a piece of flying bone and sustained fatal injuries.

The following information regarding the war game has been given out at the headquarters of General MacArthur:

At 4:50 a. m. fleet attempted to run mine field in Plum gut. Alabama and Massachusetts were blown up by mines at 4:55 a. m. and Puritan at 5:37 a. m.

At 7 a. m. fleet, headed by Kearsarge, retreated southeast from Fort Michie to their base at Block island, where it is now.

At 12:13 a. m. squadron of enemy was reported at mouth of bay off Fort Adams, and at 12:30 a. m. three vessels of enemy were standing off Brenton's reef. Fire opened at once from mortars from Fort Adams, to which enemy did not reply and at 1:08 a. m. retreated toward Block island. This was undoubtedly a feint against Newport to support main attack on west end of line.

Two small vessels of the enemy, believed to be Montgomery and Mayflower, feinted at Fort Mansfield at 4:10 a. m., attempting to open Sumner reef passage. Guns of batteries immediately opened fire and drove them to retreat toward the enemy's base at Block island.

PLANS OF MILES CHANGED.

The General Unable to Start For Manila Today.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—A change has been made in the plans of Lieutenant General Miles as announced last week. It was expected originally that he would leave on his tour of inspection of the Philippines today and sail from San Francisco on the transport Thomas on the 16th. The pressure of work in his office at present is so great, however, that he finds he will not be able to leave Washington before next Wednesday.

General Miles has called a special meeting of the army board on ordnance and fortification for Sept. 9, at which time it will begin the preparation of its report and recommendations upon the subject of a new field gun for the army.

Armed Robbers in Colombia.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 3.—A small band of armed robbers has lately been terrorizing the foreign and other residents of Porto Bello, Playa Dama and other points of that section of the coast. The robbers have extorted money, in many instances on the plea that it was for the Liberal cause. The government gunboat General Pinzon patrolled the Porto Bello coast and landed a small armed force, but the robbers betook themselves to the hills upon the arrival of the government forces and have not been captured.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

The "rubber" game between the police and firemen will take place on the afternoon of September 11. The Plainfield-Fourth Precinct game has not yet been settled.

There were two games of baseball at Berkeley Heights Labor Day between the married and single men. In the morning the married men were defeated by the score of 11 to 6 and in the afternoon they won by a score of 10 to 8.

From present prospects the baseball season will continue in this city until well into October. All the League teams are making dates for games with out of town teams and there will be contests in the city every Saturday for weeks to come.

Baseball enthusiasts will probably see a repetition of Monday morning's Scotch Plains-Y. M. C. A. game when the two teams play the tie-off, Saturday. The contest takes place on the Hope grounds in this city and should be witnessed by a large crowd. If the local team wins it will be the first time this season that the Scotch Plains nine has been defeated twice by the same club.

Westfield has the rare record of three successive shut outs, defeating the Pearsalls A. C., Saturday, Westfield making its winning run in the first inning. Labor Day morning the Pearsalls were again defeated, by the same score, 1 to 0, the winning run being made by Westfield in the tenth. Labor Day afternoon with Robertson, of Yale, in the box for Westfield, the Brooklyn Field Club was defeated 4 to 0. But two hits were made off Robertson in the whole game.

Spectators at the Hope games, Monday, were treated to a sample of real ball playing by Shortstop Dodge that amazed them. He was all over the diamond and made some wonderfully clever plays and assists. Dodge is a Plainfield boy, but for several years past has been residing at Bayonne. Last season he played in several games for the Westfield. He comes of good baseball stock as the popular "Tee Kay" Keller who did much to promote the national game in this city, is his uncle.

TENNIS.

In continuation of play in the tennis tournament at the Y. M. C. A., Leggett forfeited to Templin, to Webster, to Schmelzel. Webster defeated Schmelzel, VanArsdale defeated Schmelzel, Lambert defeated VanArsdale, Webster defeated VanArsdale, Lambert defeated Alholm. Webster now leads, having won six sets without losing one. Long has captured four, without losing any.

GOLF.

On Saturday, September 13, the team from the Westfield Golf Club will play a return match on the home course with the team from the Marine and Field Club, of Brooklyn. The home team will entertain the visitors in an elaborate manner and the event promises to be one of much enjoyment to all.

FOOTBALL.

Captain Roy T. Phillips of the Alis football team, met those of the candidates for the team who are home last evening and there was an informal discussion of plans. It was decided to play a practice game September 27. The first real practice will be held Monday night.

FRIENDS SAVED HIM.

Elected Former Sheriff Wyckoff to the Raritan Board of Commissioners.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 3—Last night Raritan's newly-elected Board of Town Commissioners met and organized by electing John F. Ayres temporary chairman and W. H. H. Wyckoff temporary secretary. The permanent organization will take place Sept. 22.

The new board is composed of the following members: Michael J. Hickey, W. H. H. Wyckoff, Thomas Brown, Jr., Michael J. Honan, John F. Ayres, John D. Harnby and James C. Honan. These were elected at a rousing citizens' meeting Saturday night and all were regular nominees, excepting W. H. H. Wyckoff, who ran against H. D. Dilts on a ticket of his own and won out in a hot fight. There were 426 votes cast. Former Sheriff Wyckoff had been a member of the board for a long time and when he failed to become the regular nominee his friends rallied to his support.

ORDERED HOME.

Lieut. Pierson and His Plainfield Wife to Return From Philippines.

The Ninth Cavalry, U. S. A., now stationed in the Philippines, has been ordered home. A portion of the cavalry will leave on the transport Logan on September 16, and the balance will leave on the first of October. This is the cavalry to which Lieut. Pierson is attached, he being with Troop G. Lieut. Pierson, it will be remembered, married Miss Margaret Vermeule, of Watchung avenue. Since going to the Philippines, both Lieut. and Mrs. Pierson have had the typhoid fever, but they recovered from it all right. As yet it is not known where the cavalry will be stationed, but Lieut. Pierson is entitled to a furlough and he may now receive it.

Partially Insured.

The loss on Charles Jeter's barn, with the horse destroyed therein, in the incendiary blaze on Belmont avenue, early Monday morning, amounts to $1,000. Mr. Jeter would not take less than $300 for the horse destroyed, and had frequently refused $400 for the team. The barn and contents were insured in the Niagara Company for $800.

Colored Voters to Organize.

In order to organize themselves in a more systematic way, all colored voters of the county will meet in their respective wards and townships, Monday, September 15, to elect delegates to the colored county convention to be held in this city September 19.

Run Down by Team.

Roy Moore, a young lad living on Chatham street, was run down by a passing team at noon today. The wheel passed over his head, inflicting severe injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Magee, Richard Magee, Jr., and Miss Margarette Magee, of Altoona, Pa., visited last week Mrs. Magee's sister, Mrs. Herman Overland, of West Fourth street.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Miss Ada VanHorn, of Grove street, has returned from a week's stay at Asbury Park.

B. C. Firstbrook, of Liberty street, has been confined to his home for the past week by illness.

Mrs. G. Coles has returned to her home on West Front street, after a sojourn at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greer, of Grove street, have returned from a sojourn at Long Branch.

Clarence VanDoren, of East Fifth street, has gone to Franklin Park for a two weeks' stay with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Dunham, of East Fifth street, will sojourn at Mount Pocono for the next two weeks.

Miss Margaret Keegan, of New Haven, Conn., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John A. O'Keefe, of South avenue.

James DeGraff and family, of Central avenue, have returned home after spending some time at Rye Beach, N. H.

George Brown, borough treasurer and tax collector, arrived home yesterday from Asbury Park and Ocean Grove

Miss M. L. Gaiser, of Bridgeport, Conn., is spending a week with her cousin, Mrs. W. C. Bodine, of Jackson avenue.

Francis E. Whiteside has returned from Esopus Valley, Ulster county, N. Y., where he has been stopping for several weeks.

Mrs. E. P. Ketcham and daughters, of East Fifth street, returned today from their summer outing spent at Pine Bush, N. Y.

William A. Swalm, of West Front street and George Crevelling, of West Fifth street, have gone to Asbury Park for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCardell, of West End Park, have returned home from Long Port, N. J., where they have been sojourning for a few weeks.

Mrs. William Henry, of West Fourth street, accompanied by Miss Mary Henry, of Fanwood, has returned home from a two months' visit at Hartford, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Windham, of Fairview avenue, entertained over Labor Day Miss Nettie Humbert, Miss Clara Herold, Miss Meyers, Mr. Hoffman, of Brooklyn and West Hoboken.

North Avenue First.

For the benefit of the residents of Rahway road, who have been complaining about the condition of that thoroughfare, it can be stated that the Councilmanic street committee believes that the work of repairing North avenue before cold weather arrives is more important. The committee expects to put Rahway road in condition, but as there is but one steam roller and the most important work has to be done first, North avenue will receive first attention.

Strikers Going Back.

Strikers at the Columais Tool Works are gradually going back to work. The company has signified its willingness to take back all but four or five of the men. Some of the men who struck have expresred considerable dissatisfaction with their leadership in the difficulty.

The Day's Honors.

At the shoot of the Independent Gun Club held Monday on the Maple avenue range, Charles Jensen was crowned king by shooting away the body of the eagle. Henry Haurand was entitled to crown Mr. Jensen king by shooting away the head.

Death of Little Girl.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Murray, of West Ninth street, will be grieved to hear of the death of their little daughter, Jean, at Cragsmoor, Ulster county, N. Y. She was taken suddenly ill last Thursday and died early this morning.

Ping-Pong Tournament.

Twenty entries have been received for the men's ping-pong tournament at the Y. M. C. A. Play will begin this evening. Every man will meet every other man in the contest and play the best two out of three.

Wrong Party Sued.

Justice Huff granted a non-suit yesterday in the case of Trimmer against Brown, on contract, on the ground that the wrong party was made the defendant. New papers will be made out today.

Sudden Death at Watchung.

Adrain Beutec, a well known resident of Watchung, died suddenly this noon of asthma and heart trouble. He was the father-in-law of H. Texier, owner of the Watchung Glove factory.

—Miss May Sheppard, of Central avenue, has gone to Abbeville, S. C., to take a position as milliner.

FELL OVERBOARD.

Narrow Escape From Drowning of Mrs. C. H. Ledyard, at Watch Hill.

Mrs. Frank Shattle, of East Sixth street, received word yesterday of the narrow escape from death by drowning of her niece, Mrs. Charles H. Ledyard, of Providence, R. I., who recently returned home from a visit id this city. While boating with a party off Watch Hill, R. I., she accidentally fell overboard and, although an expert swimmer, sank at once. She was rescued by her stepbrother and was revived by physicians after two hours work. Mrs. Ledyard is very well-known in this city.

NAUGHTY BOYS MADE CITY JAIL LIVELY

Were Locked Up to Think It Over, But Made Life Miserable for the Police.

THEY WERE RELEASED.

AMUSED THEMSELVES BOTHERING A PEDDLER LOCKED UP WITH THEM.

Put Into Cells in the Morning, But Things Grew So Warm That City Judge Runyon Held Special Court in the Afternoon.

The local police will have to go off on another tack if they entertain any idea of conquering the six mischievous boys who were consigned in cells, yesterday, by City Judge Runyon, "to think over their conduct."

Evidently, their brains were not overtaxed with ruminations, but their throats nearly burst with the yells and jeers they gave vent to every time a bluecoat passed the cell doors. Doorman McCue was forced to take up quarters in the backyard and at the noon relief hour Roundsman Mattox contented himself with remaining on the sidewalk. The boys held the fort until well in the afternoon when a peddler was brought in and placed in an adjoining cell.

In their eagerness to see the newcomer a knot was punched out of the partition and their inventive brains saw a new avenue of divertisement opened up to them. The peddler settled himself for a nap but was rudely roused up by being spit upon. Two of the boys were taking turns in ejecting saliva upon him and his cries for relief were soon mingling with the howls of glee from the gang, every time he failed to dodge a bunch of wet.

Driven to distraction at 3 o'clock, Doorman McCue sent a petition for relief to City Judge Runyon in the shape of Patrolman Lunger. His Honor suspended business to go over to the court and the moment his voice was heard "silence like a poultice came, to heal the blows of sound."

The six culprits were trotted out and when asked to give an explanation of their conduct the answers were puzzlers. "Man Eater" Mullen claimed to have been sleeping, "Doc" Hall asserted that he had only yelled twice when "GeeWah" Willis stepped on him, "Peelie" said he was only running round his cell for exercise and Richie Edmundson and Ben Wyckoff stated they were only crying. The crowd received a review of the Declaration of Independence and were let go on promise that they would leave all Chinamen alone.

HOW TO SAVE.

Plainfield Trust Company Inaugurates New Method to Assist In Saving Earnings.

The Plainfield Trust Company inaugurated a novel method yesterday which is sure to assist the people of Plainfield in saving their earnings. Upon opening an account of $5 the company will loan the depositor a handsome and useful clock auxiliary savings bank. You take the clock and whenever you are able you may drop in the top of it. When you think you have a sufficient amount for a deposit take the clock to the company's place of business, 139 East Front street, where the money will be taken out and placed to your credit.

The company holds the key to the clock and thus all temptation to remove the money after placing it therein is removed. The clock is a good time-piece and is an ornament. It must be wound up every day, thus the person is daily reminded that he should place something away for safe keeping. Already a number of clocks have been given out and the success of the plan is assured. An additional feature is that this money deposited in the savings department will draw 3 per cent. interest.

Fraternal Visits.

J. Brown, a past master workman of the A. O. U. W., of Toledo, N. Y., arrived in Plainfield yesterday and has been visiting Grand Master Workman V. W. Nash, of this city. Today they will go to Red Bank, where they will visit Shrewsbury Lodge. Mr. Brown will probably remain in New Jersey for some time as a State organizer.

Working on Storm Sewer.

The progress of the work on the Arlington avenue sewer for the drainage of surface water continues satisfactorily. If the weather remains favorable the work will be completed on time.

VETERANS TO MEET.

Annual Reunion of Fifteenth New Jersey at Sussex and Lake Grinnell.

The twenty-third annual reunion of the Fifteenth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers Veteran Association, will be held Thursday and Friday, Sept. 18 and 19. On Thursday the association will be the guests of the citizens of Sussex, formerly Deckertown, and on Friday there will be a picnic at the residence of Comrade Peter S. Gunderman at Lake Grinnell. Preparations are being made by the committee in charge to make the affair one of the most enjoyable in the history of the association. Any further information can be obtained from Col. Thomas Decker, of Newark, who is president of the association.

MINSTRELS FOR COMPANY K

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO ARRANGE SUCH AN AFFAIR.

Lots of Other Business Transacted at Meeting of Company K Last Evening.

There was an enthusiastic and interesting meeting of the civic organization of Company K last evening, when considerable business was transacted. Sergeant R. M. Clark was appointed a committee of one with power to select a committee for the purpose of arranging for a minstrel show to be given this coming winter. There is plenty of good talent in the company and the success of such an affair would no doubt be assured.

Private Harsel was elected secretary of the company in place of Private Letson, who has resigned, and Sergeant Seider was appointed a committee of one to select company rooms. Corporal Apgar was also appointed a committee of one to arrange for a series of dances this winter.

The shoot has been arranged between the team from Company K and the Independent Gun Club to take place Saturday, September 13, on the range on Maple avenue. Other matches will be arranged soon. A number of the members will go to Sea Girt on Monday, September 15, to practice on the State rifle range.

FELL FROM CAR.

Car Started, It is Said, Before Mrs. John Kiely Had a Chance to Alight—Was Injured.

While Mrs. John Kiely, of West Second street, was attempting to get off a trolley car on East Fifth street last evening shortly before 8, while the car was moving, she fell backward striking her head on the ground. There was an ugly scalp wound which bled profusely, but the fact that the woman had her hair done up on the back of her head saved her from more serious injuries.

Mrs. Kiely was accompanied by her husband and they were going to make a call on East Fifth street. Mr. Kiely gave the conductor the signal to stop the car and he got off, but, it is said, that before Mrs. Kiely could leave the car it was started, with the result as stated. Dr. W. Kempton Browning, who lives near by the scene of the accident, was called and he gave the proper treatment, after which Mrs. Kiely was taken home in a carriage. Her injuries are not considered serious.

FAREWELL AFFAIR.

Given to Sons of Frank Linke at Their Home Monday Evening.

Monday evening a large number of young friends and schoolmates of Otto and George Linke, assembled at their home on West Second street, to give the a farewell party previous to their departure on Tuesday for Montreal, Canada, where they will enter Saint Laurant College. The evening was passed in playing games and listening to good music and at 10:30 o'clock refreshments were served. Tuesday afternoon a number of the friends of the young men gave them a hearty sendoff at the North Avenue station.

Jewelers Will Keep Open.

An effort has been made among some of the jewelers in the city to continue the plan of closing their stores at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. Several merchants prefer to keep open later and the plan will not be continued.

Only Routine Business.

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon. Nothing but routine business was transacted.

—Don't forget this is canning week. Neuman Brothers will have a special sale tomorrow and will sell at a special price 50 baskets of peaches at 65 cents, 50 at 75, 50 at 85 and 50 at 90 cents and upwards.

SWORE THAT GAT WAS GAT

JOSIAH TUNISON FINALLY IDENTIFIED THE SOMERVILLE CHINAMAN.

Troubles Which He Had to Return to This Country After Going Back to China.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 4—It is safe to say that if "Joe" Gat arrives in this country Saturday, as is expected, he will not be in a hurry to leave again in a while.

Gat is a wealthy Chinese laundryman of this place and owns several washeries here. About four years ago he went to China to visit the old folks at home. Just three weeks ago he got as far home as England and the authorities there would not let him sail for the United States. Then he went to Montreal, opening up communication with friends here.

Although he had his naturalization papers on him and his certificate of residence the authorities would not believe he was Gat so he wrote to Josiah Tunnison, a real estate dealer of this place, sending his photo for identification. Tunnison made affidavit that Gat was the rightful owner of the papers and expects to see him in Somerville in a few days.

GETTING GAMES.

Manager Chandor Has Already Scheduled a Number of Games for the Alis Football Eleven.

While it is yet too early for Captain Roy T. Phillips, of the Alis football team, to do anything but informally outline his eleven for the coming season, Manager Harold A. Chandor has been quite busy booking games for the approaching season. While definite arrangements have not yet been made, it is expected that the team will play its games on Hope Common.

Among the teams which Manager Chandor has already placed on his list are the Riversides A. C., of Newark, the Roseville A. A., the Oritani F. C., of Hackensack, the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., the Metuchen F. C. and the scrub team of Rutgers College. Then there are a number of old favorites and some new opponents with which Manager Chandor is now negotiating.

THANKS FOR AID.

Manager Brown Received Letter in Behalf of the Fresh Air Home.

Mrs. D. M. Runyon has written the following letter of acknowledgment to Manager Thomas L. Brown, of the Hotel Netherwood, on account of the kindly interest he has evinced in behalf of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home:

Mr. Brown, Dear Sir:—We are very much indebted to the guests of your hotel, who have contributed so generously to the support of the Little Missionary's Summer Home at Netherwood. The collection taken last Sunday evening, amounting to $33, made glad the heart of faithful Miss Curry and her assistants, as it will supply the needs of the little ones for a number of days. We desire to extend, through yourself, our earnest thanks to all who so kindly contributed.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. D. M. Runyon, Sec.

THE WRONG MAN.

Sammy Found He Couldn't Peddle on Another Man's License.

Thinking another man's license would permit him to peddle, Samuel Venardusky, of New York town, started to dispose of a stock of miscellaneous wares in this city, yesterday. Patrolman Lunger failed to recognize Sammy as the owner of the license and took him into custody. He was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, last evening, and sentence was suspended on his promising to hie himself back to the city.

Favorite in Plainfield.

Rev. F. E. Taylor, of Brooklyn, who will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon, is a young man who has had a large and successful experience in the conduct of men's meetings, and is a great favorite in Plainfield. He will address the meeting at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. He was greatly liked by the Knights of the Golden Eagle who attended the meeting that he addressed in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last May.

No Services at Grace M. E.

Owing to unavoidable delay in the work of decorating there will be no service held in Grace M. E. church next Sunday. The work will be pushed with all possible speed and announcement will be made later when services in the church will be resumed.

PROGRAMME FOR THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

National Officers of Grand Army and Citizens' Committee Have Approved It.

IT BEGINS OCTOBER 5.

VETERANS FROM ALL OVER THE LAND WILL GATHER AT WASHINGTON.

How the National Capital Will Entertain—Some of the Special Features Have Been Planned for the Occasion.

How the veterans who have been cordially asked to become the guests during the forthcoming encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic are to be entertained, is manifest from a glance at the following programme, which has now been formally approved by the national officers of the G. A. R. and the citizens' executive committee:

Sunday, Oct. 5—Patriotic services in various local churches, particularly in New York Avenue Presbyetrian church, where Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, will preside, and in St. Patrick's Catholic church, where Rev. Dr. D. J. Stafford, will preside.

Monday, Oct. 6—Campfire in Convention Hall at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at which the members of the veteran associations will be addressed by speakers of national reputation.

Tuesday, Oct. 7—Naval day; parade of special veterans' associations; detachments of regular troops and District militia; excursion to Mount Vernon for the delegates to the encampment; public evening meeting of welcome at Convention Hall, at which Chairman Warner of the local citizens' committee will extend the freedom of the city to Gen. Torrance and his associates.

Wednesday, Oct. 8—Grand review of G. A. R. by commander-in-chief and the President of the United States, with an elaborate reception in the evening at Convention Hall.

Thursday, Oct. 9, and Friday, Oct. 10—Sessions of national encampment.

Meetings of auxiliary conventions and corps and regimental reunions may be scheduled for any time during the encampment.

The line of march will extend from the Congressional Library to the corner of Seventeenth and H streets northwest, via Pennsylvania avenue.

In this statement no account is taken of many auxiliary conventions, numerous corps of reunions and various other incidental meetings which form so large a part of annual meetings of the Grand Army. These will take place from time to time during the week, and extend the interests of the encampment far beyond the three days of public ceremony indicated above.

Two special features planned for the interest of the great throng of general visitors deserve special attention, however.

On Monday, Oct. 6, the Potomac Boat Club, a well-known rowing association, which includes many men prominent in Washington social life, will conduct a very notable regatta. Oarsmen of international reputation will compete for prizes in single sculls and four-oar events. Several colleges and many independent rowing clubs will be represented by eight-oared shells. Local yachtsmen and canoeists will line both banks of the upper Potomac with their characteristic and picturesque river craft. But the chief attraction at this meet will be the presence of hundreds of thousands of spectators strung along the high wharves of Georgetown or the opposite bank of the river, and thronging Analostian Island and the Aqueduct bridge, both of the latter affording "grand stand" view points free for all the races.

The second general feature is to be a parade of automobiles, for which vehicles the city of Washington seems to have been especially designed. Broad avenues paved with asphalt, beautifully decorated, lined with maple, oak, poplar, ginco and other trees rich in natural foliage, afford the latest development in vehicle transportation an ideal background. Representatives of great manufacturing concerns have undertaken to present in the parade the most improved and beautiful automobiles now on the market. All the exhibitors are to decorate their machines with flowers. There will be no advertisements. The effect cannot fail to excite the most general favorable comment and add to the interest of an encampment already designated by the commander-in-chief as "likely to prove the most attractive, the most beautiful and the most significant reunion in the history of the G. A. R."

PROHIBITION TICKET NAMED

UNION COUNTY CONVENTION HELD AT ELIZABETH TUESDAY EVENING.

Augustus S. Runyon, of This City, Was Named for the Lower House.

Prohibitionists of Union county met in the W. C. T. U. Hall in Elizabeth Thursday evening and nominated a county ticket. William B. Boyer, chairman of the Union County Executive committee called the convention to order and Frederick W. Fletcher, of Linden, was made chairman, with Mr. Boyer as secretary. The nominations were:

For senator, Edward L. Massey, of Westfield; surrogate, William H. Maier, of Elizabeth; sheriff, Neil McLeod, of Elizabeth; assemblyman, Parker D. King, of Summit, Augustus S. Runyon, of Plainfield; Frederick W. Fletcher, of Linden; coroner, Frederick W. Myles, of Elizabeth.

The present county committee was reappointed. It consists of William B. Boyer, chairman; L. C. Long, secretary; Edward Stoddard, treasurer, and George R. Sayre, Joseph F. Heller, Joseph Oakley and J. H. Ireland, associates.

HELPING THEMSELVES.

Blacksmith Carver Denied Their Story That They Had His Permission, But Refused to Press Charge.

While Patrolman Higgins was at supper, last evening, he was informed by a boy that two men were robbing Carver's blacksmith shop on Washington avenue. He went at once to the spot and found Charles Leonard and William Corcoran filling two large bags with new horse shoes.

The men claimed to have permission from Carver to take them but, when word was sent to the owner, he denied knowing anything about their being at his shop or allowing them to take the shoes. Both men were taken to police headquarters but this morning Carver refused to press any charge against them and they were released.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

W. C. T. U. of Union County Will Meet at Westfield, September 18.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Union County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Methodist church, Westfield, Thursday, September 18. There will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, county president, will be in charge. In addition to the usual routine business, there will be an address in the evening by Miss Belle Kearney, of Flora, Mississippi. There will be special music and other attractive features. At noon a basket luncheon will be served.

The morning session open at 9:45 o'clock, the afternoon at 2 o'clock and the evening at 8 o'clock. The trolley lines are accessible and the place of meeting easily reached. No doubt Plainfield will send a large representation to the convention.

MISS EDMUNDS WEDDED.

Announcement Made of Her Marriage to F. D. Bidwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Trustom Coffin Edmunds, of Rutsonville, N. Y., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ella, to Frederick David Bidwell, which took place at their home last evening. The bride was a former resident of this city and was a prominent worker in Hope chapel, where she has a host of friends. During her residence here she resided on West Eighth street. Mr. and Mrs. Bidwell will be at home to their friends after October 1 at 243 Ontario street, Albany, N. Y.

Pay for a Dam.

Assemblyman William Newcorn, representing W. H. Smith, has commenced a suit in the Somerset County Circuit Court against Henry B. Fullerton, of Scotch Plains, on contract for $500, this being claimed the balance due for the work of constructing a dam for the defendant at Scotch Plains. The case will probably be tried at the December term of court.

To Resume Her Classes.

Miss Clara S. Hellwig will return from Saratoga Springs in a few days and complete arrangements for resuming her private lessons in French and German at 724 Watchung avenue, Thursday, Sept. 15.

Something the Matter With Him.

John Block, alcoholically obfuscated, was arrested last night by Patrolman Adelmann. He will come up this evening before Recorder Doud on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

SAVED LAD'S LIFE.

But Charles Kellar Received a Painful Wound as a Result.

Charles Kellar, of Harrison avenue, is suffering from a painful wound in the palm of the hand, the result of having, on Labor Day, grabbd a falling ice pick, to prevent it from penetrating the head of a young lad who was standing near by.

The pick was hanging against the wall in the rear of Mr. Kellar's home, and some boys were playing about the yard. One of them knocked the instrument off its hook and it would have descended on the head of a companion had not Mr. Kellar's prompt action prevented perhaps a fatal accident. Dr. Dundon put several stitches in the injured hand.

THE HOPE CAMPERS STARTED

LEFT THIS MORNING FOR THE CAMP AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Twelve of Them Braved the Chances of Rain to Begin a Ten Days' Outing.

Lowering clouds had no terrors for twelve members of the Hope Y. M. A., who departed on the 8:21 train, this morning, laden with tents, cooking utensils and other paraphernalia, for Lake Hopatcong. They will pitch tents on the shores of Jersey's beautiful inland lake and "rough" it for the next ten days. The advance guard will be augmented by a second party which will depart Saturday.

The young men were plentifully provided with canoes, cameras, fishing poles, musical instruments and many other things that helped to make camping trips popular. Bishop's Rock will be the site of the camp and it will be known to the members and residents of that section as "Camp Hope." The Y. M. A.'s proclivities for making fun are but too well known and to say the camp will be one of the most popular on the lake will, without doubt be verified.

Those who left this morning were J. Fred Wharton, John H. Cose, City Judge William N. Runyon, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., George Slorah, Ray McVoy, Elmer Hoffman, George Cose, John Slorah, Albert Grieb and Walter Foster.

DEFENDANT DOESN'T KNOW.

Claims Ignorance Regarding $5,000 Damage Suit Brought Against Him.

John E. Heeney, Jr., night telegraph operator at Potter's Station, three miles from Oak Tree on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, is the defendant in a suit for $5,000 damages brought against him by Miss Mary Scott, a comely young woman, who lives at the home of John Snyder, near the telegraph station. Heeney, who is only nineteen years of age, was served with papers on Wednesday at his home and later he was released on $2,000 bail furnished by his father, John A. Heeney, Sr., station agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company at Bloomsburg.

He professes ignorance as to the suit and says that he has no idea as to the cause of the action. The papers did not divulge the nature of the suit. Assemblyman William Newcorn represents Miss Scott, who it is said is engaged to be married to a young man living at Bound Brook.

SOCIAL GATHERING.

Pleasant Affair at Home of Miss Minnie Hossinger, at Scotch Plains.

Miss Minnie Hossinger, of Scotch Plains, entertained twenty-five friends at her home last evening. There were guests present from Plainfield, Westfield and other nearby places. During the evening there were phonograph selections and vocal solos by Miss Hossinger and Oscar Moore. A feature were recitations given by F. O. Smith, the well-known impersonator, of this city. Mr. Smith gave a number of his best selections. After the entertainment a bountiful collation was served.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Given to August Trust at Home of A. I. Smalley, Last Night.

A. I. Smalley, of Somerset street, gave a party last evening to a number of friends. The gathering was in the nature of a farewell to August Trust, previous to his departure for North Carolina. Mr. Trust, a former Plainfielder, has been visiting here, and will return to his home in the South next week. During the evening dancing was enjoyed on the piazza and in the parlor. Thirty couples were present. Music was furnished by Prof. Frazee.

Principal Homer J. Wightman, of the North Plainfield High School, and family, arrived home this morning, after spending the summer in upper New York State.

POSSIBILITIES FOR AN ALL-PLAINFIELD TEAM

More Suggestions for Men to Meet Westfield in the Coming Series Scheduled.

WESTFIELD'S STANDING.

HAS LOST BUT THREE GAMES OUT OF TWENTY-TWO PLAYED.

All Local Fans Are Greatly Interested in The Daily Press' Plan of the Series With Westfield—Those Who Will Play.

Since announcement was made in The Daily Press that the All-Plainfield team has been picked to battle with the Westfields, local fans are greatly interested in its makeup and there have been many conjectures as to whether it will do the "trick."

Without doubt it is the strongest team that could be picked although there are many local players who are competent to be members of it. Other teams have been suggested with the same players changed about and one of these suggested by a well-known fan is worthy of note. It is as follows: Barnes c, Dupee or Burns p, Winn 1b, Martin 2b, Bolsterli ss, Schoonmaker 3b, Taylor lf, Montross cf, Moore rf, Eagan, Franklin, Allen, Lederer and Shortman, substitutes. This varies to some extent from the team already been picked but there is little doubt that it is just as strong.

It is also certain that the team will need to be a strong one to bring victory to Plainfield as the Westfield's season record shows a remarkable winning streak. The best nines in the Metropolitan district have been humbled by it while minor teams have been literally wiped out. The 1902 record to date is as follows:

May 3—Genuine Cuban Giants	11—5
May 10—Clark's Q. N. T.	6—3*

SIGNIFICENT FACTS.

Comparison of Increase in Property Values in Somerset and Union Counties.

The recent meeting of the Somerset County Board of Assessors makes it posible to draw some interesting comparisons between the relative increases in property values in Union and Somerset counties. During the last year, Somerset county shows an increase of $71,713, about the same as last year, but considerably smaller than that of previous years. In striking contrast are the figures in Union county where the net increase over last year's property values amounts to $2,494,000.

An equally striking comparison is shown between the increase in Plainfield and North Plainfield. The borough has increased but $1,000 over last year's figures, while the city shows a substantial growth amounting to $299,700, about four times the increase in all Somerset county. These figures are significant.

W. T. Kirk Mentioned.

The Elizabeth Times makes the announcement that William T. Kirk, of this city, will be a candidate for sheriff this fall. He formerly filled this position. Mr. Kirk stated today that he cannot be a candidate for the office until it is offered him, and this, he says, has not been done as yet.

To Wed Next Week.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Campbell to Fred A. Shepherd, both of West Fourth street, will take place Wednesday evening. They will take up their residence on Park avenue.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Justice Nash has issued papers in the contract case of J. T. Vail against Benjamin Mills and Frank Vall against Benjamin Mills, returnable September 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Tippett and child, of Auburn, N. Y., will return home today after a week's visit to his brother, E. W. Tippett, of 68 Somerset street.

IT WILL NAVIGATE THE AIR

AIR SHIP WHICH HAS BEEN ON EXHIBITION AT ELIZABETH.

Description of the Machine Which Inventor Reid Will Enter in World's Fair Contests.

There have been a number of Plainfielders, of a mechanical turn of mind, who have been very much interested in the new airship which has been on exhibition at Elizabeth. The inventor of the machine, Paul J. Reid, intends exhibiting it at the St. Louis World's Fair and will enter it in the contests there.

The machine is fifteen feet long, weighs twenty-three pounds and can sustain a weight of twenty pounds, although it will not be required to carry more than ten pounds in the St. Louis competition.

It is mounted on wheels and carries two aeroplanes having a surface of 365 square feet.

The airship is propelled by four vacuum tubes and a steam turbine driving a two-bladed propeller. It can cover one mile in its flight.

The frame of the machine is of the best second growth of hickory, while the rods supporting the aeroplanes are of the best white pine. All the frame work is strongly braced with stays of the finest piano wire of a tensile strength of 500 pounds. The surface of the aeroplanes is formed of strips of lawn, carefully stitched together.

The steam is generated in a boiler of copper tubing. It has about thirty feet of tubing and holds about a quart of water. Its weight is four pounds and it will generate steam from cold water in half a minute. The heat is generated by seven gasolene jets, supplied by reservoir in the rear of the boiler.

The boiler is located near the centre of the machine, and about two feet below the lowest margin of the aeroplanes, with the intent of bringing the centre of gravity as low as possible.

The steam turbine is secured to the framework at the rear of the machine. It has ball bearings and makes between 4,000 and 7,000 revolutions per minute.

The airship will compete for the $2,500 prize at the exposition. This class embraces all gliding machines and aerial ships not carrying an operator.

Inventor Reid's object in exhibiting his machine is to interest capitalists in a larger airship which he is desirous of building to compete for the $100,000 prize.

This machine would be four times the size of the one he now has and would weigh about 150 pounds. It will have an aeroplane surface of 1,400 square feet. The framework will be constructed of the highest grade nickel steel tubing, while alcohol will be used in the place of water in the boiler to generate the vapor for the turbine engine.

Inventor Reid is forty-three years old, and the son of a prominent hardware manufacturer of Reading, Pa. He learned mechanical trades while at his father's business. He has been living for a year in Elizabeth, coming there from Philadelphia, where he lived eight years. He has built three flying machines prior to this one, and has been fifteen years experimenting in aerial navigation. His previous machine made several flights of 500 feet. The present one, however, is the first he has ever publicly exhibited.

Its predecessors were all carefully guarded from public observation during their trials. Only a few friends were privileged to see his last invention in operation.

Mrs. Ira West, of West Fifth street, is in New York State, where she was called by the death of a relative.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip V. R. Van Wyck, of Stelle avenue, who have been summering at Lake George, have returned home.

B. McNevin, section foreman on the Jersey Central, has returned home from Whitehaven, Pa., where he was called on account of the sudden illness of his father.

Lingering Summer Colds.

WILL SOON START BORING

PROGRESS OF THE PRELIMINARY WORK ON THE HUDSON RIVER TUNNEL.

Now Believed That It Will be Operated by the Fall of 1905 or Early in 1906.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, September 4—In less than three weeks from now, the preparations incident to the resumption of boring operations at the North River tunnel works, foot of Fifteenth street, will be practically completed, and then the work of putting through the unfinished portion of the northern tube will be resumed. About 1,000 feet remain to be bored, but with the up-to-date appliances installed at the scene of operations, the task will not take very long to complete.

An eighteen ton accumulation, built by the Cockburn-Barr Company, of Eleventh street, this city, has just been put in position at the tunnel works, and all the new machinery so far delivered has been fitted together and is ready to be started at any time.

A cable railway is being laid down, the wire rope is expected daily from the Roebling Company's works at Trenton. Heretofore all the hauling in the tunnel was done by mules. The new system will greatly faciliate the operations.

All of the four large dynamos installed by the General Electric Company are being worked every day, and the new airlock is in place.

About 100 men are now employed at the tunnel works, and the aspect of the entire place speaks silently, but eloquently of the system and steady application resorted to, to evolve order out of comparative chaos.

The iron building enclosing the machinery and shaft leading to the tunnel is fully completed and it is quite an ornament amid the mundane surroundings.

The officials in charge of the operations are reticent in the matter of giving out information as to the probable time it will take to complete the great enterprise, but it was learned that the New York and New Jersey Tunnel Company, which will operate the tunnel, expects to commence running traffic through it, if no serious engineering difficulties present themselves, in the fall of 1905 or early in 1906. It was thought at first that it would not take as long as this to complete the undertaking, but a careful and exhaustive investigation into the extent of the work to be done has satisfied the company that it will take at least until the fall of 1905 to finish and equip the two bores.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

"Plainfield can always be relied on (with Westfield)" says the Westfield Leader, "to give a Republican majority for the county, State and National ticket." The Union county Republicans rejoice in the splendid majorities given the Republican tickets in both Plainfield and Westfield. But it should be borne in mind that without the strong support given the tickets by the 6,000 Republican voters in Elizabeth, as against 2,500 in Plainfield and 450 in Westfield, the county Republican ticket would never have a majority and never a Republican official would be elected.—Elizabeth Journal.

Congressman Fowler, who a year or two ago offered to build a $50,000 free public library for Elizabeth, has since so changed his plans that the gift will cost $150,000. He has bought a large lot and is ready to proceed with the work as soon as the city makes provision for the maintenance of the library. This will cost about $12,000 a year, and it seems that the delay in carrying out the plan has been owing to the advice of City Comptroller Carlton, who asked that nothing be done until 1903, when it is thought the city will be better able to assume the burden.

Andrew Carnegie, in making gifts for libraries, insists upon a city guaranteeing to raise annually an amount equal to ten per cent. on the donation. Congressman Fowler requires but eight per cent. to be raised.

Mr. Fowler's political enemies have been slurringly referring to his failure to build the library, and statements made by Comptroller Carlton and others have given the true reason for the delay. Plans of the proposed building are now on exhibition, and as soon as the local Common Council can be made to realize the true value of the gift and make provision for the library's support, work will be begun.—Trenton Times.

TRIO OF JERSEYMEN IN THE DAYS OF OLD

Lawrence, Bainbridge and Somers the Great Naval Commanders.

FAMOUS FIGHTERS ALL.

STORIES OF THE GREAT VICTORIES THEY HAD ACHIEVED.

Burlington, Mercer and Atlantic Counties May Claim the Scene of Their Nativity—The Crowning Events of Their Lives.

It is a somewhat remarkable instance that of the commanders associated with the early history of the American navy, three—Bainbridge, Lawrence and Somers—should be natives of this State, says John Davis Anderson in the Newark Sunday News. How well this speaks for the hardihood of Jerseymen of a century and more ago is to be measured by the fame which came to us through this trio of brave spirits.

The counties of Mercer, Burlington and Atlantic may claim to the honor of being the respective birthplaces of these men, yet their history belongs not alone to this State, but to all the nation as well. That all were brave, hardy, intrepid sailors need not be reproclaimed at this late day. Indeed it would be difficult to name three marines in the whole history of the nation whose records could be said to excel those of our three New Jersey navigators.

Commander Bainbridge was the oldest of the three, lived longer and won rather more renown than did either Lawrence or Somers. He was born in Princeton on May 7, 1774, and while a child was taken by his father to New York, but soon after was given into the care of his grandfather, John Taylor, of Monmouth county. Now John Taylor was a man of vigor and spirit, and he saw to it that his daughter's child was not permitted to grow up in any idle, shiftless fashion. This meant in those times that a boy of fifteen was able to earn his own living, and at about that age the future commodore was apprenticed on a merchant vessel sailing from Philadelphia.

His first noteworthy deed took place when he was eighteen, and on board the ship Hope, bound for Holland. The crew rose against the officers, and had notions about throwing their captain overboard, not a rare thing in those days. But for young Bainbridge they would have succeeded.

The year 1789 brought brought about his assignment to the command of the United States schooner Retaliation She carried fourteen guns, and was to act against France. Two years later Bainbridge secured his commission as a captain, and was appointed to the command of the George Washington. In her he was sent to Algiers with presents for the Dey. The trip was not the only one which he made to the Mediterranean, for, in 1803, in command of the Philadelphia, he was sent to Tripoli. It was while in the harbor that his ship grounded, and that for nineteen months Bainbridge and his crew were held prisoners. Their release came with the negotiations for peace made by Colonel Lear.

The crowning event of Commodore Bainbridge's naval career took place in December, 1812. He was in command of the Constitution, and was off the coast of Brazil. The British frigate Java hove in sight, and the terrible battle commenced. Odds were against our ship, for the Java was one of the large vessels of the British navy. She carried forty-nine guns and over 400 men. But Bainbridge was not the sort of a sailor to fear and show lack of courage. Well-trained shots at the British ship caused her to haul her colors, for each fire from the Constitution had made bloody havoc. It was found, on boarding the Java, that she was an unmanageable wreck, and that her commander, Captain Lambere, was killed, along with 160 dead and wounded.

The second war with Britain soon came to its close, and Commodore Bainbridge was assigned to the construction of the Independence, the first ship of the line over which our flag floated. He lived long afterward, and made his home in Philadelphia. No doubt some of the older residents of the Quaker City today can recall the time when they, as boys, have seen the stout sailor in one of his walks down to the wharf.

Four years after the birth of Bainbridge, a son, named Richard, was born to Colonel Richard Somers, of Egg Harbor. Colonel Somers was a noted citizen in his day and won his title in the American Revolution. The son Richard attended school for a time in Philadelphia, and afterward at the Academy at Burlington. At fifteen he went to sea and two years later entered the naval service as a midshipman. He was assigned to the United States in company with Stephen Decatur, and the two became great friends, although professional rivals.

Those were days of great activity in the annals of the young navy. In 1801 Somers was appointed to a lieutenancy and a few days later was appointed to the command of the Nautilus, the finest schooner in the navy, a craft of twelve guns. With her he went to the Mediterranean and from that time on was in active duty under Preble.

The blockade against Tripoli in 1804 afforded just such opportunities for dash and daring as Somers seems to have desired. In one such undertaking he was destined to lose his life. There was a belief that the enemy lacked ammunition, and that a fire ship sent into the harbor and blown up would end the war. This plan is said to have originated with Somers, and Preble gave sanction to its execution. Accordingly, a good sized "ketch" or vessel such as was used by the natives of the Barbary States, was rigged up and plans were perfected to sail with her into the harbor. Somers volunteered to go, as did four young Philadelphia sailors with whom he had been associated for six years.

It was on the night of Sept. 4 that the plans were perfected. The "ketch" sailed away and was soon lost in the haze and gloom of the night. A short time and there was a fearful explosion in the direction the "ketch" had gone. Somers and his brave associates were never heard of afterward.

For a long time it was supposed that Somers had blown up the craft in order to prevent his capture, but time brought the belief that a shot from the enemy caused the vessel to explode. Such was the close of the career of one of New Jersey's brave sons. Hardly has there been a time since that event when the American navy did not have a craft named in his honor. In personal appearance J. Fenimore Cooper, in a sketch of Somers, says:—"He was rather below the middle stature; stout in frame, and exceedingly active and muscular. He was mild, amiable and effectionate, both in disposition and deportment, although possessed of singularly chivalrous notions of duty and honor."

The birth of James Lawrence occurred at Burlington on the first day of October, 1781. He was the son of John Lawrence, an eminine lawyer, and like Bainbridge and Somers, entered the American navy some time before he had reached his majority. His early work was against Tripoli, but his fame came with the seconnd war against the British.

At the commencement of the war he was abroad the Hornet, a sloop of war, and one of the squadron under command of Commodore Rogers. His second cruise was under Bainbridge. In February, 1813, the Hornet fell in with the British ship Peacock, and at once a battle commenced. It was over, however, in a quarter of an hour, the Peacock defeated and sinking, her commander killed. For this service Captain Lawrence was awarded the command of the Chesapeake. She was almost ready to put to sea from Boston harbor when the British ship Shannon appeared and gave signs which indicated that a battle would be desirable.

Without waiting to drill his crew or make more ample preparations for a contest, Lawrence put out to sea on the first day of June. Then followed such a battle as has seldom been fought. The ships came close together before a shot was fired, and then engaged in a fierce contest. The helmsmen aboard the Chesapeake were shot down, one after the other, and Lawrence was at length seriously wounded. His cry as the men from the Shannon poured aboard his craft was, "Don't give up the ship!" This has been a watchword in the history of our navy ever since that time.

Lawrence lived only a few days after the encounter with the Shannon. His body was brought from Halifax to Salem, Mass., and finally to New York, where interment was made in Trinity churchyard. Here a monument stands today, and on it is inscribed an outline of his notable career.

Thus it has been shown, by an outline of three all too brief careers, that New Jersey, even in her younger days, possessed brave men. Their lives were so intermingled that to entirely separate the deeds of one from the other would be to leave out a part of the biographies of this trio of New Jersey heroes.

IN DEADLY CRASH.

President Has Miraculous Escape at Pittsfield.

CARRIAGE HIT BY CAR.

Secret Service Guard Instantly Killed and Others Hurt.

ROOSEVELT MUCH BRUISED.

The President Able to Continue His New England Trip and Reaches Oyster Bay In Safety — Great Crowds Everywhere Along the Route Show Gratitude For His Escape From Death.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 4.—President Roosevelt arrived safely home at Oyster Bay at 7 o'clock last evening. He came from Bridgeport on the naval yacht Sylph and was accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou and by Mrs. Roosevelt, his son Kermit and Secretary Loeb, who had gone to Bridgeport on the Sylph to meet him.

The president's face was scratched and swollen as a result of the accident in which he narrowly escaped death and in which Secret Service Agent Craig, the president's bodyguard, was killed at Lenox in the afternoon.

The president's neighbors gathered to greet him when he left the Sylph and sheered lustily as he entered his carriage and was driven to his home, Sagamore Hill.

When the president reached Bridgeport from Stockbridge, he was met by the greatest crowd that ever gathered in that city.

Every factory, every business house, closed its doors as a sign of thanksgiving for the marvelous escape the president had from death in the trolley car collision at Pittsfield.

At every station between Stockbridge and Bridgeport news of the accident had preceded the president's special train, and great crowds gave a salvo of applause as the chief executive approached.

Mr. Roosevelt made no speeches, but he showed himself to the crowds, and the enthusiasm was boundless.

The drive through Bridgeport's streets was one long ovation. There was not a sign of business in the city. With one accord the people turned out to cheer the president and show him their heartfelt gratitude for his almost miraculous escape.

The president remained about an hour and a half and was escorted to a stand in Seaside park, where he had intended delivering an address to workmen. He, however, excused himself from making any speech because of the accident, and at his request the carriage was hurried away from its escort to enable him to board the Sylph, where Mrs. Roosevelt and his son Kermit embraced him. The drive from Dalton to Lenox across the Berkshire hills the president had looked forward to with much interest, and when he awoke and observed a cloudless sky he felt in good spirits, little expecting an accident such as came near ending his life.

After breakfasting at the home of Governor Crane in Dalton he was driven in an open carriage directly to the platform, from which he delivered a short address. Although it was not yet 8 o'clock, a good sized crowd had gathered to hear him, and while awaiting his coming a band discoursed a number of popular airs.

After bidding farewell to Dalton he re-entered his carriage, with Governor Crane and Secretary Cortelyou, and went across country to Pittsfield, where he received a warm and most hearty greeting. His remarks were confined largely to a dissertation on the spirit which actuated those who entered the Union army in 1861, drawing the lesson that if this same spirit were shown now there would be better citizenship among men.

Amid the ringing cheers of the multitude he started on the long drive to Lenox and Stockbridge which ended so disastrously a short distance out from Pittsfield. As soon as it became evident that the president was not seriously hurt and after he had given directions as to the disposition of the body of the faithful Craig the president resumed his journey. He felt that it should not be made the occasion for any further demonstrations in his honor, and he directed a courier to go ahead of him and notify every one along the route he was to traverse not to cheer.

The news of the accident had spread far and wide, and the people were quick to understand the motive which prompted him in making the request. Lenox was reached about 11:15, and his passage through the town to the hotel, which had made elaborate preparations for his entertainment, was in silence. He tarried but a moment, the swelling on his right cheek causing him considerable discomfiture; but, not to disappoint the people, he spoke a few words to them, telling them of the accident and saying that he would make no address. He then passed on to Stockbridge, where, too, the people were ready to make his entry into the city a notable occasion. Speaking from his carriage, his right eye almost closed and getting very black, he said that for the same reasons given at Lenox he would be unable to deliver an address.

His departure from Stockbridge was pathetic. There were no cheers, no waving of flags or handkerchiefs, only a word here and there to break the deathlike silence. Brief stops were made at Great Barrington, Mass., and New Milford, Conn. On the way here Dr. Lung applied hot cloths to the president's face, which reduced the swelling considerably. The president, although badly shaken up, kept his nerve and was in good spirits, though he repeatedly referred to the loss of Craig and said that but for that deeply deplored fact he would regard the accident to himself as simply one of the incidents of the trip.

THE PRESIDENT'S PERIL.

Details of Accident So Nearly Fatal to Him.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 4.—The shocking accident which came so near causing the death of the nation's chief magistrate near this city yesterday is still the all absorbing topic of conversation.

It is pretty generally believed that the smashup was due to the efforts of a trolley car motorman to beat the president's carriage in a race down a steep hill.

The car was filled with a crowd of men and women who were bound for the Country club at the end of the trolley line, where they expected to get a look at the president as he passed on his way to Stockbridge.

"Go faster or we won't see him," cried several persons in the car.

The motorman jerked his lever to nearly full speed notch and sent the car down hill at a frightful pace. It struck the president's landau and smashed it to flinders.

The president was thrown several feet, landing on his head in a heap, with Governor Murray Crane, Secretary Lawrence and Secretary Cortelyou. The president's lip was cut and his right cheek bruised. He was badly shaken up, but quickly jumped to his feet to render assistance to the other members of his party, who for a moment lay stunned.

The crowd was awe stricken. The people feared the president had been killed and rushed to the wreck, no one expecting to find him alive. As the nearest reached the demolished carriage the president scrambled to his feet and forgot his own injuries and danger in aiding those more severely injured. Governor Crane was practically unhurt, though he was thrown into the air. Secretary Cortelyou was injured on the back of the head and on the nose, but his injuries were not serious. He was rendered unconscious by his fall, however.

William Craig, secret service guard for the president, was instantly killed, his skull being crushed, his heart and lungs being laid bare and his right arm severed above the wrist.

Driver Pratt was found unconscious on the road, with a sprained ankle and a dislocated shoulder. His face was also cut and bruised. It is thought he will recover.

The president, Governor Crane, Secretary Cortelyou and Representative Lawrence entered Governor Crane's carriage after the accident and proceeded to Lenox. The president remained there more than an hour and then left for Bridgeport.

When the fatal collision occurred, the presidential party was still in sight of a portion of the multitude that had just ceased cheering the nation's chief after he finished his brief address here. He had been driven to this city from Dalton, a few miles distant, where he had spent the night at Governor Crane's residence and where he had made an early morning speech before beginning what had been looked forward to as a delightful coaching trip through the Berkshire hills.

It had been arranged to have the presidential party guarded by a small mounted detail of the Second Massachusetts infantry, but the escort was not very close to the Roosevelt carriage or the catastrophe might have been averted.

After the president and those accompanying him left Pittsfield park they drove to former United States Senator Dawes' house in East street and then proceeded down South street to the suburbs. Just after passing over the bridge spanning the Housatonic river and immediately north of A. B. Stevens' home a trolley car manned by Luke J. Madden, a new motorman, ran into the president's carriage.

The trolley car was running at half speed and was following the carriages. Pratt, who drove the president's carriage, turned his leaders to the left across the track, and evidently the motorman thought he could safely get by. The car, however, without slacking, struck the right side of the carriage, demolishing the wheels.

When Craig saw the impending danger and that a collision could not be averted, he was heard to say, "Oh, my God!" and then he was hurled through the air and fell under the car wheels, his head and body being mutilated almost beyond recognition.

The president was thrown out, and the wreck of the carriage fell against him. He was bleeding from a cut on the right cheek, but he was able to get on his feet at once. Secretary Cortelyou was senseless when picked up.

He was badly hurt on the back of the head and cut on the face, but soon recovered enough to ask for the president. Governor Crane was badly shaken up, but little bruised, while Representative Lawrence was the least hurt of any of the party in the carriage. Pratt fell with Craig, but the rein swung him out of the path of the car and saved him from instant death.

Young Roosevelt Hears of Accident.

HURON, S. D., Sept. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president, who is hunting fifty miles west of this city, received a telegram from Pittsfield, Mass., telling him of the accident met with by his father's party. Young Roosevelt spent the day in the country between Hetland and Arlington. During the morning he took a ride of twenty-five miles on a locomotive, accompanied by H. R. McCullough, vice president of the Northwestern railroad.

NOTED WRITER DEAD.

Dr. Edward Eggleston Passes Away at Lake George, N. Y.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The death of Dr. Edward Eggleston, novelist and historian, who won fame with his "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," removes one who has been prominently before the public as author and preacher for many years. The cause of his death was apoplexy. He was spending the summer at Lake George. He is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Robinson, and several children.

His life was one long struggle against illness, which frequently compelled him to change occupation and the scene of his labors. He was born at Vevay, Ind., sixty-five years ago. On his mother's side he was a grandnephew of Governor Giles of Virginia and related to Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot.

Dr. Eggleston's early education was obtained in country and village schools in Indiana, where he caught the inspiration of most of his famous stories. While at a boarding school in Virginia in 1854 he became a strong abolitionist.

In 1857 he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church, and at the age of nineteen traveled the circuit and later preached to whites and Indians in Minnesota.

In 1866 he became associate editor of The Little Corporal in Chicago, a year later editor of the National Sunday School Teacher and in 1870 literary editor of the Independent in New York. Soon after he succeeded Theodore Tilton as editor.

Next he became editor of Hearth and Home and quadrupled that magazine's circulation by publishing in it "The Hoosier Schoolmaster."

From 1874 to 1897 he was the successful pastor of the Church of Christian Endeavor in Brooklyn, which had no creed. He then retired from the ministry and devoted himself to literature.

Relief For Martinique Sufferers.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Martinique commission has decided that $100,000 should be immediately sent to Martinique for distribution among the sufferers from the last eruption there. The Martinique fund now amounts to over $1,700,000, of which $300,000 has already been distributed. This is in addition to the $100,000 which was sent to the island immediately after the catastrophe of May and the subscriptions obtained in the United States and other countries, which were sent directly to Martinique.

Six Crushed to Death.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Six men were crushed to death by the collapse of supports of the bottom of a gas tank on which they were at work at Wythe avenue and Thirteenth street, Williamsburg. The tank, which is to be the largest in the world, is being put up by the Williamsburg Gas company and has a diameter of 192 feet.

CANNOT ARBITRATE.

President Baer Answers the Pennsylvania Senators.

THE STRIKE SITUATION REVIEWED.

Management of Mines Belongs to Owners, Whose Duty to the Public Is to Conduct Them For the Common Welfare.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—President George F. Baer of the Reading company and United States Senators Quay and Penrose held a long conference in the executive offices of the Reading company in this city at which the anthracite coal miners' strike was thoroughly discussed. At the conclusion of the conference President Baer issued a lengthy reply to the two senators. Among other things he said:

"I recognize that it is your right and duty as senators representing the great state of Pennsylvania to do whatever can legitimately be done to end a strike that so seriously affects business and brings so much suffering to the women and children of the coal regions. The newspapers' story that I said, 'The strike was a private affair which did not concern the public,' is a reckless fabrication.

"Now, what I have said is that the management of business belongs to the owners. In the case of the coal companies the law casts the management and control on the directors and officers, whose responsibility is to their stockholders, to the state and to the public. The right of the stockholders is to have good management and a fair return on their investment. The obligation to the state is to conduct the business in strict conformity to the laws it has established. The duty to the public is so far as practicable to conduct the business so as to add to the common welfare. We have concluded therefore that our duty to ourselves and to the public will best be served by standing firmly on these propositions:

"First.—That the wages paid in the anthracite coal regions are, compared with the wages paid in like employment, fair and just and that men willing to work honestly can earn more money on the present basis of wages than in any other industry engaged in producing common articles of necessity in the United States.

"Second.—That wages cannot be increased without increasing the price of coal, and to increase the price of coal will restrict the market and drive the public to use bituminous coal, a cheaper and more abundant fuel, and that a restricted market will curtail production and result in depriving miners of regular employment.

"Third.—That we are not fighting labor organizations. We fully recognize the right of men to organize to protect themselves from oppression and to benefit themselves in any legitimate way. But we do oppose their unreasonable interference with the discipline and ordinary management of our business. We will not permit them to select our employees. Neither politics, religion, nationality nor membership in labor organizations shall debar any competent man from working for us. We are fighting the battle of freedom for the individual and his right to labor on his own terms.

"Fourth.—That it is by reason of varying conditions at each mine impracticable to adopt a uniform scale of wages for the whole region, but at each colliery every complaint and grievance will be taken up and investigated by the superintendents and adjusted whenever it is just. I personally offered to Mitchell and his district presidents to go with them and investigate any grievance."

PRESIDENT CANNOT ACT.

Attorney General So Decides Regarding the Coal Strike.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, was designated by the president in June last to investigate and report to him the causes and conditions accompanying the present controversy between the Pennsylvania anthracite coal operators and their miners. Twelve days later Mr. Wright submitted his finding to the president.

After carefully going over the report the president submitted it to the attorney general, who, after giving it full and careful consideration, reports that the executive has no power whatever to take action in the matter. The report accordingly is made public for the information of the people.

Extra Session to End Strike.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 4.—"An extra session of the legislature would cost the state less money than it is costing to maintain the militia in the anthracite region to prevent and suppress riots." In these words Governor W. A. Stone indicated to a few of his friends during his visit here his purpose to call an extra session of the Pennsylvania legislature and try to end the anthracite strike. Mr. Stone is said to believe that by this means an end of the strike could be made in less than thirty days.

Famous Pacer Failed.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The famous pacer Dan Patchen failed in an effort to beat the world's record of 1:59¼ at Belmont race track. His best time was 2:00, as follows: First quarter, 0:29½; half, 0:58½; three-quarters, 1:29; mile, 2:00. Twelve thousand people saw the race.

Offers For War Vessels.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 4.—The Chilean government has received an offer to buy the battleship Capitan Prat for $3,000,000 and the armored cruiser Esmeralda for $2,500,000. These offers are supposed to be made for Japan.

COMING EVENTS.

September 4—Meeting of Plainfield Board of Education.

NEED OF REGULATION.

The recent arrest of Herman Unger, a reputable business man of Newark, for speeding his automobile in Fanwood township has brought to public notice certain circumstances which exist at the present day and make it particularly hard for owners of automobiles. While no one has any right to endanger life and limb in the community by excessive speeding of horseless vehicles through the streets, the owners of such machines should not be discriminated against. They have the same rights and privileges as do the owners of horses and carriages and bicycles.

There is a local ordinance in Scotch Plains which compells automobiles to restrict their speed to a gait not faster than eight miles an hour while passing through the township. As there are hundreds of horses and wheelmen who daily pass through the township at a speed considerably greater than that, it is manifest injustice to enforce such a law. That there should be a speed limit no one questions but in this case it seems to be too much of a good thing.

It is manifestly impossible for owners of automobiles to keep posted as to the different ordinances of every little township and borough they pass through and to learn the boundary lines of these municipalities, which are not marked, so as to how and when to regulate their speed. There confronts each one the possibility of being arrested without warning or even a chance to know that a local ordinance is being violated. These facts bring out all the more prominently the need of a State law on the subject which will serve to restrain these vehicles to a proper speed and yet prevent any overdoing of it as Scotch Plains now presents an example.

It is certainly to be hoped that the Fanwood Township Committee will see the injustice of its present ordinance and so amend it to cover the cases which really need attention and yet not interfere with the perfectly legitimate sport of hundreds of worthy people. The township boundaries should be plainly marked and the practice of hiding in bushes to jump out on some unwary chaffeuer abandoned.

While Congressman Fowler is but human and may lack some of the attributes of the angels, it certainly seems as if he had been unfairly accused by certain of the Democratic newspapers which have tried to make out that he was attempting to crawl out of a gift of a new library for the city of Elizabeth. Whatever may have prompted him to offer the library, those who have known the Congressman feel assured that he was and is ready to keep his word. While he hasn't several silver mines behind him, he is a wealthy man and his offer was not one that is going to tax his resources to any great extent. From present indications, the campaign in the Fifth Congressional district this fall is going to be a bitter one and both sides are preparing to find an unusual amount of fault with the character and general principles of the opposing candidate.

The Board of Education of Morristown has stirred up a lively young storm among the citizens of that city by the resolution which it passed compelling pupils to show a certificate of vaccination before they were admitted to the school. The principal sent home a number of children who failed to show such a certificate and the result was some very angry people. The school authorities stand firm in their position and the end is not yet.

Elston M. French, a Democratic assessor from Republican North Plainfield, has been again honored by the Somerset county board. In his case, politics have taken a back seat while ability has been recognized.

The extension of the sanitary sewers through the West End is going to mean much for the prosperity of that section of the city. It will mean a substantial rise in property values.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Shaw's hard water soap still continues to be sold in large quantities daily. The public appreciate a good article and this is one. A sample will be given on application.

George Kirch, the Liberty street grocer, keeps a brand of groceries unsurpassed anywhere for quality. If you want to be sure of getting a good thing leave your money at Kirch's.

Dudley S. Miller, 401 Park avenue, has all the standard preparations and only uses the purest of drugs. He has a complete prescription department under his own personal supervision.

If you want a good watch—the sort of timepiece that will serve to set the town clock by or regulate the trains call around at L. Moraller & Sons, Park avenue. Prices to suit the times.

The Plainfield Art Gallery in the Y. M. C. A. building has something new in the way of framed pictures. Attractive and neat, they make pretty wall ornaments. Picture framing at a small cost.

Fresh confectionery and light, wholesome bread are the standards at John Wirth's bakery. Give him a trial order and note how much nicer his makes are than those of other bakers. 'Phone 723.

Putnam & DeGraw, the hustling West Front street dry goods firm, is making preparations for a big fall and winter trade. Their stock is always complete and of the best, while their prices cannot be beat for the same quality of goods.

Such a bargain in soap has never before been offered as that which the A. and P. Tea Company's local store announces for this week. It is only one of the specialties which this firm makse regualrly. The A. and P. Tea Company guarantees all its goods.

This is an excellent time of the year to get the right kind of shoes for fall and winter wear and there is no better stock in the city than that to be found at Willett & Son's store around the corner. They carry the latest styles in the best quality at low prices

When you desire anything in the drug line, toilet articles or if you have a prescription to be compounded, remember that L. W. Randolph, the West Front street, druggist, has the reputation for giving the best for the most reasonable price. He is always ready to serve you promptly.

Wonderful opportunities for securing a handsome piano at a most reasonable rate are offered by G. H. Kenyon, of West Front street. For this month only he is offering the Kimball, H. Hinze and McPhail pianos at a figure within reach of all of moderate means. The instruments will be sold on easy payments or discount for cash.

A. N. Laggren and his wife, who were both formerly for a number of years with The Morey-LaRue Company, City Steam and Hand Laundry, have taken a lease of the building, 121-123 East Fourth street, and put in the most up-to-date machinery and also the finest laundry work. Try the celebrated domestic finish. Drop them a postal card, or telephone No. 814, and they will call. They respectfully solicit a share of the public patronage. They do up lace curtains and blankets at short notice.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Under the department of "Men and Affairs," the Newark Sunday Call says:

"A Newark lawyer asked the other day: 'Where was Craig Marsh?' Mr. Marsh is a Plainfield lawyer of energy and ability, who takes yearly trips to Europe, and who was said to be in or near Paris at the time of the automobile accident which killed Mr. and Mrs. Fair. The Nelsons and other Jersey relatives of Mrs. Fair are associated with Plainfield, and undoubtedly know Mr. Marsh and he them. What the Newarker meant was that if Mr. Marsh had been cabled to when the accident occurred, the Jersey heirs would have a much better case to work upon in their pursuit of the Fair millions. Their case depended largely upon ability to prove that Mrs. Fair survived her husband an instant. Many think she did, as the person operating an automobile is more likely to receive injury first than a person sitting further from the guiding machinery. That a competent lawyer on the ground might have obtained some vital testimony seems probable.

"The report that the New Jersey heirs have compromised for $500,000 seems probable. Although there are several of them, they are persons of little experience with wealth and would be likely to view a small but certain fortune as much better than a long legal fight. They are said to be determined to remain in California for a long time. If they did, they would probably escape the inheritance tax in New Jersey."

New Fire Apparatus.

Plainfield's new combination chemical engine and hose wagon will probably be received in this city about September 25. It will be completed in time to be placed on exhibition at the firemen's convention to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, during the latter part of the month. For this reason the city is sure to have the wagon delivered on time.

LABOR DAY WEDDING.

Young Couple Went to Newark to be Joined in Wedlock.

There was a very pretty wedding at the residence of Theodore Blarber, of Newark, Labor Day afternoon, when Harry F. Hayes, of the borough, was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Drake, of Watchung. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles A. Miller, pastor of the Fairmount Avenue Baptist church. After the nuptial knot was tried Mr. and Mrs. Hayes gave a reception at which a large number of relatives and friends of teh contracting parties were present. The newly married couple have taken up their residence in this city.

Two Fingers Injured.

Edward Schenck, of Dunellen, while attending to his work in the Safe Works, yesterday afternoon, had his hand caught in the machinery, causing two of his fingers on the right hand to be badly bruised and torn. Amputation will not be necessary, but the injury will keep Mr. Schenck from his work for several days.

A Shore Dinner.

THE INTER-STATE FAIR PLANS

SECRETARY M. R. MARGERUM IS MAKING GREAT PREPARATIONS.

Some of the Attractions Which He Has Already Landed for the Inter-State Fair.

The management of the Inter-State Fair has always had its eyes open for new, novel and up-to-date attractions, but it had neither entered into negotiations with nor had it the slightest intention of booking the cyclone which a couple of weeks ago played tag with one of the handsome big exhibition buildings and chased it off the grounds.

However, Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum has determined that even so unusual a thing as a cyclone shall not deter him from making the Trenton Fair of 1902, September 29 and 30 and October 1, 2, and 3 the biggest and best yet.

The exhibition space will not be lessened a particle by the loss of one building, other provisions having already been made for the largely increased list of agricultural, industrial and domestic exhibits, for which premiums to the amount of $60,000 are offered.

There are twenty-two races scheduled in the speed department, and the entries made thus far insure the very best kind of racing each day of the fair.

Especial attention has been given this year to securing midway and vaudeville features, and the bookings made assure the best performances ever attempted by an outdoor amusement enterprise.

For a headliner, Diavolo, the sensation of the century, who loops the loop on a bicycle, will do his act every day of the fair.

Then Hutch, the human bursting bomb, who has himself discharged from a cannon into mid-air, has also been secured.

One of the newest acts to be put before the sensation-loving American public is that of the daring Danton, who, enveloped in flames, dives from a great height into a pool of water.

Also there might be mentioned among the attractions Sapho, the ape aeronaut; the Wormwoods' wonderful trained dogs and monkeys, the Yoscays, from the Royal theatre, Berlin; Moser, Houten and Moser, from the Royal Hippodrome, London, and lots of others.

Preparing for New Engine.

Workmen have practically completed the foundations for the large new engine to be installed at the Plainfield Electric Light plant on Madison avenue. When it is placed in position the street door on the Madison avenue side will be closed up, thus shutting off the view of the interior from passersby.

To Send Contributions.

The collectors of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church are requested to send their contributions to Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, superintendent of collectors, during this week.

Informal Hop.

There was an informal hop at the Hotel Netherwood last evening enjoyed by a large number of the guests. Music was supplied by the Netherwood orchestra.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

LEFT IN A HURRY.

Warrenville Mystified by Sudden Departure of Farmer I. V. Adams.

Residents of Watchung and Warrenville, including the surrounding agricultural district, are greatly mystified over the hurried departure from their midst of I. V. Adams, a well known farmer of Warrenville.

Not even taking time to gather his growing crops or make arrangements for their disposal, he left Monday for California accompanied by his son, George. His wife remained behind. It has since been learned that Adams had disposed of most of his cattle and sometime ago took a chattel mortgage on his house. It is believed that family troubles are at the bottom of the farmer's actions as he was not in financial straits.

In Honor of President's Birthday.

In honor of the president's twenty-first birthday, which he celebrates today, the Cameron Special Club will give a reception to its friends at the club rooms this evening. In addition to the numbers to be furnished by the versatile members, three artists from New York city have been engaged to provide suitable entertainment for the guests. The evening's joviality will terminate with a dance.

Foul Flags Stolen.

Both of the foul flags have recently been stolen from the Hope diamond. The first one was appropriated just after the last game with Y. M. C. A., and the second one after the game with the Safe Works. The management knows where to locate the missing emblems, and is keeping a sharp eye on the stolen goods till someone makes up his mind to return them.

Just Escaped Adder.

While walking in the rear of his yard on Clinton avenue, yesterday, Walter Conover narrowly escaped stepping on the head of a large flat-headed adder which lay coiled ready to strike him. He seized an axe and despatched the reptile, which measured over four feet in length.

Mission Secretary Expected.

Mrs. E. B. Horton, the secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions of the Dutch Reformed church, will be present at the German Reformed church, Sunday evening, and will be pleased to meet all members of the church after the evening services.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 7.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Ready for His coming.—Luke xii, 31-40.

The coming referred to in the topic is the second coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and in this passage from Luke Christ sets forth the importance and necessity of being ready for His coming. "Blessed are those servants whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching. Verily I say unto you he shall gird himself and make them to sit down to meat and will come forth and serve them. * * * Be ye ready therefore also, for the Son of Man cometh at an hour when ye think not." Nor is this the only place where Christ emphasized the importance of being ready for His coming. It was a familiar topic with Him and was set forth both in precept and in parable.

Readiness for Christ's second coming is necessary and important because Christ is coming again. Skeptics may doubt this doctrine, but Christians cannot. It is a conspicuous and deliberate teaching of the New Testament. "I will come again" was the declaration of Christ. "This same Jesus which is taken up into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven" was the testimony of the angels in Acts i, 11, and in the epistles Paul, James, Peter and John all emphasized the fact of Christ's coming and its important bearing upon the life of the Christian. Christ will come again. Therefore we should be ready for His coming.

But we should not only be ready, but always ready, for the reason that no man knows the day or the hour when Christ will come. The fact is revealed, but the time is unrevealed. Nor is it to be revealed. Christ is to come as a thief in the night. In the parable of the virgins it was midnight, the most unexpected hour, when the cry arose, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" This is to be a characteristic of the second coming of Christ. He is to come suddenly and unexpectedly; hence the necessity of being prepared at all times for His coming.

Whether we are ready for Christ's coming is an important matter. Upon our readiness depends our entrance with Him into the glories and joys of heaven. The wise virgins entered; the foolish virgins, being unprepared, were left out and were kept out. "The door was shut" and never reopened! Are we ready in faith and life for His coming?

BIBLE READINGS.

Matt. xxiv, 44-46; xxv, 1-13; Luke xxi, 9-36; John ix, 4; I Thess. v, 1-6; II Tim. iv, 1-8; II Pet. iii, 1-10; Rev. iii, 1-3; xvi, 15.

Secretary Baer's Resignation.

In resigning his Christian Endeavor office, John Willis Baer, who, beginning Oct. 1, will act as assistant secretary of the Presbyterian board of home missions, said: "I believe today in the underlying principles of Christian Endeavor as sincerely as I have these twelve years, and as a missionary and evangelistic force in the church Christian Endeavor is only beginning to appreciate its power. As a worldwide bond of union to bring denominations and nations into practical co-operation and fellowship it is to continue to be an ever increasing Christian agency. Its many sided and many tongued testimony for Christ is to win to it a greater number of the young in the days of their youth, as they live honest, consistent lives in the home, in the church and in the state. It is not because I love Christian Endeavor less that I ask to be relieved of my trust, but because I believe another can bring to my office new ideas, new methods, new enthusiasm, and carry the Christian Endeavor banner ever onward and upward, and at the same time that I may be able, with God's help, to address myself with fresh enthusiasm and consecration to the work of home missions and help to win America for Christ, and I turn to this new field believing it to be my life work."

One Way of Treating a Rogue.

It does not change a man's nature or spirit to have another think better of him than he is. At the same time it is an appeal to the better side of a man's or a boy's nature when you show confidence in him. No person wants to be found worse than he is counted, and even if one is surprised at your being ready to trust him without any knowledge of the facts he does not want to disappoint your good opinion of him. Many a rough boy has been inspired to a higher standard of conduct by being trusted with a special mission or assigned to the care of others by one who was willing to believe that there was a good side to his nature. On the other hand, a good way of making a rogue is to show a person that you think he is such. Our shown estimates of others have a good deal to do with helping them up or down in life.—Sunday School Times.

Fellowship With God.

Fellowship with God is not to be sought only as a means to an end, for it is itself the end to which all means must contribute, but when it is so sought and cultivated for its own sake he who enjoys fellowship becomes the fountain of untold blessing to the church and to the world.—Rev. A. T. Pierson, D. D.

Trust In God.

It is a wise providence that we cannot see the future. We can see through one pane of glass easily, but through ten placed together we cannot see, yet each is transparent. By living a day at a time we get along well, and all is clear, although we cannot see through all the purposes of God concerning us.—Churchman.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 7, "Factors Necessary to the Evangelization of the World In This Generation"—Text, Isa. xl, 29-31; Acts i, 4-8; Luke x, 2; Prov. xxix, 18. Read Matt. viii.

Since the Master taught the disciples the model prayer the church has been praying, "Thy kingdom come." The expectation is that the earth shall some time be Christianized. Prophecy has declared the fact. The great question that confronts us and presses for solution is, "What factors are necessary to accomplish this work and to do it in this generation?" The argument is that God is abundantly able to do all His work and must be willing to have the end reached speedily. Whatever lack there is must be on the part of the church. What does she lack and how can this lack be supplied?

The Scripture readings clearly indicate:

First.—That the task of the church on earth is to "prepare the way of the Lord." Mountains are to be leveled and valleys raised up. The figure is as effective as familiar. Wrongs are to be righted, abuses corrected, righteousness and equity established. Our poets have sung of the coming golden age of fraternity, peace and prosperity. Our preachers have proclaimed the will of God and duty of man. Our earnest hearted have prayed and toiled, but the end is not yet. What more is needed? The church must more fully realize her mission to the world as an evangelizing agency. The duty to "cry aloud and spare not" does not press home on the ordinary Christian as strongly as it should. The general belief in the duty of the church to carry the gospel to the unsaved needs to become a personal conviction leading to individual consecration. Not many are called to be missionaries, but every one is called to be an efficient agent in this task. Intelligent interest in all the benevolent operations of the church is the duty of every church member and especially of every member of the Epworth league. What do we as a whole propose to do and how are we trying to do it should have careful attention of each one. Our church papers and reports of the connectional societies should have more attention. We need to read more of the facts connected with this our business, even if we in consequence have less time for fiction. Our work is before us. We must understand it. We are to aid in evangelizing the world. Let the idea be clearly defined in thought. Let us catch the vision of a world's redemption from sin and our part in redeeming it.

Second.—We must have power from the Holy Spirit. No other means is efficient. There is no substitute. We must be filled with the spirit of Christ and throw ourselves and all we have into the work. Thought, heart and hand must unite. We must be moved to the soul depths, and we shall then have power to move the world. If we feel, we shall make others feel also.

Third.—There must be work. The voice must cry. We must have talk—not random talk nor mere rhetoric, but the logic of law and love. There must be helpfulness of the hand in relieving distress of body. Men are to be saved now. Disease of body must be cured, disease of mind corrected and disease of soul cleansed. The power is of God, the application is for us to make.

The Christian Life.

The Christian life is worship as well as work and growth. Every true life reveals the glory of God. Life is the highest worship. What a revelation of God a good life is! The years of a man's life are the pages of a book on which is written the name of God. Looking backward always gives us a vision of God's help. His goodness and His grace have combined to make the year a year of blessing. His dealings with us always have a brighter look when we review them. The diamond gives back the light that it receives in all the beauty of its broken rays. Our saved souls are made beautiful by the light received from God, given back in praise and worship to Him. Every year of our lives should speak a message of God to the world. We are His children, and there is something wrong with us if the world does not learn something of Our Father from our lips and lives.—Christian Intelligencer.

True Conditions of a Christian Life.

Delight, enthusiasm, hope, content—these are the true conditions of a Christian life, just as song is the true condition of the bird or color of the rose. But just as the bird is still a bird although it cannot sing and the rose is still a rose although its red grows dull and faded in some dark, close room where it is compelled to grow, so the Christian is a Christian still even although his soul is dark with doubt and he goes staggering on, feeling every moment that he will fall, never daring to look up and hope.—Phillips Brooks.

Way to Success.

The men whom I have seen succeed best in life have always been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took the changes and chances of their mortal life like men facing rough and smooth alike as it came and so found the truth of the old proverb that "good times and bad times and all times pass over."—Charles Kingsley.

Hope.

Beyond the storm tossed clouds of this gray life
A fairer sky filled with the light of promise gleams.
Beyond the darkness and the trouble rife,
Set jewelwise in the glowing depths, hope's bright star beams.

DRESS ACCESSORIES.

Feather Boas Popular—Useful Lace and Net Skirts.

In spite of the cold and damp summer we have been having the feather boa has become quite popular, and the cape ruffle made of the most perishable materials is quite indispensable to the smart toilet. Feather boas with petal tips are among the novelties, and they are very full and becoming.

The net and lace skirts which come ready made are very useful, as with one day and one evening blouse, together with colored accessories, much variation may be obtained.

slips, and a bolero of black crepe de chine incrusted with transparent ecru lace with a tucked skirt of black crape is always smart.

The illustration shows one of the latest models in negligees. It is made of ecru point d'esprit combined with lace and medallions of pale blue silk set into the lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

LONG COATS.

Expensive Summer Wraps of Lace. Sack Coats.

The fashionable summer wrap is quite a costly garment, as the latest models are of pale fawn and biscuit Arabian lace mounted on glace silk and adorned with ruched and plaited frills of chiffon. The sack or paletot shape is universal in these models, and a similar coat in cream white renaissance or luxeuil lace is smart for evening wear.

The long sack coat in putty or fawn tints decorated with ecru lace and velvet straps is useful on cool days or for driving and motor wear. Young people still patronize the short sack bolero which reaches barely to the waist, and this set in broad plaits and stitched half way down is an up to date model in black or mastic tones, with the inevitable touch of lace or velvet.

The dress shown is of gray crepe de chine. The waist is collarless and is trimmed with a yoke and wide bands of lace. The fullness at the sides is shirred on both waist and skirt. The latter has a long train edged with lace applique. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Johnson's Peculiarities.

Dr. Johnson was a eulogist of London, and it was down Fleet street that he took his daily walk, which, owing to the series of tasks he made compulsory on himself, was a really curious performance. First every post required to be touched as he passed it; next it was a point of honor to step exactly in the middle of each paving slab, and, lastly, as he approached his destination a series of graduated strides had to be employed in order to reach the door with one particular foot.

CHAPTER XXI

THE ESCAPE.

For some minutes Job Hendricks felt too weak to rise from the floor, where he had flung himself down over the trap. But soon the sense that his safety was only temporary forced him to think of his position, and drew his attention to the talking that was going on in the room below.

Still lying there, he peered down through a crack into the room, and, as the lamp was lit again, he could see the two men he judged to be department officers doing their best to revive the unconscious Ellison. "I may as well not wait until he is able to explain matters," said Job to himself, "for then he will be able to direct them, and show how I managed to get out of the ambush. I only hope that this time Ellison's agent will remain unconscious for half an hour or more."

He rose unsteadily to his feet, and, after stretching himself, looked about him.

The place in which he found himself, as viewed in the faint light of a small window set high up in the wall, was filled with rubbish. It must have been the hospital for all the old furniture of the establishment, and was crowded with legless chairs, broken barrels, and a pile of musty lumber that filled the air with a strange, earthy smell.

It would not be safe for him to linger there any longer. Below in the street the police probably surrounded the building. He must look for his way to freedom in other directions.

He left the dismal place, and, passing through a door, found himself in a long, bare hall, faintly illumined by a gas light flickering at the further end. As he entered this corridor he saw the shadow of what seemed to be a man reflected on the further wall. Was this possibly some one to guard the escapes? Job turned back, and then saw to the right of him a spiral staircase of iron, leading to the upper regions. Surely in that direction his course lay, for he knew that by this time all the approaches to the building below must be guarded.

The reflection of the figure on the wall at the end of the hall puzzled him, for it was the shadow of a man, and yet it did not move. He was out of sight and maintained a silent attitude. Job was in a position to take everything for granted, and had no desire to go and investigate. He was pleased that he had not been discovered and that this silent sentry was either asleep or had not heard him. Slowly he mounted the stairs, still keeping his eyes on that silhouette that was outlined blackly on the wall.

"Ah, if I only had not been deprived of a weapon," he muttered, as with caution he mounted the stairs, thankful at least that the bogy on the wall had not shown any signs of life.

The stairs led him into another hall, much like that he had just left, and on each side of it ran long partitions, intersected here and there with doors. He tried one of these, only to hear a grumbling voice asking what he wanted. He started away. As he paused to listen, he heard snores resounding from various parts of the place. Evidently most of the lodgers had retired for the night. Others who had "work" would probably not appear until daybreak.

Would it be possible, he thought, to secrete himself in one of the unoccupied rooms, and then, when a chance offered, make his way out of the building? Then he figured that by this time the police would be acquainted with the manner of his escape, and having invested the building on all sides below, would proceed to investigate the inmates one by one, as they had done on many a similar occasion. No, he was not secure in this precious "hotel" at all, and the only safety for him lay in getting away as far as possible from the neighborhood.

Going to the end of the hall where the window stood open, he peered down on the street. It was too high to risk a leap, and, even if such a thing could be accomplished in safety, he would only fall into the hands of the men who were lying in wait for him.

"Ah, if my work were only done, I'd go back with them gladly," he muttered, as he turned away with a sigh. "But there is more that I have to do, and until then the police and I, I hope, will remain strangers."

Near the window through which he had been peering was an open door, and without knowing exactly why, he entered. The room was empty, but along one side ran a shelf, on which were ranged various rusty candlesticks containing pieces of candle, evidently for the use of the "guests."

Job helped himself to the largest piece of the candle he could find and appropriated some of the matches. "May need 'em," he muttered.

"This enterprise may carry me into many dark places."

As he came out of this room, he thought he heard the sound of steps below and the echoes of muffled voices.

"They must have got on my trail," he muttered. "Well, the only thing to do is to try and reach the roof; perhaps it may communicate with some other building. If not—well, I shall be caught."

As he approached the stair again the sound of the voices below became louder, and from the fragments of conversation that drifted up to him, he judged that the police were making an examination of the rooms on the lower floor.

"It will take 'em some time to do that," was the thought that was running through his mind, "and in the meantime who knows but I may be able to show them a clean pair of heels."

He had reached the stairs again, and, cautiously, that he might not awake the sleepers, ascended them slowly.

Whoever it was investigating the lower rooms, he did not take any precaution to muffle his voice, and fragments of what was said satisfied Job that the police were in the building.

He had now reached the upper floor, which, from the silence that prevailed, he judged to be unoccupied. There was a small iron ladder leading to the roof, and, without a moment's hesitation, he climbed this, and, opening the trap, closed it behind himself on the roof.

It was only through this trap that they could possibly find him, so he thought if he could only weight down the trap, they would have no easy task in reaching him. At the same time, if he found no way of escape from the roof, his enemies had only to wait, and he must eventually fall into their hands.

He closed the trap carefully, and seeing a pile of old lumber near at hand, by degrees brought the boards over in his strong arms, and piled them on top. When he found there was nothing else of a weighty nature that he could pile over the door, he wiped his forehead of its perspiration and sat down on the pile of boards to consider his situation.

Looked at in any light, his position seemed to be desperate, for the place was guarded below, and the house was full of policemen. He rose and walked to the further end of the roof, and then saw below him a low building that looked as if it were a factory of some sort. Then he wandered to the front of the building, and, looking down, thought he could see a policeman walking back and forth, and, beyond, others. So he returned to the contemplation of the little factory. If he could only reach that roof, it would not be hard to get to the street. But it lay far below him, and to jump would be impossible. Just then, as he was walking about, feeling very uneasy, he tripped over a rope fastened to one of the chimneys, and which at some time must have been employed in the work of painting the building.

CAN'T KEEP IT UP.

Can't Deceive Plainfield People Very Long—They Learn Quickly.

It is sometimes an easy matter to fool the public, but you can't keep it up very long. They are sure to find you out; and every time a man is fooled another skeptic is made. We are naturally skeptical when, reading a published statement given by some stranger residing in a far-away place, but the circumstances are entirely different when home endorsement is presented. The testimony of local citizens renders deceit impossible. It is so easy for you to investigate. Read this case:

Mrs. Henry Bender, of 118 West Front street, says: "I suffered almost constantly from a dull aching pain across my back and hips. Any hard work always increased it. I was also subject to severe headaches and dizziness when stooping, and though I tried different plasters and home remedies I could not get relief. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles as mine, got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store, used them according to directions and obtained a great deal of relief from them. In my estimation and from my experience Doan's Kidney Pills are a good reliable kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

NO CHOICE IN VERMONT.

The Election of Governor Will Be Thrown Into the Legislature.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 4.—With practically complete returns from the state election of Tuesday, but one town out of the 246 towns and cities having failed to report its vote, the result of the gubernatorial vote is figured as follows:

General John G. McCullough (Rep.), 31,810; Felix W. McGettrick (Dem.), 7,217; Percival Clement (high license), 28,067; Joel O. Sherburne (Pro.), 2,478.

These 245 cities and towns in 1900 gave Stickney (Rep.) 33,411, Senter (Dem.) 17,122 and all others 1,528.

The missing town in 1898 gave Stickney 50 votes, Senter 7 and 1 scattering.

Since a majority overall is necessary to elect there has been no choice of governor and lieutenant governor by the people and the election will be thrown into the general assembly, which meets in October next, and in this body the friends of General McCullough claim that he will have at least a majority of 16 over all the other candidates.

MINE STILL AFIRE.

But Under Control—No Troops Ordered Out In the Virginias.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 4.—In a statement given out by the Norfolk and Western officials it is said that the fire which was reported in the Baby mine of the Pocahontas Colliery company, on the border between Virginia and West Virginia, is still burning, but has to some extent been got under control. No other mines are known to be on fire.

Advices received here do not indicate there has been any further shooting in the strike region. The situation on the Crane Creek branch is unchanged, and the operations, numbering half a dozen, are closed down.

There has been no movement of troops into the Norfolk and Western fields.

California Democrats Nominate.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 4.—The Democratic convention has nominated Franklin K. Lane of San Francisco for governor. A platform was adopted denouncing a protective tariff and the trusts as inimical to the best interests of the people, favoring the complete exclusion from all American territory of Chinese, demanding the enactment of laws, state and federal, prohibiting the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes infringing upon the rights of free speech, free assemblages and freedom to organize. The platform indorses the construction of the isthmian canal and favors legislation looking to its early completion, favors an eight hour day for all government employees and the construction of government vessels in navy yards.

Iowa Democrats Ignore Free Silver.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 4.—A state ticket headed by Richard Burke for secretary of state was named by the Democratic state convention here, the nominations being made by acclamation in every case. The convention adopted a platform which makes no mention of free silver or the national declaration of the party at Kansas City. This is the first time the Iowa Democrats have ignored the silver question since the Dubuque convention of 1896, when free silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 was specifically indorsed. The result was reached at the conclusion of a protracted contest by a vote of 384 to 344.

The World's Grain Supply.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 4.—The Hungarian ministry of agriculture estimated the world's yield of grain this year as follows: Wheat, 2,905,320,000 bushels; rye, 1,579,040,000 bushels; barley, 1,141,680,000 bushels; oats, 3,004,720,000 bushels, and corn, 2,973,480,000 bushels. The wheat crop of the United States is estimated at 646,100,000 bushels, with a surplus of 210,160,000 bushels. The Canadian wheat crop is estimated at 93,720,000 bushels, with a surplus of 29,820,000 bushels.

Firminist General Under Arrest.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 4.—General Chicoye, the Firminist commander who, it is claimed set fire to and almost entirely destroyed the town of Petit Goave previous to evacuating it Aug. 8, after having been attacked by a force of government troops and volunteers, and who subsequently escaped on board a schooner, has been arrested at Bainet, near Jacmel.

Ohio Democrats Follow the Mayor of Cleveland.

A MINISTER HEADS THE TICKET.

State Convention Held at Summer Resort Near Sandusky and Presided Over by the Man Who Dictated Its Action.

CEDAR POINT, O., Sept. 4.—The Democratic state convention here was principally the occasion of booming its presiding officer, Mayor Tom L. Johnson, for the presidency and of introducing into Ohio politics Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, pastor of the Vine Street Congregational church at Cincinnati. The former has been conspicuously before the public as congressman and delegate to national and other conventions for years, but the latter was not so well known until he was made the standard bearer of his party and made a speech of acceptance that was received with unusual enthusiasm. Bigelow is thirty-three years old, independent in his creed and has become prominent as a lecturer as well as a popular preacher.

The ticket nominated was as follows:

Secretary of state, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati; supreme judge, Michael Donnelly, Napoleon; food and dairy commissioner, Philip H. Bruck, Columbus; member of state board of public works, Joseph J. Pater, Hamilton.

The convention was held with the most pleasant surroundings, with a great bathing beach on one side of the pavilion and garden attractions on the other side.

The proceedings were in accord with "the rounds of pleasure." The session lasted less than three hours and had only one ballot, most of the time being devoted to speeches, and that of Rev. Mr. Bigelow was conceded to be the feature of the occasion. In presenting the names of candidates and in seconding the same and in accepting nominations over a score of orators were heard, but none of them commanded more attention, not excepting the keynote speech of Chairman Johnson, than the young minister.

It was a Johnson convention throughout. Men passed through the audience and the commodious grounds of the summer resort with valises full of buttons bearing the picture of the chairman of the convention and the inscription "Tom L. Johnson in 1904." There were bushels of those prospective souvenirs given away.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Through a misunderstanding the East Millstone team did not play the New Market team last Monday. It is not known at present when the game will be played.

The announcement made in yesterday's Daily Press that the Plainfield team has been picked to go up against the Westfield's spread joy among the local fans. The players have so far met with the approval of everyone and there is no doubt but what the team constituted will be the strongest in the city. Practice games will commence within a very short time.

Two more games will in all probability see the close of the present baseball season of the Hope team. Manager Cose now has but one game in prospect, with either the St. Mary or Y. M. C. A. nines in October and he is negotiating with a Red Bank team for a game on the twenty-seventh of the present month. This is all he cares about making as the players will be occupied otherwise during the remainder of the time.

Manager Muir is complainly loudly of the treatment accorded him at High Bridge, Monday. Not only was he forced to have his men play in a marahy hay field but he declares the umpire was evidently a High Bridge backer and didn't care much for the merits or demerits of the game, so long as his side won. Manager Cose, of the Hopes, has a game with the High Bridge team, but he contemplates cancelling it on learning of the method it has adopted to win out.

GOLF.

E. G. Kent, secretary of the East Jersey Golf Association has given out the standing of the teams in the first half of the championship series of matches and the schedule for the remainder of the season, which is the third annual race for the trophy. Later in the fall the individual championship, which has twice been won by Howard Griffen, of East Orange, will be held on a links and dates still to be announced.

The Town and Country Club, of Elizabeth, under the clever captaincy of R. A. Waterbury, is in the lead for the team trophy, but the race is still an open one, for two of the other teams are close up.

The standing of the teams follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P C.
Elizabeth Town and Country Club	5	1	.833
Forest Hill Field Club	4	2	.666
Morristown Field Club	3	2	.600
East Orange Golf Club	3	3	.500
Colonia Country Club	2	5	.286
South Orange Field Club	1	5	.166

The schedule for the rest of the season will be in this order:

Sept. 6—Colonia at Morristown Field.

Sept. 20—Elizabeth at Forest Hill; East Orange at Colonia.

Sept. 27—East Orange at South Orange; Morristown at Elizabeth.

Oct. 4—Forest Hill at Morristown.

Oct. 11—Forest Hill at South Orange.

LIFE AT THE NETHERWOOD STILL CONTINUES VERY PLEASANT.

Many New Guests Registered Despite the Fact That the End Is Approaching.

Next Saturday evening will witness at the Hotel Netherwood one of the events of the season. A subscription cotillion, gotten up by Mr. and Mrs. L. deL. Camman, of New York, will be given as a benefit for the orchestra. Every preparation is being made to make the affair a gigantic success. Any amount subscribed over $100 will be equally divided among the bell boys at the hotel.

Other attractions on the programme for the present week are a progressive euchre, scheduled for Friday evening, for which some unique prizes will be offered, and on Thursday evening Miss Adele VonOhl assisted by talent of a high class order is expected to give a superior vaudeville entertainment.

The week just past has witnessed several new arrivals at the hotel. A few have departed for their homes for the season, but this number has been more than counterbalanced by the new-comers. Among those who have recently registered are the following: W. E. Hammell, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Snow, Jr., and chauffeur, New York; C. M. Brown, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. L. Arnstein, New York; Mr. and Mme. E. G. Quin, New York; Mrs. E. M. House, Miss Emline House, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Cook, Brooklyn; L. Rodney Berg, New York; General James Jourdan, U. S. Floods and Forests.

Prof. Gaunett says most people believe, erroneously, that floods in our rivers are more frequent than formerly because of the cutting down of forests in their drainage basins. Probably the clearing of land by cutting away forests and undergrowth does affect streams, increasing their flood height and diminishing the flow at low stages. In other words, water probably runs off or evaporates more rapidly from bare ground than from ground covered with forests. But where the forests are cut away the ground is seldom left bare; it is cultivated or quickly becomes covered with bushes which hold the water quite as effectively as forests. The floods in our rivers are no greater or more frequent now than in the past.—Scientific American.

Why She Liked Shop.

They had been talking at the rate of fully 18 to the dozen, these two fair young damsels, and the subject of their conversation was, of course, the wise and witty sayings, the charms of manner and other admirable traits of character possessed by their respective sweethearts.

"Don't you like to have anybody talk shop when they come to see you?" gurgled Mary.

"Indeed, I do. Who's been talking shop to you?"

"Oh, Charlie, of course! He's a tram conductor, you know, and nearly every time he comes to see me he goes on with his shop talk."

"What does he say?"

"Sit closer, please!"—London Answers.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. HOW MARTONE GOT THE BETTER OF NEIGHBORS

Couldn't Move His House, So He Purchased a New Site for His Home.

TO GET AN INJUNCTION.

WHEN HE TALKED OF MOVING HIS HOUSE THROUGH STREET.

It Was Necessary to Cut Some of the Trees to Permit House to be Moved—Now He's Going to Build on Hillside Avenue.

Nicholas Martone, known to fame as the propsietor of a peanut roaster and fruit stand, on Somerset street, is going to build a new house. Before Nicholas submitted his intentions to the architect, he had encountered many obstacles in his endeavor to provide a suitable mansion for himself in a suitable section of the city.

But Nicholas is possessed of an inventive mind. If the archives of heraldry were searched it would be found that the family of Martone is a branch of the Marconis, the most famous member of which is the inventor of wireless telegraphy. At least there is a tradition to that effect among Nicholas' friends who know him as a man of thrifty habits, a generous soul, with a vast deal of worldly wisdom and a respectable portion of worldly wealth. At Christmas his neighbors call him Saint Nicholas.

Recently Nicholas made application to Building Inspector Doane for permission to move a house, a modest affair on Watchung avenue, to more congenial surroundings on Lake street. The inspector was willing, but residents along the way refused to have their trees despoiled of branches to accommodate Nicholas. An injunction was threatened. Nicholas wanted naught of the devious ways of the law. Before winter began to howl he must have a roof above his head. And there was a broad suspicion in Nicholas' mind that the injunction was aimed at himself to a far greater extent than at his house.

So after consulting his bank account this wily son of the sunny south secured an agent and through him quietly purchased a vacant lot on Hillside avenue. On that lot Nicholas will erect his castle, and if you question him he will tell you that he has the finest piece of land anywhere in the world outside of Naples.

Nichoals will erect a home to outrival the baropial halls of his ancestors. Mingled with the singing of the katydids, the peanut roaster keeps chirping to the wind, while Martone, more properly Marconi, dreams and winks in the twilight.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY.

Delightful Party Given to A. D. Thompson, Jr., by His Friends.

A birthday party was tendered to Aaron D. Thompson, Jr., at his home, last evening, by the Sunday-school classes from the Park Avenue Baptist church taught by Miss Adelia Runyon and Miss Florence Hawkins. The classes were assisted by members of the family and a very enjoyable time was spent in social amusements and music, after which refreshments were served. The affair was a surprise to Mr. Thompson, but he soon regained his composure and joined heartily in the festivities. At a late hour when the guests departed all wished Mr. Thompson many happy returns of the day.

Stationed in the South.

Rufus I. Case, formerly of Plainfield, but until recently of Phoenixville, Pa., is visiting his mother, Mrs. R. Case, of Central avenue. He is accompanied by his wife. Mr. Case has just received the appointment of expert electrician to the Department of the South of the Army and tomorrow he and his wife will sail on the Comanche for Charleston, S. C., where Mr. Case will be stationed at Fort Getty. He has had a wide experience in electrical work, having been superintendent of the electric plant at Phoenixville for some time past.

To Visit Elizabeth Lodges.

At the regular meeting of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., to be held this evening, arrangements will be completed for a fraternal visit to Elizabeth lodges within the near future. Two weeks from this evening Perseverance will be visited by Volunteer Lodge of Elizabeth.

GIVEN A SOLDIERS BURIAL

FUNERAL SERVICES OF J. H. HAROLD WERE HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., Was in Charge of the Services —Those at the Grave.

The funeral services of James H. Harold were held yesterday afternoon from the late home on East Fifth street and, in accordance with the wish of the family, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was in charge, giving the deceased comrade a soldier's burial.

Rev. L. E. Livermore, chaplain of the Post, officiated and at the home preached a strong and impressive discourse. He talked especially to the comrades present, but he took occasion to refer to the exemplary life of the departed comrade, giving a sketch of his life in the Civil War, when he enlisted and of his service. He spoke of Mr. Harold's devotion to his country and his love for the cause of liberty. At the close of the discourse, he offered an earnest prayer.

There were a profusion of floral tributes from relatives and friends, including a handsome pillow from Post No. 73, G. A. R., bearing the inscription "Our Comrade."

At the grave, in the North Plainfield cemetery, where the interment took place, Commander J. F. Berg and Comrades W. C. Smith, Francis Whitely, W. W. Coriell and Rev. L. E. Livermore took part in the services according to the Grand Army ritual. There was the usual salute over the grave and the sounding of "taps" on the bugle by Commander Berg. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps escorted the Post and rendered appropriate music in the march to and from the home and cemetery.

Those who acted as pall-beaarers were Comrades William Drake, Augustus Runyon, W. C. Smith, John Naylor, Isaac Stites and William Perrine, while the comrades composing the firing squad were Preston B. Goodfellow, Edward Willis, John Vail, John Wagoner, James Beglin and Louis Willett. The squad was in charge of Albert Perry.

DELAYED HIS LUNCH.

Justice Huff Waited Long Enough to Marry a Local Couple Who Wandered in at Noon.

Yesterday at high noon in the office of Justice Huff, Joseph Krawoker and Miss Rosa Hirsch, both of 432 Watchung avenue, were married. The Justice was about to go to dinner, when the couple accompanied by Mandel Davison, also of Watchung avenue, appeared. The errand was quickly explained and Justice Huff performed the ceremony which made the couple one. Mr. Davison was present as a witness, but it was thought best to have two witnesses and Freeholder William A. Westphal consented to act.

The groom and his wife are Russians by birth. He is twenty-six years old and she is twenty-four. He is a tailor by trade and the two have known each other for some time past. Without any extra preparation the couple decided to get married and the noon hour was chosen as the most desirable time. Mr. and Mrs. Krawoker will reside on Watchung avenue.

FOR THE GUESTS.

A Vaudeville Performance at The Hotel Netherwood Last Evening.

Miss Adele VonOhl, accompanied by two of her assistants, gave one of her finished and artistic vaudeville entertainments at the Hotel Netherwood, last evening. Miss VonOhl possesses dramatic talent of a high order and her work, last evening, drew forth many praiseworthy remarks from the audience. The programme was interspersed with music by the orchestra.

Plainfielders There.

The annual reunion of the Twenty-eighth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, was held yesterday at Point Pleasant. Those present from Plainfield were Comrades Israel Compton and N. C. Pennington.

Reunion of Thirtieth New Jersey.

The annual reunion of the Thirtieth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, will be held in Reform Hall Wednesday, October 15. Captain J. Frank Hubbard was a captain in this regiment.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Mrs. Lizzie Cox, of this city, to Rudolph Fisher, of Cranford. No date has been set for the wedding.

In Justice Nash's Court.

The contract case of Hill Brothers, of New York, against George Cook, was adjourned in Justice Huff's court, yesterday, to September 18.

LITTLE BUSINESS ON EVE OF NEW YEAR

A Short Session of the City Board of Education Was Held Last Evening.

THE REPORTS RECEIVED.

THE CROWDING OF IRVING SCHOOL HAS BEEN TEMPORARILY RELIEVED.

Several Appointments as Janitors and Assistants—First Meeting of the Board Since the Regular July Meeting.

A lapse of two months failed to find anything of great importance to be considered at last evening's meeting of the City Board of Education. It was the first held since July 1 but a half hour sufficed to transact all business.

The custodian of school moneys submitted his report which showed the receipts for the month of July to have been $3,942.03 and the disbursements $3,197.62, leaving a balance of $744.41; for the month of August the receipts were $7,588.34 and the disbursements $1,391.68, leaving a balance of $6,941.07. From the report of Tax Collector Smith it was shown he had received a total of $1,492.50 for the two months.

The appointment of an assistant janitor for the Bryant school was defrered for one month. William Hillman was appointed as assistant janitor of the Irving school and also to be in charge of the school room in the Monroe Avenue church, which will be occupied for the first this fall. In relation to the room in the church, it was stated that it had been let to the oard by the trustees for one year and that the lease would be signed today. Superintendent Maxson remarked that it would relieve the congested condition of the Irving school for the present but that in all probability something further would have to be done in the matter at the close of the next school year.

Beyond the payment of bills there was no other business brought forward and the board adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

PLAYING WAR.

Plainfield Boys With Signal Corps Now Stationed at Fort Michie, Gill Island.

Homer Smith who, together with Walter Long and Godwin Beard, is with the New Jersey Signal Corps now stationed at Fort Michie, Gill Island, has written an interesting letter home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith, who live in Prospect avenue.

Mr. Smith says he is enjoying himself very much. At the point where the New Jersey boys are stationed there is a strong fort with two batteries, one of ten-inch and the other of twelve-inch guns. The boys occupy tents about fifty yards from the guns, which are of the disappearing type, and the tents are fastened with extra stakes to keep them up when the guns are discharged, the concussion being so great.

These guns, Mr. Smith says, use 490 pounds of powder and shoot a projectile, weighing 1,000 pounds, a distance of sixteen miles. The land occupied is nineteen acres in extent. There is no vegetation, wire grass being the only thing to grow. Mr. Smith says that there is plenty to eat and everything is well cooked.

Tumbled Out of Carriage.

Jerry Manning, of Dunellen avenue, is confined to his home, the result of an accident which befell him last Saturday. While out driving his horse shied turning the corner of Albert street, throwing him and Mrs. Manning to the ground. Mr. Manning's head struck the curbstone inflicting several severe wounds.

Invitations to Wedding.

Fred S. Cutter, of 36 Sandford avenue, has issued invitations to the marriage of his sister, Miss Emma Cutter, to Frank Pearson, which will take place Saturday evening, September 20, at 7 o'clock, at the home of Mr. Cutter.

To Resume Meetings.

The Exempt Firemen's Association will resume its meetings in October and on the first night will have a collation. A committee which has the arrangements in charge is now working.

Lectured by Court.

Joseph Block, up in the borough police court last evening, on a charge of drunkeness and disorderly conduct was lectured by the court and was allowed to go.

BOROUGH TAX TAKES A JUMP

Unprecedented Increase of 16 Points Makes Borough Rate Higher Than City.

THE RATE IS NOW $2.58.

While Borough's Share Has Been Reduced, Borough School Tax Has Been Largely Increased—Assessor French Has Just Completed Figuring Out Rate.

Sixteen points higher than last year is the borough tax rate, just announced by Assessor Elston M. French. The increase is something unprecedented. Coal, beef, and other sky-high commodities must make room in the hall of fame for the new rival that has appeared to drain the popular purse.

The precise rate is 2.58 against 2.42 last year. The almost inconceivable fact about the situation is that this rate is eight points higher than the rate in the city. In Plainfield the rate is but 2.50.

The advance is due to the fact that the wealth of the borough is not increasing and while there are a number of new houses, their value is offset by the increased amount sworn off for indebtedness this year. But a greater reason is the additional amount demanded for school purposes, which is much larger than last year.

It is a matter of regret to the assessor that he is obliged to fix the rate so high, but the different governing bodies have required him to raise a certain amount of money and it cannot be done at a lower rate than 2.58.

The following is a comparative statement of the tax rates for last year and this:

	1901	1902
Special School	.78	.97
State School	.17	.17
County	.61	.59
Borough	.84	.82
Board of Health	.02	.03
Total	$2.42	$2.58

FATHER AND SON.

Up Again in the Police Court This Morning on the Old Charge of Drunkenness.

At the same time his son George, Jr., was being arraigned in the borough police court, George Gardner and a younger son, David, aged fourteen, were haled before Acting Mayor Coriell, in the city court, this morning.

Both father and younger son were arrested on West Front street by Sergeant Frederickson, yesterday afternoon for drunkenness. The former is an old offender and with the older son, George, who is nineteen, were released from the county jail but a short time ago after serving a two months' term.

He was unable to pay a fine of $10 imposed by the acting city judge and he will return to Elizabeth for ten days. The boy was given some wholesome advice and was released with a suspended sentence.

ONCE PASTOR HERE.

Rev. Dr. C. B. Mitchell Has Been Spending Short Time Here.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Mitchell, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Cleveland, O., have been spending a short time in this city on their way home from the White Mountains, where they have been spending a portion of the summer. They spent Wednesday night at the home of Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, and yesterday took lunch at the home of Mrs. P. M. French on Somerset street. Last evening they started for home.

Dr. Mitchell is the pastor of one of the largest churches in the west and there is now in course of construction a handsome and costly stone edifice to be used by the congregation when completed.

Farewell Dinner.

The Pad and Pencil Club, composed of local newspapermen, is making arrangements for a dinner to be given Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, in honor of George E. Firstbrook and John J. McGowan, who retire from the local journalistic field. It will be given at a place yet to be designated.

Rescue Mission.

At the Rescue Mission meeting last evening there was a programme of music and recitations. Miss Try Mattox recited several pieces, as did also John Manley. John Goodwin made a short address.

A DOMESTIC DEPARTED; CLOTHING WENT TOO

Now a Warrant is Out for Hattie Firman on the Charge of Larceny.

NOW MRS. GRENER, HER FORMER EMPLOYER, MISSES MANY GOWNS.

Missing Articles Are Valued at Nearly $100 in All—The Domestic Only Went to Work There on Wednesday.

Leon Grener, of 323 West Front street, called at Justice Huff's office last evening and had a warrant issued for the arrest of a colored domestic, named Hattie Firman. The woman was employed on Wednesday and yesterday between 3 and 4 o'clock she disappeared while Mrs. Grener was away from the house for a short time.

When Mrs. Grener returned she discovered that a broad cloth skirt, valued at $20, a lace boa, valued at $11, a black silk waist with imported trimmings, valued at $45, and white silk poi de soie waist, valued at $7, had been taken, and she had every reason to suspect the colored servant. She at once reported the matter to her husband and as soon as he could get away he sought Justice Huff. The warrant was placed in the hands of the police.

Mr. Grener, in telling of the affair to a representative for The Daily Press, said that he had only lived in Plainfield three weeks and during that time had been trying to get a servant girl. Last Monday Hattie Firman called at the house while his wife was in New York. She returned the next morning, when she was engaged. The woman promised to come to work Wednesday morning, which she did. Mr. Grener says that he did not altogether like her appearance but she said that she and her sister were the only support of a widowed mother, and this impressed him very much. The servant girl said that her home was near Dunellen.

As a result of the robbery, Mrs. Grener is obliged to postpone an intended visit to New York, where she was to attend a reception on Sunday.

TAKEN HOME ON DOOR.

Novel Measures Adopted to Remove a Sick Horse From the Street to the Barn.

Novel measures were adopted by William Goff, of South Second street, to get a sick horse from Muhlenberg place to his barn, last evening.

The animal fell beneath a tree near Muhlenberg Hospital and it was impossible to raise it until some future Edison thought of throwing a block and tackle over a limb and hoisting the stricken equine. Three score youngsters furnished the lifting power and as the animal was held in the air, a barn door was shoved beneath it. It was then dragged off and to its stall. Patrolman Higgins who was attracted to the scene by the large crowd, telephoned for an S. P. C. A. man but the latter decided that the animal was only ill and would recover.

CAMERON CLUB.

Tenders a Reception in Honor of President Firstbrook's Birthday.

In honor of President B. C. Firstbrook's twenty-first birthday, the cameron Social Club tendered a reception to twenty-five friends at the club rooms, last evening. An entertainment was given in the early part of the evening made up of numbers furnished by Mack and Mack, Celtic wits; Miss Johanna Haley, recitations; Miss Jennie Apgar, vocal selections; James Herne Haggerty, songs and the city's favorites, Lusardi and Bowers, in a new acrobatic buck dancing act. A dance followed, music for which was furnished by James Costello. The affair terminated at midnight with an elaborate supper.

Local Rentals.

Through the Mulford real estate agency R. T. Johnson has leased 932 West Front street, and will take possession this fall, and H. M. Campbell, of New York, has leased W. F. Adams's new house on Union street near Arlington avenue, to take possession October 1.

The King Medal.

It was Charles Jensen who secured the King medal at the Labor Day shoot of the Independent Gun Club. He was crowned by Henry Haurand who won the honor by shooting away the head of the eagle target.

BATHED HIM WITH BEER

MAGGIE BELLE JACKSON'S WET RECEPTION FOR MAN WHO WANTED DRINK.

George Gardner, With Too Much Drink Aboard, Passed Through Exciting Adventure.

George Gardner ran amuck in the borough yesterday afternoon. While his father and brother were in durance vile on this side of the brook for their worshipping Bacchus too intensely his own devotion to the alcholic idea led him into difficulty where Chief Campbell has become a terror to all offenders.

George was drunk. Maggie Belle Jackson was peacefully crossing the roadway with a foaming can of beer in her hand when George scented the beverage. He was thirsty and tried to enter into negotiations with Margaret. After a preliminary bout Margaret swung around the beer can and landed on George's head, can, beer and all, making him look like a sea nymph with a jag on.

Bystanders intervened, Chief Campbell scurried to the scene, and before George realized it, he was behind iron bars. Last evening, handed over to the tender mercies of Recorder Doud, he was given sixty days in the county jail.

VETERANS' REUNIONS.

Four Old New Jersey Volunteer Regiments Will Hold Their Camp Fires—One Held Yesterday.

The Seventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, will hold its reunion in Morrostown, Friday, September 19, the anniversary of the date of the departure of the regiment for the seat of war in 1861.

The twenty-third annual reunion of the Fifteenth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, will be held in Sussex (formerly Deckertown) county, on September 18 and 19. On the latter date a picnic will be held on the property of Peter S. Gunderman, the old color bearer of the regiment, at Lake Grinnell.

The sixteenth annual reunion of the Twenty-eighth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers' Association, will be held at Arnold Hall, Point Pleasant, Thursday, September 4. The people are preparing to give the veterans a patriotic reception and entertainment.

The Thirteenth New Jersey Veteran Association will hold its annual reunion in Newark, September 24. The association will be the guest of its president, Governor Murphy.

The twenty-ninth annual reunion of the Twelfth Regiment Association, New Jersey Volunteers was held at Swedesboro yesterday.

WILL ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

Plans for Entertainment at Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

Tomorrow afternoon the children of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will entertain their friends with speaking and singing and other pleasing features. Miss Sara Curry, the matron, heartily invites all to enjoy the occasion. This will be the last opportunity this summer to meet these interesting children as they will return to New York early next week.

The closing religious service will be held next Sunday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock and there will be several features to make the meeting especially helpful to all.

Want to Hear Him Again.

The Knights of the Golden Eagle will attend the men's meeting to be addressed by Rev. F. R. Taylor, at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Martin A. Korff will render violin solos and will be accompanied by Dr. J. H. Buchanan. The Knights heard Mr. Taylor when he addressed the men's meeting last fall and liked him well enough to want to hear him again.

May Repair One.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met yesterday and transacted routine business. A committee was appointed with power to repair the Crane street bridge in Elizabeth at a cost not to exceed $500. Elizabeth wanted $25,000 to rebuild two new bidges on Crane and Prince streets, but the freeholders denied the request.

St. Marys Will Play.

The St. Mary's team and the Bronx nine from the Metropolis, will cross bats on the former's grounds, tomorrow afternoon. The Bronx aggregation defeated the St. Mary team two out of three last year and the struggle tomorrow promises to be exciting. The game will commence at 3:30.

—In anticipation of a busy canning week, Neuman Brothers will receive a shipment tomorrow of 250 baskets of extra fancy peaches. They'll go at 50, 60, 65, 75, 85 cents and upwards.

ARTHUR VAN NEST IS NOW ONLY ELEVEN YEARS OLD.

Claimed That Patrolman McCarthy Had Pinched His Arm to Make Him Confess, But the Marks Had Disappeared at Once.

The case of the State against Arthur VanNest on a charge of theft was called yesterday afternoon before Justice Huff in the city court. This was an adjourned hearing, it having been put off a few days ago at the request of the defendant's counsel, Francis J. Blatz, who was not quite ready at the time to proceed. After the hearing, Justice Huff decided that there was a sufficient amount of evidence to hold the boy for the Grand Jury and he was placed in the custody of Mrs. William, Union county's probation officer. Assemblyman William Newcorn appeared for the State.

It will be remembered that $54.65, together with some jewelry, was taken from the home of James D. Anderson, on West Fourth street, recently. Arthur VanNest, eleven years old, was suspected of committing the theft and he was soon afterward arrested and charged with taking the money and jewelry.

As brought out at the hearing yesterday, he told several different stories, a most sensational one being that Patrolman McCarty had pinched his arm until it was black and blue in an effort to get him to admit that he was guilty. The lad's sister, Miss Belle VanNest, was called to the stand and she corroborated her brother's statement by saying that he had told her the same story.

This statement seemed to lack truth for the boy said that the mark on the arm disappeared two days later. It is rather unusual for the defense to call any witnesses at a preliminary hearing, but in this case Justice Huff allowed counsel to do it.

In building up a case against the VanNest boy, Mrs. James D. Anderson, who was at home when the money disappeared, was called by the counsel for the State. She testified as to the robbery and stated that at 6 o'clock in the evening when the robbery was committed, the $54.65 was up stairs in her room and she saw it. A boarder at the house came in soon afterward and found the front door open. He closed the door. At 7:45 o'clock, Mrs. Anderson stated, she found the front door open and again closed it. At 10 o'clock she went to her room and then discovered that the money and jewelry were gone.

The woman still further testified that the VanNest boy called at her home once a week for the family wash and it was on this day that he had called. She also said that he was again at the house that evening, claiming that he had called to leave his wagon there.

The next morning VanNest met two boy friends, Charles Green and George Longbottom, and, it is said, he told the boys about going to the Anderson home and taking money and jewelry. This he afterward denied to the police, and, it is said, that he also admitted to the police that he took the money.

It was at this time, he said, that Patrolman McCarty pinched his arm to make him change his mind. In cross examination the boy admitted being on Mr. Anderson's property at 7 o'clock in the evening of the robbery.

At this stage of the hearing Mr. Blatz called the VanNest boy's sister and she testified as to what had been told her by the brother. This concluded the hearing and Justice Huff decided to hold the boy for the Grand Jury. Mr. Anderson was present at the hearing, but as he was not home at the time of the robbery he was not called to the witness stand.

Funeral of Mrs. VanFleet.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Herbert VanFleet were held at the residence of her brother-in-law, Harry VanFleet, on Warren street, yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. E. L. Earp was the officiating clergyman. There was a large attendance of friends of the family. Subsequently services were conducted in Mt. Horeb chapel by Rev. George Bowers at 3 o'clock. Interment was in the faimly plot at Mt. Horeb cemetery.

THEATRICAL.

One of the general themes of conversation on Broadway, New York, these days is the instantaneous and emphatic success of Brandon Tynan and his beautiful Irish play, "Robert Emmet, the Days of 1803," at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. That a very clever, though little known young actor should leap into instantaneous fame through the vehicle of a new play of his own writing, is as rare a case as it is surprising. This Brandon Tynan has done. Not only has he earned a new reputation as a sympathetic, reposeful actor, but also laurels as a playwright, for his Irish drama has had the seal of approval set upon it by the Metropolitan press and its popularity demonstrated by crowded houses since the opening night.

The hot weather has had no appreciable effect on the drawing powers of the piece, for the entire theatre has been sold out nightly since the first performance and the large advance sale presages the same state of affairs for some time to come. As a play, Brandon Tynan's "Robert Emmet, the Days of 1803," is far and away the best Irish drama that has been produced since the Boucicault days and compares favorably with the best dramatic successes of the day. In point of cast and magnificence of staging, it puts most of the big Broadway productions of romantic drama deep in the shade. The present large business done by the production indicates that "Robert Emmet, the Days of 1803," will be a long time at the Fourteenth Street Theatre.

Comedy, of the clean wholesome kind, and a long list of vaudeville acts, each unquestionably the best of its class, are the components of "The Cool Continuous" as it is served at Mr. Keith's Union Square Theatre in New York City. Mr. Keith has always stood as the most conspicuous exponent of refinement in vaudeville; and his original idea of presenting a high class continuous entertainment for a moderate price has been developed to such a degree that no one familiar with what was called vaudeville twenty years ago would recognize its namesake today.

Not only have Mr. Keith's efforts been successful in elevating the moral tone of the vaudeville stage, but, as a natural consequence, a very much better and more intelligent class of people have become patrons of the vaudeville houses. Formerly no woman would think of attending a vaudeville performance, while now, in such theatres as Keith's you will find at least one half of the audience composed of women and children, and these evidently of what we call the better class.

Heading the bill at this house for next week is Wormwood's Monkey Circus, with its array of frolicsome monkeys, cats and dogs, all of which have been so highly trained that the intelligence they display is startling. James Thornton, the celebrated monologuist, has a new and original monologue and with it gets second place on the bill. Bellman and Moore, in a farcial sketch "The Music Lesson;" DeCoursey Brothers, European Acrobats; Smith, Doty and Coe, the musical comedians; Clifford & Hall in a comedy and dancing sketch; Provo, the juggler; and a score of other strong acts, including half a dozen European novelties, are all on the bill at the Union Square.

LITERARY.

The first of a series of remarkable articles entitled "The Woman That Toils" begins in the September number of Everybody's Magazine, published by John Wanamaker. Two New York women, Miss Marie VanVorst (daughter of the late Chancellor VanVorst) and her sister-in-law, Mrs John VanVorst, well-known in the social and literary world, determined to find out for themselves how their less fortunate sisters lived. They went without any money and obtained employment in different factories in Lynn, Pittsburg, Chicago and Columbia. The story of their experience is one of intense human interest and while told soberly and without any trace of sensationalism, makes an impressive contribution to the knowledge of social conditions. This narrative makes the most interesting feature any magazine has presented for a long time.

The first chapter deals with life in the great Pittsburg pickle factories where Miss VanVorst was engaged. J. Alden Peirson has illustrated the article with numerous studies of the factory types found in Pittsburg.

COAL STRIKE ENDED

West Virginia Miners Vote to Resume Work.

MITCHELL SAID TO HAVE ADVISED.

Operators Have Agreed to Take Back All the Old Workmen, and Operations Will Be Begun on Monday Next.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 5.—It is now believed that the coal strike in West Virginia is practically at an end. At a mass meeting of miners from all the coalfields along the Norfolk and Western railroad here it was almost unanimously agreed to end the strike provided the operators will take back the old miners, and the operators have signified their intention of doing this. The miners have agreed to return to work next Monday morning.

It is reported here that President Mitchell advised the strikers to return to work, as he realized that winter is near at hand and the miners in this field could not hold out much longer, as almost every one is dependent upon the union for food and clothing. It is thought the strikers in the New River and Kanawha fields will soon follow the action of the strikers on the Norfolk and Western. The Pocahontas mine continues to burn, but the operators think they will soon have it under control. No violence has been reported from any quarter of the Norfolk and Western coalfield.

General Manager Johnson of the Norfolk and Western was asked what the basis of settlement of the strike was, and he replied that there was no agreement at all, the mine workers simply declaring the strike off and ordering the men to return to work next Monday. He said there had been no conference with the mine operators or others interested in the strike.

Strike Cases Ignored.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 5.—The grand jury has ignored the cases against F. W. Kinney, Charles Reynolds and William Watkins. The three men were employed as special officers at the Warnke colliery, Duryea, and during a riot which occurred there two weeks ago they were arrested and committed to jail in default of bail on the charge of manslaughter and inciting to riot. Subsequently they were released on bail after a habeas corpus hearing. The action of the grand jury establishes a precedent in that men employed to protect life and property about the coal mines and who may in the discharge of their duty shoot and kill cannot be held for the crime of murder or manslaughter.

Report Confirmed.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 5.—President Mitchell confirms the dispatch stating that the strike of miners in the Pocahontas region had been declared off. He said the strikers were granted some concessions, but he could not say at present just what they are.

Coal Coming From Wales.

SWANSEA, Wales, Sept. 5.—The steamships Glenroe and Devonshire are each loading 4,000 tons of anthracite coal for New York. These are the first cargoes to be shipped from Great Britain to New York.

Neely In New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—C. F. W. Neely, who, with E. G. Rathbone, was the principal figure in the notorious Cuban postal frauds, is in this city. Neely was released from prison on June 10 last, when the general amnesty proclamation went into effect. He has not visited this country since he went to Cuba to take a position under Rathbone. "Whether or not I ever return to Cuba," he said, "will depend on the action taken in congress this winter. My future plans are unsettled."

Ships In Collision.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—During a dense fog outside the heads the steamer Telus, bound for Ladysmith, B. C., ran into the schooner O. N. Kellogg, from Eureka for this port, cutting a big hole in the bow of the schooner from her taffrail down to a foot below the water line. The steamer remained by the schooner for some time, giving her a tow until the captain of the schooner cast off the line and continued the voyage toward this city.

Germany Gets Locomotive Orders.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Italy, India, Denmark and Siam have placed orders to the amount of nearly $1,500,000 for locomotives in Germany, according to a report made public at the state department from United States Consul Langer at Solingen, dated Aug. 2. In making this announcement the consul points out that the German export of locomotives and traction engines has increased from $2,689,400 in 1890 to $5,259,000 in 1901.

Cresceus Failed.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 5.—The champion trotter Cresceus failed in an attempt to lower his record of 2:02¼ yesterday, trotting the mile in 2:04 flat. The weather was chilly, and a strong wind from the northwest seriously interfered with his speed in the second and third quarters. The horse reached the half in 1:00¾, but the effort against the breeze was too much for him, and he lost at least two seconds in the third quarter.

Aeronaut Fell Two Hundred Feet.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Professor N. E. Donnelly of Boston, the balloonist, lost his hold on the trapeze after he had cut loose the parachute here and fell a distance of 200 feet into Long Island Sound. He was taken from the water in an unconscious condition, and it is feared he is internally injured.

THE HORROR GROWS

Reports From Martinique Are Appalling.

LATEST ERUPTION KILLED 2,000.

It Occurred Wednesday Night and Was Extremely Violent—Dense Clouds of Dust Fell Miles Away—The People Fleeing.

CASTRIES, St. Lucia, Sept. 5.—The Royal Mail steamer Yaro, which has just arrived here from the island of Martinique, brings the report that a violent volcanic eruption occurred there Wednesday night and that about 2,000 persons are said to have perished. Large numbers of people are leaving the island.

The British steamer Savan, Captain Hunter, arrived here from the island of Trinidad. She was covered with dust and reports that she ran into a dense cloud of dust while twenty miles south of St. Vincent.

Over Fifteen Hundred Killed.

ROSEAU, Dominica, Sept. 5.—A copy of L'Opinion of Fort de France, Martinique, dated Sept. 3, says that over 1,500 persons were killed during the volcanic eruption of Mont Pelee of last Saturday, and that a still greater number of persons has been brought to Fort de France by the French cruisers Tage and Suchet and by coasting craft. The hospitals of Fort de France are filled with the sick and wounded.

The Antis Heard From.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—After a meeting of the executive committee of the New England Anti-imperialist league the following declaration, signed by George S. Boutwell, president, and Erving Winslow, secretary, was issued: "The rumors which have appeared recently that the anti-imperialists would suspend agitation for the present and await the result of President Roosevelt's policy are without any foundation whatever. On the contrary, they declare that they have no confidence in President Roosevelt's policy or purpose as declared in his recent speeches and that the anti-imperialists will aid in the election of members of congress who are opposed to continued occupation of the Philippines and who are in favor of the establishment of an independent government without delay."

Home From the North.

TROMSO, Norway, Sept. 5.—The Baldwin-Ziegler arctic expedition steamer Frithjof, with William S. Champ, secretary of William Ziegler in connection with his arctic expedition, on board, has arrived here. Ice conditions compelled the Frithjof to return to Tromso without having approached Franz Josef Land nearer than 78 degrees 23 minutes north. The Frithjof was fast in the ice for two days and finally forced her way through four inches of new ice. The first news of the return of Mr. Baldwin on the America was received on board the Frithjof at Havoesund on Sept. 3.

Twenty Thousand Perished.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—An interesting parliamentary paper giving a return of the military forces employed in South Africa from the beginning to the end of the late war has just been issued. The garrison Aug. 1, 1899, consisted of 318 officers and 9,622 men; re-enforcements sent between then and the outbreak of hostilities, Oct. 11, 1899, totaled 12,546. Thereafter the troops sent up to May 31, 1902, reached the great total of 386,081, besides 52,414 men raised in South Africa. The final casualty figures are: Killed, 5,774; wounded, 23,029; died of wounds or disease, 16,168.

General Cronje's Views.

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 5. — General Cronje, who has lately returned here from exile at St. Helena, said in an interview that during the war he had lost from wounds and disease twenty dear relatives. He expressed himself as prepared, however, not only to forgive, but, as far as God had given him the power, to forget, and said he believed the British and Dutch races would work amicably together for the development of the country.

Passenger Train Wrecked.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 5.—Northern Pacific passenger train No. 3, westbound, was wrecked a few miles west of Thompson Falls and 121 miles west of Missoula, Mont., yesterday morning. Reports received at the Northern Pacific general offices here are that three coaches were derailed and that a fireman was slightly injured, a tramp seriously injured and an engineer is missing. No mention is made of any injured passengers.

Alleged Poisoner Caught.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 5.—Bailey Kerekas, a Lowell veterinary surgeon, has been arrested by officers of Ionia county, charged with sending a poisoned headache powder to George Merritt of Saranac. It is believed that he is directly concerned in the various headache powder poison cases in the vicinity of Lowell, including the one that resulted in the death of Mrs. William Klump last March.

Chinese Decorations Restored.

PEKING, Sept. 5.—The empress dowager has ordered that decorations of the Order of the Precious Star, which is limited to foreigners, be bestowed upon the ministers and secretaries who were concerned in the tariff protocol negotiations.

New Jersey Won Trophy.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 5.—The interstate match for the Soldier of Marathon trophy was won by New Jersey with a total of 1,082 out of a possible 1,200.

INTERNATIONAL BANKING.

Institution Formed to Do Business in Latin American Countries.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Plans have been made at a meeting of the directors of the Mexican Trust Company bank for the formation of an international banking institution capitalized at $10,000,000 and designed especially to operate in Latin American countries. The scheme involves the consolidation of the Mexican Trust Company bank and the Corporation Trust company. The combination is to be known as the International Bank and Trust Company of America.

The directors of both the merging corporations have signed the consolidation agreement. A majority of the stockholders of both concerns already have signified their approval of the plan informally, and a meeting of stockholders to give formal approval of the merger will be held within the next three weeks. It is expected that the combination will become effective about Oct. 1.

Both the Mexican Trust Company bank and the Corporation Trust company have broad charters under the laws of Delaware. The new company's charter will embrace the features of both of them. Branches of the Mexican Trust Company bank are established in seven cities in Mexico, as follows: Guadalajara, Pachuca, Monterey, Tampico, Aguascalientes, San Luis Potosi and Puebla. It also has agencies in New York and Chicago.

Advice For Britishers.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, M. P., replying to a question as to the direction in which British energies should be increased in order to successfully meet foreign competition, writes that Great Britain must work upon the same methods which lead foreigners to success. He advises British merchants to emulate foreigners in the following respects—namely, the handling of what foreign customers want instead of what they think they ought to want; not to decline orders, however small, and to make use of the currency, weights, measures and language of their foreign customers.

Situation In Haiti.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—Letters received here from Haiti say that the situation in that republic is becoming more complicated. In the chamber of deputies as now constituted M. Pierre, one of the candidates for the presidency, has a majority over his rival, M. Fouchard, while M. Firmin's revolutionary party is making headway in the field. No settlement of the difficulties is in sight, business is entirely suspended in the chief towns, and the public employees are leaving their work because they have not been paid since General Sam resigned the presidency and left the country.

Candidates Notified.

READING, Pa., Sept. 5.—The Democratic candidates for governor, lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs, Messrs. Pattison, Guthrie and Nolan, were last night officially notified of their nomination by the Erie convention. The vast auditorium was crowded to the doors, and 150 prominent Democrats from all parts of the state occupied seats on the stage.

Many Miners Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—An explosion occurred at the Tredegar Iron company's colliery near Rhymney, Monmouthshire, while 112 men were underground. Thirteen of these are known to be dead, and seventeen are seriously injured.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair and cool; light to fresh west winds, becoming variable.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

More than a score of men, women and children were hurt, several of them seriously, in a cable car wreck in Chicago.

The Saratoga (N. Y.) Floral association's annual floral parade and battle of flowers and the Proteus parade were held and witnessed by more than 60,000 visitors.

The historic Music hall was damaged by fire, and the Odeon, a structure adjoining the Music hall, was completely destroyed in Chicago. The loss will exceed $110,000, fully covered by insurance.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS.

A Ticket Headed by Mayor Rose Named—The Platform.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—The Wisconsin Democratic state convention concluded its labors at a late hour yesterday afternoon.

Following is the complete list of nominations: For governor, David S Rose, Milwaukee; for lieutenant governor, John W. Wattawa, Kewaunee; secretary of state, Louis A. Lange, Fond du Lac; state treasurer, Ed L. Luckow, Baraboo; attorney general, Olaf R. Skaar, Lacrosse; superintendent of public instruction, Karl A. Mathie, Wausau; railroad commissioner, William A. Rauner, Ashland; insurance commissioner, William Ferber, New London.

The convention smashed many of the slates which had been prepared early in the day and still later in conference during the noon recess. One of the sensations of the day was an attempt to induce John W. Wattawa, the nominee for lieutenant governor, to withdraw from the ticket because of certain remarks concerning the Kewaunee man. Mr. Wattawa refused absolutely to entertain the proposition, and the conference that was about to fix up a slate for the rest of the ticket which to their minds would be a winner. In this they were far from being successful, for with but two exceptions more than one name was put before the convention.

The biggest surprise of the day and a sensation at that was the turning down of a resolution just before the convention adjourned indorsing the national platform. While the delegates gave a respectful hearing to its reading, it was not entertained for an instant.

Just before the final adjournment Delegate W. H. Rogers of Madison offered the following resolution:

"We, the Democrats of Wisconsin, in convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the Democratic party and its policy as enunciated in its national platform."

Scarcely had Mr. Rogers finished reading the resolution when another delegate arose to a point of order and stated that it had been decided to refer all resolutions to a committee on resolutions. Still another delegate made a motion to adjourn. This was put and adopted with almost a unanimous vote, there being not more than two or three feeble protests. The resolution therefore was completely ignored. The convention then adjourned sine die.

Coal From England.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5. — The board of education of this city has completed arrangements by which anthracite coal will be imported from England to furnish fuel for the public schools during the winter. Owing to the mine workers' strike the proposals of the board for furnishing about 25,000 tons of hard coal brought no bids, the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company and the Lehigh Valley Coal company announcing that they could not quote prices. The average price heretofore paid for coal for city schools has been $5.50 a ton, but under the arrangement just effected the cost of importation will be about $8.50. The work of transferring the fuel from the wharfs to the schools will involve an additional expenditure.

Officers Scarce.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The war department is experiencing some trouble in finding a sufficient number of officers on the active list to supply the demand for military instructors in colleges. Under the new order adopted the colleges are divided into three classes. Agricultural schools make up one class, and strictly military schools make up another. The third class is composed of all other schools to which army officers are detailed. Under the order it is held that only active officers be assigned to the agricultural schools.

Idaho Democratic Convention.

POCATELLO, Ida., Sept. 5.—The Democratic state convention was called to order here yesterday. Chairman Perky in his address attacked the Republican party on the trust question and on the war in the Philippines and claimed the credit of free Cuba for the Democratic party through the Teller resolution. W. H. Watt of Blaine was elected temporary chairman. There is a bitter contest on for the gubernatorial nomination between Governor Hunt and Attorney General Frank Martin.

Island Sale Assured.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 5.—Complete returns of selections by the electors of members of the landsthing (upper house) show large ministerial gains, insuring the government's majority in the landsthing and the ratification of the treaty providing for the cession of the Danish West Indies to the United States. The landsthing meets in October.

Frosts In Nebraska.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 5.—The weather bureau has reports which indicate frosts in northwestern Nebraska; portions of South Dakota and western Iowa. In Antelope county, this state, the thermometer was as low as 34. There were light frosts in the Missouri valley, but they did little or no damage.

No Alliance With Labor Federation

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 5.—The National Association of Postoffice Clerks today by practically a unanimous vote rejected the proposition to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. Resolutions were adopted declaring that such an alliance would be detrimental.

Balloonist Takes a Fall.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Hugh Linsey, an aeronaut, attempted a balloon ascension at the Trumansburg fair, but fell from his trapeze just after the balloon left its moorings. He struck on his head and arm, but escaped with a broken wrist.

PLANS NOT CHANGED

President Begins Southern Trip Tonight.

A BUSY DAY AT OYSTER BAY

Russian Grand Duke Boris Entertained at Luncheon—Many Congratulations Received Over Escape From Serious Injury.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The president entertained Grand Duke Boris at luncheon. The grand duke came to Oyster Bay from Newport on Ogden Mills' yacht, the Felica. With him were Count Cassini, the Russian embassador at Washington; Private Secretary (to the grand duke) Greaves, Ogden Mills and Assistant Secretary of State Pierce, the representative of this government. The president met his distinguished guests in the wide hall of his home at Sagamore Hill, and after the presentations, which were made by Count Cassini, luncheon was announced. The grand duke called simply to pay his respects.

Henry White, secretary to the American embassy at London, also called on the president to present his son John, who will enter a college in this country in the fall. Mr. White was the guest of Mrs. James Roosevelt at luncheon, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt also being present.

President Roosevelt, and Secretary Cortelyou have recovered from the effects of their accident, but still bear outward marks of the catastrophe. Dr. Lung, the president's official physician, thinks that the marks on the president's face will disappear in about four days. Apropos of the accident, the suggestion was made that an added measure of safety would be taken if the local committees having charge of the president's reception at the various cities would see to it that none but docile horses are attached to the carriages in which the president and members of his party ride. While the horses which were hitched to the president's landau at the time of the accident were quiet, still at other times skittish animals have been furnished.

The president will send a wreath of flowers to be placed upon the casket of William Craig, his faithful bodyguard, who was killed.

PRESIDENT'S SOUTHERN TRIP.

The Party Will Leave Washington This Evening—The Itinerary.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt and party will reach Washington over the Pennsylvania railroad at 6:45 o'clock this evening and leave for the brief southern tour at 7:30 p. m. on a train over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The party will consist of the president, Secretary Cortelyou, Assistant Secretary Barnes, Dr. G. A. Lung, the president's physician; Stenographers Latta and Weaver, representatives of the three press associations, three illustrated weeklies, the Washington newspapers and the Western and Postal Telegraph companies and two photographers.

The Baltimore and Ohio has placed at the disposal of the president and his party the private car Riva, drawing room and sleeping cars Xenia and Clarion, dining car Manhattan and a combined baggage car and smoker. The president's private car is well designed for the trip. It is sixty-seven feet long, finished in mahogany, has a parlor seventeen feet in length, an observation room eight feet long and four private rooms. The sofa sections in the parlor and observation rooms are separated by curtains from the body of these rooms.

The party will pass through Harpers Ferry, Cumberland and Grafton and reach Wheeling, W. Va., at 8:30 a. m. (eastern time), Sept. 6. Remaining in Wheeling two hours, the party will proceed, touching Cambridge, Zanesville, Newark, Columbus and Cincinnati, where they will be transferred from the Baltimore and Ohio road to the Queen and Crescent road. The train will arrive at Chattanooga, Tenn., 8:30 a. m. Sept. 7. The party will remain there until 1 p. m. Sept. 8, when they will start for Knoxville over the Southern railway, arriving at 5 p. m. Sept. 8. After a two hours' stop the party will continue to Asheville, where they will arrive at 8:30 a. m. Sept. 9. Leaving Asheville at 12:20 p. m. Sept. 9, they will arrive in Washington at 8:30 a. m. Sept. 10.

Craig's Body Taken to Chicago.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 5.—The body of William Craig, the secret service officer, has been taken to Chicago. Shortly after the accident it was carried to an undertaker's rooms. Upon the arrival of the two brothers of the dead man it was decided that the body be taken to Chicago, and after a conference with Chief of Police Nicholson and Governor Crane the arrangements were completed. A delegation of citizens followed the casket to the depot.

There were four carriages in the procession containing among others Governor Crane, Zenas Crane, Mr. Craig's two brothers, Hugh and George, from Holyoke; Secret Service Officer Baker and Chief Nicholson. Four police officers in full uniform acted as a guard of honor. There were a number of beautiful floral tokens, including tributes from Governor Crane, the Craig brothers and others.

President to Review Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to review the parade of veterans to occur during the forthcoming encampment of the G. A. R. on Wednesday, Oct. 8, as indicated in two letters, of which copies have been sent to encampment headquarters by General Eli Torrance, commander in chief of the Grand Army.

AN IMPORTANT LESSON.

The accident to the President's party, which resulted in the death of his faithful Secret Service guard and the driver of the carriage in which the President was riding, again brings to mind in forcible manner the great need of care in running trolley cars through and across the public thoroughfares. As every year sees the net work of electric roads steadily growing, it emphasizes the need of every possible precaution to prevent the constant increase in the number of accidents. While trolley cars are usually content to stay on their own tracks and automobiles have access to the whole road, there is still an element of danger in the operation of trolley cars which must be guarded against.

A series of accidents, none of which have fortunately resulted fatally, taught the local system the need of greater care. The running speed was reduced and a system of block signals introduced which has been the means, this summer, of protecting the lives of many thousands of passengers who have travelled over the road. Other precautionary measures have been taken as well. That they have not been in vain the absence of accidents this summer has borne testimony.

Because, however, the line has been comparatively free from accidents this summer is no reason for allowing any slackness. The change which the trolley company has made in its schedule does not, perhaps, make the possibility of accidents any greater but it is certainly just as great. Extreme care should be taken by every employe of the company to see that nothing goes wrong and that life and limb shall not be endangered by any mistake or misunderstanding on the part of employes of the local street railroad company.

A week from next Tuesday will see the special election in North Plainfield on the question as to whether the county line shall be changed so as to make that borough part of Union instead of Somerset county. The question of consolidation will not be considered at all at this election. Voters in North Plainfield who go to the polls on that day should realize perfectly what they are voting about. If the question is settled in such as manner as to transfer North Plainfield from one county to another, the question of consolidation with Plainfield will come up later for consideration.

Either New Brunswick's press agent is abnormally active or else that city possseses some strenuous citizens. Strange and wierd tales are constanly eminating from the county seat at Middlesex. The latest is of a man who tore half a store down as he claimed it was built on property he owned. He dumped the goods over into the other half where he said he didn't object to the proprietor continuing business.

Next week will see the opening of the city schools. They have been overhauled and renovated during the summer months and everything is now ready for the opening. From present prospects, the school facilities of the city are going to be taxed to their uttermost this fall, despite the fact that they have been somewhat enlarged.

Hereafter the oyster pirates in the Delaware River will have to get up early in the morning if they want to keep out of the clutches of the Jersey officers. A fast steam craft has been ordered to be used for patrolling those waters for offenders on the oyster beds.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Gavett is closing out some Haviland and English dinner ware; fine decorations. See his adv.

Do you always get satisfaction with your groceries? If not, go to Fred H. Firstbrook, the Liberty street, grocer, where the variety of stock kept is the best that the market can supply.

Prescriptions are always carefully compounded at E. S. F. Randolph's drug store, corner North and Watchung avenues. The quality of the drugs kept is the best, always pure and fresh.

It is enough to take the starch out of you, the way they do your laundry at some places. The laundry is not the only thing they do. For satisfaction have your work done at Meissner's Hand Laundry, Watchung avenue.

Canning season is at hand and the busy housewife is looking about for fruit to store away for winter use. T. L. Walsh, of North avenue, has the best of peaches, pears and plums for just such a purpose and at very low prices. Special sales all this week.

Oysters R in season and although the best are being eagerly sought for by the Metropolitan dealers, the Rogers Seafood Company has secured a nice lot. The succulent bivalve is better this year than ever and those at Rogers are from the famed Rockaway beds.

It matters not to S. Scheuer & Company, of West Front street, where the price of coal goes to, this grocery firm will continue to give its customers full value at low prices. They are selling groceries, as well as meat at the lowest figures consistent with first quality, and you can save money by trading at this store.

During the past week many improvements have been made at Charles E. Vail's jewelry store in Park avenue. The interior has been repapered and painted and a large window placed in the rear of the store giving much additional light. The whole store presents a bright and attractive appearance and Mr. Vail is now prepared to take care of his increasing business.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Sigler VanFleet, of Jackson avenue, have returned from a several days' stay at Three Bridges.

Frank W. Jones, of Mountain avenue, has returned home after a vacation at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

C. W. Eoff and family, of Crescent avenue, have returned home after spending three months in the State of Vermont.

Collector F. H. Smith, who has been sorely afflicted this summer with hay fever, is gradually getting over the attack.

Miss Mildred Cunningham, of West Seventh street, will leave tomorrow for Fitchburg, Mass., for a several days' stay.

Miss Abbie VanCleef, of Plainfield avenue, will return this week from Jersey City, where she has been visiting relatives.

Henry A. Pearce, of Essex street, will leave Monday for Schenectady, N. Y., to complete his fourth year at Union College.

Mrs. Margaret Sweeney, of West Second street, has returned home from New York where she spent the past two weeks with relatives.

Miss Adelaide G. Ball, of Myrtle avenue, leaves tomorrow for Portland, Ore., where she will spend the winter with her brother, Bert C. Ball, who has been visiting his family in Plainfield for the past month.

DUNELLEN.

Last evening a sucessful dime sociable was given by the members of Miss Louise Doolittle's Sunday-school class, in the lecture room of the Methodist church. A large number paid admittance and a considerable sum was raised in that way. Miss Doolittle, who has lately returned from a trip to Europe, was present and gave an interesting talk on her experiences on the other side. The talk was well given and was much enjoyed. The proceeds will go towards lessening the church debt.

The Watchung Water Company has suddenly changed its loose policy in running the local water system and has appointed Robert LeRoy Pierce as local superintendent.

Mrs. R. L. Pierce has returned from a visit to Philadelphia.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

There is no doubt but many in town believe that the automobile ordinance regulating the speed of same to eight miles an hour is in a certain sense unjust to the many automobilists who use the fine roads through this section, especially on Sunday. By an enactment of the Legislature all townships and boroughs are premitted to pass such ordinances to regulate the speed of which as their governing bodies shall see fit for the safety of the public on the highways. Some townships allow fifteen miles, others twelve and ten, and this and a number of other places allow but eight miles. Between the many ordinances of the different places an automobilist wants to be a walking encylopedia to know how to regulate his speed. Those who are in sympathy with the automobile riders are asking why some of the reckless horseback riding through the streets of the village is not stopped. Surely there is as much risk to life and limb one way as the other.

The enrollment of pupils at the public school has already reached 185, and from present indications will reach the 200 mark within a few days when all have returned from their summer outings.

Mrs. MacDermott, a former resident of the village but now of New York, is spending several weeks with Miss Susie L. Parse.

The Farther Lights Society, of the Baptist church, will hold its monthly meeting in the parlors of the church this afternoon.

VERY LARGE CLASSES AT STATE SCHOOLS

The Size of Application List Points to Biggest Year in History of State Schools.

FEW FACULTY CHANGES.

NORMAL AND MODEL SCHOOLS AT TRENTON OPEN SEPTEMBER 16.

Total Enrollment at Normal School is Completed and is 575, of Which 225 Are New Students—Changes Among Instructors.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, September 5—When the State schools open for the fall term, Tuesday, September 16, they will enter upon the greatest year of their history. The applications for admission exceed those of any previous year. This is particularly true with the Model school, where a large number of requests have been made for board. The applicants are largely girls who were no doubt attracted to the school by the raised standard of admission which has been regarded with interest by the members of the State board of education, because of the ability of both the Normal and Model schools to meet the raised standard without any decrease in the enrollment.

The applicants for admission to the Model school are not required to register in the same manner as the Normal, owing to the fact that appointments are not made according to legislative districts.

At this time it is impossible to tell what the actual enrollment will be, but judging from the number of applications received it will greatly exceed that of last year.

The Normal registration has been completed, the entire list of vacancies being filled before the school closed in June. The enrollment in this department is 575, about 225 of whom are new students. Of the latter about 140 are graduates on the approved list. The remainder enter upon the three-year course, being one year short of high school graduation. The number of applicants who are high school graduates is in advance of last year.

There have been a number of faculty changes since the schools closed in June. Miss Annie Heath Thomas, who for several years was in charge of the department of chemistry, resigned to enter upon the study of medicine. The vacancy caused by her resignation has been filled by the appointment of Miss Margaret B. MacDonald, Ph. D. Miss MacDonald is a graduate of the State Normal school of Missouri and Mount Holyoke college. She completed special courses in chemistry in the University of Pennsylvania, finally taking her degree at Byrn Mawr College. She has had several years' experience as a teacher and has done original work in the department of chemistry.

The department of vocal music, which was left vacant by the resignation of Miss Maud A. Stevens, will be filled by Miss Alice E. Hill. Miss Hill was graduated from the Boston conservatory in 1897. She is accomplished in singing and in pipe organ playing. Miss Hill has had several years of successful experience in teaching, part of which was in seminary work.

Miss Frances C. Senza completed two years of associate work in the department of chemistry and withdraws to complete the study at Columbia University. Her place will be taken by Miss Ida E. Housman, of Hoboken, who was the valedictorian of the Normal graduating class last June.

Miss Clara V. Clarke, who has been on leave of absence for a year studying in the University of Chicago, will take the second year work in the school. Miss Emma C. Fausett has been transferred from second to fifth year work.

Miss M. Frances Freeland, who was a substitute in fifth year work last year, will take up associate work in the department of history and literature.

The school building and the boarding halls have undergone thorough renovation during the vacation period. A complete electric lighting system for the school building and boarding halls has been installed. This feature will greatly enhance the hygenic condition of the building.

Addition to Residence.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane has granted to Henry D. Heideloff a permit to erect an extension, two stories, 17 by 26 feet, to his residence on West Front street. Charles L. Force is the architect; the masonry work will be done by Theodore Grey.

Broke His Shoulder.

While David Richards, of South Plainfield, was working on a building at Dewey Park, Tuesday, he slipped and fell off, breaking his shoulder. He was given medical attendance and afterwards taken home.

JERSEY AT ANTIETAM FIELD

DESIGN ADOPTED FOR MONUMENT TO BE ERECTED THERE.

It Will Mark the Participation of the Jersey Troops at That Bloody Battle.

Stately, dignified and impressive will be the monument erected by the State to commemorate on the battlefield of Antietam the part played by New Jersey in that bloody struggle of the Civil War. Designs for the monument have been adopted by the monument commission and approved by Gov. Murphy, and the work of shaping the memorial and erecting it on the battleground will be hastened in order that the shaft may be unveiled with suitable ceremony Sept. 17 of next year, the anniversary of the battle.

A plain shaft of Vermont marble, forty feet in height, surmounted by the heroic bronze figure of a captain of infantry in the uniform of 1862, armed and in a commanding and lifelike pose, is the design in which the monument will be erected.

Two New Jersey commands played important parts in the battle of Antietam. One was the Thirteenth New Jersey Volunteers, in the ranks of which Gov. Murphy, then a stripling of less than twenty, fought and marched. The other was Hexamer's Battery of Hoboken. Both commands left many dead and carried more wounded from the bloody field after the engagement. Among the former was Capt. Hugh C. Irish. It is on the site where Capt. Irish fell and the Thirteenth saw its hardest fighting that the commissioners may decide to place the monument. This spot is near the Hagerstown Pike and about a mile from the Dunker church, where wounded soldiers that day found hospital.

RAIN; THEN COLD.

Troubles Heap Upon the Heads of the Hope Campers at Lake Hopatcong.

Reports from Bishop's Rock, Lake Hopatcong, indicate that the Hope campers who left yesterday, had a sorry time of it upon their arrival. It rained nearly all day and it was almost impossible to get Camp Hope in anything like order. By nightfall the elements became a little more propitious and matters were arranged so that the first night could be passed in comfort.

Today the camp will be placed in first class shape for the second section which leaves tomorrow. In the list of those who went yesterday the names of Harry Hoffman and Alfred Berry Marsh were omitted.

Home From the West.

Overburdened with souvenirs of the far west and tales of the Golden Gate, Jacob Blimm, Jr., and J. E. Flannery arrived home, last evening, from San Francisco, after a month's absence. They were met at the South Plainfield depot by a delegation from Perseverance Lodge headed by Roundsman Mattox who delivered the address of welcome to the travellers.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

RATS STEAL TOBACCO.

Down in Connecticut They Are Carrying Away Entire Plants for Building Material.

A new enemy to growing tobacco has been discovered at Poquonock, which is one of the most important tobacco-growing sections in the Connecticut valley. The Clark brothers of that place are large growers. Among other tracts they have 18 acres, bordering on the Farmington river near where it empties into the Connecticut. For a month past they have been trying to discover whether it was man or beast that was cutting down six or eight of the tobacco plants every night and bearing them away. They would probably have been wondering yet if it hadn't been for Michael Leamy who knows as much about the ways of animals as the Clark brothers do about growing tobacco and that's a good deal.

Leamy's attention was called to the matter after about 300 of the stalks had been cut down. He examined the surroundings and found a well-beaten path leading up from the river. Along this path he found broken pieces of tobacco leaves.

"It's some kind of an animal" said Mr. Leamy "and I think it's a muskrat."

The others laughed at the idea of a muskrat being strong enough to carry off a nearly full grown tobacco plant. But Leamy knew what he was talking about and he set a trap in the path, concealing it thoroughly. He was rewarded the other morning by finding a muskrat in it. All the other people in the neighborhood have come to his way of thinking, and they all agree that to muskrats is due the disappearance of the Clark brothers' tobacco.

TREE SOOTHED HIM.

Aged Italian's Last Look Recalled Familiar Scenes in the Land of His Birth.

Assistant Manager Anderson, of the Boston Floating hospital, tells a touching story of the slums. He was inspecting the tenements the other day when he saw swinging by ropes from a chimney top a huge branch of a tree. He was conducted to an attic by a young Italian boy. On the floor lay an old man, evidently breathing his last. Anderson spoke to him, but could not understand the feeble response in Italian. Bending over the patient he saw what the old man's glassy stare was fixed upon. It was the treetop on the chimney, so cleverly arranged that it seemed to be growing naturally.

SOOTHED BY SWAYING LEAVES.

From the boy it was learned that his dying grandfather had recently come to America, when he took sick. He was born in a little Italian hamlet where the olive trees cover the hills.

His relatives, too poor to send him home to die in his native land, as he wished, arranged the tree-top on the tenement roof. The aged Italian died looking at the swaying leaves and recalling the old home.

Goose Laid Golden Egg.

Mrs. Lavinia Thomas, a widow, residing on the Gold Flat, Nevada City, Nev., killed a large, fat goose from her flock. While preparing the fowl for dinner she discovered several shining nuggets of gold. The gold was taken to the assay office and netted $18. There are many old placer claims in the vicinity of Mrs. Thomas' place, and it is presumed that the goose in its search for food among the old diggings at various times had picked up the precious metal and carried it until discovered by the lucky woman. Mrs. Thomas is seriously considering the advisability of engaging in goose culture on a much larger scale, and it is probable that the entire flock now owned by her will be killed in an effort to obtain the many dollars' worth of gold they are carrying around with them.

PLAYING AT WAR.

An Attack on Montauk—Official Account of Recent Fighting.

NEW LONDON, Conn. Sept. 5.—The mimic warfare is still raging, but the scene of activity has now been transferred to Montauk, N. Y., which was attacked by the enemy's ships early in the morning. The Mayflower appeared in Fort Pond bay at 5 o'clock. She was followed by the Panther and Supply. The weather was misty, and the vessels were not detected until they had entered the bay.

A dispatch from Newport says that the armored cruiser Brooklyn passed there at 11 o'clock, eight miles off shore, bound to the westward and attended by two tugs. The weather at that time was commencing to thicken up, which would give the hostile fleet a chance to run in.

The following official bulletin recording the most recent features of the struggle has been posted at Fort Trumbull:

"At 5:15 a. m Fort Mansfield reported three battleships just off Block island, going toward Newport.

"Three of the enemy's fleet at 8:00 were reported opposite Great Pond bombarding the signal station at Montauk Point. Signal station reported to have changed position to point where enemy's shells cannot reach them.

"At 6:45 three of the enemy's fleet reported about 2,000 yards out from Montauk station, bombarding the field battery in camp at that place.

"At 8:40 ten boatloads of marines are reported as having landed at Montauk Point signal station from two cruisers about to attack signal station there.

"The Kearsarge, Alabama and Indiana or Massachusetts were reported maneuvering off Narragansett Pier, about four miles out, at 9:55 a. m."

Efforts to Relieve Agua Dulce.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Advices received by the Colombian legation here say that the Colombian government is still making efforts to send relief to the town of Agua Dulce, now besieged by the revolutionists. The new Colombian war vessel recently purchased by Colombia left Seattle Wednesday, but owing to her limited coal capacity probably will coal at Acapulco, and a fortnight may elapse before she can succor the besieged town. Meanwhile Colombia may dispatch several thousand of the troops now concentrating on the isthmus to the port of Chiriqui, on the east coast, by boat, and from there it is but a march of forty miles across to Agua Dulce, the entire journey requiring less than two days.

Emperor's Speech Coldly Received.

POSEN, Sept. 5.—Emperor William's speech delivered here yesterday was designed to conciliate the Poles so far as this could be done by phraseology that did not imply weakness and to reaffirm the continuance of the present policy, including making German the only language of the schools and the administration. Polish newspapers have received the emperor's speech in silence. Inquiries made among the Poles and Germans of this city indicate that both elements consider the race quarrel in the province as likely to continue and that it will result in hard feelings and hard usage on both sides, trade and social boycotts, secret societies and the employment of spies.

Racing Ostrich Fell Dead.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 5.—While being prepared for a race on the Lycoming county fair grounds the racing ostrich Oliver W., owned by the Florida Ostrich farm, fell dead. The bird became entangled in its harness and was choked to death. Oliver W. was forty-five years old.

DRESSY GOWNS.

Velvet Costumes—Flounced Skirts of Lace—White Louisine Dresses.

The weather is so cool that many evening gowns of velvet are being worn. A gown of pale velvet recently seen at a fashionable dressmaker's had its skirt cut plain and raised slightly over each hip to display an underpetticoat of lace over jeweled mousseline de soie. The subdued glitter gave a very rich effect, and this veiling of jeweled stuffs with lace is one of the latest fads.

Flounced skirts of lace are very smart and are combined with Louis Quinze jackets of flowered silk and lace.

The all white taffeta gown has given way to the dress of lustrous louisine made with chiffon and wavy bands of cream silk insertion.

The hat shown in the illustration is of salmon pink crin partially covered with gathered lines of bass and bent into a point in front. A bunch of greenish gray roses shot with the pale pink to catch the tone of the straw is fastened at one side, and there are soft twists of beige tulle and pearl ornaments. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SMART RED GOWNS.

Long coats of every description are much in demand. These are made very simply with cape collars decorated with applique or lines of fagoting. The smartest are kept all black.

clusters of three, and the skirt was treated in a similar manner. The fullness was allowed to flare below the knees, and the lower edge was decorated with an irregular black chiffon applique. There was a wide collar on the waist decorated with chiffon applique and vandyke points.

The smart gown shown is of red veiling over red taffeta, and it is combined with ecru all over lace. The surplice front is edged with a band of white taffeta trimmed with narrow black braid and gilt buttons. The sleeves apparently button over full undersleeves of the lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Knew What It Meant.

"Of course we won't have any regular housecleaning at this time of the year," she said, "but we might as well straighten things up a bit and change the arrangement a little. I can see how the house could be made to look much more attractive. Tomorrow I'll get a charwoman and a man to help me to move the furniture, and— What are you doing, John?"

"I am merely wrapping up my slippers, my dressing gown and one or two other things to take to the office," he replied.

"To take to the office!" she exclaimed.

"Oh, that's all right. I'll bring them back," he exclaimed. "You see, I don't want to have to hunt for them after you have put things to rights."—London Standard.

Stairs of Sand

By

ERNEST DE LANCY PIERSON.

Copyright, 1901, by Street & Smith.

It was only a short piece, but he took it up tenderly, undid the knots and then found that it was still of too short a length to be of any service to him. Rope in hand, he drew near the brink of the roof, and peered down into the depths. The roof of the factory, or whatever it was, lay far below, but he saw a small projection jutting out from the building on which he was standing, about half way down. Ah, if the rope had only been double its length! Then a thought occurred to him whereby he might make his little rope do double service.

Fastening it to a hook, where a lightning-rod had formerly been, he threw the loose end over the wall, where it dangled in space. Under the knot he had tied about the hook he placed a candle and lit it. His intention was that by the time he had reached the lower projecting ledge, the candle would have burned its way through the rope, it would drop into his hands and then he would be able to use it again to reach the roof of the factory. Having arranged this, Job scrambled over the edge of the parapet, and, climbing to the rope, launched himself into space. He knew that it was possible that the candle might burn the rope through before he reached the ridge of safety, but it was necessary that he should take the risk. In his swinging descent, he could not help but look upward at the flaring candle, the progress of which was to decide his fate, for life or death. An old rope like that must consume rapidly. Would it ever last until he had reached the ledge?

But his movements had been so precipitate that he finally swung over on to the ledge and rested there, before the rope finally swept out with a trail of fire, the one end of which he still held. At the same time he heard a rumbling noise above his head which showed that the trap door had been forced open, and that the police must now be upon the roof.

They must soon see the candle, which in that calm and placid night was probably still burning, and they would know where to look for the man who was attempting to escape.

The ledge to which Job clung was before a great iron door probably used to admit goods into the establishment. He found a hook to which he could fasten the end of his rope, sadly charred by fire, and again launched himself into space.

It seemed to him that it was hours before he reached the end of the rope, and he could hear the angry voices on the top of the roof. Of course, as soon as they found the candle, they must find, too, where he had gone.

He had come to the end of the cable, and as there was nothing else to do, he let himself drop, where, he did not know, for it was very dark. He struck something hard—the roof of the factory—and then rolled down until stopped by a curving gutter. He looked with a shudder down into the street, which, though not far below, was of a sufficient distance to have killed him had he fallen.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE FACE OF THE FOE.

Job Hendricks scrambled to his feet and looked up at the roof of the building he had escaped from but a few moments before. He could distinguish a number of dark, moving objects bearing lights. The police had brought lanterns with them to prosecute the search, and some, lying at full length, were peering down over the parapet of the building into the gloomy depths below.

Job did not move, hoping to escape observation in the shadows, and presently he heard one of the men above saying confidently:

"The poor wretch must have tried to climb down, and fell and killed hisself."

Job waited to hear more but it was not forthcoming. Evidently the comrades of the man who had made this statement believed as he did that the object of their search had escaped them. After a time they slowly dispersed, and the light no longer twinkled from the roof above.

"Now or never is the time to get out of this," Job muttered to himself. "They are making for the street to make sure that I am dead, and, finding no sign of the remains, will probably renew the search."

Making his way carefully along the edge of the roof, he was overjoyed presently to come upon a fire-escape, which, though rusted with age and broken, enabled him to make his way down to the street. Feeling sure that the front of the hotel must be guarded, he chose to take the opposite direction.

Hearing the sound of steps approaching, he paused for a moment in the shadow of the factory, to see with whom he had to deal. The man had come out of one of the doors of the hotel, and as for a moment the light fell on his face, Job recognized him as the individual who had planned the ambush to secure possession of the paper. He made his way along with an unsteady gait, as if he had not fully recovered from his experience, or the narcotic effects of the ring.

Evidently the police had no further use for a man whom they believed had humbugged them, and so had permitted him to go his way, little caring what became of him.

Job was not sorry to see his quondam enemy, and after watching his unsteady progress for a while, resolved to go and follow him. For this personage interested him strangely, and he was not yet done racking his brains, hoping to find out in what important crisis they had once figured together.

Ellison, half stupified, stumbled on like a man in a dream. He did not look back to see whether he was followed or not. Now and then he would raise his head sleepily and stare around, as if to make sure where he was.

Hendricks was glad to remain unnoticed, for, after the exertions he had made in escaping, he was not prepared for a fresh encounter with any one.

Arrived at the corner of the street, Ellison paused in a dazed kind of way, as if he were looking for a carriage, little thinking that such luxuries were scarce in such a locality.

Job had meantime taken up his stand in a nearby doorway. Under the circumstances, it was not likely that he would be noticed.

"I wonder what next?" he heard Ellison mutter; then, with a silly laugh: "I suppose I shall be able to square myself with the police should I happen to be in the neighborhood again. Oh, dear!" with a groan, "I suppose I shall have to foot it home unless I have the luck to strike a carriage on the way. There don't seem to be anything on wheels in this cursed neighborhood," then swaying for a moment unsteadily on the curb, he drew himself together, and went lurching forward on his way with Job at his heels.

It was a long journey they made together, and Job was heartily glad that they met no vehicle on the road, for he had no desire for a run in his tired condition. He was still worrying his brains trying to recall where he had seen this man before, and ever the search eluded him.

"Time to acknowledge that you are getting to be an old man," he muttered to himself, "since you can't remember where you had dealings with this person in the past—and he played a mighty important part in your life, too."

Ellison had turned in a northerly direction, and was making his way along as if half asleep, and anxious to be home and in bed. He apparently had given up all hopes of getting a carriage.

They had reached the uptown residential district of the west side of the city, when Ellison suddenly turned to the right, passed down a narrow street, and paused before a door set in a white wall, and began to fumble in his pocket for a key.

As he stood there with the light of a street lamp shining upon his face, Job Hendricks, off in the shadows, suddenly clasped his hands together as if trying to conceal his emotion:

"Can it be possible?" he muttered. "Why, my poor old wits must have been wool-gathering all this time not to have recognized him before this! It is none other than the man who led me on—my old enemy, who found me when I was starving, and who tempted me into sinning, and, to save himself, helped to send me to prison to languish half a lifetime!"

Rice Culture in Japan

One-Fourth of the Country's Area Is Devoted to It

RECENTLY published reports of statisticians prove that neither bread, Indian corn nor potatoes is the staff of life, but the universally underestimated rice. This food has played an important part from time immemorial in the material life of peoples and nations, and at the present time constitutes the chief diet for fully one-half of the earth's population.

In the two most thickly inhabited countries of this earth of ours—China and India—rice is the national dish; as well as in Japan, the "land of the rising sun," where it is served with every meal. It supplants bread and potatoes among the active and intelligent natives of the East Asiatic island empire, and is esteemed as highly by the well-to-do as by the poor, whose only food it is.

It is probable that rice was first planted in China and India. From the former its cultivation was carried into the interior of Asia, as well as Japan and Corea. From an economic point of view, Japan is essentially an agricultural country, and, as such, of vast importance to the world's commerce. Of late years vast quantities of Japanese rice have been exported, although the home consumption is enormous. Of the entire arable territory of THRASHING RICE IN THE LAND OF THE MIKADO.

Japan, one-fourth is devoted to rice growing, the annual product being approximately 4,000,000,000 tons.

The rainy season, which follows the monsoon changes in the spring, constitutes the natural foundation for rice culture in Japan, as well as in South and East Asia. But as the rains frequently are irregular, irrigation has been resorted to for several centuries. This method enables the peasants to secure two crops each year from the same field, which is not surprising to those familiar with the intensive methods of the Japanese agriculturists. The system of irrigation most in vogue divides the country in terrace-like tracts, which are separated by earth dams. Each of the dams has several openings for the control of the water, which covers the ground to a certain degree, and then escapes to the next field. In regions where water is scarce reservoirs are erected, which are frequently used for piscicultural purposes.

The seed beds are prepared with wonderful care. When the plants have reached a respectable height, which usually requires 35 days, they are pulled up and planted in the irrigated fields. While growing, the plants require constant care, and the ground must be kept free from weeds and watered and fertilized at regular intervals. This labor continues until the grass turns yellow. When the grain is ripe it is pulled up. The straw is used for various purposes, but more especially for the manufacture of baskets, matting and paper.

Each spike of rice contains from 30 to 100 grains of seed. The thrashing is done with wooden flails of hammer-like shape. Before being packed in bags made of the rice straw, the kernels are polished by being run through machines containing rough brushes.

A number of popular intoxicating beverages are brewed from rice, but more particularly rice beer, called saci in Japan, and samshu in China. This is the favorite drink of eastern Asia, although not as strong as the rice arrach distilled in India and Java.

The Japanese farmer is the most patient and industrious tiller of the soil in the world. With implements remarkable for crudity and unwieldiness, he produces astonishing crops. He understands the science of irrigation and fertilization. Just as soon as he can be persuaded to use American farm machinery he will prove an important factor in the affairs of the world—a consumer whose trade will be cultivated assiduously by the traders of the United States and Europe.

Buckingham Palace, London

The Official City Residence of King Edward VII.

WHEN King Edward VII. selected Buckingham palace as his London residence he returned to the house of his birth; for in one of the apartments of this rambling structure he saw the light of the world 61 years ago. He is the first English king to inhabit Buckingham palace, which is the newest royal residence in London. It was never occupied by its builder, King George IV., who died before it was completed. On the spot where now stands the clumsy palace, which fronts on St. James' park, once was located the family mansion of the dukes of Buckingham, who, in the days of the Stuarts, were the leaders of British nobility.

George III. purchased the mansion soon after ascending the throne, and presented it to Queen Charlotte, all of whose children, with the exception of the eldest, were born there. After the death of George IV., his brother and successor refused to reside in the renovated and enlarged palace, although $5,000,000 had been spent in modernizing it, and was far more roomy than St. James' palace where William IV. held court as long as he lived. Queen Victoria first occupied Buckingham palace in July, 1837, and a few years later parliament voted vast sums for its improvement. A new wing was added and the square completed. The front, originally designed by Nash, and cordially disliked by William IV., was torn down and replaced by a new facade, which, architecturally, is scarcely more attractive than was the old. The building operations were continued for seven years. During this time Queen Victoria and Prince Albert occupied rooms which were rendered obnoxious by the odor of paint, mortar and varnish. The young princes and princesses were housed in garret rooms; and, in order to take care of the rapidly increasing family, it was necessary to divide the apartments by partitions.

Since the demise of Queen Victoria, who, after the death of the prince consort occupied the palace only occasionally, large sums have been expended to prepare the neglected building for King Edward. For many reasons Buckingham is an excellent official residence. It is surrounded by magnificent gardens and a 50 acre park; and is situated close to Westminster. Queen Victoria was in the habit of driving from Buckingham palace to Westminster whenever she opened parliament in person—rare occurrence, however, after the passing away of her husband. Immediately in front of the eastern facade a magnificent monument in memory of Queen Victoria is to be erected.

King Edward is very fond of the palace, and expressed a desire to have the operation performed there, which postponed his coronation.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Following the example set by one of their number, the local League managers are hustling to secure players for next season. It is probable that the teams will be picked and ready for the season of 1903 long before it arrives.

Harry Blimm, a rising star in the galaxy on the local diamond, has accepted the terms of the New Market A. C. and will be seen in its uniform next season. For the past two years he has been a member at times of of the East Ends, the Orange Field Club and New Street Terrors.

When the season of 1902 closes for the Safe Works team, a number of handsome prizes will be awarded the various players for high averages, offered by the officials of the factory. One of them will be a set of books relative to their chosen occupation valued at many dollars and one which all have been striving for in particular.

Two games will be played on local diamonds tomorrow afternoon. The third game in the series between Y. M. C. A. and Scotch Plains will be fought on the Hope grounds and the St. Mary's will meet their old opponents, the Bronx team. Last year the St. Mary's were defeated two out of three by the Metropolitan men and they are resolved to capture the single game this year.

Secretary George E. Firstbrook, of the City Baseball League, received word from the A. G. Spalding firm, this morning, that the pennant to be awarded the Y. M. C. A. team, is now being made. It will be composed of a white silk body with the inscription, "Champions 1903" in red. The firm also expressed its congratulations to the winners and conveyed the wish that the losers try again next season.

The Scotch Plains ball team expects to take one of the largest delegations of baseball enthusiasts that has ever left the Plains tomorrow afternoon, when it comes to Plainfield to cross bats in the deciding game with the Y. M. C. A. team, city champions. The two teams have met three times this season. Scotch Plains has won two, one at the start of the season and the Y. M. C. A.'s one. For the convenience of those not acquainted with Hope Common, ask for transfer to Fourth street car and get off at Spooner avenue. The grounds are only a short walk from trolley.

Not to dissapoint the Fourth Precint team, of Newark, which has gone ahead with its arrangements for a game on the tenth of this month, Captain Overbaugh and Captain Townley have agreed to hold the Police-Firemen game over until the fifteenth. The Newark people set the date for the return game without consulting Captain Overbaugh and Chief Kiely and have already sold 2,000 tickets. It was for this reason the third game with the firemen was postponed as it was arranged for the eleventh and two games in succession would be most too much for the blue-coats.

Half Holiday Suspended.

Boice, Runyon & Co., will tomorrow resume keeping their yard open all day Saturday.

THE MOSQUITOES TO BLAME

THE GREAT STOCK FARM AT TREMLY HAS BEEN ABANDONED.

The Swiss-Brown Dairy Company Was Compelled to Give Up Its Project.

About two years ago the Swiss-Brown Dairy Company purchased nearly 100 acres of land near Tremley, three miles from Rahway, to fit it up for the stock farm of this section of the country.

A large tract was scooped out for an artificial lake, into which an immense well ponred millions of gallons of water, the overflow of which ran off to the ocean, some two miles away. The lake was to be stocked with various kinds of fish, such as pike, pickerel, bass and perch. The old buildings, used as residences and farm outhouses, were torn down, and immense structures erected in their places. A second well was sunk to the depth of nearly 200 feet. The best of blooded stock was shipped to the farm and thousands of pounds of butter were sent to market.

Today the property is dismantled, the houses are closed, the barn buildings are being torn down, the well flows idly into the lake, the fish did not arrive and the stock of blooded cattle has been shipped again to the far away.

The failure of the enterprise was due solely and entirely to the enormous clouds of mosquitoes that swarmed there like bees, biting the cattle and driving them into a perfect frenzy of madness. They grew poor and scrawny and the young calves died from the scourge, so that the whole plant has been abandoned and the many thousands of dollars investment is for sale to the first one that asks for it.

Ping-Pong.

Play in the men's ping pong tournament at the Y. M. C. A. continued last evening. Mundy defeated Denton 7-5, Denton defeated Miller 6-0, Whitford defeated Miller, 6-3, Schomp defeated Whitford 6-4.

—The regular covenant meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be held this evening at 8 o'clock.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. CHANGES IN STATE SENATE NEXT YEAR

The Jersey City Journal Comments on Retiring Members of Upper House.

THIRTEEN HOLD OVERS.

SENATORS M'CARTER, REED AND FRANCES WILL BE MOST MISSED.

They Have All Been Prominent in the Senate Chamber Since Their Election to Offices—About the Other Members.

There will be thirteen hold-over members in the New Jersey Senate when it meets next January, says the Jersey City Journal, and this will give it a somewhat familiar appearance to those who attended last winter's sessions.

The hold-overs are Lee, of Atlantic, Wakelee, of Bergen, Haines, of Burlington, Hand, of Cape May, Minch, of Cumberland, Hudspeth, of Hudson, Gebhardt, of Hunterdon, Hutchinson, of Mercer, Strong, of Middlesex, Welsh, of Morris, Shinn, of Ocean, McKee, of Passaic, and Martin, of Sussex.

The Senators whose terms expire with this year are Johnson, of Camden, McCarter, of Essex, Stanger, of Gloucester, Francis, of Monmouth, Miller, of Salem, Reed, of Somerset, Cross, of Union, and Cornish, of Warren.

Senator Johnson, of Camden, was a member of the Board of Freeholders when he was elected to the Senate six years ago, and he was soon classed among the reliable members. He was always courteous and obliging. He was a good working member and will always be remembered by those who had business with him for his kindness and good nature.

Senator McCarter, of Essex, was a different kind of a man. He is a lawyer, and was appointed Attorney-General at the end of his first term. He is a man of considerable ability, but has not much ability to make friends.

Senator Stanger, of Gloucester, was an Assemblyman three years before he was elected to the Senate six years ago. He was a good working member, not much addicted to speech-making, but he was always obliging and helpful.

Senator Francis was an active member and served two years in the Assembly before being elected to the Senate six years ago. He was elected president last year, after a campaign in which he was unfairly attacked by the opposition. His laugh, which has prevaded the State House for the last eight years, will be as much missed as his pleasing ways.

Senator Miller, of Salem, has served six years in the Senate, and will be missed, though he was not a talking member. He was a persistent worker.

Senator Reed, of Somerset, will probably be more missed than any of the others who retire this year. He served a term in the Assembly before being elected to the Senate six years ago, and attracted attention by his readiness in debate. He was president of the Senate one term and was leader on the floor another, and was always prominent in debate.

Senator Cross, of Union, will probably be returned to the Senate. He served in the Assembly two terms—during all of one and part of another he was Speaker. He has served part of one term and one full term in the Senate, and has a good reputation as a man, a lawyer and a lawmaker.

Senator Cornish was Senator from Warren when he was elected to Congress in 1892, and came back in 1899. It is not known whether he will again be a candidate, but if he is he will be returned again, for his county always elects the Democratic nominees, and he is the only Democrat whose term expires this year.

Perhaps the Senators who will be missed the most will be McCarter, Francis and Reed. They impressed their individuality upon legislation and their surroundings more than any of the others whose terms expire.

Landed Big Turtle.

James Thilby and Charles Jensen went to Seawaren, yesterday on a fishing expedition. They captured a large sea turtle weighing over twenty pounds. Sharks were so plentiful that weakfish wouldn't bite. The party saw one shark that measured over twelve feet long.

Golden Eagles to Attend.

The members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will meet at the Castle Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of attending the gospel meeting at the Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock, when Rev. Frederick Taylor, of Brooklyn, will speak.

—John M. Hetfield and family have taken up their residence at the corner of East Fifth street and Franklin place.

RECORD BREAKING YEAR FOR THE P. O. S. OF A.

State Secretary Thorn Believes Great Things About Year Now to Come.

GROWTH OF THE ORDER.

SOME INTERESTING BITS OF HISTORY ABOUT THE SOCIETY AND ITS WORK.

New Year for Organization Began a Few Days Ago—There Are 5,157 Members in New Jersey—New Camps Started.

J. Wiggans Thorn, State secretary of the P. O. S. of A., declares that this year will be a record-breaker for that organization in New Jersey.

The new year began with the order a few days ago following the annual convention held at Camden. Mr. Thorn has been a member of the body for many years, being its secretary a long time and one of the foremost in control of the order's affairs.

There are 5,157 members in New Jersey with camps said to be worth $36,375.

George N. Wimer, of Palmyra, was the first State president. He is one of the oldest members, joining with Camp No. 23 nearly ten years ago.

Charles W. Pette, the retiring State president, joined Camp No. 6 of Trenton in October, 1894. Commencing January, 1896, he served as its president for two years. He represented the State camp at the national camp sessions of 1895, 1897 and 1901, and at the last session of that body he was appointed a member of the committee to revise the ritual of the order. At the State session of 1899, he was elected master of forms. The following year he was made State vice president, and in 1901 he was unanimously raised to the State presidency.

During the year ending August 1, 1902, camps were instituted in the following places in this State: Woodbury, Beverly, Mount Holly, Salem, Bridgeton, Ocean City, Hammonton, Freehold, Metuchen, Elizabeth, Perth Amboy and Burlington.

The Patriotic Orders Sons of America is in reality the successor to orders called the United Sons of America, which existed from 1845 to 1860, and the Junior Sons of America, the latter being an auxiliary formed by the former to give membership to those between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one, at which latter age the "boys" were supposed to unite with the United Sons of America. In 1860 an attempt was made to unite the two orders, but it failed.

In 1868 the order was incorporated as "The Patriotic Order Sons of America," the name by which the organization is now known. Camps were being started in the west, and in July 1870, Camp No. 1, of New Jersey, was instituted in Jersey City. E. Z. C. Judson, a prominent member, was the organizer of the New Jersey branch. At the 1871 session of the State camp at Pennsylvania a committee was appointed to meet a committee from the State camp of New York to arrange for the organization of a national camp. The session was held in Allentown, Pa., March 5, 1872, when the body resolved itself into the national camp of the order. Edward Z. C. Judson represented the New Jersey camp.

The national camp holds biennial sessions. At the one held September 25, 1901, State camps were reported in Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Subordinate camps were also reported in California, Delaware, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, Tennessee and Wyoming. The membership reports of December 31, 1900, showed about 75,000 members.

John G. Horner, of New Jersey, was national president at the session of 1901. In that year New Jersey paid out $11,811 in benefits.

SOME EXCELLENT REASONS WHY

Mr. Clark's Strong Report Pointing Out Reasons for Annexation and Consolidation.

PRESENTED LAST NIGHT.

Report of Special Committee Appointed by Borough Council to Investigate Advantages and Disadvantages of Greater Plainfield—Some Figures on the Subject.

At a meeting of the Council of the Borough of North Plainfield held Friday evening, May 2, 1902, the following resolution was adopted:

Be it resolved by the Mayor and Council of the borough of North Plainfield, That a special committee of the Councilmen be appointed by Mayor to investigate and report to this body the advantages and disadvantages of annexation and consolidation, the provisions of law relative to the bringing on and holding elections for that purpose and prevailing opinions of citizens of the borough as to when such election should be held.

In obedience to this resolution a committee was appointed to ascertain the advantages and disadvantages of annexation and consolidation and report the result of their investigation to the Council.

In complying with the spirit and intention of the resolution it becomes essential to ascertain the respective growths of Union and Somerset counties and the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield for the past ten years and make a comparative analysis of the same of the increase in population and ratables and of the advantages and disadvantages of increase population and property.

In the year 1890 according to the census taken at that time the official report showed the population of Somerset county to be 28,311 and the census returns for 1900 showed the population to be 32,948 an increase in ten years of 4,637 or an increase of 16 4-10 per cent.

In the year 1890 according to the census returns the official report shows the population of Union county to be 72,467 and the census returns for 1900 showed the population to be 99,352 an increase in ten years of 26,885 or of 37 1-10 per cent. or that the increase in Union was more rapid than Somerset county by about 20 per cent.

Now it is fair to assume that in proportion to the increase in population of a community the wealth of that community increases accordingly and this is manifested by the assessors report of the valuations of real and personal property taxable for the period above named of which a table is here appended, taken from the annual report of the Comptroller of Treasurer of the State of New Jersey for the year ending October 31, 1901 which table can be found on page 107 and 108 of said report:

Union county	Somerset county
1892—$32,684,500	$17,051,000
1893— 33,655,275	17,344,657
1894— 34,622,900	17,341,000
1895— 35,972,500	17,584,109
1896— 36,772,100	17,758,654
1897— 37,975,600	17,812,700
1898— 39,023,300	18,341,024
1899— 39,767,600	18,563,673
1900— 41,249,700	18,718,061
1901— 42,775,400	18,788,468

This report and table annexed shows that the increase in the real and personal property taxable in Union county for ten years was $10,090,900 while for the same period in Somerset county was but $1,737,468 showing that the increase of taxable property in Union county over that of Somerset county for ten years was six times greater.

The area of the two counties are as follows:

Somerset county has 180,573 acres and Union 39,722 acres, Somerset county is chiefly agricultural and her area and wealth is made up mostly of farm lands, while Union county being an urban county her wealth is made up largely in residences and manufactures. That Somerset county is placed at a disadvantage with Union on account of its agricultural aspect is shown in the rapid increase of wealth in Union over that of Somerset in the report of the State Board of Taxation of the State of New Jersey for the year ending October 31, 1901, which report can be found on page eight of the report. This report shows that the increase in valuation for the year 1901 in Union county was $1,525,700 while for the same period in Somerset county the increase was but $70,407.

The comment made by the State Board of Taxation concerning this increase of wealth in urban counties over the agricultural counties is as follows: "That this emphasizes a deplorable fact that the selling value of farm lands in New Jersey has steadily In 1890 the official census showed the population of the city of Plainfield to be 11,267 and the census of 1900 showed the population of the city of Plainfield to be 15,369, a gain of 4,102 or an increase of 36½ per cent., thus showing that the increase in population in the city of Plainfield and the borough have kept pace with each other. Now it would naturally follow that the increase in wealth or ratables in both municipalities would be in proportion to the increase in population but such is not the case.

The following tables shows the increase in wealth or ratables for the past seven years in the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield.

We begin with the year 1895 as it was in this year that the borough was set off from the township and the assessment for the township and borough was made separately.

City of Plainfield.

1895—$7,200,565
1896— 7,531,489
1897— 7,708,830
1898— 8,196,261
1899— 8,322,805
1901— 8,689,000

The city of Plainfield shows an increase in the period above mentioned in wealth or ratables of $1,488,435 or an increase of 20 4-10 per cent.

The following table shows the increase in wealth or ratables in the borough of North Plainfield for the past seven years:

Borough of North Plainfield.

1895—$2,152,422
1897— 2,326,036
1898— 2,386,625
1899— 2,384,455
1900— 2,362,255
1901— 2,402,852

The above table shows that during the period above mentioned, the increase in wealth or ratables in the borough of North Plainfield was but $250,408, or an increase of but 11 6-10 per cent. It also shows that if you multiply the population of North Plainfield by three, making the population the same as the city of Plainfield, and multiply the increase of wealth or ratables on the same basis, it shows that the increase of wealth or ratables in the city of Plainfield is double that of the borough for the past seven years.

This table shows that instead of there being in the borough a steady increase in wealth or ratables each year as in the city of Plainfield, there was during the years 1898-1899 and 1900 a decrease of $24,400.

Now a comparison of the tax rate of the borough and the city of Plainfield shows that the tax rate in the borough has been steadily increasing for the past seven years until at the present time it approximates very nearly to that of Plainfield.

The following tables furnished by the collectors of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield show the tax rate of the two municipalities for the past seven years:

Borough of North Plainfield.	City of Plainfield.
1895—$2.06	$2.32
1896— 2.06	2.30
1897— 2.19	2.52
1898— 2.20	2.42
1899— 2.28	2.56
1900— 2.46	2.46

It will be noticed that in the year 1901 the difference in the tax rate of the two municipalities was but eight points higher in Plainfield, and if you were to place the two municipalities upon the same footing as to improvements by deducting from the tax rate of the city of Plainfield the amount collected for the Free Public Library, the principal on her sewer bonds and the interest on her sewer obligations, as the borough has no library and no sewers, her tax rate would be 11½ points lower than the borough of North Plainfield.

No one can dispute the fact that while the tax rate in the two municipalities is so nearly equal, that the city of Plainfield has advantages that have come to her through her wealth and more advanced position in municipal government, that the borough does not possess.

Plainfield has a Free Public Library waned during recent years. So far as the assessed value is concerned farm land is usually rated proportionately higher than other classes of property but in actual value it has materially declined."

Now as Somerset county is an agricultural county and Union an urban county with manufactories constantly

LIFTED WAGON OVER STREAM

NOVEL MANNER IN WHICH UNEXPECTED OBSTACLE WAS OVERCOME.

Bound Brook Young Men Found Bridge Down, But That Didn't Stop Them, However.

Three young men from Bound Brook, Lewis Danvenport, William Barkalew and W. D. Smalley, had a novel experience on their way to a farewell entertainment at Sunset Cottage last evening. They arrived at Dog Watch Hollow and found the bridge at that point was down, notwithstanding that the road from Martinville had been left open for traffic. Unhitching the horse, they lifted the carriage down the steep embankment and then through the water carried it across to the other side of the stream. The horse was led to a point almost a mile further down where the bank is not so high, and he too waded across to the other side. Hitching up the party arrived at the cottage in good time.

About thirty couples were present at the entertainment and dancing was kept up till an early hour this morning. Music was provided by Professor Frazee.

FIXED ASSESSMENTS.

Commissioners Signed Report of Benefits of the New Macadam for the City Streets.

The Commissioners of Assessment on new macadamizing met in the city apartments, last evening, and signed their final report which is to be forwarded to the Common Council, relative to the macadam on First, Second and Third places, West Sixth street from Park to Plainfield avenues, Orchard place, and Carlton avenue from Wachung to Putnam avenues.

The report contains the list of assessments and this approximately will be about the same as that borne by other property owners for the same improvement. An estimate places the total cost of the work at $3,381. The commissioners are Thomas Hughes, Jacob Chamberlain and Andrew J. Gavett.

SOMERVILLE WEDDING.

Miss Laura Hardgrove to Wed Edwin Fancher, of Fanwood.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 6—A social event of note will be the wedding, in St. John's P. E. church here Monday evening, at 6 o'clock, of Miss Laura Hardgrove, of this place, and Edwin Fancher, of Fanwood. Over one hundred invitations have been issued. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Charles Fiske, the new rector.

Lost End of Finger.

Walter Odam, of West Third street, is minus the end of one of his fingers as the result of an accident at the Pond Tool Works, Thursday afternoon. The electric crane was hoisting a casting in the foundry, when, in trying to stop from swinging, the young man's finger was caught between the chain and the gear, severing it from the hand completely. Mr. Odam went to the hospital where the injury was dressed.

At The Netherwood Tonight.

The full dress hop at the Hotel Netherwood this evening will be for the benefit of the orchestra. A subscription fee of one dollar has been charged and many have subscribed larger amounts. The affair is under the direction of L. deL. Camjan, of New York. A sum over $100 will be divided equally among the bell boys.

Stephenson R. Hope Loses $35.

While sweeping out a toilet room at the Bryant School yesterday, Janitor Stevenson R. Hope accidentally dropped a roll of bills amounting to $35 into an opening leading to the sanitary sewer. He adopted measures to secure its return, but so far has not succeeded.

Preach and Lecture.

W. W. Fereday, of England, will preach the gospel on Sunday evening at 7:45, at Gospel Hall, 110 Liberty street. He will also lecture Sunday afternoon at 3:45, and on Monday and Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock.

The Winner.

Frank Day, of West Fourth street, won the lamp that was drawn for by Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order Heptasophs. No. 15 was the lucky number.

Closing Sunday.

The Netherwood Fresh Air Home will hold its closing services Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Good speakers are expected and special music.

BAND CONCERTS.

Miners' Band, From Tamaqua, Pa., in Plainfield Raising Money to Support Their Families.

Plainfielders were treated to an unexpected band concert, yesterday afternoon and evening, by the Miners' Band, of Tamaqua, Pa. The organization is made up of miners who are at present on strike and are touring the nearby States to provide support for their families while they are otherwise unemployed.

They arrived in this city yesterday and have since been giving concerts about the principal streets, taking up collections after every few numbers. Last evening hundreds of people enjoyed the music and the musicians received generous contaibutions.

This afternoon they will be in attendance at the Y. M. C. A.—Scotch Plains baseball game and will take up a collection at the end of the fifth inning. The leader of the band is George Jones, who has been a miner all his life and is a well known resident of Tamaqua.

SHE FINALLY FOUND HUSBAND

LONG CHASE TERMINATED IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

William Schwartz and His Wife Finally Decide to Make Up and Live Together.

When William Schwartz, of New York, was arraigned before Acting Mayor Coriell, in the city court, last evening, it terminated a chase, in which he and his wife were participants, over the greater part of the State and which lasted several months. He was charged with abandonment and was released in $300 bail to furnish his wife support.

Mrs. Schwartz told the court that she and the defendant had been married in New York several months ago, but hardly before the honeymoon was over, her husband ran away, taking all her money and jewelry with him. She tracked him to the lower part of the State, thence by degrees to this city where she found him working as conductor on the local trolley system. Before she could have him arrested he fled to Newark but he was caught there yestreday and brought to this city by Patrolman McCarthy.

Schwartz admitted the charges but appeared anxions for a reconciliation and as Mrs. Schwartz was willing, the court allowed him to go as stated.

W. C. T. U. Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the rooms on Madison avenue, Wednesday afternoon, September 10, from 2 to 5 o'clock. There will be an interesting programme, including impersonations and a new feature will be the "grumbling hour." All interested are invited to attend.

Died After Long Illness.

John Gray, aged forty-one years, died this morning at his home in West Front street, after a long illness with consumption. Sixteen years ago he married Miss Nellie Huff, daughter of the late John Huff. For a long time past he was unable to do any work. He is survived by a wife and one child.

Mission Worker.

Mrs. Edmund B. Norton, corresponding secretary of the women's executive committee, Board of Domestic Missions of the Dutch Reformed church, will speak Sunday evening at 7:45 at the German Reformed church. All members are requested to attend.

Kinderfest.

Tomorrow afternoon at Keliar's Grove there will be a kinderfest for the children of members of the Saengerbund. The festivities will begin gin at 2 o'clock, and a programme of games and amusements for the children has been arranged.

Visited Fresh Air Home.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of Hope chapel, visited the Netherwood Fresh Air Home in a body, yesterday afternoon. The members took with them numerous articles that were appreciated by the management.

Building Permits.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane has granted a permit to L. W. Serrell for an addition to his barn on West Seventh street, and to August Kleinecke for alterations to his residence on Watchung avenue.

North Plainfield High School Exams.

Examinations for High School entrance and for removing conditions will be given Monday, Sept. 8, beginning at 9 a. m.

CRANBERRY SEASON IS NOW AT ITS HEIGHT

It's a Wild and Weird Region Where That Popular Berry is to be Found.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

ITALIANS, IMPORTED TO PICK BERRIES, HAVE TROUBLE WITH NATIVES.

Many Dangers Attendant on the Great Harvest Which Has Begun in Southern Part of the State This Week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Mt. Holly, Sept. 6—Carloads of Italians have been passing through this city on their way to various sections of the pines to arrange for the picking of cranberries, the season for which opened this week. In the bogs of Burlington, Ocean and Camden counties several thousand persons are now employed at this work, the price paid being forty cents per bushel. Where picking is the best, a man or woman can make from $3 to $5 per day. On account of the scarcity of native help it becomes necessary to employ foreigners.

A sucessful opening of the season is very encouraging to the growers, who at once hasten to reap the harvest secured by the investment of a large amount of capital in a country that is practically unknown save by a few, and the knowledge of the latter is merely a matter of instinct.

The cranberry sauce which graces the turkey dinner is fraught with all sorts of danger, from the stiletto of the Italian to the poisonous fangs of the rattlesnake. The delicate berries grow in a region where only the blue canopy of heaven can be seen, and where the fleeting of time is marking by the rising and setting of the sun. Every day contains the same monotony of solitude, and the only diversion is an occasional forest fire, a homicide, or a gang of thieving squatters engaged in robbing their employer, who, under the most favorable circumstances, must furnish them with a home and living all the year round, otherwise the safety of out buildings would be in jeopardy.

The importation of foreigners to assist in the work of picking adds fuel to the flames, as the pinehawker and Italian can seldom agree on anything. Their presence, which is necessary for the season of five weeks, causes much apprehension on the part of the people living in adjacent towns, which are visited once a week by these invaders, who are reckless in the extreme when under the influence of liquor.

Danger is likely to be encountered at any period of a journey to the cranberry bogs. Among the pine dwellers there are said to be several noted robbers, who have sought the seclusion of the dense forests to escape arrest, and at any point a rattlesnake is liable to be met, which means a fight to the death. A person is sure to be attacked in some manner, if only by the famous Jersey mosquito, which has full away in this region. The natives have become inoculated to their poisonous fangs and can ride unconcerned for miles with any number of the pesky insects sucking blood from their flesh, without suffering the least annoyance.

After a long ride through difficult passages inspiration is gained by the sight of some crumbling dwelling or decayed factory or mill. But the avenues leading to where the bogs are situated are lined with rudely constructed and ancient homes. In some cases they are propped up with heavy scantling to keep them from toppling over. They are sadly weather-beaten and present a rustic appearance for the want of paint. In some of them there have been witnessed the most revolting crimes, as churches, schoolhouses, and, to a great extent, morality, are unknown factors there.

A short distance from Cookstown, on the Platt bog, is a house formerly occupied by Thomas Test, in which five persons have met a tragic death. Two young girls were burned to death there, one man was frozen to death, another was choked to death, and Mary Mathis was scalded to death, for which latter crime Thomas Test was two weeks ago paroled from the State prison. This is only a partial history of the miserable shanties these pinehawkers call home.

The work of picking is begun early in the morning, each person taking a strip of ground sixteen feet wide, which is staked off. The work must be done clean, as a bog is only gone over once. At a convenient station is a receiver, to whom the pickers deliver the berries, carried in peck boxes, for which he receives a check, which can be converted into cash at any time.

The fear of a fire or strike at this critical period is sufficient reason for the bog owners to be quite lenient to their employes. After the crop has been gathered and stored and the multitude has departed for home, no person in the State can be found who has greater reason for giving thanks than the cranberry grower.

The crop this year in many sections will be from fifty to seventy-five per cent. below that of last year.

OLD FIREMEN.

Gathered at Home of B. A. Mumford to Assist in Celebrating His Sixtieth Birthday.

Benjamin A. Mumford, of Arlington avenue, an enthusiastic member of the Exempt Firemen's Association, and one of Plainfield's oldest fire fighters, gave a reception at his home last evening to a few friends in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of his birthday. Among those present were D. W. Littell, Edward Vermeule, Chief T. Doane and L. E. Barkalew, the latter president of the Exempt Firemen's Association, all of whom constitute a committee having in charge a reunion, entertainment and collation to be given by the Exempts on Monday, October 6, when there will be a number of invited guests.

Mr. Mumford entertained his guests in royal fashion and gave everyone a good time. He was congratulated by all and the best wishes for many happy returns of the day were extended. "Old times" in the department formed a happy theme of discussion during the evening, while the collation served by the host was not the least of the enjoyable features. Before the guests departed plans for the coming entertainment were well advanced and a good time is assured.

ST. GABRIEL'S ACADEMY.

Will Open for the Season's Work in Borough on Monday.

St. Gabriel's Academy, corner of Jackson and Watchung avenues, will open for the season's work Monday morning at 9 o'clock. A promising class has already signified its intention of taking the course. This institution has always enjoyed a high standing. Although principally intended for the education of girls, younger boys, to the age of thirteen, are also accepted. The academy is under the conduct of the Sisters of Mercy and is strictly non-sectarian in character. The course embraces all that is necessary to give a good foundation for a liberal education.

MORE CAMPERS.

Party Left Here This Morning for Camp Hope at Lake Hopatcong.

Camp Hope, on the shores of Lake Hopatcong, was augmented by another delegation of members from the Y. M. A., this morning. The party was headed by Matthew Sweeney and Jarvis Conover, and will remain until camp breaks up. The young men left on the 5 o'clock paper train.

Reports indicate that the young men are having an excellent time and they suffered no discomfort as yet. A party of friends will leave tonight to spend twenty-four hours at the camp.

ROBBED AGAIN.

Thieves Stole Overcoats From Madison Avenue Shop of Isaac Shrager.

Isaac Shrager, the Madison avenue clothier, who has suffered more or less from thieves in the past few years, was again robbed Tuesday night. Some one removed a pane of glass from a rear window, forced the catch and stole several good overcoats. It is thought the garments were taken by a colored man as several residents saw one come out of the alley with a bundle shortly after 10:30.

Progressive Euchre.

Progressive euchre was the attraction at the Hotel Netherwood last evening. About thirty couples sat down to take part in the game. The first women's prize was carried off by Mrs. Lana Brown; second women's prize, Miss Hibert, Brooklyn; third women's prize, Miss Davis. First honors for the men went to B. C. Clark, second men's prize, Mrs. Handy; third men's prize, P. S Saueur.

Building Committed Suicide.

The roof fell through the rear section of the old electric light plant building on Race street Thursday night. That part of the building was considered to be in an unsafe condition and the borough authorities had given orders that it should be pulled down yesterday, but the old plant committed suicide rather than submit to any such indignity.

HEARD ABOUT ANNEXATION

Majority and Minority Reports Presented to the Borough Council.

MEETING LAST NIGHT.

Delay in Presentation of Councilman Clark's Report Was So As to Allow Minority Report to be Presented at the Same Time—Other Business at the Meeeting.

Annexation was before the meeting, probably for the last time before the election will be held on the question, at the regular session of the Borough Council last evening. Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., in submitting the report of the special committee appointed for the purpose of looking into the advantages and disadvantages of annexation at the May meeting of the board, explained that the delay in its presentation was caused out of courtesy to Councilman Nichols, who wished to make a minority report. Councilman Clark's document was a lengthy one, going into the question fully. It will be found in another column.

The minority report by Councilman Nichols did not concur in all the arguments advanced by the other side. The debt of Somerset county, given as $128,188.75 should he claimed be lessened by $47,818.25, that being Somerset's share of an amount advanced to New Jersey among other States, by the federal government as a part of a surplus revenue, when J. C. Calhoun was United States treasurer in 1836. He thought the county would never be asked to account for this sum. In the county collector's annual report this sum is set down as a liability. Mr. Nichols contended "that it wasn't honorable to burden future generations for privileges enjoyed today." He would like future generations, "after we are gone, to rise up and call us blessed, instead of cursing our dry bones."

Final steps were taken in the matter of the new fire engine house. The site selected is the lot on Somerset street, belonging to the Wooden estate, situated between property owned by W. G. Debele on one side and L. Rosenstiehl on the other. The price paid for the property was $2,500. The council had been offered several pieces of land, but there was no single parcel that had sufficient frontage and depth to meet the purpose, except the one purchased. The council unanimously ratified the action of the purchasing committee. Work will now rapidly be pushed on the structure as soon as the contract is given out, and the outside will probably be finished before the frost sets in.

Borough Clerk Rowley submitted certified result of the recent election to ascertain the opionion of the rate payers. In accordance with the sentiment expressed, the council was authorized and directed to issue bonds to the amounts of $10,000 in parcels of $1,000 each, bearing interest at four per cent., payable semi annually, to cover the expense of erecting the new fire quarters.

The report of Treasurer Brown shows that the borough has but $21 cash on hand. Following is the list of taxes collected for the month of August: Taxes and interest, $65; Board of Health, .70; special school, $27.30; Recorder, fines, $42; Frank Rowley, clerk, licenses, $20; Frank Rowley, sale of dirt, $2.90; bills payable, note, $1,000; balance on hand August 1, $196.82; total receipts, $1,354.72; disbursements, $1,333.29; cash on hand, $21.43. The council was authorized to borrow $2,500 to meet current expenses.

Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, reported expenditures: Repairs and macadamizing, $260.53; street sprinkling, $136.20; total, $396.73.

Chairman Clark, of the fire, water and lamps committee, reported disbursements as follows: Street lighting, July and August, $868; fire department expenses, $146.80; total, $1,014.80.

Chairman Lee, of the police committee, reported for the month of August 12 arrested for drunkenness, two for disorderly conduct, one for theft. Twenty-six dollars were collected in fines.

A communication from L. B. Bodine apprised the board of the appointment of Warren McLaughlin, George Hum-

EXCELLENT REASONS WHY

increasing to add to its wealth, we naturally infer that when the county board of assessors are making their assessment for county purposes the valuation in Union county must be very much lower than those of Somerset county.

In order to ascertain this fact the chairman of your committee wrote Thomas B. Usher, secretary of the State Board of Taxation and received from him the following reply.

"Mr. Robert Clark, Jr.

Dear Sir—Replying to your communication of recent date I beg to advise you that in previous investigations conducted by this Board as to vaulations in Somerset and Union counties it has been shown that the assessments in Somerset county are nearer to true value, generally speaking, than those of Union county."

You can readily see from the trend of the above letter that while the county rate of Union county is much lower than that of Somerset county the valuations are very much lower as well.

The following information furnished by Robert A. Meeker, Assistant Road Overseer for the State of New Jersey is of value at this time as showing the condition of the roads of the two counties. Somerset county has an area of about 272 square miles, Union county has an area of about 102 square miles. Somerset has about 600 miles of roads not in towns, Union has about 230 miles of roads not in towns.

Somerset has built under the State aid law 34.63-100 miles and has applications approved by the Board of Freeholders for over fifty miles more yet to be built, while Union has built under State aid law 3.43.

Union has built under the county bounding act forty miles of road. Union has spent over $410,000 in improving its outside roads.

Somerset has spent a net sum of a little over $100,000 in improving its roads outside of towns.

The business methods in operation in the two counties are widely different, as will be noticed by the debt of the two counties. The debt of Somerset county as reported by the Comptroller of the Treasury for the year ending Oct. 31, 1901, is $128,188.75, which is composed of promissory notes which fall due on demand and which makes the burden for all improvements, whether roads, buildings or bridges fall upon the present generation.

Now in Union county its business methods are up-to-date, the debt is $441,000 and in comparing the debt of Union with that of Somerset the debt of Union seems larger, but when you take the assessed valuation of Union county for 1901 as given by the State Board of Taxation in their report ending Oct. 31, 1901, and found on page 8 of said report, which is $42,775,400 and it will be noticed that the debt is but 1 per cent. of the assessed valuation. This debt was contracted for the building of county roads, building and repairing bridges and county buildings. This is a funded debt at 4 per cent., thus giving a lower tax rate than Somerset and making succeeding generations pay for improvements that benefit them and lightens the burdens of the present generation.

A comparative analysis of the growth of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield presents just as marked a contrast as the growth of the counties. The increase in population in the city of Plainfield and the borough has been proportionate, but the increase of wealth or ratables has been disproportionate.

According to the census of 1890, which included the township of North Plainfield and the borough the population was 4,250 and the census of 1900 showed the population to be as follows: The borough 5,009 and the township 654, which would indicate that the increase in population in the borough for the past ten years was 1,413, an increase in population of 39½ per cent. which is of incalculable advantage to any city. Plainfield has a paid fire department, and in alluding to this fact your committee does not wish this statement to be construed as derogatory to the present volunteer fire departments of the borough, whose services and efforts the citizens of the borough will ever remember, but there comes a time in the growth of all municipalities when they must adopt more advanced methods, especially when they have a city contiguous to them which is constantly adopting up-to-date methods.

Much has been said about the debt of the city of Plainfield, which is $150,000, but when you consider that the assessed valuation of the city in 1901 was $8,689,000, her debt is but .01¾ per cent. of her assessed valuation.

Then the city of Plainfield has sewers and a sewage disposal plant. There has been much criticism concerning the sewage disposal plant of the city of Plainfield, but this plant has been pronounced as working satisfactorily by the president of the State Board of Health, Mr. Hunt, who made a visit recently to Plainfield and inspected the sewage beds.

Now the above features of municipal government redound to the advantage of the city possessing them, for whenever persons are desirous of locating in a city they naturally inquire concerning the advantages the city possseses and as long as we, the borough, remain without the advantages that the city of Plainfield possesses, the city of Plainfield will be chosen in preference to the borough, although the borough may possess more natural advantages.

Now it would be impossible for the borough of North Plainfield to have the same features of municipal government as possessed by the city of Plainfield without having an exceedingly high tax rate, so much so as to deter persons from settling in the borough and make the burden of taxation fall very heavily upon a good many property owners in the borough who can ill afford to pay any more than the present tax rate, but if the borough were to be annexed to Union county and consolidated with the city of Plainfield, the borough could have the same advantages as possessed by the city of Plainfield without materially increasing the tax rate.

Now there is another advantage that the city of Plainfield has, and that is the county rate of Union county is lower than that of Somerset. The county rate of Union county for 1901 was 47 cents; that of Somerset 61 cents, a difference of 14 cents in favor of Union. If the county rate had been the same in Somerset as in Union in 1901 the borough of North Plainfield would have had to pay on the assessed valuation of the borough for 1901 (viz. $2,402,825) $3,863.95 less for county purposes.

There is another feature of borough life which has been the cause of much anxiety to the business men of the borough; it is that the business interests of the borough are gradually waning. The time was when there was considerable business done on Somerset street, the business street of the borough of North Plainfield, but with the opening of new avenues leading into the city of Plainfield, thus making the city of Plainfield more accessible and easy to reach by the inhabitants of the borough, and also that we have no banking institutions in the borough, the inhabitants of the borough being compelled to go to the city of Plainfield to do their banking has resulted in localizing trade in the main street of Plainfield. Now a large share of patronage is given by the inhabitants of the borough to the merchants of Plainfield, thus contributing to the wealth of the city of Plainfield to the detriment of the borough.

This is shown in the following figures furnished by the tax collector of the city of Plainfield. Take the business section of the city of Plainfield, viz. Front street, Park avenue, Madison avenue, Watchung avenue, and the assessed valuation of this business section is $1,750,000, contributing in taxes to the city of Plainfield about $40,000 per year. Now this amount is spent for improvements in the city of Plainfield at large, and although the borough contributes 25 per cent. of this wealth and tax (which is a conservative estimate) yet she is not in any wise permitted a share in it and if we were annexed to Union county and consolidated with Plainfield we would naturally share in all benefits we assist in contributing. In regard to the law relative to the bringing on and holding elections, the law requires that the elections for annexation and consolidation shall be held at separate times, but as the Council has fixed the time for the holding of the election for annexation, the committee does not consider any further report upon that object necessary.

Owing to the fact that the Common Council of the city of Plainfield, for reasons which have been stated in the daily papers, have not yet appointed their committee on consolidation, your committee is unable to report further at this time, but will make a supplemental report at an early date.

Mrs. J. W. Opdyke, of this city, is visiting friends at Rocky Hill for a time.

GOVERNOR WILL GO.

Plans to Visit High Point as Possible—Site for Much Discussed Consumptives' Home.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Sept. 6—Governor Murphy will personally make a visit to Sussex county next week to look over that field as a place for the location of the projected State home for consumptives.

The Governor and party will go to High Point, where is located a single hotel. This place was established for hay fever victims, and is said to be the equal of any point in the east for the treatment of that disease. It is six miles from any village and the highest point in New Jersey. It is regarded as being admirably located for a consumptive home, as the rare atmosphere is very beneficial to tuberculosis patients.

The hotel property, it is understood, can be purchased for a very modest figure, and its appointments and surrounding are such as to make it very desirable. There are lakes nearby and the scenery is most attractive.

Besides having the advantage of isolation, the place is quite accessible, the railroad facilities being very good to nearby points. The Governor will make the trip to High Point Thursday of next week.

Lingering Summer Colds.

Don't let a cold run at this season. Summer colds are the hardest kind to cure and if neglected may linger along for months. A long siege like this will pull down the strongest constitution. One Minute Cough Cure will break up the attack at once. Safe, sure, acts at once. Cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. The children like it. L. W. Randolph.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Libraries are intended to spread learning among the people. The library that Congressman Fowler has offered to the city of Elizabeth is teaching the people down there more than they have ever suspected about politics.—Newark News.

There were seventy Vails at the Vail family picnic in Plainfield recently. We regret to notice that the Plainfield papers let the rare chance go by to say something witty about green veils. There was not even a veiled allusion.—Newark News.

Even governments may not expect to get something for nothing, let patriotism profess its zeal howe'er it will. Uncle Sam wanted somebody to carry mails to trains in Plainfield. The last man to hold the job didn't want it again. At last the desperate postal authorities raised the "salary" and got a colored man to take the place.—Newark News.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. W. Randolph.

under the torment of neuralgia, when every nerve in face or limb throbs and jumps. Philosophy cannot endure this agony but Perry Davis' Painkiller relieves it. ON A SOUTHERN TRIP

President Leaves Washington at Appointed Hour.

FACE STILL SLIGHTLY DISFIGURED.

No Serious Results of Pittsfield Accident Evident—Will Reach Destination, Chattanooga, Sunday, Returning Sept. 10.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Smilingly bowing his acknowledgments of the enthusiastic and prolonged cheering of an assemblage that fairly crowded the Baltimore and Ohio station here, President Roosevelt began his southern tour, with Chattanooga, Tenn., as the objective point.

The president was in the city exactly one hour and a half. He arrived over the Pennsylvania railroad at 6:12 o'clock last evening on a special train of two cars, made up at Philadelphia yesterday afternoon during the brief stop there en route from Oyster Bay. Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, Chief Wilkie of the secret service, Assistant Secretary to the President Barnes and a number of other officials and White House attaches met him at the station.

The president appeared a little disfigured as a result of the Pittsfield accident, but apparently had quite recovered from the shock. He stopped to shake hands with those who pressed about him to congratulate him on his escape. "Poor Craig!" he frequently repeated in expressing his thanks to his wellwishers.

Through a cordon of police the president was escorted to carriages in waiting and was quickly driven to the Baltimore and Ohio station. Secretary Hitchcock, Commander Cowles, the president's brother-in-law, and Secretary Cortelyou rode in the carriage with him.

The special train of seven handsomely equipped coaches was in readiness, and the president immediately entered his car, merely lifting his hat in response to the greeting from the crowd. He spent most of the time between then and his departure in conversation with Civil Service Commissioner Garfield and with others who entered the car to meet him. To a number he described the accident at Pittsfield. He said it was not the first time he had so providential an escape and referred to an incident in the battle of San Juan, when gunshots struck down two men close beside him. The president told the Pittsfield story to the group in the car with feeling and emphasized it with gestures. He said he felt in normal condition again.

The train was just two minutes late when it pulled out at 7:32. It was in charge of Pullman Conductor W. M. Johnson, who has been assigned to the presidential specials for a long time past. The personnel of the president's party is the same as that on his New England trip, except for the addition of S. B. Hege, the general agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and Colonel L. S. Brown, the general agent of the Southern railway. The president took dinner on the train shortly after his departure.

The southern trip will be a somewhat hurried one, and no stops will be made at points other than those announced in the itinerary already published—namely, Wheeling, W. Va.; Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn., and Asheville, N. C. The immediate object of the president is to attend the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, in whose work he always has shown a deep interest.

The train will arrive at Chattanooga at 8:30 tomorrow morning. Sunday will be spent at Chattanooga quietly and without public programme. The party will visit the battle grounds during the day, and the president will attend church in the evening. He will attend the firemen's convention Monday morning. The president and party will reach Washington on the return trip over the Southern railway at 6:30 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 10 and will leave half an hour later in a private car attached to a regular train over the Pennsylvania railroad for Jersey City en route to Oyster Bay.

Iglesias Released.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 6.—The libel case against Santiago Iglesias, president of the Federation of Workmen of Porto Rico, which was an outcome of his putting in circulation last month at Aguadilla a pamphlet in which he criticised and attacked the insular authorities, has been pigeonholed, and Iglesias has been liberated. Iglesias was arrested at Aguadilla and set free on $500 bail. His bondsmen have been released.

Evacuation of Martinique Possible.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The minister of colonies yesterday ordered the definite evacuation of the whole northern part of the island of Martinique. Decision regarding the south of the island is reserved, but it is expected that the inhabitants of that portion will remain unless the dormant volcanoes near by show signs of awakening. In this case an immediate and entire evacuation of the island will be ordered.

Marconi's Latest.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—It is reported here that a regular exchange of "marconigrams" is proceeding directly across Spain between the Italian warship Carlo Alberto, which is at Cadiz, Spain, and the wireless telegraph station at Poldhu, Cornwall, and that it is anticipated that a commercial line between Italy and England will soon be in operation.

Ants Drive Out Villagers.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The village of Ne[illegible] has been evacuated because myriads of ants invaded it.

MIMIC WAR ENDED.

Admiral Higginson's Fleet Ran Newport Defenses.

PRICE'S NECK STATION CAPTURED.

Final Operations of the War Game Took Place Along Rhode Island Coast—Two Hours of Hard Fighting.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—Admiral Higginson's fleet of battleships ran the forts defending Newport harbor at 10 o'clock last night and now lies at anchor off the torpedo station, and the mimic war is practically at an end. The secondary fleet of smaller vessels followed about half an hour later, after the fight was over.

Nearly the entire fleet under Rear Admiral Higginson made a demonstration yesterday afternoon against the army defenses on Narragansett bay, but did not attempt to come in to close quarters with any of the forts. A landing was effected, however, at Price's neck, where the searchlight and range station, on which the mortars at Fort Adams are sighted and fired, were put out of action for an hour. During that time the battleships Kearsarge and Alabama engaged Fort Wetherill, the cruisers Olympia and Brooklyn hammered Fort Greble in the west channel, while the battleships Massachusetts and Indiana and the monitor Puritan destroyed a signal station at the entrance of Seakonet river. After two hours of fighting the fleet drew offshore, where it assembled just before sunset for what at that time looked like a night attack.

The main point of the afternoon attack was at Price's neck, the object being to put that station out of action before the mortar batteries could be fired more than once or twice. This would give the larger vessels a chance to come up and engage the regular batteries. The task was a hard one in any case, but yesterday it was doubly so, for the air was like crystal, and the movement of the fleet could be watched at a great distance offshore. But under the rules Admiral Higginson was obliged to engage the Narragansett bay forts just as earnestly as he had done against those in Long Island sound and at New Bedford. He was unfortunate, however, in choosing the clearest day of the week. Still he went at it bravely, and the whole affair yesterday afternoon was well planned and carried through with determination.

The fleet was all the forenoon assembling about eight miles north of Block island, and when all the vessels had arrived there was a counsel of war on board the flagship. About 2 o'clock the ten largest vessels of the fleet separated into four squadrons, and, leaving the tugs out to sea, the attack was begun. The movement was spectacular and was witnessed by a large number of the special colony of Newport as well as those at Narragansett Pier.

To the east steamed the battleship Massachusetts, followed by the Indiana and the monitor Puritan. Toward the west and the Narragansett shore went the Brooklyn and Olympia, while straight into Price's neck came the Montgomery, followed by the Mayflower and Scorpion. The Kearsarge and Alabama held off until the attack developed.

The Montgomery was within two miles of Price's neck before she began firing at 2:25 o'clock, and she succeeded in getting in thirty or forty shots before the station obtained her range, and sixteen imaginary shells from the mortar battery at Fort Adams came tumbling down on her ten minutes later. The Mayflower came into action at 2:40, and five minutes later the mortars were again fired.

It is a question for the umpires to decide as to whether the fort was not demolished by the rapid firing guns of the ships before the mortars opened fire. At all events those on the ships kept right on, and at 3:15, after a furious cannonade by all three vessels, two small boats put off from the Montgomery and started for the shore. When about 200 yards off, two gatling guns, manned by Massachusetts heavy artillerymen, sputtered a few hundred shots, but the jackies kept right on, and at 3:35 the station was captured.

While this fight was going on the Massachusetts, Indiana and Puritan had gone well up the Seakonet river and put out of action a signal station on the western point. Over to the Narragansett shore the Brooklyn and Olympia worked along near the beach, keeping up a continual fire on Fort Greble.

After Price's neck station had been captured the Kearsarge and Alabama came up almost to Brenton's reef lightship and shelled Wetherill. Forts Adams and Wetherill replied slowly, but Fort Greble not at all. The bluejackets held Price's neck for one hour and then returned on board the Montgomery. At 5 o'clock the entire fleet withdrew and assembled about ten miles offshore just at sunset.

The training ship Newport, with a party of congressmen on board, was in the thick of the fight, but took no part.

Indicted For Tax Frauds.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—A special grand jury has returned indictments against Luke Wheeler, Captain Edward Williams, manager of the Masonic temple; James B. Hoy and John J. Healy, Jr., on charges of conspiracy to defraud the county out of hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxes.

A Big White Star Liner.

BELFAST, Sept. 6.—It is announced that the Harland-Wolff shipbuilding concern will shortly begin construction on a new White Star liner twenty feet longer than the Cedric, the largest liner afloat. She will be 720 feet long.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Steady Progress In Business—Agricultural Conditions a Little Off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Steady progress is reported in trade and industry. Distribution of merchandise is heavy, and a healthy tone is evident. Prices are well maintained by liberal consumption, which more than neutralizes the effect of enlarged facilities for production. Domestic conditions continue much better than those existing abroad, and home trade receives more attention than foreign commerce. Farm products have appreciated in value owing to less favorable weather, and producers will be fully compensated for any decrease in quantity by the higher quotations.

Better deliveries of coke and, in part, receipts of foreign material have lessened the pressure in the iron and steel industry, and the situation is a little less congested, while quotations in a few lines have weakened. Domestic demands are not decreasing much new business having been placed and home consumption will continue to call for imports on a large scale. Each week brings out new records of coke output, the upper and lower Connellsville regions together having surpassed 300,000 tons, and the holidays gave the railways an opportunity to relieve the congestion.

Agricultural conditions are less satisfactory, and, if the official estimate as to cotton is not exaggerated, the yield will not be large enough to sustain consumption at the present rate. Sharp advances in quotations will quickly curtail spinning, however, especially in foreign mills, which will adjust the relations of demand and supply. On the other hand, there is yet time for improvement on southern plantations, and better results may be secured from the second picking. Wheat is coming forward freely, though receipts do not equal the abnormally heavy movement a year ago, 6,070,542 bushels comparing with 7,445,923 a year ago.

Conference of Boer Sympathizers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A conference of Boer sympathizers representing German and Irish societies in Greater New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Providence and other cities has been held here for the purpose of considering the relief of the foreign soldiers of the Boer army who are now prisoners of war in the hands of the British. Much difficulty had been experienced by the various societies interested in ascertaining the exact number and location of the prisoners, but the missing information was supplied by a young Irishman named Michael F. Hearn of Westfield, Mass., who landed in Boston from Ceylon last week. A letter from Mr. Hearn was read giving the names of sixteen Irishmen, members of the Irish brigade, now confined at the prison camp at Ragama, Ceylon, and recommending how money should be forwarded to defray their expenses. Mr. George H. Schreiner, who acted as secretary of the conference, said the only foreigners who remained in the prison camps were the Americans and the Irish.

National Banks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—A statement prepared by the comptroller of the currency shows that from March 14, 1900, to Aug. 31, 1902, 1,141 national banks, with aggregate capital stock of $65,534,500, were organized. Of that number 146 associations, with aggregate capital of $10,585,000, were conversions of state banks; 351, with aggregate capital of $20,335,000, reorganizations of state and private banks, and 644, with aggregate capital of $34,614,500, primary organizations.

Gray Hair A Crime?

Thousands of men and women are turned out of positions and many fail to secure situations because their gray hairs make them look old. This need not be.

Hay's Hair-Health

makes age halt and keeps thousands in employment because it takes years from their apparent age. HAIR-HEALTH will positively restore gray, faded or bleached hair to its youthful color. It is not a dye. Its use cannot be detected. Equally good for men and women.

Gentlemen:—At forty my hair and mustache began turning gray. A friend on my road lost his place because his gray hair made him look older than he was. Profiting by his experience, I began using Hay's Hair-Health, with the result that I have the same dark-brown curly hair that I had at 21. Have held my position, although many younger men, whose only fault was their gray hair, have been dismissed. I thank you for my position.

EMINENT GERMAN DEAD.

Professor Virchow, Great Medical Discoverer.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—Professor Rudolf Virchow is dead here, aged nearly eighty-one years. One of the greatest medical discoverers of this or any other age, he spent nearly sixty years in adding to the sum of human knowledge. When, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday, statesmen and medical men of all the world united to give him an unparalleled ovation and Professor Virchow made a speech of two hours, tracing the development of pathological science, it was necessary for him to recount to a great extent his own achievements.

"The history of Professor Virchow's life and work," declared the London Times in this connection, "forms one of the greatest illustrations of the triumph achieved over every obstacle by genius manifested in infinite labor and guided by an absolute love of truth and by dauntless courage."

The history of Professor Virchow's life, from his birth, in 1821, as the son of a small shopkeeper and farmer in the village of Schivelbein, in Pomerania, has frequently been narrated. Until the age of thirteen he was educated at the Village of his native village. At seventeen he passed his "departing examination" at the Gymnasium of Koslin and immediately afterward proceeded to Berlin to study medicine. He graduated as doctor in 1848 and became assistant professor at the Berlin Charity hospital.

LEWIS VISITS MITCHELL.

Some Advantages Claimed as Result of West Virginia Strike.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 6.—T. L. Lewis, vice president of the United Mine Workers, who came from Virginia to hold a conference with President Mitchell, has returned south. Mr. Mitchell said Mr. Lewis' visit was with reference to the strike in Virginia.

President Mitchell says 700 men are affected by the settlement of the strike in the Pocahontas region. They were granted a semimonthly pay day, which the chief officer of the United Mine Workers thinks is a very important concession. About 20,000 miners are still out in the Kanawha, New River and Fairmount districts.

So far as the anthracite region is concerned President Mitchell says there is no change in the situation. The district officers continue to report that the strikers are remaining firm. At the offices of the coal companies it is claimed that the number of applicants for work is increasing every day and that the output from the washeries and mines in operation this week will be the largest since the strike began.

Crimes Act Denounced.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Sept. 6.—At the public meeting held here which was convened by the lord mayor of Dublin to protest against the recent proclamation of the crimes act in five Irish counties it was resolved to hold a demonstration in Phœnix park Sept. 14. The voting of this resolution was received with shouts of "We shall be bludgeoned, as in 1891." John Redmond, leader of the Irish party in the house of commons and chairman of the United Irish league, denounced the proclamation of the crimes act as a gross and wicked outrage issued at the whim of a Cabinet and a gang of absentee landlords.

An Exposition Ship.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 6.—A large ocean going steamer, the Oregon, is now being fitted up here for the purpose of taking a party of American manufacturers with exhibits on a six months' cruise, commencing Nov. 15, to Russia, China, Japan, the Philippines, the Straits Settlements, India, Mauritius, South Africa, Australia and the Hawaiian Islands. This, it is said, will be the forerunner of greater expansion to American commerce, being a unique and practical opportunity for buyers and sellers to become personally acquainted and discuss methods.

Rain Revives India.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The weekly official report received from the viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, says a general rain has fallen over practically the whole of India. Although it came too late to revive the crops in a few tracts, the rain has improved the agricultural prospects of the country immensely, and the past week has shown a decrease of one-fifth in the number of persons receiving relief, which now amounts to 450,000.

Cruiser to Be Sent to Haiti.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The navy department has decided to send one of the small cruisers or gunboats which are now engaged in the maneuvers to Haiti next week to relieve the cruiser Cincinnati, which has been at Cape Haitien for several days and previously had considerable active service on the Venezuelan coast. It is stated that either the Montgomery or the Panther probably will be sent.

New York Carpenters Win.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Brotherhood of Carpenters has won a complete victory, and by Monday next the 8,000 members in Manhattan borough will be back to work, with 50 cents a day added to their wages. The strike was begun last Tuesday for the enforcement of a demand previously made for 50 cents a day increase all around in the wages of journeymen carpenters.

Anglo-Chinese Treaty Signed.

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 6.—Sir James L. Mackay, the British tariff commissioner, and the Chinese commissioners have signed the commercial treaty between China and Great Britain, a new edict having been issued specifically allocating the surtax funds to provincial governors.

OUTBREAK IN LUZON

Rios, a Fanatic, Attacks a Town.

BUT IS SPEEDILY PUT TO FLIGHT.

Major Glenn of Water Cure Fame Restored to Duty—Applications For Electric Railway Franchise in Manila Being Considered.

MANILA, Sept. 6.—Rios, a fanatical leader of the irreconcilable natives in the province of Tayabas, Luzon, attacked the town of Laguimanoc Sept. 3 at the head of 300 natives and 100 men armed with bolos. The band wantonly killed two women and one girl and wounded several other persons. A detachment of the native constabulary arrived unexpectedly at Laguimanoc while Rios' men were still there. They attacked and routed the bandits, killing several of Rios' followers, and have rounded up 700 men, many of whom are suspected of complicity in the attack on Laguimanoc. The guilty ones among the 700 men will be picked out and the remainder set at liberty.

One of Rios' lieutenants who was captured said Rios was a direct descendant of God and that it was beyond the power of man to injure him.

The constabulary have also captured one of Rios' mountain strongholds. Four detachments of constabulary are now following the main band of the outlaws.

Major Edward F. Glenn of the Fifth infantry, who was tried by court martial for administering the water cure to natives, found guilty and sentenced to be suspended for one month and to forfeit $50 of his pay, has been restored to duty and ordered to return to his command at Bayambong, Luzon.

The United States civil commission is holding public hearings in the matter of the proposal to grant an electric street railroad franchise in Manila. Two applications for the franchise have already been made, and others are expected.

Governor Stone Would End Strike.

TAMAQUA, Pa., Sept. 6.—A dispatch from Harrisburg says that Governor Stone has fixed next Thursday to meet a committee appointed by the People's Alliance at Hazleton to discuss the best means of ending the anthracite coal strike. The governor said he would be glad to meet any and all persons who might want to see him on matters pertaining to the strike. The nonunion men in the Panther creek valley again went to work without an escort. Major Gearhart, in command of the troops, says that so long as the strikers do not interfere with the nonunion men he will not send any of his soldiers out on patrol duty. The troops are sending requisitions for winter clothing. The men are wearing khaki, but complain that they suffer from the cold while on duty at night.

Mother Shot Her Child.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The three-month-old child of Earl Underwood, a Groton farmer, was accidentally shot by its mother. A bullet from a rifle which Mrs. Underwood was carrying hit the child while it lay in its carriage in the Underwood home. The bullet passed through the child's mouth and broke through over the left eye. The child is still living and may recover. The rifle was first used by the farmer to kill a chicken, and Mrs. Underwood was returning it to the house when it was accidentally discharged.

Pope Approves Farley's Nomination.

ROME, Sept. 6.—The pope has confirmed the appointment of Bishop John M. Farley as archbishop of New York, in succession to Archbishop Corrigan, and that of Bishop George Montgomery of Los Angeles as coadjutor to Archbishop Riordan of San Francisco, the latter with the right of succession. In approving Bishop Farley's nomination the pope said, "I hope I have satisfied the Catholics of New York." Archbishop Farley is expected to visit Rome after his consecration.

A Cotton Mill Merger.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Sept. 6.—A report is current here that sixty southern cotton mills have been pledged by their controlling interests to enter a merger. The prime movers in the organization are said to be eastern capitalists who have been in Huntsville for several days proposing to underwrite the amalgamation. Sixty mills, according to report, have accepted the plans of the merger, and two have refused to enter into the agreement.

Connaughts to Visit India.

SIMLA, India, Sept. 6.—At a meeting of the council the viceroy, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, announced that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught would represent King Edward and Queen Alexandra, respectively, at the Delhi coronation durbar, the king being unable to absent himself from England long enough to enable him to be personally crowned at Delhi.

Potato Crop Ruined.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 6.—It has been reported by officials of Cornell agricultural department that one-half of the potato crop of New York state would be totally ruined as the result of blight. The wet weather is held responsible for the result. Central New York farmers will suffer the greatest loss from this cause.

Russian Prisoners Escape.

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 6.—During the midday exercises at the prison here twelve political prisoners threw a cloth over the head of the guard and made good their escape. They have not yet been rearrested.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; warmer; light to fresh northeast winds, shifting to southeast.

BOROUGH TAX RATE.

The property owners of North Plainfield are today confronted by a serious state of affairs. The new tax rate for that borough has just been fixed and it shows an increase of sixteen points over last year. The new tax rate will be $2.58 on the $100. This year's rate in Plainfield has been fixed at $2.50 on $100, eight points lower than the tax rate in North Plainfield.

Compare the city and the borough. In what has the tax payer of North Plainfield the advantage over the tax payer in Plainfield? Nothing. The city tax payer has the advantage of a sewer system, a paid fire department, a public library, a far larger police department and a score of minor considerations and yet he is going to pay more money. Certainly it looks serious for North Plainfield.

Do you remember what the advocates of the Greater Plainfield project said? They predicted that the tax rate in North Plainfield was bound to go above that in the city and they told why. Their predictions have been only too true. And the worst of it all is that there is not the slightest chance of the tax rate going down.

It will pay you, tax payer in North Plainfield, to stop a moment and see where the trouble is. If you analyze the tax rate in the borough you will find that the tax for borough purposes, as fixed by the Mayor and Council, has actually been reduced. It's lower by two points than it was before. The borough officials have used every possible means to cut down expenses and thus keep down the rate. Next year, it will be necessary to help pay for the new engine house. No one doubts that it was needed but still it must be paid for. Then look at the school tax. That has risen from .78 to .97. When the schools open next week, there will not be room enough to accommodate all the borough children and a new school is talked of as the only remedy. What will become of the tax rate then?

In comparing the tax rates in city and borough, have you noticed the difference in the county's shares? If North Plainfield was in Union county today, that difference of eleven points would bring the borough tax rate down to $2.47. And yet some people try to figure out that the tax rate would jump up if North Plainfield transferred her allegiance from Somerset to Union. It is a wonderfully strong argument in favor of annexation and one which is going to vitally affect the property owners. While the wealthy man deosn't mind, the property owner of moderate circumstances has to count his taxes and a material difference in figures is going to have its influence with him. Sentiment goes to the wall when confronted by the all important question of dollars and cents.

Such is the situation today. If sewers are introduced in the borough as they certainly must be, what will become of the tax rate then? Who will buy property in North Plainfield when he can obtain it so close by with more municipal advantages and a less tax rate. It's a serious thing.

Then there's another thing which must not be forgotten. Plainfield is growing every year. So is Union county. As the running expenses increase, the taxable values do likewise. The past year has seen a growth in Plainfield more than four times that of all Somerset county. North Plainfield has been standing still. It has few stores, no large manufacturies, only residence properties and the present state of affairs will not encourage their increase. There is little prospect of growth under the present conditions in the future. The inevitable result will be a continual rise in the tax rate. Just consider these facts, borough voter, and remember what it means when you vote on the question of changing the county line. Do you want a lower tax rate? Then vote to become a part of Union county.

WOODHULL & MARTIN.

LARGE CROP OF CHESTNUTS

SEASON HAS BEEN FAVORABLE FOR ALL KINDS OF NUTS.

Generally Agreed That New Jersey's Crop of Chestnuts Will be Phenominally Large.

It is generally agreed in all sections of New Jersey where the chestnut tree flourishes that the crop of nuts this year will be phenomenally large, and that they will be developed and free from worms. The season has been an ideal one for the development of all kinds of nuts which grow in this State. Just enough moisture, cool nights and slow development tend to make chestnuts fat and sweet, and the same weather conditions are favorable to the full development of walnuts, hazel nuts, hickory nuts and butter nuts, as well as in the inferior chinquapins of South Jersey and the beechmast, which ordinarily cuts a small figure in this State. The smallest nut of all is the buckwheat, and good reports of this crop are returned from the upper counties. This is probably the first time that the buckwheat kernel has ever made a noise like a nut in a newspaper, but really it is more important in New Jersey than the beechnut.

Chestnuts are not regarded now as they were a score of years ago in the State. The crop is no longer free for all, but is regularly harvested by land owners, who in recent years have realized the importance of a product which commands from $2 to $2.50 per bushel. Farmers in the vicinity of cities no longer permit parties of men and boys to thrash the boughs of the trees with poles or bruise the trunks with field stones to shake down the unripe nuts.

Instead, they give some attention to cultivating and thinning out their chestnut groves and pay particular attention to the big and symmetrical trees which get the sun and air in pasture lots. Just before the nuts ripen, the grass, underbrush and dead leaves are removed from under the trees, and in some cases muslin or duck sheets are spread to catch the nuts. The best results are obtained near the cities, because there the gray and red squirrels and chipmunks are generally exterminated, and the only watch that need be maintained is upon human trespassers.

Five cents a quart for chestnuts is about the lowest price the Jersey farmers will accept in the best of seasons, and at times they have received $3 a bushel. The average price is $2, taking one season with another.

DUNELLEN.

A horse, belonging to H. C. Boice, a local milkman, caused a great deal of trouble and considerable amusement by balking in front of the 7:40 train yesterday morning just as it was about to pull out. All the ordinary and extraordinary efforts were tried to dislodge the animal without effect as he had planted his feet with the intention of staying a while. After all sorts of devices had been tried and the animal still decided that he liked that particular spot better than any other, he was unhitched from the wagon and pushed from the track by main force. The 7:40 train did not depart on time.

Harry Snyder, an employe at the Pond Tool Works, was so unfortunate as to catch his hand in some machinery early yesterday morning. The nail was torn off from one finger and the others were badly bruised. The man was sent home where his injuries were dressed by Dr. Brakeley. Snyder is one of the night firemen at the factory.

The Park Tennis Club will play a match with the Bronx Tennis Club, of Plainfield, at the latter's courts this afternoon. The local club will be represented by H. Craig, Herbert Richardson and C. D. Boice.

Miss Emma Craig and Miss Louise Brakeley will return today from Fremley Farms where they have been staying.

Mrs. A. N. Randolph returned home yesterday from Asbury Park, where she has been spending a week.

No meeting of the checker club was held last evening owing to the absence of one of the members.

The Dunellen A. C. will not play a game today and it is probable no more this season.

The Y. M. C. baseball team will play a practice game of baseball this afternoon.

Miss Ada Roelfson, of Bloomfield, has been visiting Miss Mabel Lewis.

William Giddes and Neil Huff have entered a night school at Plainfield.

G. T. Schenck and family will move into their new house this week.

R. L. Case, of Somerville, visited friends in town yesterday.

Oliver Dumont has been visiting in North Branch this week.

Regular services will be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church today.

O. E. Meeker is now employed in a Plainfield cigar store.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Saturday afternoon next the local ball team will play a benefit game on the home grounds for the benefit of Mrs. Frentz, widow of the late Louis Frentz, who for years was a member and well known player on the different ball teams the town has supported. Mr. Frentz died suddenly last spring while working at Englewood. Mrs. Frentz being left with three little ones to bring up. As soon as possible she removed to New Providence, the home of her girlhood, and secured a position in a laundry at Summit. In some way her hand was caught in the machinery and injured so badly that it was necessary to amputate it, all but the thumb. The companions of her husband, hearing of her misfortune, have arranged the benefit on Saturday as a testimonial of their sympathy. Tickets will be on sale Monday and but few will refuse to aid the worthy cause.

The local ball team journeys to Plainfield this afternoon where it will try conclusions with its opponents of Labor Day, the Y. M. C. A., champions of the City League. One of the largest crowds that has ever followed the team on its out of town games went with the boys to help root out the victory.

The recent attempt to burglarize the home of Mrs. Kyte, in the borough, has again raised the agitation among the residents for some kind of protection against the midnight invaders who are using Fanwood borough as a stamping ground.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be Sunday-school, 9:30; morning preaching by pastor, subject, "Outside the Camp," 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7; no evening preaching service.

The Township Committee met in the Town Rooms last night. A number of bills were paid and other routine business transacted.

Samuel Johnanson and Samuel MacCauley are both riding new Olive wheels purchased through the agency of Roy Day.

John B. Stillger and family, of Roselle, have been spending a few days at the home of Mr. Stillger's parents.

Mrs. Isaac Oliver, of Kearney, has been spending two weeks with Mrs. John Flannery, of Westfield avenue.

Rev. Mr. Glazer will lead the Saturday evening prayer meeting in the Methodist church tonight.

Mrs. George Stillger has returned from a visit of several days with friends in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Someone who has a taste for peaches helped himself to the luscious fruit in Thomas VanNest's yard, Wednesday night. It was while the peach festival of Camp No. 1, P. O. of A., was in progress in Washington Hall. As a result of the mistake, the trees in the VanNest yard are minus their fruit.

David Richards is nursing his shoulder which he dislocated by falling from a scaffold at the steel works, near Dunellen, last Tuesday. The bone was reset by Dr. Nelson.

"Consecration" will be the subject of the pastor's sermon at the Baptist church, tomorrow morning. In the evening he will speak on the subject, "Conviction."

Miss Sadie Payne, of Jersey City, has returned home after a visit with her uncle, M. W. Payne, of Clinton avenue.

M. W. Payne has taken the contract for two houses at Westfield. The cellars of both are nearly completed.

Mrs. Joseph Horn, of Archibald, Pa., is visiting her brother-in-law, Robert Horn, Sr., of Church street.

SAVED THE CAPITAL.

Emergency Companies Organized on Spur of Moment.

Their Services Recognized by Secretary of War and President Lincoln — Confederates Afraid of Them.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THIS is the story of two heroes. They are almost the sole survivors of as brave a band as ever defended any lofty principle. Their deeds have not yet been blazoned upon shaft, architrave or monument, but history shall not permit them to be forgotten.

Seeds of dissension had been sown for many years. Ambitions of unworthy men cultivated and developed them. The fructification of treason marked the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln. The national capital was a hotbed of secession. The government itself was not loyal to the people which sustained it. The executive departments were depleted by the resignations of clerks who went forth to aid those who would destroy the government.

THOMAS H. SYPHERD.

Lieut. Gen. Scott, venerable and feeble, was one of the few upon whom President Lincoln could positively rely. The old general received reliable information about the middle of April, 1861, that on a certain night an attack would be made upon this city by confederates then encamped at Alexandria, Va., only five miles distant. The city was practically defenseless. There was a battalion of men at the arsenal, but their commander was suspected of disloyalty, and Gen. Scott could not trust him. Afterwards he demonstrated his loyalty. President Lincoln was greatly disturbed, and Gen. Scott could devise no defense until soldiers from northern states might arrive, and they were exceedingly slow, their movements having been delayed by treasonable artifices.

Gen. Scott at last devised the plan which saved the capital, and probably prevented the immediate recognition of the confederacy by foreign governments. The old general sent for Ward H. Lamon, formerly Lincoln's law partner, but then the newly appointed United States marshal for the District of Columbia. He requested Lamon to organize, arm and equip a military force to be known as the marshal's guard, and to report to army headquarters for orders.

Marshal Lamon went to old Willard's hotel, selected ten reliable men, invited them into a private room where he unfolded the plan of the lieutenant general, and they heartily approved the plan. Each one of them agreed to select ten other reliable men and assemble at the hotel at eight o'clock that night. Lamon secured the keys to Willard hall, an adjunct of the hotel, and at eight o'clock 100 determined men assembled. Lamon had made requisition on the war department for arms, ammunition and sabers. The men were told the purpose of the gathering; they accepted arms and solemnly vowed to stand together for the defense of Washington until the long-expected troops should arrive. Lamon offered the command to James W. Nye, who declined it, saying that Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, had just arrived, and that he was a military man of experience.

Requesting the men to await his return, Lamon went at once to Clay's room, stated the object of his visit, the capital's peril, Scott's desire, and then, without waiting to hear more, Clay ran to his trunk, took from it his old uniform, sword, hat and sash, put off his traveling clothes, and said: "I came here ready for service. This uniform I wore in the Mexican war. This sword shall always be found flashing beneath the stars and stripes while I live."

They returned to the hall, where Clay, in uniform, made a speech which electrified the men. The organization was completed at once, and Gen. Butterfield, of New York, assumed the duties of orderly sergeant and drill master. Within 24 hours the command was enlarged, until 310 men were on duty guarding the white house, the various executive departments and all of the bridges approaching the city.

Senator-elect James H. Lane, of Kansas, was invited to join the command, but declined, preferring to raise a separate company. He had no difficulty in organizing a battalion of 400 men, whom he called the frontier guards, because nearly all of them were from the far western states. The commands acted in concert and with great determination. Every day and particularly every night it was anticipated that confederates would attempt to enter the city. Lamon is recorded as having said: "No more timely and effective service was at any time done during the war. Not one of the men slept in a bed from the time of his enlistment until his discharge. There was never banded together a braver, more determined, or desperate set of men."

Thomas H. Sypherd and Israel S. Smith, clerks in the treasury department, are surviving veterans of those organizations; Mr. Sypherd served in Lane's command, and Mr. Smith in Clay's company. Both of them have passed their seventieth year, but they are hale and hearty to-day. Sypherd says:

"Gen. Lane was just a little more thoughtful of his men than Clay was. We were sworn into service as emergency men, but we had no official connection with the records of the war department. Gen. Lane looked far into the future and saw that a time would come when each of us would be proud to have an official record of service, and when it might prove to be helpful to us. We were sworn in by Col. David Hunter, but Lane himself mustered us out in regular order. He gave each of us a parchment discharge containing the thanks of the secretary of war, approved by President Lincoln." Mr. Sypherd's discharge reads as follows:

"I beg to extend to you, and through you to the men under your command, the assurance of my high appreciation of the very prompt and patriotic manner in which your company was organized for the defense of the capital, and the very efficient services rendered by it during the time of its existence." Signed, "Simon Cameron, secretary of war;" and countersigned, "Approved, A. Lincoln."

Then follows the discharge on muster out:

"By virtue of authority in me vested as captain of the Frontier Guards, I, James H. Lane, do hereby certify that Thomas H. Sypherd, a member of said company, served his country in defense of the national capital at a time of great peril, when threatened by hordes of traitors; said service commencing on the 18th day of April, 1861, and ending on the date hereof. I also, by virtue of said authority, do hereby honorably discharge the said Thomas H. Sypherd from the service of the United States.

"Given under my hand at the East Room of the Executive Mansion, at Washington City, this 3d day of May, 1861. J. H. Lane, captain. J. B. Stockton, second lieutenant."

"This document proved to be of practical value to me a few years ago when I wanted to be reinstated in the civil service under the old soldier rule," says Mr. Sypherd. "When I showed this discharge to Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt he at once said: 'That document thanking you for your service, over the signature of the secretary of war, with the approval of President Lincoln, is good enough for me.' On account of this discharge, I was restored to the desired clerkship in the civil service which had been taken from me for political reasons."

Mr. Smith says: "One of the most important decisions reached at one of our first meetings was that we should not have uniforms. Gen. Clay insisted that we be uniformed. Gen. Lane made a speech in which he stated that if we were uniformed the enemy would know our exact number; a fact which we did not want disclosed. This statement settled the matter and we were not uniformed. Consequently every night we were taken out for drill, and separated into small squads. People saw us marching in all parts of the city. The enemy multiplied our numbers, as we wanted them to do. Some time after the war was over Marshal Kane, of Baltimore, said to Ward Lamon: 'If I had known that you had no more than 500 men under your command I would have captured Washington at that time. We understood in Baltimore that you had not less than 5,000 men, and that your companies were gaining recruits all the time.'

ISRAEL S. SMITH.

"So you see," continued Mr. Smith, "not only our numbers, but our ruse coupled with it, saved the capital. This city was surrounded by the enemy. You know the Sixth Massachusetts had to fight its way through the streets of Baltimore. Other regiments had to come by way of Annapolis and march across Maryland. Our little bands met the Sixth Massachusetts and escorted that regiment to the capitol rotunda, where a grand parade was given by that organization. The loyal people began to breathe more freely, and our little bands felt somewhat relieved of the tension. But not until about 10,000 troops were here did we disband, or give up our duties."

These survivors of the emergency companies are proud of their service which lasted from April 16 to May 3, 1861, and they have reason to be, for their service was even more important than that of "that little band of Spartans which, in a mountain pass, withstood whole armies."

VERMONT'S PLIGHT.

Result of Tuesday's Voting May Result In Election Law Changes.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 6.—As a result of the failure of any candidate for governor of Vermont in Tuesday's balloting to obtain an election agitation is developing to have the present election laws of the state radically altered, so that the present system, which requires a candidate to get a majority of the entire vote cast, will be done away with. In addition to the failure of the electors to choose a governor and lieutenant governor a number of towns are left without representation in the legislature, which in the present campaign against prohibition may have an important effect when that body meets, providing the vacant seats are not filled in the meantime.

Vermont is one of the few states still clinging to this majority system. Hitherto the legislators have always resisted the attempts of those at Montpelier who desired a system similar to that in Massachusetts and other states.

In the general assembly of 1900 Representative Fleetwood of Norristown attempted to have a bill passed to authorize the choice of candidates by a plurality vote if a majority was not secured on the first ballot. Mr. Fleetwood's bill referred to representatives only, and, although it was ably championed by him, it met defeat.

MATOS CONFIDENT.

Revolutionary Leader In Venezuela Will Move on Caracas.

BARCELONA, Venezuela, Sept. 6.—A correspondent visited General Matos, the revolutionary leader, recently at his headquarters at Zaraza, about a hundred miles southeast of Barcelona. The general was full of hope. He said he had ordered all his military chiefs to concentrate their forces and march in the direction of Alta Gracia, about fifty miles southwest of Barcelona, whence the troops will move later on Caracas.

Generals Riera, Mendoza, Batalla and Sanchez, with about 12,000 men, recently left San Carlos, distant 150 miles from Alta Gracia, as a result of this order, but they cannot reach the latter place before a fortnight has elapsed, and therefore the decisive battle cannot take place for some time to come.

President Castro is still inactive near Coumare, about thirty-five miles south of Caracas.

General Domingo Monagas, son of former President General D. T. Monagas, the liberator of slaves in Venezuela, commander of the principal army of General Matos, the leader of the revolution, died Sept. 1 at La Pasona of stomach trouble. His death is a great loss to the revolutionary cause.

Land In Scranton Settles.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Another settling of the surface of the Tripp park section of the city has occurred. About twenty-five acres went down from one to five feet. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad tracks settled five feet in the center of a fifty yard disturbance, and all trains had to be run around the Keyser valley branch. The settling results from the caving in of abandoned mine workings in the old Tripp slope.

Sultan May Settle.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 6.—The United States minister, John G. A. Leishman, who intended to start with his family on a vacation, has postponed his departure from Constantinople until Monday in consequence of a request of the sultan to see the minister before the latter left. All the recent claims of the United States are in course of settlement.

A Young Man on the Woman Question

IT is not often that young men have serious views on the woman question. The individual girl occupies their minds quite sufficiently, but woman in the abstract, her rights and her wrongs—no. Not till man is married and has been duly disciplined or otherwise does he, as a rule, begin to meditate on woman the sex.

When, therefore, an intelligent, good looking, marriageable and lively young man evolves out of his own head "views" on the woman question, he makes a new departure and a record for youthful masculinity. He ought to be welcomed and encouraged to keep on thinking. Perhaps his example will inspire other youths to do likewise. In a private letter to a woman friend the young man, who thinks he may be called Mr. Smith for short, says:

"You know I see a good deal of domestic life. I am, I believe, as familiar with the inside of a home as are most folk of the 'sterner sex,' which expression makes me tired sometimes. On our side I see too often things which do not suit me. How have you found it, speaking for women? It has seemed to me that women seldom get the credit they should for their part of the work of the world.

"Now I come to what has been in my head, and it is concerning this 'love, honor and obey' business in the marriage ceremony. No real man would take advantage of such an unreasonable vow, but, then, real men are too scarce. Why should one of the male sex be loved if he is not lovable, honored if he is not honorable or obeyed if he is wrong, or obeyed at all?"

Such are young Mr. Smith's conclusions in the matter of wives obeying husbands or even promising to do so. He also has opinions as to women earning money and engaging in business.

MR. SMITH AND HIS LIVE GRANDMOTHER.

He has a grandmother, a noble lady of that supposed new woman kind whose real prototype dates back to Solomon's wise woman of the Bible. Young Mr. Smith writes:

"My grandmother is one who has been obliged to work for her living ever since she was a child. She is now seventy-four and says she will work and enjoy her tasks until she dies. She has been a business woman all her life. She is a good woman, and her affection for the family has been of the kind that both speaks and works. Yet she never obeyed anything but her own sense of right and wrong."

Once more our young Mr. Smith has "views," this time on the matter of the ballot for women. On this point he writes:

"Does it seem to you that woman suffrage will extend over the United States in our time? Is it growing? I hope so. If women, on whom devolves almost the whole work of forming the character of the nation, have no right to vote, then who should have? But since they cannot now vote it would be a good plan for them to keep track of public events and talk these over with their husbands and with them decide who should be elected to office. Again, though, a man likes to be considered a walking encyclopedia of knowledge.

"In this place, however, I have met a most independent lot of women, especially in respect to keeping a man up to the scratch—as we all have to be kept, if the truth were known. Unemployed men here, instead of merely killing time, get up and hustle in the house, which does not hurt them, if they can't earn enough to do otherwise.

"Very likely some of this will make you smile, but just go ahead and smile. I am not sensitive. Or does it seem odd coming from a bachelor of twenty-seven long years' experience? Still, I have seen much of the home side of life."

One cannot help concluding that these just and admirable sentiments toward woman have developed in young Mr. Smith's mind largely as the result of his having a live grandmother. If so, would that there were more live grandmothers!

MARY EDITH DAY

Stairs of Sand

By

ERNEST DE LANCY PIERSON.

Copyright, 1901, by Street & Smith.

As these bitter thoughts surged through his mind, unable longer to control the hatred the sight of this man had summoned up, he ran forward with outstretched hands as if bent on a summary vengeance for his sufferings and wrongs. But before he had reached the gate of door in the wall, Ellison, all unconscious of danger, had slipped through and closed it behind him.

Job arrived just in time to see his enemy disappear among the shrubbery of the garden. He turned away with clenched hands and a muttered exclamation of baffled rage. Then he looked up at the white walls of the house that glimmered through the trees. "Why, bless me, it is James Ellison's house!" for he had often of late visited the place secretly, though he saw it from a different point of view.

"James Ellison's house, and this man evidently lives here," and then his memory went back to the day he had picked up that curiously written bit of paper in the drawing-room of The Grange at Exton. As he stood there, peering through the slats of the door, he saw the man he was interested in appear at the further end of the garden and then enter the door of a small pavilion.

A friend of Ellison's, perhaps a relative, for he had noticed the two men resembled each other.

"Well, I know where to find him," said Job to himself, when he turned away. "For the present I will busy myself finding out all about him. He has not turned honest since those old days, and I may trap him yet. Ah!" with a sigh, "how I wish that my work was done, and that I was at rest," and with bowed head he walked away from the place.

CHAPTER XXIII.

FACE TO FACE.

James Ellison, entering his private office one morning, was surprised to find a small, gray-haired man occupying the principal chair. The intruder had placed himself before the desk, and, at the sound of steps, he turned his head:

"Well, what is it?"

"I am surprised at your impudence," said Ellison, as he recognized his unwelcome visitor as Hendricks. "How on earth did you manage to get in here when the doors were locked?" and, as he said this, he made a motion toward the electric bell in the wall.

"Before you do that," said Job, with a warning gesture, "just wait and hear what I have to say. I won't detain you long, and I might perhaps interest you."

Ellison stepped back and did not attempt to ring the bell, but he regarded the other with an unwelcome eye.

"I suppose you know," said Job, coolly, "that Barnett is free, and may arrive here at any moment."

"I don't believe it!" exclaimed Ellison. "I won't believe it!"

"Ho, ho! You have betrayed yourself unwillingly," said Hendricks.

Ellison drew himself up with a scornful air.

"Fellow, do you know to whom you are speaking?"

"Unfortunately I do and am not proud of the fact."

Ellison advanced toward him, his right hand extended in a threatening way, as if he would do injury to the little man seated calmly at the desk.

"Do you know," said Ellison, "that I have but to open a window and call to the police, in order to have you arrested?"

"I see no particular reason why you should not do it," with a smile. "Do so by all means, my dear fellow."

Ellison allowed his hands to fall, and then, surprised at the reception of his threats, took a chair not far from where Job was seated.

"What do you want, anyway?" he asked, after a silence.

"Very little. But why don't you summon in your policemen if you want to, Mr. James Ellison?"

The other was silent.

"Because there are others beside myself who have reasons to fear a visit of the police. Now, then, Ellison, I believe you said that you were not unwilling that your daughter should marry Richard Barnett? Am I right?"

Ellison twisted uneasily in his chair:

"Of course, I said that, but since the young schoolteacher is under such a shadow—why, of course—"

"Well, the shadow has been removed, if that is the only thing that worries you."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Ellison in amazement.

"Exactly what I say. Let me tell you that he may be released at any moment," said Job, "since the man who is guilty has confessed."

"You seem to know a great deal about this case," stammered Ellison.

"Much more, perhaps, than you would care that I should know. The person who calls himself your brother is also involved."

"My brother—absurd!"

"Not so ludicrous as you imagine, I shall deal with him later."

"You seem to have arranged things to suit yourself," sneeringly. "I am astonished at your impudence, considering that you are a proscribed man."

"That may be true," receiving the statement coolly, "but I have a little business to transact on my own account. Now young Barnett is free, or soon will be, will you agree that he is to marry your—well, the young lady who is called Grace Ellison?"

Job watched the other as he paced up and down the room. He finally came to a standstill near where the little man was seated.

"Why are you so much interested?"

"That matters not; what I want is your agreement in writing. They love each other, and so should be allowed to marry. While they might be able to dispense with your blessing, as the ostensible father, your consent would not be out of place."

Ellison looked at his companion doubtfully, as if wondering what he could do in case of a refusal.

"You know I never had anything but a friendly feeling for the young man," he said savagely.

"Such being the case, all you have to do is to write a line giving your consent. Here is a piece of paper, and here is the pen," and, picking the articles up from the desk before him, he held them out.

"Why shouldn't I agree?" was the thought that was running through Ellison's mind. "I can have this fellow arrested before he has a chance to leave the house—and he looks dangerous." So he picked up the pen and wrote as directed.

Job looked the slip over, suggested some changes, and then, as if satisfied, placed it away in his coat pocket.

"I hope it suits you," said Ellison, mockingly.

"Quite so, quite so." And then, as he rose to his feet: "And now I have a few parting words to James Ellison."

"I am listening."

"You were interested in keeping the young man in prison."

"I assure you that you are entirely wrong," with an air of deep indignation.

"Oh, there were few things that you have done of late that I was not acquainted with," pursued the other, slowly and calmly. "You refused to help him out of his trouble, and but for this confession, which I own I helped to secure, he might be languishing in prison yet. At first you showed a disposition to help him, but other interests intervened."

Timely Topics from the World of Sports and Athletes

Will the champion Pittsburg team of the National league succeed in winning 100 games of baseball this season? That is the query that is now agitating the fans. The pennant race has lost much of its interest by reason of the great gap the Pirates opened between themselves and the other teams in the eight-club circuit of the old baseball organization. Little is left to the followers of the game to become excited over except speculation as to the percentage of the champions when the season's schedule of 140 games is completed. When August opened with Pittsburg having a record of over 60 games won the close followers of the national game freely predicted that the champions would furnish a record this year by capturing 100 games.

Records for the league for 26 years show that no champion team has won 100 games in one season under the eight-club circuit plan. Three times has this feat been accomplished when the circuit consisted of 12 clubs. Boston in 1892, Boston again in 1898 and Brooklyn the following year have that distinction. When a club has a percentage of over .750 in mid August, as had Pittsburg, it is time to begin to figure that the team has a good chance to earn the coveted 100 victory mark.

Everybody who has watched the work of the Pittsburg pitchers this season feels confident that the twirlers will not let down. They can pitch winning ball against almost any team and when the well balanced crew under Manager Freddie Clarke is hitting the pitchers can afford to take a rest. It seems almost logical to say that as the Pirates have played so they will continue to the close of the season. If they finish the season with a percentage of .700 or thereabouts President Dreyfuss, of the club, doubtless will show his appreciation of the champions' efforts by adding some welcome checks to the season's pay roll.

Because Pittsburg is making such a runaway race of the pennant struggle, some critics overlook the good work of the Chicagos in 1880, when they made their record of .798, taking 67 games and losing 17. Capt. Anson merely remarks that had the Chicagos in that year had a schedule of as many games as Pittsburg has this season, they undoubtedly would have taken over 100 victories.

When the limit in the season was 150 games, Boston twice took 102 contests. It must not be overlooked, however, in discussing these victories, past and present, that when Boston and Brooklyn gained their honors they had harder fights on than Pittsburg has had this season. It will be contended by the critics that while no disparagement is intended for Pittsburg, it would be a much different proposition for the Pirates to take 100 games in the National league this season if the raids of the American league on the playing strength of the old organization had not so palpably weakened some of the teams. Pittsburg was lucky and held together its fine team, while rivals in the National league were hard hit.

That necessity is the mother of invention has been strikingly illustrated by a throng of Notre Dame university students who spent their vacation at Sister Lakes, Mich. Among the number were the varsity football team's veteran quarter back, several candidates for the track team and a chattering group of Mexican, South American and West Indian students whose parents had sent them to the Indiana school to acquire fluency in English and brush up their educations. In charge of Brothers Hughes and Vital these boys were quartered at the Hotel Olena at Breezy Beach, and when the novelty of fishing and tramping over the country, making "the welkin" ring with the Notre Dame college yells had worn off, the youths naturally sought recreation in mild forms of physical exercise.

"Let's put the shot," said one Mexican boy. But the big lead missile had been left behind at Notre Dame. One of the lads, quick to discover a substitute, found a granite bowlder that weighed close to the required amount and smoothed it off so that it could be used for the conventional shot. To add to the pleasure of putting the shot, the boy suggested that the exercise be taken when the whole crowd of students was in swimming. "Then you water rats may dive for the shot after it is hurled," he said. The "natives" had no end of fun watching the antics of the brown-skinned lads, who, while they kept up a running fire of Spanish expletives, put the improvised shot, dove for it and then followed these playful tactics by having a session at "diary spilling." The diaries were really very unsinkable punts built by friends and launched in the lake. But as all of the students could swim no apprehension was caused when there was a sudden capsizing in the middle of one of the several boats.

No matter how hot the day the football squad—and it is safe to say that not one of the boys of Spanish descent will ever make the varsity team—goes out under the trees while the quarter back and some of the athletic standbys of the varsity practiced punting with the boys. The pigskin got many a ducking in the lake, but that did not dampen the ardor of the boys if it did nearly spoil the leather.

"Pat O'Dea used to kick a hole in a brand new intercollegiate football when he was training us and coaching our punters," said the quarter back, "but I have never been able to make a break in the pigskin. The Mexicans are not good punters evidently, for they have not taken kindly to this form of exercise."

The boys improvised basket ball games, using old fruit crates and baskets for the goals; felled little hickory trees and made parallel bars, rigged up other gymnasium apparatus, and all from the materials at hand in the neighboring timber groves. With few tools they did as well that the farmers were moved to loan them plenty of tools. "They did everything in the athletic line before they finished their vacations but play golf," said a Chicagoan who was in hopes that they might conclude to lay out a golf links and start the fever in Van Buren county, Michigan.

It must have cost the Fords, father and sons and daughter, a few pangs of anguish to make a last visit to their old Kentucky home—Castleton stock farm, recently. For years this magnificent estate of 612 acres has been famous for the thoroughbred racehorses it has turned out for the big tracks, and rich men who, like George Gould, could not resist the temptation to turn from assiduous cultivation of stocks and bonds for the little sprouts called coupons, have coveted it.

Andrew J. Ford had this fine property, but relinquished title to it to his sons Stuart Ford, E. W. Ford and a daughter in Richmond.

W. C. Whitney, the multi-millionaire whose influence both in the American and English turf world for two seasons has been phenomenal, thought it would be a good stroke of policy to get the farm. He made a trip to Kentucky and fell in love with the place. So soon as he could get his agent free from his task of looking up $50,000 two-year-olds and eligibles for the greatest stakes of this and the old country, he directed the man to "dicker" for the Castelton stud.

An offer of $85,000 for the place was accepted by the Ford heirs and the turf world was apprised of the purchase of the farm by Mr. Whitney. But the latter rejuvenated Horse Haven at Saratoga—charged three dollars admission to the race track and courted financial disaster for his venture in the eyes of the critics—and nothing more was heard from his Kentucky stock farm.

In casting about to find a place for some of the many horses Mr. Whitney had bought the turf writers finally remembered Castleton. But Mr. Whitney had not succeeded in getting possession or title to the place. Trustees of the estate recently filed suit against the heirs to show cause why the sale should not be consummated and the matter was adjusted in the Lexington courts the other day. "It will not be many years before the eastern millionaires get possession of all the old stock farms of the blue grass country, where in the land of sentiment and chivalry the breeders of the best racers the country ever knew are gradually getting swallowed up in the contest of 'the survival of the rich,'" is the way one old turfman put it.

A Puzzle to Electricians.

Day messages by wireless telegraphy require much greater transmitting power than night messages. Day signals utterly failed to reach Marconi at 700 miles, although a night message was successfully sent more than 1,550 miles, and a night signal more than 2,000 miles. It is supposed that sunshine exerts a diselectrifying influence upon the aerial wires.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The High Bridge Gazette, of this week, in speaking of the baseball game played Labor Day between the High Bridge and Safe Works teams, in which the latter was defeated by a score of 12 to 0, says, "The team of the Hibbard Rodman-Ely Safe Company, of Plainfield, played here on Monday and was one of the easiest propositions that the locals tackled this year. Their fame had preceded them and every one feared that with Burns in the box it was all up with High Bridge, Well, Burns was in the box but he did not make good." The paper then continues to give a detailed account of the game. It also states "for the visitors the fielding of Enright and Cooney was very good, but the work of the balance of the team was not only a disapointment to the High Bridge rooters, but also to the large delegation that accompanied them here."

GOLF.

The events on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course today will include the weekly competitions for the Boys' and Golf Committee cups, play for the Ackerman cup, women's competition, and the regular putting and approaching contest for the Schoonmaker cups. The team will play at Montclair.

Open Air Dance.

The Berkeley Heights Social Club will give an open air dance at Hess's Grove Friday evening. Music will be furninshed by Prof. Sam. Frazee, of this city.

Impure Drinking Water

is always a source of danger; dysentery and bowel troubles follow its use, every person should have handy a bottle of Painkiller (Perry Davis'), which will quickly cure these distressing ailments. Be careful and see that the storekeeper does not pawn off some worthless substitute upon you as is sometimes done for the sake of a few cents extra profit. Large bottles 25 and 50 cents.

Cut this out and save it.

DRAW BLOCKED.

Newark Bay is Filled With Excursion Craft That Cannot Get Past Draw.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, September, 6—Newark Bay, north of the New Jersey Central's bridge, is crowded with craft of every description, on account of an accident which occurred to the draw, early this morning. A part of the mechanism which opens the passageway for boats, became deranged and it could not be opened.

Since then scores of boats, including many with hundreds of excursionists aboard, have come up to the bridge and are still waiting for the draw to open. Not a few are also on the south side and the number is constantly increasing. It is not known when the blockade will be raised, but a large gang of men are at work.

Still Looking.

Hattie Furman, the colored servant suspected of taking clothing from her employer, Mrs. Grener, of West Front strreet, has not yet been arrested. The police are still looking for her and the opinion seems to be that she will be found within a short time. The stolen goods have not yet been recovered.

Sunday-School Convention.

The Somerset County Sunday-school convention will be held Tuesday, September 9, in the Reformed church at Millstone. There will be sessions morning and afternoon.

A BENEFIT FOR ORCHESTRA

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE AT THE HOTEL NETHERWOOD SATURDAY NIGHT.

Was Largely Attended, But Plainfield Had But Small Representation Present.

The most successful week, which the Hotel Netherwood has enjoyed in several years, terminated Saturday night with a subscription dance which was attended by one of the largest crowds of the season. One hundred and twenty-five young people were in attendance, most of them coming from Elizabeth, Somerville, Cranford and Westfield. This city was but slimly represented.

The dance was given for the benefit of the orchestra and in honor of the occasion, Leader Frederick Landolt had prepared an exceptionally fine programme of musical numbers. The ball room was very prettily decorated with wild flowers and potted plants.

In charge of the dancers was L. deL. Cammann, who was ably assisted by Reginald Chandor and Peter Suau. It was due to their efforts that the affair proved so decided a success. The hop which will be given Saturday evening will in all probability be the last of the season as most of the regular guests are now departing for their respective homes.

Beyond the ordinary programme rendered by he orchestra, there was no concert at the hotel last evening. Time did not hang heavy, however, as many of the guests entertained friend from the city, the number exceeding that of many previous Sundays.

PARK WAS SUCCESS.

So Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company Will Make Improvements to Riverside Park.

So much success has attended the efforts of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company to provide recreation for the people at Riverside Park, that improvements are projected for next season at a contemplated cost of $25,000.

Among the most notable are the setting out of 1,000 trees, and improving the grounds with beautiful walks, the enlargement of the theatre and the erection of another grandstand facing the baseball diamond. The river bank will undergo some altering and an inlet will be constructed for the shelter of boats in stormy weather. Work will commence on the planned projects the coming fall.

Ready for School.

Richard McDonald, janitor of the Borough High School, has had the interior of the building refitted, renovated and painted throughout, and put in first-class condition for occupancy when the schools open tomorrow. The desks and woodwork have all been treated to a coat of varnish, the blackboards have been retouched and the floors oiled. Every room presents a spick and span aspect.

FRESH AIR CHILDREN SANG

AND OTHERWISE ENTERTAINED THEIR FRIENDS SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Entertainment Given on Lawn of Netherwood Fresh Air Home —Several Gifts Presented.

The children of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home gave a delightful entertainment on the lawn at the Home Saturday afternoon, consisting of a number of recitations and songs, including several motion songs. There were solos by Willie Ponsford and Louis Strike. Miss Yost, kindergarten teacher at the Little Missionary's Day Nursery in New York, accompanied the children on the organ. At the conclusion of the entertainment, the children were treated to ice cream and cake, contributed by Mr. Gregory, a guest at the Hotel Netherwood.

There was a very large number of visitors present from Plainfield and vicinity, and there were also present Louis B. Ralston, a lawyer of New York, who is president of the Little Missionary's Day Nursery, and Alexander C. Morgan, of New York, vice president of the day nursery. Mr. Morgan is of the firm of A. C. Morgan & Co., and a member of the Stock Exchange, and has just returned from from a trip abroad.

Mr. Ralston was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Jean Ralston, who is a guest of the Misses Hooley, of the borough. The "mothers" of the Home presented both Mr. Ralston and Mr. Morgan with handsome bouquets of flowers as a mark of appreciation of their loyal support.

Dr. Currie, of this city, has been in attendance at the Home since it opened, July 1. He has been there every day, sometimes three times a day, and has been untiring in his efforts. As a token of their appreciation and esteem, Miss Curry and the "mothers" gave him a clock, which was presented to him by Miss Florence Hawkins, with appropriate remarks. Miss Curry was on the grounds and helped to entertain the visitors.

During the afternoon there were pleasing selections rendered by Dr. Berg and Martin A. Korff, on the violin, and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan on the organ. David Torrey assisted in making the affair very enjoyable.

Red Men's Entertainment.

The committee from Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, Improved Order Red Men, of which Michael Armstrong is the chairman, is rapidly completing the programme for the entertainment to be given in the tribe's wigwam Thursday evening, September 18. It is expected that several visiting tribes will be present on that occasion.

Secured New Watches.

Of the three thousand employes on the New Jersey Central all but 800 have secured new watches according to the recent new order issued by the company. It is believed that within a few weeks the remaining 800 will be supplied with the new timepieces.

PLAINFIELD PLAYERS ON OTHER DIAMONDS

Some Local Contributions to the Baseball Talent of America.

AMONG TOP NOTCHERS.

THEY LEARNED TO TOSS THE SPHERE ON PLAINFIELD FIELDS.

Owe Their Prestige to the Training of "Tee Kay" Kellar—Billy Keeler a Star of the National League—The Other Players.

Local baseball fans who look back with fond memories to the days when the Crescents held the field against all comers, may not know that many of the then favorites are still winning plaudits from assembled multitudes. The Crescents came and went but many of the "star" players who learned the first rudiments of professional baseball in this city under "Tee Kay" Keller's tutelage, still retain that indomnitable will that made Plainfield a Waterloo to all comers.

Hardly had the Crescents disbanded when the phenomenal work of "Billy" Keeler in the National League directed the eyes of the baseball world toward him, and he has since been the star of the first teams of the land. While with the Baltimores his name was constantly receiving favorable mention and at the close of every season managers crowded and fought each other to secure his services. He is now wearing a Brooklyn uniform and is rated as one of the highest salaried players in the country.

No less a glimmer continues to scintillate from the popular "Tuck" Turner, who is one of the nebulae of the Norwich, Conn., team, of the State League. When in Plainfield he covered several positions for the Crescents, notably second base, short and in the field. He has been connected with New England teams ever since quitting this city and the computing of averages after a year's work, always find him in the front rank. Birmingham, Ala., is now the abiding place of George Leidy, who more than once set the fans wild by pulling the Crescents out of a tight pinch. He has been pretty well over the country in the last few years but his shifting is always due to larger money offers. Eddie Daly, another local favorite, is with the New York State League and "Gentle" Willie Murphy, whose huge frame moved about the Crescents left garden with surprising rapidity, is appearing with semi-professional nines that abide in Brooklyn.

"Brownie" Chick Hofford is no longer in the game, being engaged in business in Philadelphia, but the sport has no more ardent admirer than he. With Pitcher "Ed" Sneeden, who is no more, and Hofford behind the bat, a battery was formed that more than once proved a stone wall to the Somervilles, Westfields and others in the Central New Jersey League. Many others who donned Crescent uniforms in the early nineties are still pounding the leather in all parts of the country and there are few who are not commanding fat salaries. All those who have risen to the topmost rung of the ladder never let slip the fact that it is in a great measure due to "Tee Kay" that they owe their success and the popular Tom often hears from them. It was he who discovered their merits, saw what to eliminate and what to improve and by his clever coaching turned out the above galaxy. As long as they were with the Crescents they remained true to him and he has the satisfaction of knowing that all his labor has not been in vain since.

Has Valuable Chain.

Matthew J. Cashin, of Park avenue, has a very valuable watch chain for which he would not take considerable. It is made of horsehair and the work was done by a Chinaman, who is serving a life sentence at Ossining, N. Y. Since his detention he has made a number of the chains and the work is simply marvelous.

College Business.

Woodhull & Martin have secured the contract to furnish the dormitories and study at Williams' College, Williamstown, Mass., for Harold A. Nomer and Erwin B. Leland, who take up their studies at that institution.

Frost Here.

A perceptible frost was noted in Washington Valley Saturday morning. Farmers assert that this is two weeks earlier than it has been in many years.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

Plans for League Were Discussed, But Nothing Was Done to Form Such An Organization.

Some of the football enthusiasts of the city held a meeting, Saturday evening, to discuss the prospects of a football league for Plainfield. There were representatives present from the Alis A. A., Company K, the I. T. C. Club and the Orange Field Club. Robert M. Clark acted as chairman of the meeting.

While nothing definite was accomplished, two plans were suggested which seemed to meet with favor. One was to organize a league of minor local teams. The Alis team so far outclassed the others that it would not join. It was thought that four teams might be secured. The other plan was to form a suburban league and letters were sent to representatives of elevens at Westfield, Cranford and Roselle to obtain their opinions.

It is hardly likely that the Alis team will be in the league in any event as its evident superiority is so great as to make the contest one-sided. Manager Harold A. Chandor and Captain Roy T. Phillips were both of the opinion that the eleven would do better as an independent team.

MR. PURDY'S FAREWELL WORDS

HIS LAST SERVICE AT MARCONNIER CHAPEL LAST NIGHT.

Words of Congratulation From Trinity's Elders and Gifts From His People.

A service filled with spiritual blessing and help was the one held at Marconnier chapel last evening, when M. Seymour Purdy, who has been acting as pastor, during the past eleven months, closed his labors, to enter another field of usefulness. He was greeted by the largest congregation in the history of the chapel. The edifice was filled to the limit.

Mr. Purdy, who is a student at Rutgers College Theological Seminary, delivered a well written sermon, taking his text from Philippians iv:8. Since coming to the chapel Mr. Purdy has endeared himself to the people of that place and surrounding neighborhood by his sincere and devoted labors in the cause of Christ.

At the close of his sermon, Mr. Purdy very tenderly told of the pleasure and profit he had received in serving them during the past year, and in thanking the congregation for their attendance and attention to his preaching, he said, Marconnier chapel would always have a very warm spot in his heart.

The congregational singing was led by H. J. Martin. Four elders from Trinity Reformed church were present and two of them, G. L. VanEmburgh and Robert Clark, Jr., spoke words of congratulation to Mr. Purdy and Superintendent H. W. Marshall and his wife for their devotion and labors at the chapel and for the great good that had been accomplished during the past year.

At the close of the service Miss Kyle's class presented Mr. Purdy with a handsome bronze ink well and Fred Stover gave him a gold pen with ivory handle, while Miss Nettie Stover completed the outfit with a box of writing paper, each sheet having stamped thereon a little "For-get-me-not." Accompanying the gifts was a little verse that said: "When far away and out of sight, don't forget to write."

THROWN DOWN.

Plainfielder Hurt While Getting Off a Moving Car.

A Plainfield man, who refused to give his name, received severe injuries by falling from a Bound Brook car at the Dunellen terminus, Saturday evening. He left his seat before the car had stopped and stepping down was thrown with great force on his head. The crew of the car picked him up and after making him comfortable, placed him aboard the Plainfield car. He was able to walk to a physician's office where his hurts were found to consist mostly of severe cuts on the head and face.

Annual W. C. T. U. Meeting.

A programme of unusual interest will be presented at the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U., Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock, at the rooms on Madison avenue. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of temperance.

Demands for Clocks.

The great demand for the auxiliary savings clocks being given out by the Plainfield Trust Company has necessitated the placing of a larger order for the clocks. A new supply arrived today.

CLOSING EXERCISES AT THE NETHERWOOD HOME

Many Friends Gathered at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home Yesterday Afternoon.

TALKS BY WORKERS.

MISS CURRY, THE MATRON, REVIEWED THE WORK AND THANKED FRIENDS.

Some of the Children Returned Saturday Night, Others Go Wednesday and the Home Will be Closed for the Season Friday.

The closing religious services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home yesterday were largely attended by friends from Plainfield, Westfield, Cranford and Dunellen. E. L. Taylor conducted a service of song, accompanied by Miss Henrietta Cuming. After a prayer by David M. Torrey, there were selections by a vocal quartette composed of Miss Elsie Giles, Miss Florence Hawkins, Harry Cuming and George Watts.

A very interesting talk was then given by Rev. L. E. Livermore, of New Market, after which Willie Ponsford, one of the children, sang a solo. Geo. A. Chapman, of this city, a warm friend of the Home, gave an earnest talk, as did also J. E. Parker, of this city. Another solo was given by Louis Strike, followed with a soprano solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," by Miss Elsie Giles. David Hand, a loyal friend of the Home, who, fifty years ago, played about the grounds where the Home is located, gave a short talk.

After all of the children sang several songs, Rev. C. E. Herring and David M. Torrey gave short talks, the latter giving a sketch of the summer work, referring to the generous and kindly assistance given by friends, especially by L. H. Biglow, Jr., manager of the Home.

The closing talk was given by Miss Sara Curry, whose words were listened to with deep interest. She spoke of the summer's work, its many encouraging features and thanked all for their assistance. At the close of these remarks, the quartette sang "Count Your Blessings," and the service was concluded with the Lord's Prayer in concert.

The services were held on the lawn and afterward those present took occasion to visit the Home and inspect the work which has been so successful. All had a good word for Miss Curry for her faithfulness and devotion. Some of the children returned to New York last night so as to begin school today. The nursery babies will return home Wednesday and by Friday the Home will have closed for the season, to reopen when another summer shall have rolled around.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL OPENED.

Randell Jones, a Suspected Case, Was Taken There Yesterday.

The isolation hospital was reopened yesterday to admit Randell Jones, colored, twenty-eight years old, who was taken ill at 524 West Second street. He was examined by Drs. Pittis, Carman and Murray who found the symptoms of a suspicious nature and his removal to the isolation hospital was ordered by the Board of Health on the side of safety. This morning, City Physician Carman pronounced the case one of small-pox.

CRANE RECEIVED.

Will be Put in Position Soon at New Factory on West Front Street.

A Shaw electric crane of 100 tons capacity was received at the plant of the Pedrick-Ayer Company, now being constructed at Clinton avenue, Saturday. It will be placed in position as soon as the first tier of iron girders are put up. A large force of iron workers is now employed on the construction work and some idea of how large the factory will be can now be gained.

Inspected Improvements.

Joseph O. Osgood, accompanied by several other officials of the New Jersey Central, inspected the improvements now being made at the North Avenue station, last week. They were much pleased with the new roadbed and believe it will stand the heavy traffic on the road.

Improving 'Phone System.

Employes of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company are busily engaged in improving the condition of the system about the city and vicinity. In many cases old wiring is being replaced by new.

ERRORS LOST FOR Y. M. C. A.

Scotch Plains Team Won the Deciding Game Saturday by the Score of 7 to 2.

NO RUNS WERE EARNED.

Some of the Y. M. C. A.'s Steadiest Players Had an Off Day and Made Errors by the Wholesale—How the Game Was Won and Lost on the Wild Throws Made.

Y. M. C. A. was defeated by Scotch Plains on Hope grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 2. The game was remarkable for nothing except the frequency of its errors.

Some of the best and usually steady men of the local team gave a kaleidoscopic exhibition of bad playing. There was not an earned run in the whole nine innings.

Dupee was in the box for Y. M. C. A. and with proper support would have shut out his opponents, only seven scattered singles being made off his delivery, three of them bunt hits. Davis was in fine form, allowing only four safe raps, and striking out eight men.

Plains tallied three in the second. Bosterle fumbled Ashcroft's grounder; Moore dropped Davis' fly and immediately muffed another from Allen, but Smith picked up the ball and threw Ashcroft out at third. Cruzius sent a liner to Egan and was out. Pond fielded badly Flannery's singe, Davis and Allen scoring and the runner making second. Bolsterle fumbled Baldwin's grounder, and Flannery scored.

Brogan was safe on Moore's error in the eighth, stole second, and went to third on Malay's bunt. Ashcroft was out on Bolsterle's assist, but Egan, attempting to catch Brogan at home, threw high and the ball went through Barnes' hands. Some one in the crowd pushed the ball under the ropes and both Brogan and Davis scored. Two singles and Egan's error were responsible for two more runs in the ninth.

In the sixth Bolsterle singled, and went to second on Baldwin's fumble of Dupee's grouder. Davis fumbled one from Egan, was too late to catch his man at first, and Allen's throw home was behind time for Bolsterle, with the first run for his side. Brogan darted the sphere to second to capture Egan but was wild and Moore, running for Dupee, tallied with the second run.

BROKE RECORD FOR PARK CLUB

W. de la R. Anderson Made An 81 in Play for President's Cup at Park Golf Club.

FAST GOLF PLAYED.

Saturday's Play at the Park, Hillside and Westfield Golf Clubs—E. T. Newkirk Leads for Golf Committee Cup—Park Championship Narrowed Down to Two.

Saturday was decidedly a big day at the Park Golf Club while the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club pursued the even tenor of its way. At the Park, the largest field of the season for the President's cup brought out some great golf. W. de la R. Anderson made a new competition record for the course, doing it in 81, only one worse than bogey. The first honors of the day went to William A. Townsend. The semi-finals for the club championship were played and reduced the possible candidates to two, Morgan T. Townsend and Roberts deS. Newhall. At Hillsdie, Arthur L. Wills, C. W. Abbott, E. T. Newkirk, Mrs. E. R. Ackerman and F. H. Anderson were all included in winners of first honors in the different events. The day was delightful for the game and both courses were in the best of condition.

PARK GOLF CLUB.

Some great golf was seen on the links of the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon. W. de la R. Anderson and Morgan T. Townsend were both in superb form, the former lowering the course record by two strokes. Heretofore the best figures made in competition were 83, made this summer by Roberts de S. Newhall. The players had the advantage of a fine day and a very fast course.

Morgan T. Townsend did his great playing in the semi-finals for the club championship, where he very easily defeated Charles B. Morse 8 up and 6 to go. In the first round he was one up on bogey. After the match was over, he fell down on several holes, thereby missing an excellent chance to lower the course record. His score by holes was:

Out—4 3 7 3 4 4 4 4 6—39
In— 4 7 7 3 4 3 7 5 7—47—86

W. de la R. Anderson, who was paired with I. H. Townsend in the weekly competition for the President's cup, was also in great form and managed to accomplish that which Townsend failed. His scores by holes was:

Out—5 4 7 4 4 4 5 4 5—42
In— 4 3 6 4 5 3 4 4 6—39—81

In the other match in the semi-finals for the club championship, Robert deS. Newhall defeated Dr. A. W. Anderson 5 up and 4 to go. Dr. Anderson was only one down on the first round but had a streak of bad luck in the second.

In the race for the President's cup, there was no material change save that W. de la R. Anderson was advanced into third place. Chas. B. Morse still leads. In a field of thirty, the scores for the President's cup, better than 100 net, were as follows:

	G	H	N
W. A. Townsend	94	19	75
W. de la R. Anderson	81	2	79
Morgan T. Townsend	86	3	83
Roberts deS. Newhall	90	7	83
S. St. J. McCutchen	98	15	83
I. H. Townsend	113	30	83
Nelson A. Miller	107	22	85
Samuel Townsend	112	26	86
J. H. Howell	113	27	86
Charles L. Nichols	115	27	88
William R. Faber	107	19	88
Roy C. Hallock	112	30	88
Henry C. Wells	108	19	89
Charles B. Morse	107	16	91
Leslie W. Hallock	106	14	92
Charles L. Goodrich	119	21	98

The standing for the President's cup is:

	Points.
Charles B. Morse	13
S. St. J. McCutchen	11½
W. de La R. Anderson	7
Charles L. Nichols	6½
Dr. A. W. Anderson	6
Roberts De S. Newhall	6
William R. Faber	5½
Henry C. Wells	5½
Charles W. McCutchen	5

REIGN OF STRAW HATS IS NEARING ITS END

Straw Hats Will be Tabooed After September 15 According to Decree of Fashion.

HAT DEALERS BUSY.

BUSIEST SEASON JUST OPENED FOR THE HAT MANUFACTURERS.

Makers of Fall Styles Have Just Announced Their Choice—About the Future of the Panamas—Depends on the Coal Strike.

The busiest season of the year has just opened for the manufacturers of men's hats. After September 15 the reign of the straw hat ceases, and as all the summer head coverings in use soon must be replaced by heavier material, the factories will be at their busiest, preparing to supply the market that convention will create.

The rush of work had its general beginning last Friday, that being the date fixed by the arbitrary ruler, fashion, for new fall and winter styles to be set, and therefore being the date when the modes adopted by the more fashionable hatters for the new season were attainable by the makers of cheaper hats. Until that time the manufacturers outside the charmed circle could make no move toward preparing the new stock, beyond having material and workmen ready to start on the shortest notice at the big task of shaping and finishing practically two seasons' supply of head covering in the few days left before "the bell rings" on the straws that are to be retired.

The agreement among the fashionable hatters is ironbound, and though it might be worth a great sum to the makers of the form of a hat decribed as the "derby" to know a few days or a week ahead just how much the brim should be curved and how wide, and the height and outline of the crown, the secrets of fashion's decree are guarded so jealously that for years the makers of the cheaper hats have been unable to find any way of escape from the tyranny of trade and "style."

By the same agreemen the new fashions are put on sale on one date by the makers of fashion, rivals though they are, at a price that never varies. The annual exposition of the new styles, therefore, is only two days old, but already the blocks for the cheaper kinds of "derby" have been made and set to work. While fashion in a hat now costs the standard price, another day or two will find the retailers supply the new shapes at a quarter less than the rates of the fashion arbiters. Thereafter the prices will scale downward until the last dealer in cheap clothing in New York has a full supply, and it is time, therefore, for newer fasions to be introduced.

The future of the Panama is a fit subject for speculation. Each man has his own method of curing a cold and preserving a Panama. Some declare that a careful course of kerosene followed by the use of a quart bottle of Florida water is the only method worthy of being followed, while others allege that the true student of economy will this year wind whole yards of bath towel fringe around the straw, and hand over the white elephant to the negro who attends to the furnace. This, however, depends very largely on the question as to whether the coal strike continues.

If it does, this is without doubt the wisest course to pursue, for not only should the saving on fuel bills be considerable, but the strain upon the nerves of one who attempts to wear a genuine Panama all summer in a city which is burning soft coal will be avoided.

As a matter of fact, the indications point to more or less of an abandonment of the Panama by society during the next year or two. It is expected that a return to the domestic straw with the addition of bands of quiet colors will be noted on the avenue and during the later days at Bar Harbor and Newport.

It may that the Panama will be brought out two years hence for the first of the presidential election parades, but one thing is almost certain, which is that the linoleum imitation at $2.98 has done much to discourage the wearing of thhe genuine article to any extent during next season.

POWDER MAGAZINE EXPLODES.

One Killed and Five Injured on Governors Island, Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—One of the government powder magazines at Old Fort Winthrop, on Governors island, upper Boston harbor, blew up with a detonation that was apparent all over the city and which was heard at points twenty miles away. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by boys setting fires on the island. One dead man and five injured were brought to the city by the police boat, and while it is believed that this is the extent of the casualties it is possible that others may be found suffering from the force of the concussion.

Negotiations have been pending some time for the release of the island by the government to the city as a part of the latter's park system, and, although the transfer has not been formally completed, the guard over the island has been somewhat relaxed of late, and as a result numerous clubs and pleasure parties have made use of it, especially on Sundays, the government's only representative there being an ordnance sergeant, who has to maintain a watch over the entire island. There are several old ramshackle wooden buildings at the southerly end of the island, but the fort itself, only a little of which is visible above ground, is of stone, some of the granite blocks being of immense size.

The force of the explosion is shown by the fact that some of these great blocks were hurled several hundred yards, while one of the largest was sent into the air and came down through the citadel in the center of the fort, making a hole large enough to drive a team of horses through. All over the island the effects of the explosion are visible, while in East Boston, South Boston and in the city proper the concussion was severe enough to break windows and shake buildings to their foundations.

FIVE FREIGHT WRECKS.

Pennsylvania Railroad Has That Number In One Day.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 8.—Five freight wrecks occurred yesterday between Johnstown and Harrisburg on the Pennsylvania railroad system. The first occurred at 2 o'clock in the morning and was caused by a runaway freight train crashing into another freight train at McGarvey's station, three miles west of Altoona. Ten cars and the locomotive of the runaway train were derailed and broken. Fireman William G. Allison broke his left arm jumping from the engine, but no one else was hurt.

A short time later a freight train on the Cresson and Clearfield road parted near Frugality, and the two sections came together again with great force, wrecking several cars. Brakeman J. E. Gutschall was taken from under the cars dead, and Brakeman C. L. Steele died on his way to the Altoona hospital. Later there was a wreck at Port Royal caused by a burned journal. Nine cars loaded with valuable merchandise are said to have been destroyed. Shortly afterward there was a wreck at Millerstown, and five loaded cars are said to have been broken to pieces, the result of a broken wheel. Another wreck occurred at Ryde, and several cars were broken up.

Engineer and Fireman Fatally Hurt.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 8.—The Norfolk and Western passenger train No. 3, southbound from Hagerstown, Md., and due to arrive at Roanoke at 4:15 p. m. over the Shenandoah division, was wrecked near Glasgow, Va., fifty miles north of Roanoke. The engine, mail car, express car and two coaches left the track while going fast and tumbled down a slight embankment. The Pullman car did not leave the track. Engineer C. M. Swaine and Fireman M. A. Anderson, both of Roanoke, were fatally hurt, but beyond a severe shaking up none of the other members of the crew or passengers was injured.

Knox In Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 8.—P. C. Knox, attorney general of the United States, has arrived here.

Attorney General Knox left New York Aug. 27 on board the steamship Oceanic of the White Star line for Paris. He went abroad for the purpose of obtaining a clear title to the property bought by the United States from the Panama Canal company and to investigate the treaty between that company and the Colombian government, which is to be transferred to the United States.

Riot Over Smallpox Order.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 8.—The steamer La Plata, which has arrived here from West Indian ports, brings news of a riot at Bridgetown, Barbados, Aug. 25. There has been an epidemic of smallpox at Bridgetown, and on that day a crowd of 500 persons refused to permit the authorities to remove a smallpox patient for isolation. The police were attacked and stoned, and several of them were injured. Several arrests were made.

Vesuvius In Action.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A special dispatch from Naples says large volumes of flames were issuing from the crater of Mount Vesuvius Saturday evening.

Fatal Trolley Accident.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 8.—Two trolley cars on the Fort Snell line collided late last night. Six persons were killed.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs Fair, who were recently killed while automobiling in France, arrived in New York.

Three hundred and seventeen striking colliers have been fined $30 each at Doncaster, England, for leaving work without notice.

STRUGGLE MAY GO ON FOR MONTHS

Only Ray of Hope In Sight Is the Possible Interference by the State Government of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—The anthracite mine workers' strike entered upon its eighteenth week with the lines between the operator and the miner drawn almost as tightly as when the suspension was inaugurated on May 12. There were many predictions that the contest would be over by the first week in September, but if the officials of the mine workers' union are to be believed the struggle will continue for months unless the coal companies grant concessions. Some of the operators looked for a serious break in the ranks of the men weeks ago and admit they are surprised at the way the strikers are holding out. Rumors are current and, in fact, statements have been made by prominent men both in and out of the coal trade that the strike will be ended this month.

President Mitchell of the union maintains he knows nothing of a possible early ending of the trouble and says he know nothing of any negotiations on foot looking to that end. The only move now in contemplation is the suggestion that Governor Stone call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of passing a law that would have the effect of amicably and speedily ending the deadlock. Governor Stone has given the matter considerable thought and has announced that if a bill can be framed that will have the desired effect he will immediately convene the legislature.

Last week more coal left the mining region than in any previous week since the strike began. Statements have been made by mining officials that the shipment for the last six working days aggregated 100,000 tons. The normal weekly output is a little more than 1,000,000.

The strikers and their officials dispute the claims of the mining superintendents and maintain that most of the coal now going to market is washed from the great culm piles, and the remainder is the coal that had been blasted before the strike began or which fell through the breaking of rotten timbering during the idleness. All the fuel that is leaving the coalfields is not reaching the markets. A considerable quantity is being taken by the railroads for their own use.

The number of men at work throughout the entire anthracite territory is difficult to obtain. It is safe to say, however, the number, compared with the total number of workers (estimated at 145,000), is small and that among those at work the certificate miners are few.

Company officials do not look for a rapid decline in the price of coal after the strike is over, because the demand will be greater than the supply. It is estimated that not more than 75 per cent of the mines will be in condition for immediate operation when the strike is ended.

A Small Riot.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 8.—A small sized riot occurred at Edwardsville, a mining town near here. Hiram Fisher, employed as a coal and iron policeman at No. 4 mine of the Kingston Coal company, was on his way home, in company with his son and another officer, when he was held up by some striking miners. It is alleged that the strikers threatened Fisher's life, when he pulled his revolver and fired two shots into the crowd. Both bullets went wide of their mark. One struck a Polish woman named Mrs. John Kaskmaugh, who was seated on the stoop of her home at the time, in the arm. The wound is not serious. After Fisher fired the shots he did not have a chance to get away. The foreign miners gathered in large numbers, and when they heard that he had shot a woman he was knocked to the ground and beaten in a terrible manner. All his teeth were knocked out, and one eye was gouged out. Some English speaking miners finally came to the man's rescue, and he was taken to the town lockup. A large crowd of foreigners surrounded the lockup and threatened to lynch the prisoner.

A Station In the Clouds.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 8.—The J. P. McDonald Construction company, an American concern, which is constructing the railroad from here to Quito, has invited the Ecuadorian authorities to attend the inauguration today of the railroad station at Alausi, which is situated at an elevation of 7,600 feet above the sea and distant ninety miles from Guayaquil. The government has decreed that the day be observed as a feast day in honor of the opening of the Alausi station.

Want Roosevelt at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 8.—A committee of Atlanta citizens bearing invitations from Governor Candler, Mayor Mills and the chamber of commerce have left for Chattanooga and will attempt to induce President Roosevelt to visit Atlanta during the Southern Interstate fair, which will be held here in October. Colonel Robert J. Lowry of the governor's military staff will present Governor Candler's invitation to the president.

The Buford From Manila.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—The transport Buford has arrived forty-one days from Manila. The long trip was caused by her putting in at Honolulu on account of defective machinery. The Buford brings 900 men of the Eighth, Fifteenth and Twenty-sixth infantry and ninety-six sick.

HAITIAN SHIP SUNK.

The German Gunboat Panther Takes Decisive Action.

WAS UNDER ORDERS FROM BERLIN.

Crew of the Firminist Warship Given Fifteen Minutes to Leave Their Vessel — Fire Her Before Departing.

CAPE HAITIEN, Haiti, Sept. 8.—The gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot, which was in the service of the Firminist party, has been sunk at the entrance of the harbor of Gonaives by the German gunboat Panther. Details of the occurrence are lacking. The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left her before she went down.

The German gunboat Panther arrived here Sept. 5 and received instructions from the German government to capture the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot. She left immediately for Gonaives, the seat of the Firminist government.

The Panther found the Crete-a-Pierrot in the harbor of Gonaives, and the commander of the German gunboat informed Admiral Killick, on the Crete-a-Pierrot, that he must remove his crew and surrender his vessel in five minutes' time.

Admiral Killick asked that this time be extended to fifteen minutes. This request was granted on the condition that the arms and ammunition on board the Crete-a-Pierrot should be abandoned when her crew left her.

The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left that vessel amid great disorder. At the end of fifteen minutes the Panther sent a small boat carrying an officer and twenty sailors who were to take possession of the Firminist gunboat. When these men had arrived at a point about thirty yards from the Crete-a-Pierrot, flames were seen to break out on board of her. She had been fired by her crew before they left her.

The Panther then fired on the Crete-a-Pierrot until she was completely immersed. Thirty shots all told were fired.

There is much feeling here against the Firminists, and their cause is considered to be a bad one. Soldiers are leaving here to attack St. Marc. Port au Prince is calm.

The present revolution in Haiti started in the month of April of this year, and General Tiresias Simon Sam, president of the Haitian Republic, resigned his office and left the island in May. For the last two months American interests in Haiti have been looked after by the United States gunboat Machias, Commander McCrea. It recently developed that at least six European nations had confided the protection of their interests in Haiti wholly to the United States naval force in Haitian waters.

Admiral Killick recently declared Cape Haitien to be blockaded, but this blockade was admitted to be inefficient and was abandoned by the admiral after Commander McCrea had made certain representations to him concerning it. In a letter to the Firminist admiral Commander McCrea informed him that he was charged with the protection of British, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Russian and Cuban interests as well as those of the United States and that he would prevent a second bombardment of Cape Haitien without due notice.

In reply to this letter Admiral Killick wrote Commander McCrea promising to observe the usages of civilized warfare in case it became necessary to back with his guns the military forces operating near Cape Haitien and called his attention to a decree ordering the port of Cape Haitien in a state of blockade. Commander McCrea communicated the fact of the blockade of Cape Haitien to the foreign consuls there and advised them to make a formal protest, which they did. It then became apparent that the blockade was ineffectual, as an American schooner had come in, reporting no blockade.

When this fact has been established, Commander McCrea proceeded to Cagnette, found the Crete-a-Pierrot in that port and sent Admiral Killick a letter, in which he said that the government of the United States considered the blockade of Cape Haitien not effective even as a de facto blockade and that the United States denied him (Admiral Killick) the right to search or visit any American or foreign vessel attempting entrance to the harbor of Cape Haitien.

To this communication Admiral Killick replied that he appreciated the conditions and admitted the inefficiency of the blockade, which he abandoned.

The blockade incident was thus closed, and the Machias sailed Aug. 30 from Gonaives for Boston.

The Crete-a-Pierrot stopped the German steamer Markomannia, sent an armed force on board and took possession of the war munitions she carried after Commander McCrea had told Admiral Killick that he had no right to visit or search any foreign vessel attempting to enter Cape Haitien and after the admiral had admitted his blockade to be ineffectual.

Roosevelt and the Cowboy Race.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Sept. 8.—President Roosevelt has placed himself on record as opposed to any inhuman use of horses in the coming cowboy race from Deadwood to Omaha. Captain Seth Bullock has received from Secretary Cortelyou a message containing a request from the president in which he asks Captain Bullock to exercise great caution to see that horses used in the contest are properly cared for en route and their strength not overtaxed. Much interest is being taken in the contest, which will be one of the greatest of its kind since the race to Chicago during the World's fair.

IT WAS BARTHOLIN.

Body Found In Iowa Identified as That of Chicago Murderer.

RICEVILLE, Ia., Sept. 8.—The body which was buried here Saturday and which was believed to be that of William Bartholin has been exhumed and positively identified as that of the Chicago double murderer.

The identification was made by William Mitchell, a brother of one of Bartholin's victims, and Detective Andrew Rohan of Chicago, who arrived here from Chicago. Dr. A. J. Coey of Chicago, who came here with Detective Rohan, cut out the lower jaw of the dead murderer, which contained the two gold crowned teeth which have figured so largely in the description sent broadcast throughout the country for purposes of identification. The jaw will be taken to Chicago by the detective.

Bartholin's body was found last Friday afternoon about six miles from Riceville, as told in previous dispatches, by J. G. Pratt, a resident of Riceville. Mr. Pratt was driving to Elma and when passing a flaxfield saw the body lying against a stack of flax. Thinking it was a man asleep, he paid no attention, but on returning he saw the man still there and upon investigation discovered he was dead, with a revolver lying by his left hand.

Coroner T. S. Carpenter was notified, and the body was removed to an undertaking establishment at Riceville.

There J. B. McCook, editor of a Riceville paper, discovered that the dead man bore a striking resemblance to the published pictures of the Chicago murderer.

The text of a confession left by the suicide and signed "W. J. Bartholin" was made public by Dr. T. S. Carpenter, coroner of Howard county, and is as follows:

"I want to state I am the Bartholin the police are looking for; also wish to certify I had no assistance of any kind from any one. Thompson, Claffy and Counselman are all as innocent as unborn child and should be freed at once.

"I cannot go into details in regard to the crimes. They were not planned. It was all Minnie and I could do. My mind is wandering. Such a drop in life in a short time—two months ago traveling in the best of company; today living the life of hoboes, a murderer!

"I intended to go into details and tell all, but I can't get my mind centered. Even my handwriting is disgraceful.

"But, above all things, I ask to clear everybody from under suspicion. There is no second party. I am the last."

Inquiry here developed the fact that Bartholin came to Riceville Aug. 6, before the bodies of Mrs. Bartholin and Miss Mitchell were discovered.

Ferry In the Race to Win.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 8.—The announcement of D. M. Ferry's candidacy for United States senator made by William C. McMillan has created some surprise, as he had been himself considered a candidate to succeed his late father, Senator James McMillan. Mr. Ferry now talks freely of his candidacy and says confidently that he is in the campaign to win. By entering the field with the support of Mr. McMillan Mr. Ferry is looked upon in some quarters as being the candidate of what is called the federal machine in Michigan politics. General Alger and his closest supporters, however, insist that they have nothing to say about Mr. Ferry's backing and declare that they anticipate a fair and square campaign in which they are going to do their best to defeat a worthy opponent. Mr. McMillan in giving his friends a reason for refusing to enter the campaign himself was actuated, it is said by his close friend, General H. M. Duffield, by the idea that he did not want to make a campaign in which he would be looked upon by many voters merely as his father's son.

Oldest Dartmouth Alumnus Dead.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 8.—Dr. Claudius Buchanan Webster, who was the oldest living alumnus of Dartmouth college, is dead here. He was born in Hampton, N. H., Dec. 10, 1815, practiced medicine in early life, then for eighteen years was principal of the Norwich (Conn.) Female seminary. In 1862 he became assistant surgeon in the United States army, serving until the close of the war. He was in 1870 appointed United States consul to Sheffield, England, by President Grant, holding the consulship until 1886.

Jamaicans Denounce Great Britain.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 8.—At a representative meeting of the sugar planters of Jamaica resolutions were passed condemning Great Britain's neglect of the West Indies, resulting almost in ruin to the sugar industry, setting forth the total inadequacy of the measures proposed by Great Britain for the relief of her West Indian sugar planters and calling for confederation with Canada as the only means of retrieving the fallen fortunes of Jamaica.

Walked Over the Andes.

LIMA, Peru, via Galveston, Tex., Sept. 8.—Giuseppe Capelli, an Italian pedestrian, has arrived here and will proceed northward at once. He walked from Buenos Ayres, Argentina, to Valparaiso, Chile, from which place he took a steamer to Arica. Thence he traveled on foot to Mollendo, next by steamer to Pisco and then on foot to this city. He intends to go to the United States.

ANOTHER MIMIC WAR.

Autumn Maneuvers of the German Army Begin Tomorrow.

FRANKFURT-ON-ODER, Germany, Sept. 8.—In preparation for the autumn maneuvers, which begin tomorrow, 92,000 troops are spreading over the countryside in two armies. One is marching to the eastward from here by various parallel roads, while the other is marching westward from Posen.

The German staff, which is the brains of the German military organization, once a year puts opposing armies into the field under what would be the probable conditions in war and notes the result, especially in the higher question of strategy. Each regiment and division is exercised frequently in minor maneuvers in all weathers and under various topographical conditions, but the grand maneuvers, in which several entire army corps are engaged, take place one year in one part of the empire and the next year in some other location and are for the working out of fresh combinations on a great scale. The operations now beginning will be extended over a territory which is roughly speaking, thirty miles wide and fifty miles long.

The cavalry outposts of the two armies are to come in touch tomorrow morning between Meseritz, Schwiebus and Bentschen. This is all the general staff for the present permits outsiders to know. Strategical movements and four days' fighting with blank cartridges are to follow under the observation of Emperor William and the most gifted military commanders of Germany and foreign officers of distinction from Italy, Austria, Great Britain, Russia and the United States. The British group alone includes Earl Roberts, Lieutenant General Kelly-Kenny, General French and General Ian Hamilton.

THE PHILIPPINES AT THE FAIR.

Taft Names a Director of the Exhibit, Which Will Cover Forty Acres.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Governor Taft of the Philippine Islands has appointed Dr. William T. Wilson of Philadelphia special commissioner to represent the Philippine government in the preparation of the extensive exhibit which Governor Taft intends shall be made at the St. Louis exposition of 1904. The government of the Philippines will participate in the exposition upon a large scale in order to adequately demonstrate the natural resources of the islands and present to the world evidence of the promised importance of these new possessions.

Dr. Wilson is in New York consulting with President Francis of the exposition on the character and scope of the exhibit, which will occupy forty acres. The appropriation for it already made exceeds $500,000.

Dr. Wilson is at present director of the Philadelphia museums. He is a graduate of Harvard and for four years was an instructor in botany in that university. He resided in Germany several years, pursuing studies in his science, and received the degree of doctor of science there. He was director of the school of biology at the University of Pennsylvania, from which institution he was called to his present office in Philadelphia. He is a member of a large number of scientific societies and associations at home and abroad. Dr. Wilson has appointed Dr. Gustave Niederlein to take charge of the promotion, collection and installation of the exhibit.

Moros In Ugly Mood.

MANILA, Sept. 8.—Captain J. J. Pershing, who is in command of the American force at Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao, reports to General Chaffee that several of the Moro chiefs whose followers have attacked American soldiers have rejected all friendly overtures and that he has been unable to reach any understanding with them. The breaking of negotiations with the Moros, Captain Pershing reports, will probably bring on a crisis in the Moro situation. It is believed in Manila that a renewal of Moro attacks will result in retaliation by the American forces. The military records show that since the Bayan fight last May the Moros have made twelve attacks on American soldiers, killing four and wounding twelve, including one officer.

G. A. R. Veterans to Meet In Tent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The national encampment of the G. A. R. will be held in a monster tent at Camp Roosevelt, which will be located in the grounds south of the White House. The idea is unique, and if the weather is the usual October kind the experience will be memorable to the veterans of the encampment who were housed in tented camps about the national capital during the civil war. It is proposed to have a big circus tent capable of seating 2,000 veterans.

Judge Durand Much Better.

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 8.—The improvement in the condition of Judge George H. Durand, the Democratic candidate for governor, continues beyond the greatest hopes of his friends. His temperature, pulse and respiration are normal, and his appetite is good. He walks about his room with perfect ease and sleeps well at night. His improvement has inspired the hope that the judge can make the run.

Wife Murderer at Large.

ON HISTORIC FIELDS.

President Visits Tennessee Battlegrounds.

DINNER ON LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

Men Who Participated In the Famous Fights Act as Guides. Royally Entertained In Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 8.—President Roosevelt is the guest today of the national convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. Yesterday Chattanooga entertained him and did it right royally. From early morning until late in the evening he was taken from one historic place to another, and the details of the battles that have made this city famous were explained to him by men who were participants in the struggles.

The battlefields of Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Orchard Knob and Lookout Mountain were driven over.

He attended services at the First Baptist church, of which Rev. J. W. Brougher is the pastor, last night.

The presidential train arrived here promptly at 8:30 a. m. A large crowd was at the station, and notwithstanding the day was Sunday the president was accorded a warm welcome.

A committee composed of Governor McMillin, Mayor A. W. Chamblis, Congressman John A. Moon, General H. V. Boynton, General A. P. Stewart and Captain J. P. Smart, members of the Chickamauga park commission; General A. W. Wylie and Captain J. W. Shipp entered the president's car and welcomed him to the city. Trolley cars were in waiting, and after the formal greeting the start for the Chickamauga battlefield was made. At the entrance to Chickamauga park the Seventh United States cavalry, under command of Colonel Baldwin, who acted as the president's escort through the park, were drawn up. The president, with General Boynton, president of the park commission, mounted horses, and after the other members of the party had entered carriages the drive through the park began. The cavalcade was hardly under way before the president started his horse at a sharp trot and for a mile and a half led the regiment a merry chase over the battlefield. The pace was so hot that several of the troopers were unhorsed, and it was necessary to call the ambulance corps into service.

After inspecting a portion of the field the president stopped at the camping grounds and reviewed the regiment, together with the Third battery of field artillery under command of Captain Niles. The review took place upon the spot where thirty-nine years ago on a Sunday morning the Confederate brigade of General Manigault of Hindman's division was repulsed in a desperate charge by a portion of General Wilder's brigade of cavalry.

At the conclusion of the review the Seventh cavalry went through their new calisthenics drill. Luncheon was served soon afterward, and then divine services, which the president attended, were held on the park grounds. The services were conducted by Evangelist Porter and were of a very impressive nature. At their conclusion the president made a short address to the soldiers.

A very pleasing incident occurred shortly before the president resumed his inspection of the battlefield. A delegation of citizens of Georgia headed by H. R. Harper of Rome presented to him a cane cut from the Chickamauga battlefield. It is of hickory, with a silver head and band suitably inscribed.

The president was greatly interested in many of the monuments which mark the battlefield and after reading the inscription on that erected by the state of Kentucky had Assistant Secretary Barnes make a copy of it.

The drive extended through Missionary ridge to Orchard knob. Along the route the president frequently was greeted by groups of people, to whom he responded by raising his hat. At one point on the road a number of children waved small American flags as the president passed.

When Orchard knob was reached the president walked through it to the trolley cars, which conveyed the party to the foot of Lookout mountain. At the top of the mountain a large crowd had assembled.

Dinner was served on the mountain and then the party returned to the city.

Colombia Rebels Win.

PANAMA, Colombia, Sept. 8.—The government general Morales Berti, who has been besieged by the insurgent forces under General Herrera at Agua Dulce, has probably been defeated. The government gunboats returned here from an exploring expedition. Officers of the expedition report having landed at Yeguala, where the insurgent garrison was defeated after a slight skirmish. A few insurgent prisoners were captured, and it is from these men that the news of the government's defeat at Agua Dulce has been obtained.

Broker Gone; Effects Seized.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Maurice B. Quincy, a young stockholder, has disappeared. He was local correspondent of the Metropolitan Stock Exchange of Boston. He left Kingston ostensibly for Boston four days ago. His customers, including business men, servants and one clergyman, have broken into his office, seizing everything in sight. Six thousand dollars in the State of New York National bank was attached.

Starved Himself to Death.

DANBURY, Conn., Sept. 8.—Wilson F. Thrall is dead at his home in this city, having starved himself to death. He maintained an almost complete fast for seven weeks with the avowed intention of ending his life.

COMING EVENTS.

September 8—Meeting of Common Council.
September 8—Opening of city and borough public schools.

TO PRESENT BOTH SIDES.

It was with no desire of being partial that The Daily Press printed in full the majority report on annexation and consolidation, which was presented at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday night, and devoted but a comparatively small space to the minority report of Councilman Charles L. Nichols. It was impossible to obtain the full text of the letter in time for Saturday's issue. It is of considerable length and pressure of local news prevented its use without crowding out important news. It will be published in full tomorrow, however, so that all will have an opportunity to know just what Mr. Nichols had to say.

The majority report, presented by Councilmen Clark and Arnold, was a very interesting document. Mr. Clark has spent much time and labor preparing it and he has certainly done his work well.

A better resume of the situation would be hard to find. It gives facts, coupled with those made public since Mr. Clark prepared it, that cannot help but impress the reader. Mr. Clark has presented the facts simply and plainly and yet with such force as to make it very evident that his recommendations are the only reasonable ones which can be drawn from the existing circumstances.

It is well to remember that Mr. Clark's report was ready some time ago but, in order to give the minority an equal chance, he held it so that Mr. Nichols might present a report at the same time. In addition, Mr. Clark turned over his report to Mr. Nichols in order that the latter might answer his arguments if possible. It is hardly necessary to say that he didn't for the simple reason that the arguments are unanswerable. Mr. Clark was not privileged to see the minority report in advance, however. It was through the courtesy of Mr. Clark that The Daily Press obtained a copy of his report in advance so that it might be put in type for use Saturday. No copy of Mr. Nichols' report was furnished save the original copy which was turned over to Borough Clerk Rowley, through whose courtesy The Daily Press will be able to publish the report tomorrow.

The time is at hand when the various fresh air missions throughout the State come to an end. The last service at the Fresh Air Home at Netherwood was held yesterday and largely attended. This work has attracted much attention among the charitably inclined of Plainfield and has been supported by liberal donations. There is no doubt that it has accomplished a wonderful amount of good and will be continued next year under more advantageous circumstances than ever. The King's Daughters Baby Camp is still open but a few weeks will see that very worthy charity bringing its labors to an end.

Now that the Y. M. C. A.-Scotch Plains series is at an end, the interest of all the local fans is turned toward the coming series between the All-Plainfield team and the crack Westfield aggregation. It was through the instrumentality of The Daily Press that this series was arranged and it will prove a fitting climax to the most successful baseball season Plainfield has ever had.

The vacation season is over and the summer schedules at the local churches have come to an end. Yesterday saw most of the local pastors back in their pulpits again after their much needed vacations, ready to start with renewed energy the Gospel campaign.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Before selecting your fall and winter hat call at Bonn's store and consult his large stock of latest shapes in a great variety of colors and trimmings. Bonn will please you if its possible.

The trouser sale inaugurated by Harry Werner, in August, proved so successful that it will be continued this month. A better opportunity to secure trousers at a moderate cost has never been offered.

The season is well advanced but there is no let-up in orders for Fowler's ice cream. It all goes to show that a good article is always appreciated. Orders will be delivered any day in the week.

The women who are making preparations for their fall and winter clothing can save money and will have less trouble by trading with the Paris Cloak Company than in going to New York, besides a fit is guaranteed and satisfaction assured of.

In order to make room for their large fall shipments, Powlison & Jones are offering some splendid bargains in furniture of all kinds. If you need chairs, bedroom or parlor suits, couches or any other article in this line, now is the chance.

Many people consider this the finest time of the year to have their painting and papering done. No doubt this is true, and it is also true that the New York Painting and Decorating Company can do the work for you satisfactorily and at a reasonable figuer.

WALKED TO DEATH.

Nicholas Lynch Wandered Off Side of Steamer in His Sleep.

Thomas Lynch, of Orchard place, pressman for The Daily Press, received words from relatives in Brooklyn, this morning, that his brother, Nicholas Lynch, had been drowned in the East river, Friday. The man was subjected to somnambulism and, during one of his sleep-walking spells, stepped off the steamboat, Perkins, on which he was employed. No one was in the vicinity at the time and his body was not found until he was missed and a search followed. The funeral will be held in Brooklyn, this afternoon.

One New Member.

A communion service was held at Marconnier chapel, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck and two elders and two deacons from Trinity Reformed church assisted Mr. Purdy in the sacramental service. One person, Mr. Jones, was received on confession. There were several other persons who intended uniting with the chapel on confession, but were prevented by sickness and death in their families.

Death of a Child.

Charles Leslie Dellehunt, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dellehunt, of South Second street, died yesterday from spasms brought on by diphtheria. The funeral services will be held from the residence of his parents this afternoon and will be private.

Sang in Trinity's Choir.

Miss Bessie Martin, of Jackson avenue, sang alto very acceptably in the Trinity Reformed church yesterday.

—This week will conclude the canning season. If you intend preserving visit Neuman Brothers tomorrow when 200 baskets fine peaches will be placed on sale. Higher prices will prevail next week.

MADE A POPULAR SHERIFF

HE WOULD BE RETURNED IF THE LAW PERMITTED RE-ELECTION.

Newark News Pays a High Compliment to the Retiring Sheriff of Union County.

After a faithful service of three years as sheriff of Union county, writes the Elizabeth correspondent of the Newark News, Robert G. Houston, who is credited with being one of the best officials in that position the county ever had, is now preparing to retire and is fixing up his accounts to be ready to turn them over in first-class shape to his successor when the latter is elected. Sheriff Houston will draw his last petit jury next month and announce his final grand jury when the October term of court meets. He has been the most popular candidate that ever was placed on the Republican ticket in Union county since his entrance into politics. He has always ran hundreds of votes ahead of the other nominees on the ticket.

Sheriff Houston is a machinist and expects to return to that occupation when his term expires. He served for several years on the Republican city central committee and county committee; also four years as a Republican alderman in Elizabeth, three years as a member of the County Board of Freeholders, and from there was elevated to the shrievalty.

If the sheriff could succeed himself, then nothing but death, it is confidently claimed, could prevent Bob Houston, as he is popularly called, from being re-elected. In New Jersey, however, the sheriff must step down and out for at least three years after his term expires, and hence it is that there is now such a hot scramble raging among several prominent Republicans for the position. Sheriff Houston, however, has cut such a powerful figure in the politics of Union Conty that he will by no means be regarded as a political back number when he retires, but is likely to loom up strongly as a candidate hereafter for one of the other important county offices.

Sheriff Houston was born and raised at Elizabethport, and has an interesting family. He is one of the oldest members of the Greystone Presbyterian church in that section of Elizabeth, and was educated in public school No. 1.

He was for many years a member of Red Jacket Engine Company and one of its officers, and is now an exempt fireman. He also belongs to a number of fraternal organizations. He has the reputation of always being "on the level" and loyal in support of his friends.

Shortage of Carriers.

Owing to the fact that this summer there has been a shortage in the substitute letter-carriers in this city, it will be well along into cold weather before all of the regular carriers will have had their vacation. About half of the force has had its outing.

Gospel Meetings.

H. A. Ironside, an evangelist from SanFrancisco, will hold a series of Gospel meetings, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, in the hall, corner of East Front street and Bank place, at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

Mrs. Shiverley, the wife of Jacob Shiverley, of North avenue, suddenly became unconscious Saturday morning and remained in a cataleptic condition for about four hours. She was alone in the house at the time, with the exception of her two children, when she complained of feeling faint. The children lead her to a sofa, where she passed into unconsciousness. Neighbors came in and Dr. Brakeley was called. All efforts to rouse the woman were unavailing, however, until she came to about 3:30.

The Borough Council may have to take action shortly in regard to the way the transfer system has been changed. Now, all that want to ride on the Bound Brook cars in Dunellen have either to get transfers at the Watchung avenue station, or else pay fare. As some get on this side of the station the change is obviously unfair to them and the matter may come before the council.

An amusing scene can be witnessed almost every evening at the trolley terminus, when the cars of the Plainfield line, and the Bound Brook line connect. There is generally a big crowd on each car and when it stops there is a regular football rush for seats. The crowd is generally good natured and the scrambling is amusing to a looker on.

The Y. M. C. baseball team played a game with the Dewey Park A. C., Saturday afternoon, with a somewhat crippled team and defeated them in close game, by a score of 5 to 4. The batteries were Lake and Mahon for the Y. M. C., and Hill and Reinhart for Dewey Park.

Regular services were held in all the local churches yesterday. The pastors have all returned from their vacations and occupied their pulpits. Communion was held in the Methodist church.

The peach tea will be held in the chapel of the Presbyterian church, next Thursday, by the members of Mr. Hamilton's Sunday-school class. Supper will be served at 6:30.

Mrs. Opdyke and family, who have rented the Camman property, are staying at the Nelson house until they take possession.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council will be held in the hall this evening.

The Silver Leaves baseball team defeated Apgar's team Saturday in a game of baseball.

The Garrabrandt house, on Prospect avenue, has been sold to Dr. M. J. Whitford.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wynkoop entertained out of town friends yesterday.

Mrs. Arthur Gaston entertained out of town friends yesterday.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle is spending today in New York.

C. V. Rand is spending today in Newark.

NEW MARKET.

Rev. Frank Fletcher has not yet returned from his vacation and his pulpit was occupied by Rev. L. E. Livermore, yesterday.

The local baseball team defeated the strong Orange Field Club, of Plainfield, in a one sided game, Saturday.

Mrs. W. B. Smith and daughter have returned from a visit in New York.

Dr M. J. Whitford is expected home shortly from a trip to the west.

Henry Morgan, of Roseville, spent yesterday with friends in town.

Miss Mary Jenner is detained at home by a slight illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

On Thursday of last week, Freddy, the little six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clark, entertained a number of his friends in honor of his birthday. A number of the older people of the family, including the little man's grandfather, Judge Clark, were present and enjoyed games with as much pleasure as though they were renewing the birthday parties of their youth. Cake and ice cream were served and the little host received a number of pleasant reminders of his sixth natal day.

No automobile arrests were made in town Sunday as the majority of automobilists have learned of the vigilance of the local police in enforcing the automobile ordinance and go through town at a reduced rate of speed. One venturesome party came up Front street about 5 o'clock in a "red devil," going at a two minute clip, but fortunately for them no officer happened to be on the scene or the township treasury would have been enriched $25 at least.

Harry Pierson, Edward Overbaugh and Clement Carroll, charged by Frank Zarro with assault and battery, were arraigned before Juge Clark Saturday afternoon. The defendants asked for an adjournment until today at 2 o'clock so as to enable them to procure witnesses. The request was granted.

Rev. Mr. Bindenberger, pastor of the Methodist church, who has been taking an enforced vacation of two months on account of his health, has returned and assumed charge of his church again, occupying his pulpit for the first at both services yesterday.

Fully 100 enthusiastic rooters from town journeyed with the ball team to Hope Common Saturday afternoon and saw the Y. M. C. A., champions of the City League, taken into camp in the deciding game of the series, by a score of 7 to 2.

The management of the ball team has decided to play the benefit game to Mrs. Frentz later in the season, probably September 20, instead of next Saturday. This will give more time to sell tickets and make other arrangements necessary.

"How to Look for His Coming," was the topic discussed by the members of the B. Y. P. U., of the Baptist church, at their weekly meeting held in the church parlors last night.

John E. Flannery, of Plainfield, who has just returned from a six weeks' trip to California, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. George H. Johnston, of Westfield avenue.

Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Shott, of "The Mause," have been entertaining Miss Herbert, a prominent worker in the North Baptist church, of New York, over Sunday.

The adjourned automobile case of the township against Herman Unger, of Newark, will be heard in Judge Clark's court tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The St. Marys, another of the Plainfield City League teams, will be the guest of Manager Johnston's colts on the local diamond Saturday afternoon.

The regular monthly observance of the Lord's Supper was held at the close of the morning service at the Baptist church yesterday.

The weekly meeting of the Epworth League held in the Methodist church Sunday evening was led by Rev. Mr. Bindenberger.

Harry Lyons, of New York, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives and friends in town.

Horace Pangborn has returned from a successful fishing trip along the south Jersey coast.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Misses Bessie and May Tappen, of New Market, have returned home after a visit with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne and daughter, Gladys, visited relatives in Somerville Saturday.

Miss Maude Smith and Philip Smith spent the lattter part of last week at New Rochelle.

Henry A. Meeker celebrated his eighteenth birthday, yesterday, in a quiet manner.

James Hagel, of New York, spent yesterday at the home of Fred LaTourette.

Arthur Hawkins, of New York, has been visiting his stepfather, Samuel Manning.

Misses Laura and Emma Manning visited friends in Bound Brook, Saturday.

HILLSIDE CLUB.

There were two contestants for the Boys' cup on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course, Saturday morning, A. L. Wills and C. Ivins. Wills won three points, while Ivins received two points. Saturday's play does not affect the leaders at all. The scores for the cup are A. L. Wills, 101, 10—91; C. Ivins, 124, 0—124.

The standing for the Boys' cup is as follows:

	Points.
Arthur Peterson	18½

Another event of the afternoon was the putting and approaching contest for the Schoonmaker cups. Mrs. E. R. Ackerman and F. H. Andrews were the winners with a score of 7. The scores are as follows:

Mrs. E. R. Ackerman and F. H. Andrews, 7; Mrs. and Mrs. James DeGraff, 8; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows, 8.

WESTFIELD GOLF CLUB.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 8—An interesting event on the Westfield Golf Club course Saturday afternoon was the first round play for the Galdwin trophy, handicap competition. The contestants were the first sixteen to qualify for this event during the past two months and some excellent scores were made as follows:

J. A. Woodward, 3, defeated H. A. Nobbs, 2, 4 up and 3 to go; M. L. Fouquet, 12, defeated C. E. Halsted, 0, 1 up in 19 holes; J. A. Worth, 6, defeated J. Platt, 11, by default; Chas. Hansle, 9, defeated J. Sherman, Jr., 2, by 1 up; R. I. Townley, 4, defeated E. D. Floyd, 5, 4 up and 3 to go; Edgar L. Serrell, 0, defeated R. B. Carroll, 9, by default; C. E. Marsters, 11, defeated F. P. Condit, 4, by default; W. J. Bogart, Jr., 2, defeated J. B. Taylor, 11, 2 up and 1 to go.

The second round for this trophy will be played two weeks from Saturday, on account of the entertainment of the Marine and Field Club, of Brooklyn, next Saturday, when a match game will be played, with twelve-men teams. All other competitions for that day are off in consequence.

Another event of interest on Saturday was the continuation of the play in the September competition. This is based on a rating of 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1 points. On Saturday R. I. Townley won 5 points, C. E. Halsted, 4, while J. A. Woodward and M. L. Fouquet each received 2½ points as they tied with a score of 85. The scores are as follows:

R. I. Townley, 94, 13—81; C. E. Halsted, 92, 8—84; J. A. Woodward, 97, 12—85; M. L. Fouquet, 94, 9—85.

W. M'LAUGHLIN MAY PITCH

IS TALKED OF TO OCCUPY BOX FOR ALL-PLAINFIELD TEAM.

Has About Finished Season With New London—The Boston League Team Wants Him—Team Picked.

It is not all improbable that Warren McLaughlin, of this city, who has been pitching phenomenal ball for the New London, Conn., team this summer, will be in the box for the Plainfield team when it crosses bats with Westfield, Saturday.

McLaughlin's season closes Wednesday and unless he goes to Boston for a try with the National League team, he will be in this city. Manager Billings, of the Boston team, has had his eye on McLaughlin for some time, but a reserve contract with New London stands in the way of the Plainfield boy getting into the National League. But the Boston management has set out to get him and the chances are it will.

With McLaughlin in the box for this city, the team will be greatly strengthened and chances of its winning out are much better. The remainder of the team has been settled upon and practice games will now be the rule until Saturday, when the test takes place.

Baseball fans who have become enthused over the project of the All-Plainfield team to give battle to Westfield, still continue to suggest the best players for its make-up. Everyone has his favorites but all continue to strengthen the surmise that the first nine picked by The Daily Press will prove the most favorable. A local crank suggests another team as follows:

McLaughlin or Burns, pitcher; Barnes or Allen, catcher; Winn, first base; Martin, second base; Shortman or Keene, shortstop; Cooney, third base; Franklin, right field; Lederer, center field; Taylor, left field.

Harry Shortman, of Verona, returned home today after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shortman, of West Fifth street.

Miss Alice Barlow, of Westfield, Mass., is now boarding on Craig place. She enters upon her duties at the North Plainfield public school tomorrow for the first.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

FELL FROM A MOVING CAR

CONDUCTOR WILLIAM RANDOLPH INJURED WHILE ON DUTY.

Accident Happened on East Fifth Street, Near Franklin Place, Last Evening.

William Randolph, of Chatham street, conductor of the 9 o'clock Elizabeth car from the Watchung avenue terminus, last evening, fell off the running board of the conveyance as it was passing Franklin place at almost full speed.

The car was stopped by passengers who witnessed his fall and Randolph was picked up a bruised and inert mass. He was taken to the office of Dr. Fritts where proper applications revived him and permitted a thorough examination to be made. It was learned that beyond cuts and contusions from contact with the hard macadam he was uninjured.

The car proceeded after some delay in securing another conductor and when it reached the Rahway junction, a woman passenger stepped off before it had come to a full stop. She was hurled some distance and it was necessary to take her to the office of Dr. Harrison, of Westfield.

CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED.

Policeman Gamo Found a Stranger Badly Battered and Very Much the Worse for Wear.

Lewis Miller, a middle-aged man, who was arrested on a charge of drunkenness at Netherwood by Patrolman Gamo, early this morning, related a remarkable story of an assault and robbery when questioned by Chief Kiely at police headquarters.

According to the man's statement, several supposed friends severely beat him while on the way from Westfield and then robbed him of $68 in bills, a $38 check and a gold watch and chain. They then left him, he says, to get home as best he could.

Patrolman Gamo found the man near the Netherwood station shortly after midnight in a badly battered condition and very much the worse for liquor. He will be detained until this evening and meantime his story is being investigated.

SCHOOLS OPEN TOMORROW.

All is Ready at City Schools for Resumption of Activity Tomorrow.

The public schools of the city will open tomorrow for the fall session after the usual summer cessation of studies. Nine o'clock is set as the hour of commencement at all the buildings, including the Stillman High School. Commencing with Wednesday the sessions at the latter building will commence at the customary hour of 8:20. During the summer all the buildings have been placed in a state of thorough repair and the pupils will find many new improvements added for their convenience.

Been Disturbing Element.

Martin Miller, a well-known character living at the foot of the mountain in North Plainfield township, was sent to Somerville for thirty days, this morning by Recorder Doud. Miller has for some time past been a disturbing element in his family and the members of it are afraid of him. He has been in court several times, and Recorder Doud thought thirty days would benefit him. Chief Campbell escorted the man to the county seat.

Company K's Dances.

The committee recently appointed by Company K to make arrangements for a series of dances has made rapid progress. The dances will be three in number and after that a military ball will be given. The committee consists of George L. Apgar, chairman; Nathan Titsworth, Charles Peterson, Eugene Searing and C. H. Bilyeu.

Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, who has been spending the summer with his family at Wurtsboro, Sullivan county, N. Y., has returned home, and Mrs. Miller and family will return to Plainfied Thursday night.

THE TEAGOWN'S DAY.

Fashionable Women Delight in Making It a Work of Art.

Wonderful Creations Seen in the Ateliers of Chicago's Master Modistes—Explanation of Their Charms.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

NOWADAYS no wardrobe, even though it be fine and elaborate, is considered fashionable or up to date unless it contains one or more teagowns. As it happens to be nearing the time when this absolutely indispensible garment will be most in demand, and as there are many interesting things to say concerning it, as well as its very near relation, the charming little teajacket, I have decided to make them a part of my theme this month.

Teagowns have been, and still are, wonderful creations to look upon, full of intricacies and details. All sorts of materials enter into their construction, from the handsomest brocaded satin down to the pretty and rather inexpensive French delaine, which fabric, by the way, is very much sought after for smart afternoon frocks.

Chiffon and soft taffeta silk combined make an ideal teagown, while the somewhat newer and exceedingly handsome Empire embroidered satin offers well-nigh unlimited scope for the ingenuity of the clever and artistic modiste. Crepe de chine loses none of its charms when exploited in the teagown of the moment, and the same is to be remarked of the lovely crepe cashmere, which is to be reckoned among the most delightful novelties of the season.

The styles and designs in the teagowns brought out this season are almost without limit. They have never been more beautiful. They are quaint, picturesque and entirely out of the ordinary run of the so-called teagown. Some of the most charming models I have seen, and which will be the fashion for some time to come, are the semi-Empire effects; that is to say, the waist is defined by a wide belt of embroidery which is made slightly pointed in front, thus accenting the waist in a somewhat more becoming manner than is done by the regular Empire style. Another decidedly pretty model, and one that will prove more generally becoming than the gown just described, has a tight-fitting back and loose flowing front, which is held in place by means of a broad sash—usually fashioned of some kind of fine transparent material—tied into a soft bow with long hanging ends that reach to the seam of the gown. For warm weather wear my ideal teagown is made of fine muslin, either plain or spotted, with a fichu of soft lace draped about the shoulders. Mounted on a batiste lining, cut in semi-Empire style and with a sash to tie at the bust-line and falling in loose ends at the left side, such a fabric is effective in spite of its inexpensiveness. The yoke and sleeves might perchance be of lace or else of all-over embroidery. It is the teagown of this order that may be composed of remnants, and at the same time present a smart appearance.

Another capital idea for a party teagown, and one which almost any one would be able to carry out, is to utilize the skirts of two old silk gowns. These should be most carefully unpicked and, if necessary, sent to the friendly cleaner, who, by the way, seems to grow more and more efficient at this important work. The all-conquering Empire sash below the bust-line will hide the joining in the skirt and waist completely.

I might mention in passing that this sash—preferably made of some soft fabric—is often of two or more colors, and when these colors are in perfect harmony the whole effect is charming indeed. The sleeves to such a gown would be easy to manipulate. They could be gauged at the elbow and any contrasting material used to form the puff underneath. Another way to use past season's frocks is to have them cleaned and well pressed and used as underdresses for muslin teagowns. These make admirable foundations with the coats or stoles of lace or oriental embroidery which are so popular just now.

Now, surely, I have given you an insight into the intricacies of the modern teagown which, always remember, to look its best must never err on the side of too much plainness. In fact it is the one garment in which one's fancy for decoration can absolutely run riot. However beautiful and elaborate the gown may happen to be it never gives one the uncomfortable feeling of being overdressed for the occasion, added to which is the certain knowledge that in exploiting its beauty the wearer is but enhancing her own personal charms, for it is a well-known fact that in the teagown of the moment lovely woman is made to appear still more lovely and that under its benign influence the plain-looking woman is given a grace delightful to behold. Think of the days—and not so very long ago either—when smart dressing was represented by the tight, well-boned bodice and the stiff unyielding lining to the skirt, and be grateful to the powers who regulate the modes of the moment, particularly in teagowns.

In the matter of teajackets the variety in style is almost as great as in teagowns, although more latitude is allowed in the materials used. For every day wear nothing is prettier or more appropriate than the little loose-fitting jacket fashioned of washing silk. Some are made to fit tight in the back, with loose fronts, others again are in the popular Empire style, but prettier than all others, according to my way of thinking, are the dainty little jackets made of fine white batiste, accordion-plaited, mounted over a tight-fitting lining of colored silk and trimmed with yards upon yards of insertion and lace edging to match. As the cool days of autumn approach many lovely jackets will put in an appearance, made of figured French delaine and cashmere, fashioned with loose flowing sleeves and broad sailor collars, finished with dainty trimmings of lace and ribbon.

The long-waisted court bodices of many years ago are surely coming in again, to judge from many of the models seen thus far. The effect is often arrived at by the best dressmakers in the deft arrangement of the belt. It is certainly a very pretty fashion, and one that will prove generally becoming; and just so long as it is not exaggerated, as so many pretty fashions are nowadays, we have little to fear from its popularity. In the new skirt models the clinging effect is still adhered to, as far as the knees, but they are fuller at the feet than ever before, while on the trains there is an endless amount of ruches and fine gatherings which make them look very much fuller than they really are.

In spite of the fact that linen has always been considered an essentially summer material, many of the handsomest tailor-made gowns are fashioned of this beautiful fabric. These costumes are intended for early autumn wear and come in dark tones of brown, blue and green. To judge by the looks of these gowns they seem by no means easy to make; that is, I do not advise the amateur dressmaker to attempt one, for linen is a difficult material to manipulate and does not look well unless strapped and pressed after the approved professional manner.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF NEW JERSEY, PROPOSED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF 1902.

Be it resolved by the Senate (the House of Assembly concurring) that the following amendments to the constitution of this state be, and the same are hereby proposed, and when the same shall be agreed to by a majority of members elected to the Senate and House of Assembly, the said amendments shall be entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the legislature next to be chosen, and shall be published for three months previous to the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November next (being the fourth day of said month), in at least one newspaper of each county, if any be published therein, the said newspapers to be designated by the president of the Senate, the speaker of the House of Assembly and the secretary of state.

ARTICLE V.

Executive.

1. Insert in lieu of paragraph 10, a new paragraph, as follows:

10. The governor, or person administering the government, the chancellor and the attorney-general, or two of them of whom the governor, or person administering the government, shall be one, may remit fines and forfeitures and grant pardons, after conviction, in all cases except impeachment.

ARTICLE VI.

Judiciary.

1. Insert in lieu of Section II, a new section, as follows:

1. The court of errors and appeals shall consist of a chief judge and four associate judges, or any four of them.

2. In case any judge of said court shall be disqualified to sit in any cause, or shall be unable for the time being to discharge the duties of his office, whereby the whole number of judges capable of sitting shall be reduced below four, the governor shall designate a justice of the supreme court, the chancellor or a vice-chancellor, to discharge such duties until the disqualification or inability shall cease.

3. The secretary of state shall be the clerk or this court.

4. When a writ of error shall be brought, any judicial opinion in the cause, in favor of or against any error complained of, shall be assigned to the court in writing; when an appeal shall be taken from an order or decree of the court of chancery, the chancellor or vice-chancellor making such decree or order shall inform the court in writing of his reasons therefor.

5. The jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the supreme court by writ of error shall be exclusively vested in the court of errors and appeals; but any writ of error pending in the supreme court at the time of the adoption of this amendment shall be proceeded upon as if no change had taken place.

Section IV.

1. Insert in lieu of paragraph 1, a new paragraph, as follows:

1. The court of chancery shall consist of a chancellor and such number of vice-chancellors as shall be provided by law, each of whom may exercise the jurisdiction of the court; the court shall make rules governing the hearing of causes and the practice of the court, where the same is not regulated by statute.

Section V.

1. At the end of paragraph 1, add the following:

The court may sit in divisions at the same or different times and places.

Strike out paragraph 3.

Section VI.

1. Insert in lieu of paragraphs 1 and 2, the following:

The court of common pleas shall be constituted and held in each county in such manner as may be provided by law.

ARTICLE VII.

Civil Officers.

Section II.

1. Insert in lieu of paragraph 1, a new paragraph, as follows:

1. Judges of the court of errors and appeals, justices of the supreme court, the chancellor, the vice-chancellors and the judges of the circuit court and of the court of common pleas shall be nominated by the governor and appointed by him with the advice and consent of the Senate; all persons now holding any office in this paragraph named, except the judges of the court of errors and appeals as heretofore existing, shall continue in the exercise of the duties of their respective offices according to their respective commissions or appointments; the judges of the court of errors and appeals, except those first appointed; the justices of the supreme court, the chancellor and the vice-chancellors shall hold their offices for the term of seven years, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation which shall not be diminished during the term of their appointment; and they shall hold no other office under the government of this state or the United States; the judges of the court of errors and appeals first appointed shall be appointed one for three years, two for five years and two for seven years; judges of the court of common pleas shall hold their offices for the term of five years.

Strike out paragraph 2.

Take the Cake for Laziness.

United States Consul Furniss, of Sergpipe, Brazil, says of the shiftless native Brazilian: "He need not own land, as he can put up his mud hut anywhere; he has an abundance of fruit such as the banana, jaca, caju; the tidal rivers are full of fish, shrimp, crabs and oysters and the woods abound with game. He can raise his small patch of manioc, and as it is never cold enough for fire he works only when there is need of money to purchase articles which he does not produce. I have been shown fields full of cotton and other products which were going to waste because of the proprietor's inability to induce laborers to harvest them. One would think that laborers living on a farm would be compelled to work for the proprietor, but that does not seem to be the case here, as in spite of the fact that in most cases they pay no rent they will either refuse to work at all or will work only a few days at a time; yet they are allowed to remain upon the land preempted."

Airship Heavier Than Air.

Monsieur Santos-Dumont, writing a description of his own airships, points to a fact which may be new to the general public. Although he employs a balloon filled with hydrogen, yet his machine is so ballasted as to make its total weight heavier by some pounds than the weight of the volume of air it displaces. Consequently it cannot rise by the unaided effort of the spindle-shaped balloon. The aeronaut is able to shift the center of gravity, and when he wishes to rise he cants the forward end upward and sets the propeller in motion. The airship thus ascends on an inclined atmospheric plane, and if the propeller is stopped it descends gently toward the earth by its own weight. The inventor avers that he has thus combined the principles of the balloon and the aeroplane.—Youth's Companion.

THIS HORSE CAN WRITE.

Germinal, Property of a French Doctor, Prints Its Master's Name on a Blackboard.

Among the domestic animals capable of training in the highest degree, none exceeds the horse in willingness. In the demonstration of this fact a French amateur equestrian has been showing off the points of his favorite saddle horse, Germinal.

Germinal is the property of Dr. M. Roubet, and among the many tricks for which the animal already has more than local celebrity Dr. Roubet prides himself upon the beast's ability to write the doctor's name in a manner to satisfy the most exacting of primary teachers.

GERMINAL'S WRITING.
(The Cut Shows How the Equine Scholar Progressed.)

Writing as an equine accomplishment has its difficulties upon the face of things, as the animal shows least design for the work. Dr. Roubet, however, has overcome the physical inabilities of the creature, and by means of a penholder of special design the horse prints the name "Roubet" with the greatest ease and facility. More than this, the animal learned the trick in about 20 days.

The doctor began to teach the horse, guiding it by the reins. It was a new and wholly meaningless task for the animal, and the first results were of a nature to have discouraged any one but a horse lover and enthusiast. Gradually, however, the animal began to see design in the task to which he had been set, and as he progressed his willingness grew until with the evolved writing staff the plainest lettering was obtained.

The penholder used by the horse is a long, light staff of wood, with a roll of cloth wound around the end. This carries the pigment with which the letters are made, and in making them Germinal now does so without the least direction from his trainer.

THE EARL OF DUDLEY.

New Lord Lieutenant of Ireland Was for Years Known as King of Spendthrifts.

William Humble Ward, second earl of Dudley, the new lord lieutenant of Ireland, is only 36. He inherited from his father an enormous fortune, his income being $2,000,000 a year. The young nobleman was a spendthrift and plunged madly into every extravagance. He entertained upon an amazing scale in Paris, and his life there and on the continent, his journeys to the east and his elephant hunts in India entailed enormous expenditures. Then he took up horse racing and gambling for high stakes. It was at this period that his mother, the beautiful Lady Dudley, dowager countess, stepped in and, calling a family council, insisted that affairs should be so managed that the earl should receive only $50,000 a year pocket money.

THE EARL OF DUDLEY.
(Lord Cadogan's Successor as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.)

He married Rachel Gurney, daughter of the London banker, in 1891, against the wishes of his family. Her mother was at one time socially intimate with the prince of Wales, but later ran a millinery establishment in London. The young earl has been parliamentary secretary to the board of trade since 1895, is mayor of Dudley and served in the Yeomanry cavalry in the Boer war.

Much Smoke, Little Fire.

A pair of corsets were the innocent cause of much excitement in Bloomfield, N. J., the other day. During a violent storm a ball of fire was seen to descend on the roof of a fruit store and in a few moments later the rooms in the establishment were filled with smoke. Firemen were summoned to make an investigation before an alarm was sent in. They hunted high and low but could find no fire. The smoke grew denser and finally one of the firemen found a pair of corsets that had been placed in the stovepipe for safe-keeping.

THE STAY AT HOME MOTHER

Suggestions For Keeping Children Healthy During Hot Weather.

Now that the hot weather of September is upon us the problem of keeping the smaller children healthy becomes a difficult one, especially for those women who are unable to take their families out of town. The following hints are intended especially for such mothers:

In the first place, provide the children with a cool place in which they can play. If you have only the ordinary city back yard, cover a part of it with sailcloth. Under the shelter of this, place a swing or a heap of seashore sand.

A most useful and sanitary summer cradle is one made on a framework of wood and covered top, bottom and sides with fine wire netting. This may be swung in a shady corner or under a tree, and in it the baby will sleep quietly and safely, unmolested by flies or mosquitoes.

On very hot days awaken the children early and give them a cooling bath. Then after they have eaten a simple breakfast of hominy, soft boiled eggs and a very little fresh fruit take them out for a short walk before the heat of the day has begun. When they come home, remove their little gowns, no matter how thin, and let them play quietly in the darkened nursery. Dinner should consist mainly of a bit of steak, roast beef or chicken.

After dinner there should be a nap of an hour or two, then at half past 4 another walk, coming home in time for supper. Just before going to bed a tepid bath has a soothing effect.

Occasionally, if practicable, it is a good plan to take the children for the day to a nearby seashore and let them wade in the water and dig amid the seaweed, but great care should be observed that the simple home diet is not abandoned and that the afternoon nap be taken.

HELEN CLIFTON.

THE AWKWARD STAIRWAY.

How to Beautify the Most Unattractive Part of the Home.

The omnipresent banister has often been the despair of the house furnisher. The average staircase in a small house is both narrow and steep of ascent. The easiest way to overcome its depressing influence is to paint the woodwork white, and not only the woodwork of the staircase, but of the entire hall, thus transforming it into a room. Be sure to choose a cheerful paper. Nothing is so depressing as a dark entrance. Green and pale yellow are perhaps the best for this purpose.

It is fortunate if the stairway has a landing with a window at the top to permit an arrangement like the one illustrated. If it is a dark landing, a pretty lamp with a jeweled or flower shade adds much to its cheerfulness.

Pots of growing plants, especially ferns and palms, should be massed around the foot of the stairs to soften the effect with their graceful outlines.

"I don't know where you got such absurd ideas as these," twisting uneasily on his feet.

"Never mind where I got them; it is enough that they are true."

"Have your own way," said Ellison, shrugging his shoulders; "and now I hope you will let me go. I can have a chance to 'tend to some more important business."

He was moving toward the door, when Job stepped forward and barred his way.

"One moment, please?"

"What is it now?" angrily.

"Where is the young lady—Grace?"

"How dare you address her by that name, fellow," and, if a look could kill, the little man would have been annihilated then and there.

"Perhaps I have more right to address her by her first name than you," muttered Job, while a look of unutterable sadness came over his worn old face.

There was something in the expression of his companion that caused Ellison to eye him curiously. There was some strange mystery about the man before him that often set him thinking.

"I dare say you will find the young lady in the garden," he said, at length. "What can you possibly have to say to her?"

"Much more than I dare say," and the shadow again passed over the rough features. "Be sure that it will not be a word about her birth. I shall not speak of that."

"You are a queer man—a queer man," muttered Ellison, and then he hurriedly left the room, shaking his head as over a problem he was hopeless of solving.

Job watched him go with a faint smile.

"How he would have liked to show his claws, and yet he was afraid. A coward at heart, he hesitated how to act, even when it was only a broken-down ex-convict against him."

He approached the window and looked down into the sunny garden. It was the sight of a young girl, seated under a tree, that suddenly changed the expression of his face completely. He seemed to be more deeply moved than at any time since he had been fencing with James Ellison for an antagonist. He returned to the center of the room in deep thought, and then:

"Yes, I must see her. It will be such great good news that her lover is free, and that I have smoothed the way to their happiness. It will comfort the poor child. God bless her!" And, leaving the room, he went down the stairs into the garden, with a smile of anticipation on his face.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A VICTORIOUS DEFEAT.

Job Hendricks entered the garden with a light step. Seeing the gleam of a white skirt in the distance, he made his way in that direction. At the same time he was timid about approaching the object of his quest.

Grace Ellison came running toward him, but, when she recognized a stranger, she drew back, and then, when she recalled that she had seen him before, stood for a moment undecided in the path.

Job had taken his hat off, and as he approached in a humble way, he spoke in a stammering voice, while his face colored like a bashful schoolgirl's.

"Miss, I have good news for you."

"What do you mean?"

"That to-day—to-morrow, at the most—he will be free."

She stepped forward and took his rough hands in hers.

"Are you sure—are you sure?" drawing back again, as if doubting such wonderful news could be true.

"No doubt about it, miss, since the real criminal has confessed."

She looked at him for a moment in silence, and then held out her hands to him with a gesture that was at once graceful and childlike.

"I believe you have something to do with this."

"Not all I should have liked," and then Job began strange performances with his handkerchief, while for a moment he turned away his head.

"I am certain that you have been instrumental in bringing this about," and he seemed to tremble as her eyes, filled with a soft and kindly look, met his.

"I—I did what I could," clearing his throat with an effort, and then, after a moment's silence: "I shouldn't wonder but Dick might arrive here at any moment. Perhaps he is even now in the house."

She uttered a joyous exclamation, and then, without a word more, ran by him in the direction of the house.

Job stood there for a moment in the sunny path, looking after the bright figure, and then turned away with a sigh.

"I might have kept the good news back for a moment, for, after all, this may be the last time I shall see her."

He walked slowly down the path she had taken, and then flung himself down on a bench in the shadow of the walls, hoping that by waiting he might see her again. As he sat there, with eyes half closed, a stan on the porch caused him to rise, and he found himself face to face with Frank Ellison. For a moment the two men stood staring at each other, then instinctively rushed forward to grapple with each other.

But the stored-up hatred of years had given Hendricks strength, and the struggle was a short one. But, just as Ellison went down, a shot rang out, and the old man fell. The garden suddenly became alive with men, officers and others, probably detectives.

As Inspector Thorne, who seemed in charge of the men, raised the wounded man, he saw that he was badly hit, but Job could still speak.

"Look for the man who calls himself Frank Ellison," he said, in a clear voice, for Ellison, at the sight of the officers, had escaped. "He is the man you have been looking for so long—the Shadow. He is in the house now."

Thorne, seeing that Job was dying, and must, therefore, be speaking the truth, gave some hurried directions, and his men scattered, eager to be the first to capture such a celebrity. Some entered the house, while others stationed themselves at all the entrances.

"Have they found him?" asked Job, anxiously, raising himself on his elbow, in the hope of seeing his old enemy.

"We shall find him, no doubt," replied Thorne. "He cannot possibly get away from us."

The dying man, although his eyes were fast glazing, still stared around him.

"What do you want—something to drink?" and the inspector held a glass of water to his lips, but Job pushed it way.

"No, no; I want to see her—my daughter—I am Martin Frale!" Then added: "I let it be thought Frale was dead, and, as we were so alike, took the other's name."

They thought his mind must be wandering. What was this talk about a daughter? The sound of hurrying steps, and Grace Ellison was beside him. Not far off, hesitating, as if in doubt whether to advance, was Dick Barnett.

She saw the wounded man, and her kindly heart was moved to sympathy as she kneeled down beside him and wiped the death dew from his forehead, while his dim eyes regarded her longingly.

"Here, Dick—here!" she called out. "This is the poor man who did so much to help us in our trouble. And he is dying!"

Barnett, pushing forward through the crowd, recognized in the wounded man his eccentric friend of other days, whom he had met under such peculiar circumstances. He, too, was moved at the sight, and uttered a few compassionate words.

"Is there anything that I can do for you—anything that you want?" she asked, as she bent down to catch what he might say, for his voice was failing, and he was growing weak. For a moment he raised his trembling hands toward her, and then let them fall back with a choking sob.

"No—no; there is nothing—my daughter," he quavered.

Grace looked around for a moment in a bewildered way, then said:

"Why did he call me his daughter? Ah, his mind is wandering, and he is thinking of the daughter that died."

His fast-glazing eyes were fixed on her, and at the sound of her voice his face seemed to brighten.

"Will you—will you kiss me—for her sake?" he murmured, and his life seemed to hang on her reply. For a moment she hesitated, then leaned down and touched his lips with hers.

As she turned away, Job sank in the inspector's arms and his eyes closed, but on his mouth was a smile of ineffable peace—and so the end came to the tired man.

Frank Ellison did not escape, and, evidence being produced to show him to be the man who had made merry with the police so long, he was tried and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. James Ellison was not seen from that day, and his affairs were found in such a tangle that the entire fortune he had received from his wife had vanished.

Dick Barnett learned in time of his young wife's origin, but it did not change his feelings toward her, and she never learned the secret of her life. As for Martin Frale, the mystery of his career and his reason for having taken another's name and reputation and assuming his character is still a puzzling memory to many. Perhaps he died just at the time he wished, when his work was accomplished, and he needed rest.

The Summer Season Has Been Prolific of Comic Opera

Several Notable Successes Among Which Is "The Prince of Pilsen" and "King Dodo."

COMIC OPERA has been the rage of the summer season in every large city, and in the majority of the smaller ones that have boasted of summer dramatic entertainments. So much has been offered for public approval in this line that the public have been prone to be overly critical, and operas that a year or so ago would have received a full mead of applause and commendation have this year been voted tame, so great has been the variety.

In all the history of the American stage there has never been a summer season when such extravagant expenditures of money were attempted in the staging of comic operas. This year the scenery, costuming and novelty effects of the operas have all been upon a scale that we have never known before.

George Ade, in the preparation of the book for his "Sultan of Sulu," departed somewhat from the usual lines of comic opera, and gave the piece a plot. To be sure, it was not an intricate one, but it was sufficient to add interest to the piece, and other authors have found his a good example to follow. Frank Baum has done something of the same thing in "The Wizard of Oz," which has had such a run at the Grand opera house in Chicago, and for this as well as because of the general excellence of the production in virtually all ways the piece has had a wonderful success, and will in all probability close its Chicago engagement with houses that are crowded clear to the doors. This is a condition that has been a feature of the entire run of "The Wizard."

"Florodora" had a remarkable run in New York before the summer had really begun, and its popularity continued through a successful season at the Illinois in Chicago. Of the Chicago successes, "The Storks" is by no means least, though it can scarcely be classed as the equal of "The Wizard," "The Sultan of Sulu," "Florodora," or "King Dodo." The crowded houses that have greeted each performance of the latter opera are the more remarkable when it is considered that it is its second season in Chicago. It ran through the entire summer months of 1901, and the Chicago public never seemed to tire of it, and during the engagement of this season, beginning early in August, the remodeled Studebaker has been crowded to its full limit at every performance, both evening and afternoon. It will continue at the Studebaker until about the middle of September, when it will give place to another of the remarkable successes of the year, "The Prince of Pilsen." This opera, like "King Dodo," is the work of Luders and Pixley. For four consecutive months it has been attracting crowded houses at the Tremont theater, Boston, and is one of the most notable of the year's eastern successes. It is produced by the Castle Square opera company, under the management of Henry W. Savage, and the company is known in practically every city of America.

The first performance of the autumn run of "The Prince of Pilsen" will be given at the Studebaker in Chicago on Tuesday evening, September 23. No announcement has yet been made of how long the piece will continue.

Like "The Sultan of Sulu," "The Wizard" and a few others, "The Prince of Pilsen" is blessed with something like a plot, and the location of the piece at nature's most favored resort, Nice, on the shores of the blue Mediterranean, at the season of the fete de fleurs, would seem to be designed especially to give full sway to the scene painter and costume designer, and the opportunity is said to have been grasped by Mr. Savage to put forth his best efforts and provide an environment for the prince that will surpass anything of the kind ever witnessed in America.

Briefly, the story of the exploitation of all the good things promised is as follows: It becomes noised about the Italian resort during the festivities incident to the annual fete de fleurs that the prince of Pilsen is contemplating an early visit, incognito. The enterprising proprietor of the Hotel Internationale prepares a regal reception for the distinguished guest. Hans Wagner, a German-American brewer, and his daughter, go to Nice to visit Wagner's son, a lieutenant in the American navy, and incidentally to attend the flower fete. On the arrival the band mistakes the brewer for the prince, and the American travelers receive a bewildering reception. The brewer imagines that the popular cheers for the prince of Pilsen is a tribute to his own greatness as the manufacturer of beer in America, and accepts the situation.

When the real prince of Pilsen, a dashing young student of Heidelberg, arrives with his companions, they are not only ignored, but experience difficulty in securing accommodations on account of the crowds that have besieged the hotel, in order to catch a glimpse of the honored guest. Surprised beyond measure by the unexpected turn of affairs, the prince does not disclose his identity, but decides to wait for an auspicious moment to expose the supposed imposter. Accidentally he meets the brewer's daughter, and a minute's conversation suffices to assure him that the Americans are entirely innocent of any intention to deceive. Hesitating to bring disgrace upon them by exposure, he decides to pose as a private citizen. As the action proceeds, he falls in love with the daughter, and to protect her maintains his incognito, even when the blundering brewer, who has unwittingly borrowed the prince's name, involves them both in all sorts of difficulties. Of course, a happy termination of the complication is brought about, and all ends as merrily as a marriage bell.

A dramatic critic, when asked to make a comparison between "The Prince of Pilsen" and "King Dodo," said:

"The two performances cannot be compared in any way. 'Dodo' is fantastic and extravagant in theme and development, while 'Pilsen' is blessed with a plot absolutely sane and probable. The dialogue is the best Mr. Pixley ever wrote, his lyrics being pithy and rhythmic with a certain swing which has given Mr. Luders an inspiring foundation for his musical superstructure, an opportunity which he has improved to the utmost. The opera is unusually well cast and the chorus, for which all of Mr. Savage's productions are noted, is unusually capable, vocally and ornamentally. From the rise of the curtain until its final descent, solos, duets, quartettes and choruses, all in Luder's very best style, follow each other with a rapidity which makes it hard to decide which is the more melodious or pleasing."

SCENE FROM ACT II IN "THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

One of the things in lighter vein that New Yorkers are just beginning to enjoy is the New Clown, now being presented at the Garrick theater. It is the broadest kind of a farce, and its name is secured from the fact that the piece has to do with fun in a circus, and what befalls the young and rather effeminate Lord Cyril Garston, when, to escape a predicament and hide himself, he masquerades as a clown that was expected at Dixen's traveling Royal circus, and is called on to "do stunts" in the show.

The piece has had an all summer's run in London, and the people of that city thought it a jolly frolicsome bit of fun, well worth seeing more than once. The special funmakers in the cast are Lord Cyril and Dollie, the circus proprietor's niece, and these roles are played by Mr. Jameson Lee Finney, who has done some capital character acting, and Miss Jessie Busley, whose laughable music hall singer in "Hearts Are Trumps" everyone doubtless remembers.

THE ASTROLOGER.

Facts About Ostrich Plumes.

Black and white ostrich plumes come from the male bird, the gray from the female. The feathers are not plucked out, as one might imagine, but are clipped off with a sharp knife, leaving the end of the quill in the flesh, where it remains for two or three months, until it "dies," when it is pulled out with forceps.

Movements of Immigrants.

Two-thirds of the Irish immigrants settle in the eastern and middle states. Two-thirds of the Germans go west. Of 1,000,000 Scandinavians, 870,000 are in the west and northwest. The Russians, Poles, Hungarians and Italians are chiefly found in New England, New York and Pennsylvania.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The scheduled game between the St. Mary and Bronx teams, did not take place, Saturday, owing to the late arrival of the visiting team. The members missed an early train and did not reach this city until well after 4 o'clock. By the time they reached the field the spectators had all departed and the St. Mary men were also witnessing the Y. M. C. A.-Scotch Plains game.

GOLF.

Mrs. N. Pendelton Rogers is making excellent progress in her training for the Women's National Tournament which will be held in Boston.

Eugene McCarthy, the expert and caddymaster at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, has given up his position there, and Martin Loughlin, one of the oldest of the caddy boys, is now in charge, for the present.

The team from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club went to Montclair, Saturday, and played a match game with the team from that place Judging by the score the Plainfielders were very much out of it. They were defeated by the score of 21 to 4. Robert Abbott was the only one of Hillside team to score. The scores:

DISTRIBUTING RIGS.

Thomas E. Sykes, who claimed New York as his home, came to Plainfield Friday morning from Westfield. He had a horse and wagon which he hired at Westfield. This rig he left at Dr. Pocok's livery, after which he went to the Hotel Kensington, where he stopped for the day. In the evening he hired another rig at the Plainfield Cab Company's place and left town, not to return. Saturday word was received from Flemington that the rig was there and the company could have it by paying $5 for the keeping.

W. A. Coddington, of the cab company, went to Flemington Saturday and brought the rig home. The man disappeared, and he forgot to settle his bill at the Hoel Kensington before his departure. He claimed to be the representative for a beer concern, but this afterward proved to untrue. The Westfield liveryman secured his rig Saturday.

WARREN'S TRIP.

Forty Uniformed Members Go to Atlantic City Tomorrow.

Forty uniformed members of Warren Engine Company in charge of Captain Smith, will leave Plainfield tomorrow afternoon for Atlantic City to attend the State convention of firemen. They will leave on a special car attached to the 2:49 train and at Elizabethport the car will be transferred to the 3:45 o'clock express, which is due at Atlantic City at 6:30 o'clock. The borough firemen will put up at the Atlantic Hotel.

The company will be accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, sixteen members. If possible the company will have a short parade before they leave town. They will assemble at the engine house at 1 o'clock, and from there will go through Somerset street to Manning avenue, to Watchung avenue, to Grandview avenue, to Somerset street, to Front street, to Park avenue, to North avenue, to railroad station.

KEEPING AT IT.

Sheridan Jones Arrested Twice in Twenty-Four Hours for Drunkness.

Gratitude evidently doesn't form part of the make-up of Sheridan Jones, a well known local colored man. He was picked up, helplessly drunk, by Patrolman Vanderweg, early Sunday morning and was locked up at police headquarters. He became sober last night and not wishing to keep him confined Chief Kiely released him to appear for trial this evening.

Sheridan's liberty was short lived for as early as 7 o'clock this morning he was brought in by Patrolman Saffron, again overcome by the juice of the grape or some other liquor. He will be on time for trial this evening.

BATTLED ON CAR.

Offenders Fought When the Scotch Plains Officers Arrested Them.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Sept. 8—Charles Johnson and Swan Fagan, of Westfield, were fined $5 and cost each, by Justice Clark, yesterday morning, for disorderly conduct. The men caused a disturbance on a trolley car, Saturday evening, and when they were placed under arrest by Chief of Police Allen, who was also a passenger, friends came to their rescue and a pitched battle ensued. Johnson was finally subdued and locked up but Fagan was not caught until after midnight. The fines were paid by a friend.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. FRIENDS' MEET AT SHORE

BIENNIAL CONFERENCE OF SOCIETY OF FRIENDS' IN SESSION.

Began at Asbury Park Friday and Will Continue Most of This Week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, Sept. 8—The biennial conference of the Society of Friends is being held this year at Asbury Park, beginning Friday and lasting until Thursday of this week.

Members of the Society of Friends all over the United States have looked forward to this conference as the greatest event of the year, and thousands of them attend. This year there is every indication that the attendance will be unusually large, probably because of the event being held in the east, where the majority of the members are located.

Three sessions will be held each day in the Auditorium. The proceedings, which are of a religious educational and social nature, will be participated in by practically all of the more prominent men and women members of the society in this country.

Especial significance is attached by the American Friends to the presence at this conference of John W. Graham, principal of Dalton Hall, Manchester, England. It is thought that his coming may serve to bring the American and English Friends closer together.

Howard M. Jenkins, of Philadelphia, presided Friday morning. Two papers on "The Ministry" presented by Elizabeth Powell Bond and John W. Graham, of England. Alice C. Robinson, of Baltimore, read a paper on "How to Influence the Press." In the afternoon Robert M. Janney, of Philadelphia, presented a paper entitled "The Promotion of Reverence."

Saturday, Rachel W. Underhill, of Brooklyn read a paper on "A Definite Aim in First-day School Teaching." "The First-day School as a Forerunner of the Meeting" was the title of a paper by J. Eugene Baker, of Philadelphia. An address on "Organized Charity" was made by Homer Foulkes, commissioners of charities, New York City.

Tomorrow being devoted to educational interests, President Joseph Swain, of Swarthmore College, will read a paper entitled "A Plea for the Higher Education."

An address on "The Relation of Society to Crime and Criminals" will be made on Wednesday, by Charles L. Lewis, president of Prison Association of New York. "The Colored People" will be discussed on Wednesday by Anna J. Cooper, of Washington, D. C., High School.

CONTINUING THIRD RAIL.

After Consents to Extend It From New Brunswick to Metuchen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Metuchen, Sept. 8—Supplies are being brought into this section of the county by the contractor who is constructing the New Brunswick and Trenton Trolley Railroad. It is expected that work will be commenced on this side of the Raritan river very soon. Agents of the trolley company have been at work securing the right of way across farms and other property.

W. B. Pratt owns a large farm directly in the proposed route, near Metuchen. When he was approached he named a price per foot for the entire length of the road that is to cross his property. Then he offered to reduce the price eighty per cent. if the company would be used for trolley purposes only, and not for a steam road. The offer of a compromise was rejected.

One of the representatives of the company said that electricity is to be given a trial, and if the road is not a success it will be turned into a steam system.

Death of Mrs. Kneeland.

Mrs. Alice Kneeland, wife of Patrick Kneeland, died at her home 323 Lee place, Saturday evening. She had been ill for some time. The funeral will be held from the home tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock where a requiem mass will be said for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Back to Duty.

Doorman Thomas McCue resumed his duties at police headquarters, this morning, after enjoying his ten days' vacation. Part of the time was spent at Bethlehem, Pa., where the genial doorman attended a re-union of the Shinn-Fane Society of which he is a charter member.

In Justice Huff's Court.

Summons have been issued from Justice Huff's court in the contract case of E. W. Mills against Hartpense & Kirch, returnable September 17. The plaintiff is represented by F. J. Blatz.

—Thomas Reid, of East Fifth street, has resigned his position at the Scott Press Works to accept a similar one in a shop at Easton, Pa.

PERSONAL.

Miss Dorothea Bull, of Craig place, returned today after a summer outing spent at DeRuyter, N. Y.

G. L. Leisenring, of the Allentown, Pa., Morning Call, has been spending the past few days with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Beekman, of Chatham street, are the parents of a daughter who came to their home, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Stoughton, of St. Marys, Pa., were the guests yesterday of Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue.

Mrs. William J. Nelson, of West Second street, who has been in New York for an operation, was brought to her home this afternoon. Dr. Clawson is in attendance.

Almond Clark, the new instructor at the North Plainfield High School, has arrived here from his home at Cortland, N. Y., and has taken up his residence on Craig place.

The Misses Kathryn Harding, of John street, and Helen F. Callahan, of Richmond street, who have been spending the summer with relatives at Fort Hamilton, L. I., and at Jersey City, have returned home.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Dr. D. C. Adams has purchased the Deitrich homestead property at 58 Grove street.

—The Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association will meet this evening in regular session.

—Every member of Warren Engine Company is requested to be present tonight for the drill, preparatory to the trip to Atlantic City.

—Two hundred baskets of fine canning peaches will be offered by Neuman Brothers tomorrow. Quality the best this season. Buy now as the price of fruit will advance next week.

—Rev. A. L. Anderson, of Brockton, Mass., will visit Rev. O. G. Norseen tomorrow and also preach for the Swedish Pilgrim church at the Congregational church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

To Dispose of Furniture.

The entire furniture in a ten-room house at 58 Grove street, will be sold next Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock by P. H. Latourette, the auctioneer, for Miss Addie Deitrich. There will be many bargains offered. The terms will be cash.

Returned From China.

Townsend Rushmore, of Stelle avenue, returned home Saturday for a four-months trip to China. He returned by way of Wolfsboro, N. H., to bring home the members of his family who have been camping there all summer.

An African Night.

From the bush rose the death scream of some animal in the grip of its pursuer, jackals yelped in the distance, or the prolonged howl of a hyena broke out close at hand. A wakeful "boy" imitated it derisively, the snores gave place to a renewed murmur of talk, the askari flung another log on the smouldering fire. Not always did the land lie silent. I have known sleep made difficult by the antics of hundreds of zebra, who thudded hither and thither on the plain like diminutive cavalry, and cried in a succession of little barks, worried perhaps by finding the camp between them and their accustomed watering place. In some districts when on wet nights rain had swamped the fires a zoological garden of "questing beasts" was apt to foregather round the tents. Thus hyenas, jackals, three lions, and a brace of hippopotami contributed intimately to one seance that I wot of, and as the darkness was too thick for vision, that night yielded but scanty peace. Hippo are at all times awkward things to get raveled up in the tent ropes.—Cornhill Magazine.

Bring the Ends Together.

A certain colonel somewhere in the south (no matter where) was in the habit of telling yarns and greatly exaggerating. He had a negro servant who corroborated everything his master told. One day the Colonel had some gentlemen to dinner, and they were enjoying some fine venison very much. The colonel said: "Yes, I went hunting the other day and saw a fine buck. I took a good sight at him and shot him through the head, and the bullet went through his hind leg." The gentlemen looked at each other a little mystified. The negro scratched his head and at last said: "Yes, indeed, gemmen, just as massa raised the gun to shoot the buck he raise his hind leg and scratch his ear, and the bullet went through the head and right through de hind leg." The gentlemen looked more satisfied. After the guests had left the negro said to his master, "Gorry mighty, massa, next time you tell one of dem yarns do get the ends closter togedder. I had hard work to make both ends meet."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHAT "ANTIS" THINK OF IT

Minority Report Presented to Borough Council by Councilman Nichols on Friday.

ANSWER TO MR. CLARK.

Reasons Why He Thinks Annexation and Consolidation Are Inadvisible—Is Mostly Devoted to Pointing Out Technical Errors in Councilman Clark's Report.

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen of the Council:

The two essential features of your resolution of May 2, are, the advantages and disadvantages of annexation and consolidation.

Mr. Clark and Mr. Arnold being of one mind have presented to you their views on the advantages to be obtained by annexation and consolidation. This, however, does not fulfill the requirements of your resolution, and being of the committee I beg to submit the following minority report on these two important questions.

The note indebtedness of Somerset county as mentioned in Mr. Clark's report as being $128,188.75 is not properly given, and for a correction of same I would refer to the following communication received from the County Collector of Somerset county in answer to an inquiry on the subject:

Somerville, N. J., Aug. 9, 1902.

"Dear Sir:—Your letter of the 8th, inst. just received, and I hasten to answer same. The note indebtedness of our county was $78,245.50, and cash on hand was $13,643.36 as you will see by last report of May 1902.

"As to the item of $47,818.25 this, in a manner is, or may be called a liability, although I don't believe the county will ever be called upon to pay same. I will endeavor to enlighten you as best I can on that (surplus revenue) item. About the year 1836 when J. C. Calhoun was United States Treasurer, there was a surplus (revenue) of about thirty-six million dollars, which was divided up among the States. The states divided same among the then existing counties with the stipulation that the interest on same was to be paid for the support of public schools, and was accepted with that understanding.

"Our county appointed commissioners to invest or loan this money and collect interest, etc. A little of the same was lost by bad investments, and about 1880 the freeholders done away with the commissioners and placed this surplus revenue in the general county fund, and every year the interest on this surplus revenue is paid for the support of the schools as originally intended, upon orders from the State superintendent. So you will see that this money, (surplus revenue) was divided up between the states, and then given to the counties with the understanding heretofore mentioned. I simply make the mention of it in the last part of my report from year to year so it is not lost track of, as you will see by reading the last paragraph of report. Some counties make no mention of it the same as if it had ceased to exist. Am satisfied it will never have to be paid but have always published it as a probable liability.

"Yours very truly,
"(Signed) E. B. Allen,
"County Collector."

An analysis of this letter shows us that Somerset county had a debt of $78,245.50 with $13,643.36 cash on hand, leaving a balance of $64,602.14, about one-half of the amount as stated in the majority report, for this letter shows us that the item of $47,818.25 is really a source of income for the county's schools. Other counties have similar moneys, derived from the same source and make no mention of the amount as a liability.

Looking to Union county I find that they have reduced their bonded indebtedness but $116,000 from 1892 to 1901 or at the rate of but about $13,000 per annum.

In 1892 Union county was first bonded for roads to the extent of $300,000 and later $50,000 was added and no attempt has been made to pay off any of these bonds, they being left, no doubt for the "future generations" Mr. Clark so generously provides for in his report. In addition to Union county's other debts, they are about to be saddled with a debt of about $600,000 for a new court

LITTLE BUSINESS WAS DONE

AT ADJOURNED MEETING OF THE COMMON COUNCIL LAST EVENING.

Most of the Session Was Devoted to the Hearing of Fireman Louis M. Dunavan.

The actual business transacted at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last evening, aside from the hearing in the case of Chief Doane against L. M. Dunavan, was rather limited. There was a petition for an electric light on Evona avenue near Hunter avenue, which was referred, and W. H. Bohl and others asked for a hydrant and an electric light on Union street. This was referred.

The bond of W. F. Walters, constable in the Fourth ward, was reported correct by Corporation Council Marsh and recorded. Mr. Mellick moved that $18.75, that being the amount assessed in error against Charles Spear, be returned to him as requested, and the motion prevailed.

Mr. Daniel inquired about a petition for an electric light on Pemberton avenue, and upon his motion the light will be located as petitioned for. After Charles L. Strong's request to have his application for a transfer of his license returned to him, was granted the Council adjourned.

VETERANS OF THE THIRTIETH

WILL GATHER HERE THIRD WEDNESDAY IN OCTOBER FOR REUNION.

Meeting to be Held Thursday Night to Arrange Preliminaries for the Reunion.

The members of the Thirtieth New Jersey Regiment are kept busy completing arrangements for the reunion which is to be held in this city the third Wednesday in October. Efforts are being made to have every living member in attendance and nothing will be left undone to make the affair a complete success.

To arrange for certain preliminaries, a meeting has been called for Thursday evening of this week at 7:30 in Justice Moffett's office, corner of Central avenue and West Second street. As details of a pressing nature need to be considered it is desired that all Plainfield members of the regiment be in attendance. The latter are Captain J. F. Hubbard, Charles H. Randolph, Nelson Runyon, Randolph Thorn, J. Lance Mundy, Peter V. Weaver, David R. Weaver, Theodore Rutan, Garret Eick, Samuel Moore, John Stryker, John Giddis and Jacob Manning.

BADLY SLASHED.

John Sullivan Lost One Ear and Had Wind Pipe Cut—David Tate Arrested for the Knifing.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Sept. 9—John Sullivan, of South Bound Brook, and David Tate, who gives his residence as Phillipsburg, engaged in a wrangle near the trolley waiting room last night over a diamond ring, which Tate wanted to sell. He offered it for fifty cents and Sullivan said he would not take it at any price. This made Tate angry and he slashed Sullivan with a razor. Sullivan's ear was cut off, his wind-pipe cut and his right arm slashed in several places. He was taken to the Bound Brook Hotel, where Dr. Robinson attended him. It is believed he will live.

Tate escaped last night, but was arrested this morning and committed to the county jail by Justice Brampton to await developments.

Sullivan is twenty-eight years old and is employed at a paint works in South Bound Brook. He has a wife and one child.

To Nominate New Officers.

President H. F. Crawford, of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, last evening, announced his committee to place in nomination new officers for the society for the coming year, as follows: Edgar F. Sheppard, Miss Lillian A. Force, Miss Mabel A. Woodruff, Fred E. Smith and Henry Seader. They will report at the October meeting of the society.

LIFE AT CAMP HOPE IS ONE SWEET DREAM

Y. M. A. Members Say They Are Having the Time of Their Life This Week.

AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

SUNDRY INCIDENTS WHICH HAVE HAPPENED SINCE CAMP OPENED.

Great Meals Cooked Under the Direction of Chef Marsh—What the Boys Are Doing at Camp—Will Return on Saturday.

Camp Hope, Bishop's Rock, Lake Hopatcong.

Sixteen Hope campers, who are rusticating in this one of New Jersey's most beautiful spots, have naught but pity for the rest of Plainfield in general and Y. M. A. members in particular. What with healthy exercises all day long, dinners fit for a king prepared by the prince of chefs, A. Berri Marsh, and the companionship of the most jovial set of fellows that ever roamed the banks of the lake, is it any wonder that to them life is one grand sweet song? The only dark spot on the roseate horizon is the thought that stakes must be pulled up Saturday to commence the return trip.

A routine for each day was mapped out when we arrived but it hasn't been adhered to once. Chef Marsh and his most worthy assistant, Billy Nash, are always prompt with a well set table but almost regularly a searching party has to be organized to bring in some lost members. Saturday it was Ray McVoy and Fred Wharton who wandered into the thick woods and after a three hours' hunt they were found headed in the direction of Easton with the idea that they were on the way home.

Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, it has been Pete Foster but everybody knows where to find him. He does nothing but follow the mail carrier about from the postoffice to the railroad station and back again, always whistling the refrain, "Only Write and Tell me to Come Home."

The long talked of ten-mile swimming match between the Cose brothers George and John, has been declared off. John insists that as he does the thinking for the whole crowd his time is too valuable to be wasted in that manner.

"Germany" Grieb, the longest Teuton on earth, is a whole show in himself. He has always been used to wearing a nightcap at home and persists in sleeping with his hat on. He also is put to good use by the bathers as he is forced out into the lake to tell the others how deep it is. He has been able to touch bottom with his head above water at three fathoms.

The party is divided into two sections, "The Lily Whites" and the "Boweries." Each has its own tent and to prevent the roysterers from getting in the "Lily Whites" during the night, Dexhemier Sweeney has been placed on guard during the dog watch and so far no prowlers have got passed him.

The boys express hearty thanks to Mrs. F. T. Woodhull for many little favors that have emanated from Halsey Island, not the least of which was a jar of jelly and her instructions as to what to do with a piece of lamb from which the boys attempted to make a roast. The whole party also passed a pleasant evening recently at the Woodhull cottage.

Judge Runyon left today for Plainfield for a day's stay and during his absence, fishing, baseball and rowing parties will be the features of camp life. The weather is exceptionally fine and there is no complaint to make on that score.

Repairs on North Avenue.

Street Commissioner Gavett's force began work, this morning, resurfacing North avenue with a fine coating of stone. When it is completed the street will be rolled and placed in first-class condition. The paving blocks in the gutters have all been reset, with the exception of a portion of the south side.

Watermelon, Then Prizes.

Last evening the boys who had been in the tennis tournament at the Y. M. C. A. spent a very social evening in games and a watermelon feast. Prizes were awarded as follows: M. Long winning first; Webster second and Wm. Lambert third.

—Neuman Brothers are headquarters for fruit, peaches especially. Tomorrow they will offer 300 baskets of fine canning peaches, including Crawfords, Fox's Seedling and Stumps.

OFF TO NEWARK.

Plainfield Police Team Again to Give Battle to the Fourth Precinct Nine.

The local policemen's baseball team will leave by the 12:09 train for Newark, tomorrow, where it will cross bats for the second time with the Fourth Precinct team of that place. At least a score of local cranks will also make the trip and do their best to cheer on the Plainfielders to victory. The game is scheduled to commence at 3 o'clock and will be played on the Springfield avenue grounds. In all probability it will be an exciting contest, as the Fourth Precinct has strengthened itself since suffering defeat in this city.

WEDDED SOMERVILLE GIRL

EDWIN C. FANCHER, OF FANWOOD, MARRIED MISS LAURA E. HARDGRAVE.

Ceremony Took Place at St. John's Church, Somerville, Last Evening—The Bridal Party.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 9—A very pretty wedding was celebrated in St. John's P. E. church here at 6 o'clock last night, when Miss Laura Elizabeth Hardgrave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hardgrave, of Third street, and Edwin Crosby Fancher, of Fanwood, was married. The ceremony was performed by the new rector, Rev. Chas. Fiske.

As the bridal party entered the church the Lohengrin march was played and when it left Prof. G. P. Smith rendered the Mendelssohn march.

The best man was Augustus Martens, of New York, the ushers Harold Hall, of Netherwood, and John McGuire, of Scotch Plains, and the bridemaid, Miss Edith Hardgrove, sister of the bride.

The bride's gown was silk null over taffeta. She wore orange blossoms. The maid was attired in green silk null. She carried pink roses.

There were many guests. After the ceremony a reception followed at the home of the bride. The gifts were very beautiful. The couple will reside in Newark on their return from the honeymoon trip.

PURCHASED LAND.

Watchung Spring Water Company Has Secured Tract on Which Springs Are Located.

The Watchung Spring Water Company yesterday closed the deal whereby the land upon which the springs are located on Mountain avenue, is now the property of the company. There are forty-two acres in the whole tract and this has been purchased of the owner, James Mair. Craig A. Marsh is the attorney for the company and negotiated the deal.

The company will now go ahead and improve this property, laying the same out in a park, with attractive walks, drives, etc. Considerable money will be spent to make the place one of the most attractive of the kind in this section. The supply of water from the springs is constantly increasing, and the company is enjoying an increase in business which is most gratifying to those interested.

PLUMBING FOR STATE HOUSE.

Contract for New Wing Awarded to G. J. Tobin, of This City.

The general contracts for the erection of the new wing to the State House to be occupied by the State have just been given out and among the successful bidders is George J. Tobin, of North avenue, who has been awarded the contract for plumbing. The contract amounts to $15,000. The work of tearing out the old wing will be started next week. Mr. Tobin's contract must be completed by November 1, 1903.

This is the second large State contract secured by Mr. Tobin, the first being the plumbing work on the State Reformatory at Rahway, which is not yet completed. This new contract will give employment to many men and Mr. Tobin is being congratulated upon his success. Arnold H. Moses, of Camden, is the architect, for the work on the Capitol building.

Dr. Richards to Return.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Richards and family, of East Front street, will return this week from their vacation and next Sunday Dr. Richards will occupy his pulpit in the Crescent Avenue church. He will not assume the pastorate of the Brick Presbyterian church, New York, until October 1.

Peach Festival.

A peach festival will be held at the Monroe Avenue church Thursday and Friday evenings of this week.

CITY SCHOOLS OPEN TODAY

Public Schools Were Crowded With Children at the Open Sessions This Morning.

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Everything Was in Order by Noon—The List of Instructors in All the City Public Schools—The Attendance This Year Breaks All Previous Records.

Back from seashore and mountains, summer gaities and pleasures, came hundreds of children, this morning, to once more take up the more to them, serious side of life and begin another nine months of school room study. At every building in the city they were in evidence and the smiling teachers, refreshed by the long vacation, have since been kept busy assigning the applicants to the class rooms where they are to remain for the ensuing term. The number of pupils, both old and new in a sense of terms not years, exceeded by far the numbers of previous years appearing at the opening session and it will take a day or two to get all in proper places.

At the High School where the older pupils attend, everything was in shipshape order before noon, so much so in fact that the customary class work will go on where it was interrupted last spring, with of course, the absence of the senior class and anew one in the first year. But due to Principal Travell's experience the grammar school graduates were made to feel at home and have settled down to the new routine.

When all the present applicants are in place the various schools will be a little crowded. At the Irving building the influx was greatest but no congestion resulted owing to the Board of Education's foresight in renting the Monroe Avenue church Sabbath-school rooms, directly adjacent. This will accommodate the increase for another year but it is thought that at the end of that time, other facilities must be provided.

The Whittier school building, which was once the Seventh-Day Baptist church, has been leased for another term of five years and in the event of a new school being erected in the center of the city, as has been contemplated, the building can be sublet. At the other schools the seating capacity is taxed but matters are arranged so that there will be no discomfort.

While the pupils were absent from the schools during vacation, painters, decorators and carpenters have been busily engaged and the buildings have been placed in the best of condition. Several new improvements have been introduced and everything that will tend to add to the comfort of the occupants have been accomplished. At present the Plainfield schools are exceeded by none in matters of sanitation, airiness and light.

The faculty of the schools has undergone a few alterations but in the main most of last year's excellent corps of teachers have been retained. These are as follows:

Stillman School: Ira W. Travell, principal; Ellen E. Niles, Grace E. Burroughs, S. Lena Bass, Ellen K. Cumming, Phebe D. Lovell, Katherine F. Ball, Lindsey Best, James Macnab, M. Elizabeth Benedict, Anna J. Bennett, drawing; Charles L. Lewis, music; Mabel A. Maxson, pianist.

Franklin School: Noel J. Bullock, principal; Emma W. Cornish, Charlotte C. Merrill, Emma Force, Julia Jerome, Clara J. Churton, Lottie B. Strong, Florence Churton, Gertrude Huber, Charlotte E. Tennant, Caroline A. Barber, Elizabeth T. Angell.

Whittier School: Anna M. Day, principal; Flora Griffin, Alice W. Lansing, Elizabeth E. More, Dorothea E. Bull, Lillian Sharp, Eleanor T. Wilber, Alice R. Barlow, Addie Parker Jackson, physical training.

Bryant School: Emma V. Shattuck, principal; Kate A. Remer, Edith K. Symthe, Frances E. Bryant, Cassie E. Brown, Sara L. Chase, Marian E. Norton, Gertrude H. Rand, Mary E. Brooks, Louise B. Runyon, Cora F. Cadmus.

Washington School: Millicent E. Humpston, principal; Anna W. Booraem, Mary L. Thomas, Mary T. Draper, Margaret R. Corey, Elizabeth M. Coates, Mabel A. Powell.

TWO OFFENDERS RELEASED

ACTING CITY JUDGE CORIELL ON THE LOCAL BENCH.

Sheridan Jones Was Too Fond of Drink—Lewis Miller Drugged and Robbed.

Acting City Judge Coriell was in a forgiving mood when two prisoners were arraigned before him, yesterday afternoon.

Sheridan Jones admitted he had a fondness for drink that sometimes proved his ruin but he was making an effort to reform. He explained his second arrest within twenty-four hours, yesterday morning, by saying he intended to stop drinking gradually but on meeting a friend he was induced to take a drink and he held the bottle to his lips too long. He was released with a reprimand.

Lewis Miller, who claimed to have been robbed of a sum of money and a gold watch and chain, was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness but his statement of an assault was accepted. He claimed to have been given doctored drink at Westfield and Patrolman Gamo testified that the man when arrested acted queerly and not in a drunken way. Sentence was suspended and as the alleged robbery took place in Westfield the matter is out of the local police's jurisdiction.

BOROUGH SCHOOLS OPENED

FIRST SESSIONS HELD THIS MORNING UNDER FAVORABLE AUSPICES.

Three New Teachers on the Faculty—More Rooms for the Overcrowded Grades.

Under very favorable auspices the North Plainfield public schools were re-opened this morning for the fall and winter months. The enrollment is large in every department, especially so in the High School, where fully seventy pupils are in attendance.

The opening exercises this morning at the High School were interesting. There were brief addresses by A. V. D. Honeyman and J. R. Joy and Miss Whalen, the music teacher, was in charge for the first. All of the teachers are on duty and ready for work.

There are three new teachers this year. Almond Clark is the new instructor in science and mathematics. The other new teachers are Miss Hanna and Miss Whalen. Tomorrow classes 2 B and 5 B will be moved to Spencer's Hall, where Miss Hanna will be in charge, and class 3 B in charge of Miss Anderson will be moved to the See property across the street from the High School. This will allow full time for the advanced grades.

The progress with the opening of the school today is gratifying to Superintendent Wightman and all the teachers.

BODIES SENT HOME.

The Remains of Mr. and Mrs. Fair Reached New York and Sent West.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair, the victims of the Parisian automobile accident, arrived in New York, Sunday, on the American liner St. Louis. They were immediately taken in charge by Herman Oelrichs and under his supervision were removed to an undertaker's establishment where a further embalming process was accomplished. They were then placed aboard a private car attached to a New York Central express and started on their long journey across the continent. The strictest watch was kept over the casket and no one not immediately related to the famliies was permitted to gaze upon it.

Attended Major Smylie's Funeral.

Mrs. Irene Irving and Mrs. Melissa Cook, of Watchung avenue, attended the funeral, yesterday, of the late Major Charles Smylie, of New York, who was accidentally shot by his friend, Judge Storrs, in the Adirondacks. They were old friends of the deceased. Funeral services were held at Dr. Parkhurst's church.

Two Good Sermons.

Rev. Frederick E. Taylor, who preached two very excellent sermons at the First Baptist church, Sunday, is the pastor of the Central Baptist church, Williamsburg, N. Y., where he has been located for the past three years. He has been very successful in the ministry and especially in his work among young people.

Taken to State Hospital.

Fred Manning, of Grant avenue, was taken to the State Hospital at Morris Plains, yesterday, suffering from a nervous disorder. His health has given away, owing to a too close application to work.

DUNAVAN WAS FOUND GUILTY

Hearing of Fireman Before the Common Council Was Finally Held Last Night.

FINED AND REINSTATED.

After Much Quibling Over Technical Points in the Case, the Councilmen Finally Gave a Decision—Was Charged With Using Profane and Improper Language.

The hearing in the case of Chief T. O. Doane against Louis M. Dunavan on a charge of infraction of the rules of the fire department on July 8, last, attracted a large number of people to the Council Chamber last evening. The members of the Council with the exception of Mr. vanHerwerden, were all present. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was in attendance to present the case to the Council, while Lawyer Robert M. Clark was present to look after Mr. Dunavan's interests and defend him.

The result of the hearing was that Mr. Dunavan was declared to be guilty of the charge that of conduct unbecoming a member of the fire department, he was ordered reprimanded and his salary for the time of suspension, about six weeks, ordered deducted, and that he be reinstated immediately. This decision was reached after a recess of the Council, when Mr. Lee presented the findings of that body. Mr. Clark stated during the recess that unless his client was completely exonerated he would appeal the case to the Supreme Court immediately. The result of the hearing would thus mean an appeal.

Immediatley after the meeting of the Council was called, Mr. Lee moved that the hearing in the case of Chief T. O. Doane against Louis M. Dunavan proceed, and after the formality of reading the charges were waived, Mr. Marsh suggested that a motion be made allowing Mr. Dunavan appear with counsel. This being done, Mr. Marsh then stated briefly the substance of the charge.

He said that on July 8, there was a disturbance at fire headquarters and Chief Doane thought it best to bring the matter before the attention of the Council. Mr. Marsh then cited a few facts concerning the tenure of office act and added that it was not intended to abruptly terminate anyone's position during good behavior. He said that the object of the act was not to transfer a Common Council into a police court, but to enable the city, an employer of labor, to hear complaints and then decide what shall be done.

Mr. Marsh then offered in evidence the ordinances relative to the government of the fire department, and the city clerk was sworn to testify that the ordinances so were adopted as so stated August 1, 1898. The clerk also testified that he served the accused personally a copy of the charges. After Mr. Clark asked the clerk if Rules 41 and 45 were among those approved in 1898, Mr. Marsh called Charles Kronimus as the first witness.

This witness stated that at the time of the trouble he lived at 222 West Second street. He said he was at fire headquarters at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of July 8. At that time he and Griffin H. Freeman went to the pool room on the second floor to have a game of pool. Soon after going to the pool room, he said, Lewis M. Dunavan appeared and complained about the raising of the curtains in that room. The witness said that Mr. Dunavan used profane and boisterous language and threatened to punch Freeman's eye out. He said that he also called Freeman a "pimp" and a "sucker" and that if he had not been a sucker he could not have got in the department.

On cross examination, Kronimus said that the accused swore fully three minutes. When asked what else was said, the witness said he could not remember.

Mr. Marsh then called Griffin H. Freeman, also a member of the department. He testified that he was a driver of the chemical engine and had been in the department since July 1, 1901. He substantiated the story related by Kronimus, telling about going to the pool room and about the appearance of Mr. Dunavan and his use of profane language. He said that Mr. Dunavan told him that he had been in the department a few house, the building contract being, I believe $488,750 which does not include fixtures or furniture, and we all know that appropriations for buildings of this character are always necessarily increased, and as in accordance with the report of the Comptroller of the Treasury on page 472, the bonded debt of the county is payable between now and 1911, it looks very much as though the present generation will have all it can do to settle this indebtedness without the generations to come. Perhaps this is another reason for their liberality to "future generations."

It is generally considered a good business principle to pay as you go, but Mr. Clark's report goes entirely contrary to this well established rule. A reckoning has to come some day. Is it honorable to burden future generations for privileges being enjoyed today? If these are the "good business," "up-to-date," methods pursued in Union county it strikes me most forcibly that Somerset county methods are not only more honorable, and show better, up-to-date, business principles, but are a better heritage for future generations.

No, gentlemen, let us rather be of the opinion that we want to pay our good, honest, hundred cents on the dollar as we go along, and have these before mentioned "future generations" after we are gone, rise up and call us blessed, instead of cursing our dry bones.

The figures upon page 2, of the majority report giving ratables from 1892 to 1901, from Comptroller's report, are inaccurately stated as for 10 years. There are figures for 10 years, but the increase is for nine years. For example, from 1892 to 1893 is the first year's increase, to 1894 the second, etc. The first figures given should be for 1891 and then they would have had ten years' increase. Now it so happens that the figures for 1891 did not suit the occasion and have been, perhaps, intentionally omitted. The ratables for Union county in 1891 were $30,990,000 and for Somerset county $16,650,000. The actual increase therefore, for ten years prior to the 1901 report of the State Comptroller, (which is the last report yet published) shows the gain in Union county to have been $11,785,400 and the gain in Somerset county $2,138,468. The gain in Union county was over twenty-seven per cent., and the gain in Somerset county was over eleven per cent. If one county has gained twenty-seven per cent., and another eleven per cent., in ratables in ten years, the statement that taxable property has increased in one county six times as much as in the other county is, to say the least, a remarkable error.

On the other hand, if examination be made of the proposed increase in expenses in Union county in 1902 over that of 1901, with Somerset's increase, it will be found tremendously in favor of Somerset county, and this only needs a little working out to prove itself.

In the table just referred to, the State Comptroller's report is used, but when the figures are given as to the city of Plainfield, and the borough of North Plainfield, local estimates are made, not based upon Comptroller's reports. This seems to be done for a purpose, because the State Comptroller's report is certainly correct, and they show the following to be the gain in ratables for five years past.

Plainfield, 1901	$8,688,900
Plainfield, 1896	7,500,000
Gain	$1,188,900
North Plainfield, 1901	$2,402,825
North Plainfield, 1896	2,084,800
Gain	$318,025

In each case the gain has been a little over fifteen per cent. The report which states the gain of Plainfield as over twenty per cent., and North Plainfield less than twelve per cent. is another error. Possibly the original error was made in Mr. Saunders' 30-reason pamphlet which the majority report seems to have followed quite closely.

On the sewage question occurs this sentence: "The plant has been pronounced as working satisfactorily by the President of the State Board of Health, Mr. Hunt, who made a visitation to Plainfield and inspected the sewage beds." Mr. Hunt is not the President of the State Board of Health, and is not a member of the board. I cannot learn of his recent visit to Plainfield, but if so, it was that of a plain citizen of Metuchen, whose father was once the eminent president of the State Board. It is absolutely certain that the State Board of Health has not pronounced the sewage beds of Plainfield as satisfactory, and I have reason to believe that they will not do so.

Recently the Plainfield Council ordered a number of streets opened for new sewers. With this additional sewage running into the disposal plant will it increase the efficiency of their plant? We are not disposed to criticise our neighbor's sewage plant. It is not necessary. The State Sewage Commission have recently done that for us according to the Plainfield papers in a most effective manner and the result was far from flattering.

In uniting with Union county a step would be taken which can never be retraced; and if done, it will require a searching in all titles to real estate in both Somerset and Union counties for all years to come, thus doubling the expense to every man who sells or mortgages property.

Consolidation will mean the surrender of the borough's independence; the giving up of its control over its public schools; its getting into a great muddle over the sewerage question, because then the borough cannot put up its own plant, and it is certain that it cannot use the Plainfield beds. It will place the real estate of the borough in the position of dependence upon the Martin Act, which in many cases, will multiply by five times the cost to any real estate owners who may be so unfortunate as to have his property sold for taxes and then become able to redeem.

Of the present disadvantages alluded to, as pertaining to the borough, namely, the want of a railroad station, a postoffice and a bank, it does not show how a single one of them is to be gained by consolidation. The station, banks, postoffice, and churches will not move into North Plainfield upon annexation or consolidation.

By consolidation with Plainfield the borough would lose control of its affairs, and simply be represented in small part in the council of greater Plainfield, which means that we would be on the outskirts of Plainfield and take just what the majority of the Council chose to give us.

In conclusion let us for a moment give our attention to those who use as an argument for annexation the statement that North Plainfield although conceded to be the most important borough in Somerset county is not receiving its fair proportion of disbursements. If this is the condition who is to blame for it? Are we going to concede that the borough officials are not able to look out for the proper interests of their constituents, and run away from their responsibilities? Such an argument is a farce and a slur upon the intelligence of our citizens. Let those who are using it devote their time and energies to a proper restoration of their rights instead of meekly submitting to what they consider an injustice.

I submit the foregoing as a few reasons against annexation and consolidation.

COLON AWAITS ATTACK.

Government Force Hurried There to Resist Insurgents.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 9.—Over a thousand government troops have been hurriedly sent to Colon from Panama, and additional intrenchments are being erected at Monkey hill, a mile from Colon, on the railroad, and other points in expectation of an insurgent attack.

The gunboat Boyaca, which was captured by the insurgents from the government, has been mobilizing troops under the command of the insurgent general Herrera in the direction of Panama.

Colonel Gruezo, prefect of Colon, has been raised to the rank of general and expects to take the field should the insurgents attack the isthmus.

Hostile Fleet Needs Repairing.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Now that the joint maneuvres are at an end the vessels of the "hostile" fleet are turning in at the navy yard for repairs. The navy department was informed today of the arrival of the battleships Kearsarge, Alabama and Massachusetts and the cruiser Brooklyn at Tompkinsville, en route to the New York yard, where they will be overhauled and put in shape for the extensive maneuvers in the Caribbean beginning in January. The cruiser Olympia and the gunboat Scorpion will lay up at Boston for the same purpose. The torpedo boat flotilla left New York today for Norfolk to be overhauled.

Weavers Give Up Fight.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Sept. 9.—The weavers of the American Woolen company's Saranac mills at Blackstone, Mass., who went out on a strike against the two loom system in sympathy with the Olneyville weavers, have given up the struggle, and when the mill gates opened this morning there was a stampede for their old places. This action was decided upon last night at a meeting of the weavers in Blackstone, when it was voted to return at the best terms Agent Merrill would offer.

Boers Intend a Long Visit.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—General Botha's secretary, Mr. Brebner, says that the Boer generals expect their tour of the United States to occupy six months. Although the generals have arrived at no definite decision on the subject, their lecturing tour will probably begin in Great Britain. The generals will proceed to The Hague today in order to attend the gathering of the Boer leaders and prepare a programme for the future.

Massachusetts Socialists.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—For the first time in their political experience the Socialists of Massachusetts have held a state convention as an officially recognized Socialist party for the purpose of nominating a state ticket to be voted on in November. Representative James F. Carey of Haverhill presided. Thirty-four towns and cities were represented by delegates.

New Monitor Ready.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The navy department is informed that the monitor Arkansas, built by the Newport News Shipbuilding company, has been delivered to the government at Norfolk. She will be put in commission in a few days. Her first commander will be Commander Charles H. Vreeland, recently a member of the board of inspection and survey.

MINERS SHED BLOOD

Strikers Mistake Comrades For Nonunion Men.

ONE KILLED OUTRIGHT, ONE DYING.

Pickets About a Lehigh Valley Mine at Maltby Thought to Prevent Starting of Operations—Two Arrests Made.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 9.—A fight yesterday between striking miners at Maltby resulted in the death of one man and the fatal injury of another. Both victims were Italians. The man killed was Sistieno Vancastelli, aged thirty-six years. His companion, Frank Portay, was stabbed several times and is in the Wilkesbarre hospital, not expected to live.

A large body of strikers had gathered in the vicinity of the Maltby mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company at Maltby and the Harry E. colliery at Forty Fort owing to rumors that both of these mines were to start with a full force of men, and the strikers had pickets out on all roads leading to the mines to intercept any men who might be on their way to work. A heavy fog prevailed, and it was difficult to see people in the roadway. Presently a number of strikers on guard at the Maltby colliery saw two men approaching carrying guns. The pickets came to the conclusion that they were nonunion men going to work. The strangers were stopped, and strikers crowded around them. One striker in the crowd who spoke the Italian language said the men were starting on a hunting trip and that they were union miners. The other strikers did not understand what was said, and, believing that the foreigners were nonunion men on their way to work, attempted to take the gun away from Vancastelli. He resisted. A fight ensued, and soon the two Italians were lying in a pool of blood in the roadway. Vancastelli was shot in the side, and the left side of his face was crushed in. His companion, Portay, was stabbed in the side several times.

A number of coal and iron policemen were on the scene a few minutes after the discharge of the gun was heard. They found Vancastelli dead and Portay unconscious. The dead man was taken to his boarding house, near by, and his companion was brought to the hospital in this city. In one of the pockets of Vancastelli's coat was found a union miner's card.

The news of the riot brought a large number of deputy sheriffs to the scene, and on their arrival the mob disappeared.

Martin and John Mahonie have been arrested, charged with being the ringleaders of the riot at Maltby which resulted in the killing of one Italian and the fatal wounding of another. The prisoners were arraigned before Magistrate Pollock and committed to jail without bail.

President Mitchell states that the strikers are as firm as ever and that there are no desertions from the ranks.

Hiram Fisher, who is charged with shooting a Polish woman at Edwardsville, has been removed to the hospital in this city. Fears were entertained that he would be taken from the lock-up and hanged. All night long a mob surrounded the building and was so threatening that Burgess Dando was afraid to give the accused man a hearing.

Sheriff Jacobs is much exercised over the riots and bloodshed in the county.

Troops Ready to Move.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Sept. 9.—Captain Schermerhorn of the Second City troop and Colonels Clement of the Twelfth and Hoffman of the Eighth regiments have been ordered to hold their commands in readiness to move at a moment's notice, and a special train is kept in waiting at the Lehigh Valley's station to transport the troops to Wilkesbarre. It is known that Sheriff Jacobs has been in conference with Adjutant General Stewart. General Gobin says that one regiment can be spared from this territory, and it is probable that the Second City troop will be taken away.

Mules Being Returned to Mines.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 9.—Ten cars of mules from the coal mines which were pasturing in Lancaster and Chester counties have been shipped from Coalesville to Wilkesbarre. There are still about twenty carloads in this county, and it is understood that they will be shipped to the coal regions this week.

Ministers Want Strike Ended.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—At the weekly meeting of the Methodist ministers of this city a resolution was adopted calling upon Governor Stone, President Baer of the Reading company and President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America to end the strike in the coal regions.

To Punish the Moros.

MANILA, Sept. 9.—General Chaffee has ordered General Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, to lead a column against the Macin Moros. In his order General Chaffee suggests that eight companies of infantry, two troops of cavalry and one battery shall form at Camp Vicars, island of Mindanao. It is expected that the column will move within a week.

Pedlar Palmer Too Much For Dixon.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Pedlar Palmer, English, defeated George Dixon, American, in a fifteen round bout at the National Athletic club last night for $500 a side and a purse of $500. Dixon was the favorite at odds of five to four, but after the second round Palmer showed such smartness that the odds turned in his favor. Dixon seemed quite unable to cope with the Englishman.

MURRELL TELLS ALL

Another Chapter In the St. Louis "Boodle" Case.

WARRANTS OUT FOR LAWMAKERS.

Member of House of Delegates Tells the Story of Bribery and Perjury Among Its Members—Shocking Revelation.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—Warrants have been issued by Circuit Attorney Folk against eighteen former and present members of the house of delegates of this city.

All eighteen are charged with bribery in connection with the Suburban and other bills, and fifteen of the eighteen are charged with perjury because of testimony given by them before the grand jury.

These warrants are issued on the confession of J. K. Murrell, who is now in St. Louis in the custody of the circuit attorney. Murrell was brought from Mexico to St. Louis by the Post-Dispatch.

It is charged that the men for whom warrants are out composed a "combine" in the house of delegates at the time the Suburban railway and other boodle bills were passed.

In a statement made by Mr. Murrell for publication he says:

"I have surrendered unconditionally to Circuit Attorney J. W. Folk and have made a full confession to him. I am not permitted to give the details of the evidence that I have put the circuit attorney in possession of. This will all come out in the trials, and I am willing to go on the stand and tell all I know. I held the key to the box in the Lincoln Trust company containing the $75,000 bribe money to go to the house of delegates upon the passage of the Suburban bill.

"This money was put up as the purchase price for the votes of the combine, that price having been agreed upon.

"The combine of the house of delegates was composed of nineteen men. When the Suburban matter came up before the combination, I was selected to negotiate with Philip Stock, the representative of the Suburban railway, as to the best price we could get for our votes upon the passage of the bill.

"I am not permitted to make the operations of the combine on this particular matter public at this time. The purpose of the combine was to control legislation and sell legislation for the benefit of the members of the combine. Shortly before the Suburban bill came up the combine sold their votes on the lighting bills for $47,500. This money was handled by Kelly and was paid to the members of the combine at a meeting arranged for that purpose at Julius Lehmann's house. Each member of the combine received $2,500.

"I was present and saw that money paid to the various parties. These are only two instances, but there are others, evidence of which is in the possession of the circuit attorney."

It is stated that Murrell has been in the city since last Friday in the custody of the circuit attorney.

The members and former members of the municipal assembly for whom warrants have been issued are as follows:

E. E. Murrell, John H. Schnettler, Charles F. Kelly, T. E. Albright, George F. Robertson, Louis Decker, John Helms, Charles A. Gutke, Adolph Madera, H. A. Faulkner, Julius Lehmann, Edmund Bersch, Otto Schumacher, John A. Sheridan, Charles J. Denny, William Tamblyn, J. J. Hannigan and Emile Hartman. Of these Robertson, Schnettler, Helms, Schumacher, Albright, Faulkner, Gutke, Hannigan and E. E. Murrell have been arrested.

Faulkner was released in bonds of $15,000, and the others will each be held in that amount.

Red Men In Council.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 9.—The great council of the United States Improved Order of Red Men is now holding its fifty-fifth annual session here, with about 150 delegates present, who are accompanied by some fifty or more ladies. The visitors were welcomed to the city by Mayor Riddick. The morning session was largely taken up by routine business. A protest was presented against the admission of the representative from the District of Columbia. It was referred to a special committee to investigate and report.

Washington Lawyer Killed by Train.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—While driving across the Baltimore and Ohio railroad track near Tacoma park, several miles from this city, Major Daniel O'Driscoll, one of Washington's prominent lawyers, was struck by a train and instantly killed. He came to this city from Chicago, where he was prominent both in the law and in politics.

A Double Drowning.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Sept. 9.—Harry Ford of Fruitport and Miss Effie Reams of Kalamazoo were drowned in Spring lake. They were members of a yachting party of seven. Their boat capsized. The balance of the party was rescued. Ford was twenty-two years old, a son of J. C. Ford of the Spring Lake Iron company.

The Czarina Out of Danger.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 9.—It is officially announced that the czarina has passed the critical period of her recent miscarriage. Her case is without complications, and she is progressing toward complete recovery.

Baseball Player Suspended.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 9.—John Flournoy, the fast left fielder of the Louisville American association team, was today indefinitely suspended for insubordination.

SHAM BATTLE BEGUN.

German Army Maneuvers Open on Magnificent Scale.

FRANKFURT-ON-ODER, Germany, Sept. 9.—Eighty thousand soldiers camped in the open air last night and 12,000 more were quartered in farmhouses waiting for the four days' sham battle on an immense scale that began at dawn today. Emperor William arose at 3 o'clock this morning and left Potsdam at 4 in order to be early on the field. A great blue and white pavilion fringed with gold hangings has been pitched on the southern shore of the Weissensee, and here Emperor William will bivouac. He will lead the cavalry division into action on Thursday.

Emperor William entertained 110 guests at dinner last night in the new palace at Potsdam. His majesty's guests were nearly all visitors who have come to attend the maneuvers, and they included Major Generals Henry C. Corbin and Samuel B. M. Young and Brigadier General Wood, U. S. A., and their aids; Earl Roberts, commander in chief of the forces of Great Britain; Mr. Brodrick, British secretary of war, and the other British generals who are here for the maneuvers, the visiting German princes and the commanding generals in charge of the maneuvers.

The menu of the dinner was exquisite and comprised ten courses. The empress of Germany was present, sitting opposite the emperor, with Earl Roberts on her right.

After dinner the emperor mingled freely with his guests and engaged the American generals in a half hour's conversation. He again expressed his very high appreciation of the manner in which his brother, Admiral Prince Henry, of Prussia, had been treated in the United States, spoke of his admiration for President Roosevelt and said he fervently thanked God for having spared the life of the president at the time of the Pittsfield accident. Electric cars, continued his majesty, are the enemies of humanity. He referred to the number of persons who have been killed or wounded by electric cars in the streets of Berlin.

A special train bore his majesty's guests from Berlin to Potsdam at 6 o'clock in the evening and returned to Berlin at 9:50. This morning at 5 o'clock a train left here to carry the emperor's distinguished visitors to the maneuver field.

A River of Fire.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 9.—The sights in the windward district of this island resulting from the eruption of the Soufriere volcano Sept. 3 are very interesting. The Rabacca river even now is a stream of fire a quarter of a mile or more wide. The greater part of the Rabacca estate is wrapped in vapor, and there are mimic eruptions everywhere. The river bed is continuously throwing up columns and dense clouds of steam, mud and pebbles. The land has spread farther seaward and is changing considerably the appearance of the district from what it was prior to Sept. 3. This was probably caused by the ejection that flowed down the slopes filling the sea about the coast.

Will Inherit a Million.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Bradford B. McGregor, the Standard Oil magnate, who was operated on for kidney trouble at his cottage at Orienta Point on Saturday last, is dead. Mr. McGregor married Miss Clara Schlemmer of New York a few hours before the operation was performed. Before the operation was performed, at which the young bride was present, Mr. McGregor made a will by which his widow, it is said, will inherit over $1,000,000.

MAINE ELECTION.

Hill's Plurality For Governor 27,000, Four Republican Congressmen.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Republicans and Democrats both had losses in yesterday's election, the returns from 200 cities and towns showing 14 per cent decrease for the former and 12 per cent loss for the Democrats as compared with the governor's vote of two years ago.

The indicated plurality for Governor John W. Hill on the figures given is 27,000. Congressional returns indicate that all four Republican congressmen—Amos L. Allen of Sanford in the First, Charles E. Littlefield of Rockland in the Second, Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta in the Third and Llewellyn Powers of Houlton in the Fourth—are re-elected by the usual pluralities, their vote running close upon that for governor. Incomplete figures show that Congressman Littlefield has made the best run of all.

The election was marked by good weather, quietude at the polls and an uncommonly large number of irregular ballots. The latter was the leading feature of the day. Never before in the history of the Australian ballot system in Maine had so much cutting been done.

In at least four of the big counties of the state—Cumberland, Androscoggin, York and Hancock—there were contests for the sheriff election based on local differences relative to the enforcement of the prohibitory law, but in other sections there was little to bring out a full party vote.

George F. Hughes, chairman of the state Democratic committee, at Bath, gave out the following statement:

"Incomplete returns show a gain of several members in the house of representatives for the Democrats. A complete victory in Knox county, the election of a sheriff in Cumberland, the largest county in the state, and Democratic victories in the cities of Waterville and Lewiston indicate that the Democratic vote for state candidates is close to that of the last presidential year and will show a gain over the last election of more than 10,000. This has been accomplished in a campaign where we have been without funds and where the individual voters have done the work themselves."

Chairman F. Marion Simpson of the state Republican committee, at Bangor, stated that he estimated that the Republicans carried the state by 25,000 and had elected four-fifths of all the representatives and practically all senators.

War Department Out of Coal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The contractor who furnishes coal for the war department has notified Chief Clerk Scofield that he no longer could obtain anthracite coal. He said if the department could obtain anthracite he would pay the difference between the contract price and the price the department would have to pay. Officers of the department say they cannot obtain coal and are about to purchase bituminous coal. A local law prohibits black smoke in the District of Columbia, and officers of the war department are in some doubt whether the law applies to buildings used by the government.

Malcolm's Defalcations Heavy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Lawyer W. R. Ryan reported to Vice Chancellor Stevens in the Jersey City chancery court that new defalcations were daily coming to light in the case of William Malcolm, the treasurer of the Passaic Mutual Building and Loan association, who has disappeared. The shortage was at first thought to be $69,000. Mr. Ryan said that an examination had shown that it was over $150,000, and there are still thirty-eight passbooks to be examined. On Mr. Ryan's motion the order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed was continued for a week.

Deserted Girl Bride a Suicide.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Gertrude Miller, sixteen years old, has committed suicide here. She used a revolver, sending a bullet into her heart. Her husband went away Tuesday, promising to return Thursday, but did not arrive. Finally the wife made up her mind she had been deserted and committed suicide. She had only been married a week.

A Candy Trust.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The National Candy company, with an authorized capital stock of $9,000,000, has been incorporated in New Jersey and has filed its articles of incorporation with the clerk of Hudson county. The incorporators are Henry Semple Ames, St. Louis; Frank W. Reid, George B. Goodwin, Edward S. Rogers and Samuel E. Hill, Chicago, and Frank J. McDermott, Jersey City.

FIREMAN ROOSEVELT

President Is Elected to the Brotherhood.

TELLING SPEECH AT CHATTANOOGA.

Unstinted Praise For Grand Master Sargent and His Men—The Presidential Train Reaches Knoxville.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt made a ringing address after his election as an honorary member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. He attended the executive session of the order in the morning, walking from the hotel to the Auditorium, a distance of a few blocks, escorted by Grand Master Sargent, a committee of the brotherhood and a detachment of Troop B, state guard.

The brotherhood first held its executive session, which the president attended. Acting Grand Master Hannahan welcomed the president, stating that his attendance at the convention would do good to organized labor not only in this country, but in Canada and other countries as well.

The president returned his thanks for the welcome and said he was glad to be with the brotherhood. He said the firemen's brotherhood was the result which naturally comes from the application of the principle of common sense to their work. He said that organized labor never had made an unreasonable request of him and that if it had he would have denied it.

In speaking of the appointment of Grand Master Sargent of the brotherhood to be the commissioner general of immigration the president said it was one of the most satisfactory appointments to him and to the public he had ever made; that Mr. Sargent has a hard body and not a soft head.

At this point the brotherhood adjourned for the day, and the public was admitted to the Auditorium to hear the president's address. While the audience was being seated the band rendered "America," the president and the others in the hall rising.

Mayor Chambliss delivered a short address of greeting, in which he welcomed to Chattanooga the firemen, "whether they came from Canada, Mexico or Oyster Bay. After an address of welcome in behalf of the state by Governor McMillin and an address by Grand Master Sargent, interspersed with music, President Roosevelt was introduced by Acting Grand Master Hannahan.

His reception was most enthusiastic, the audience rising to its feet and cheering.

When the president addressed the convention as "my brothers," he was cheered again. He said he was glad to be here and joined with the others in extending a cordial welcome to the visitors from Canada and Mexico. He needed no pressing, he said, to come to this meeting.

"I always have, gentlemen, admired greatly the railroads of the country, and I do not see how any one who believes in the fundamental principles of citizenship can fail to do so."

He compared railroad men to soldiers who are accustomed to taking risks, acting on their own initiative and obeying orders. In raising his own regiment, he said, he got a number of railroad men. Of course the first requisite was that a man should know how to ride and how to shoot. Giving them these two qualities, he found there was no better group from which soldiers could be drawn than railroad men.

"At the opening of the twentieth century we face conditions vastly changed from a century ago," he said. "We, as a people, find awaiting us problems which need our best thoughts to solve."

The president referred to the good work accomplished by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen.

"I believe emphatically," he said, "in organized labor. The worth of an organization depends upon its being handled with the courage, the skill, the wisdom, the spirit of fair dealing as between man and man and the wise self restraint which I am glad to be able to say your brotherhood has shown."

The president said that he had been profoundly impressed by an inscription he saw on the monument to the Federal and Confederate Kentuckians on the battlefield. He read it:

"As we are united in life and they united in death, let one monument perpetuate their deeds and one people, forgetful of all asperities, forever hold in grateful remembrance all the lines of that terrible conflict which made all men free and retained every star on the nation's flag."

"That's a good sentiment," said the president when the cheers died down, "and what does it mean but this one thing—brotherhood—brotherhood in business, in work, in good citizenship, in the nation brotherhood."

Arrives at Knoxville.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 9.—The presidential train arrived in Knoxville at 5 p. m. on schedule time. A large crowd had gathered, and the president was accorded a flattering reception. In defiance of a hard rainstorm the president was driven through the streets lined with people to a stand on Main street nearly a mile from the station, where he spoke to 12,000 people, who stood quietly in the drenching rain. The principal stop en route from Chattanooga was made at Athens, where the president was greeted enthusiastically. At Riceville, where a stop was made for water, the president for the first time since he started on his southern trip shook hands with those about his car.

MR. NICHOLS' REPORT.

On another page of this issue will be found the full text of Councilman C. L. Nichols' report on annexation and consolidation. Mr. Nichols was the dissenting member of the committee and he prepared a minority report based on the report of the majority favoring the Greater Plainfield plan.

With all respect to Mr. Nichols' abilities, it must be said that he has made out a very feeble case. The truth is that the report of the committee, which has already been published in full in these columns, presented arguments which could not be answered so Mr. Nichols is not to be blamed by his colaborers against Greater Plainfield for not accomplishing the impossible. Most of his report is devoted to trying to point out a few technical errors which in no way influence the general result.

He makes quite an argument on the question as to whether it is better to permit the present generation to pay for all the improvements or with the help of a bond issue allow the next generation to assist in paying for the advantages which it will enjoy. It is an old question which has been debated many times and every enterprising community has reached the same decision. Were it not for the method of extending the time of payment into the next generation, many of the great public improvements of today, which Mr. Nichols enjoys along with the rest of us, would not be in existence. In that direction, his argument is narrow and behind the times.

Then he talks as if North Plainfield was going to retain its individuality and transfer its control to the city of Plainfield. What now constitutes the borough would, in case of consolidation, become just as much a part of the city of Plainfield as is the First ward today and would receive the same attention. Such argument lacks good logic and cannot appeal to the thinking citizen.

As far as the sewer system is concerned, Mr. Nichols seems to forget that only recently was the report of the special expert of the State Board of Health on the local disposal system made public in these columns in which he stated that the new works did what they were intended to do.

That Mr. Nichols is perfectly sincere in his opposition we do not doubt. We also believe that he did the best he could with the material at hand. But the material wasn't there and it is impossible to logically prove anything if you happen to lack the facts to back it. Mr. Clark happened to have the facts to substantiate his arguments and he expressed them in a clear and convincing manner.

The fact remains that the people of North Plainfield are going to have to pay more taxes on their property than do the taxpayers of the city while they lack in several ways the municipal improvements which the city offers. Sentiment is all right in its way but it doesn't pay tax bills. With the price of meat and coal way up to the moon, the taxpayer in moderate circumstances is going to think a long while before he will deliberately vote in favor of any plan which promises a higher tax rate with few advantages.

Pedestrians who use Madison avenue from West Front street to the bridge over Green brook, are complaining and with reason that their interests have not been looked after properly. The sidewalk is blocked completely, although the danger of falling walls is over and they are compelled to pass out into the roadway to get by. Then the long grass and weeds on both sides of the bridge are a decided nuisance to women with trailing skirts. The dampness is caught in the weeds and soon soaks the gowns of women who pass through in the evening. Then they are particularly unsightly, so close to the heart of the city of Plainfield.

It was regarded as a great advertising achievement, says the Philadelphia Record, when a campagne house induced Senator Mason to praise its goods in a speech (afterward widely circulated under the Senator's frank) in the Senate Chamber. Yet the agent of the house affirms that better returns have followed a display advertisement in a leading newspaper than were received from the speech

"The Mysterious Miss Dacres" is the title of a continued story, the first installment of which appears in The Daily Press today. It is from the pen of Mrs. Schuyler Crowninshield and promises to be of more than usual interest. The Daily Press has published a number of serial stories, but this one is said to be one of the most interesting that has yet appeared.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

There is no better time to buy fall and winter shoes than now and there is no better place to get them than at John H. Doane's store on West Front street. His shoes are fit for any feet, no matter what size or shape.

While it might be interesting for Druggist Hodge to enumerate some of the specialties to be had at his store in the Y. M. C. A. building, it would be more interesting to visit the pharmacy. Drop in any time and have a drink of his delicious soda.

In addition to having the best equipped meat market in the vicinity, Fred Endress has a complete and up-to-date seafood department. Oysters are at present most noticeable in the latter and it may be said that they are the best to be obtained.

School commenced today and the children will now prepare their minds for their station in life. But the children should also be prepared for attending school and this can be done by fitting them with the school shoes sold by VanArsdale. They are made for hard usage as well as comfort.

P. G. DuBois, of West Front street, who handles the celebrated Vantine oriental goods, is filling a long felt want in Plainfield. The stock of oriental goods carried is complete and you can trade at the store with a saving and satisfactioon to yourselves. Mr. DuBois makes a specialty of selling the best goods for the lowest reasonable price.

Realizing that the fall and winter months will soon demand seasonable goods, Hill & Shupp are preparing to have a big trade. They will carry an unusually large stock of goods this fall and winter and they propose to give the public real values. Before making your purchases do not fail to inspect this firm's stock. Every department will be brim full of new goods.

PERSONAL.

Miss Grace Burroughs, of Watchung avenue, returned yesterday from Somerville, Mass., to spend the winter in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Sr., who have been in Plainfield for a few days, have returned to their summer home at Wolfboro, N. H.

Miss Louise Rawson, of Watchung avenue, has returned from her summer vacation the last part of which was spent at Lake Champlain.

Miss Mary Griswold, a teacher in the Irving School, returned Sunday evening from Geneseo, N. Y., where she has been spending her vacation.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council was held in the hall last evening. All the members were present except Mr. Wilcox. Mr. Titsworth came in late. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and a number of bills were presented and ordered paid. A resolution was then passed that all people living on property forfeited to the borough because of non-payment of taxes should be dispossessed. This resolution will be put in force shortly. Two petitions were received asking that property owners on portions of Madison avenue and Prospect avenue be forced to pave their sidewalks with regulation paving. The petitions were laid before the sidewalks commitee with power. No other important business was transacted.

Christian Schepflin will shortly remove from his present residence to the one now occupied by Mrs. Charles Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter will move into the house on Prospect avenue, formerly occupied by Rev. Frank Fletcher.

It is not likely that there will be a football team in town this year. All who play the game will play with out-of-town teams.

W. H. Pruden, of Washington avenue, will remove to New York today after spending the summer in town.

Fred Wrage is recovering the use of his injured foot, and is now able to walk without a crutch.

Steam heat is being put in the house on Washington avenue formerly occupied by Jacob Ginder.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vail are rejoicing over the arrival of a bouncing young son.

G. T. Schenck has been entertaining August VanHorn, of New York.

A. A. Lake will return today from a vacation spent in Rhode Island.

The Juniors will hold their regular weekly meeting this evening.

Herbert Wyckoff is spending his vacation at Asbury Park.

Miss Laura VanArsdale is visiting friends at Sea Bright.

Frank Stites has moved into a new house in Greenbrook.

The Checker Club will meet, this evening, as usual.

Fred Mahon is viaiting in Brooklyn for a few days.

Peter C. Staats visited in Plainfield, yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

The local baseball team walked away with the Orange Field Club, Saturday, to the tune of 15 to 11. Whiteley, for the local club, pitched a good game.

A considerable number from here have entered the Plainfield High School for the fall term.

A meeting of the Township Committee will be held in the Hotel Nelson, this evening.

Friendship Council held a meeting, last evening, and transacted unimportant business.

C. T. Rogers entertained out-of-town friends, yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

George Baldwin, who covers second base for the local baseball team, met with an accident while at work at Campbell's machine shop, Plainfield, yesterday, that will probably put him out of the game for the rest of the season, while handling a piece of machinery with several other men. In some way the casting dropped and fell on his leg and foot bruising and injuring him painfully. A hack was summoned and the injured man was taken home and Dr. Westcott called. Fortunately no bones were found broken but he will probably be laid up for several weeks at least.

The adjourned hearing of Harry Pierson, Ewdard Overbaugh and Clement Carroll, charged by Frank Zarro with assault and battery, was heard in Judge Clark's court yesterday afternoon. Zarro claimed while at Pierson's place, The Maples, on Terrill road, he was assaulted by the three defendants who followed him out into the roadway and continued abusing him. The court, after carefully considering the evidence, discharged the defendants, there being not sufficient evidence against them. Zarros, it is said, intends carrying the case to a higher court.

Frank Welden, of Rahway, bookkeeper at Hetfield's stone crusher, was married Thursday of last week to Miss Blanche Underhill, also of Rahway. Mr. and Mrs. Welden are enjoying their honeymoon in the Catskill Mountains.

Miss Elsie Shott, while walking along Westfield avenue, Monday, found a valuable stick pin. The loser may have same by calling at The Manse and proving property.

The local baseball team is looking for another record breaking crowd on Saturday afternoon when the locals cross bats with the St. Marys team, of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stillger and children, who have been spending a few days with Mr. Stillger's parents, have returned to their home at Roselle.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Baptist church was held in the church parlors Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. M. Paff, Sr.

Miss Emma Clark has returned from a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Cass Acheson, at Hazlet, this State.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wooster, of Rahway, have been the guest of Mrs. Stites M. Parse for a pleasant vist.

Cause of Fire Gong's Blows.

The steam gong attached to the fire-alarm system went wrong, yesterday afternoon, and gave a succession of wild blows. Investigation revealed the fact that Western Union linemen changing arms on several poles were ignorant of the vicinity of the fire-alarm wires and kept making crosses. Lineman Herbert Chamberlain located the trouble and censured the careless workmen.

Scarlet Fever Proves Fatal.

Loretta Flaherty, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Flaherty, of Pond place, died yesterday morning after a brief illness with scarlet fever. Private funeral services were held from the parents' residence this morning, after which interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Alis at Practice.

The candidates for the Alis football team, to the number of nineteen, turned out for practice last night. It was the first practice of the season and the time was devoted to light work. The candidates will meet again for practice tomorrow night.

Last Chance to Register.

The borough Boards of Registry are sitting in their respective districts today. It will be the last opportunity boroughites will have to register for the coming election.

Choir Returned.

The choir at the First Baptist church returned to its work, Sunday, for the first after the summer vacation.

months and wanted to run things and he also said that he would knock out the other eye. Mr. Freeman said that to all these remarks he replied "Your the same," and "Come on and try it."

On cross examination Mr. Freeman said that Harry Bush, another fireman, heard part of the conversation and disturbance. Mr. Clark then asked Mr. Freeman what room he occupied at headquarters. To this question Mr. Marsh objected. This led to a discontinuance of the cross examination and Mr. Marsh rested his case.

Mr. Clark then stated that his client had been accused of breaking two rules governing the fire department adopted in 1898, and when these rules were approved the present department was not in existence. He cited the fact that it was on May 1, 1899, six months later, when the present department was established and the volunteer system done away with. He said that it had not been proved that Mr. Dunavan had broken rules and he asked for a dismissal of the case on these grounds.

Mr. Marsh referred to Mr. Clark's objection as a technical one, because the department never had but one set of rules, but Mr. Marsh said he would move to amend the charge to strike out all reference to the rules objected to. However, he still maintained that a member of the department would not have the right to use such profane language at his own sweet will. Addressing the Council he said that the rules were unnecessary, that the accused could be expelled or discharged just the same.

Mr. Clark objected to this amendment on the ground that the charges were made for infraction of the rules, and if they were stricken out he thought the case should be dismissed at any rate. He believed that the complaint must fail in this case.

To this Mr. Marsh objected, stating that the hearing was an informal method of arriving at the gist of the matter, a method of trying the points on its merits. He said that the Council was present to judge concerning the conduct in question and decide accordingly.

President Coriell, of the Council, stated at this time that Mr. Clark's position was well taken, but he was so heartily tired of the case that he felt disposed to settle it as soon as possible. For this reason he entertained Mr. Lee's motion to amend the charges by striking out the rules and the motion was adopted.

After the amendment, which was objected to by Mr. Clark, Mr. Marsh started the hearing over again and in a brief manner called the same witness, also Mr. Freeman and thereby set forth the case against the accused. In conclusion he told the Council that it was a question to decide whether Mr. Dunavan's conduct was such that demanded discipline. He told the Council what it could do, that is, expell, suspend without pay or reprimand. He wanted it distinctly understood that it was not a case of the city against Mr. Dunavan nor a case of Mr. Freeman against Mr. Dunavan. He was simply at the meeting to present the case. He said that he would not even venture an opinion, as he did not believe it necessary.

Mr. Lee then moved that the Council take a recess for fifteen minutes. At the conclusion of this recess, the session was resumed and the findings were presented by Mr. Lee as already stated.

REGULAR BABY SAMSON.

Nine Months Old Boy Performs Truly Wonderful Feats of Endurance and Strength.

A nine-months-old boy living in Somerville, Mass., has developed into a regular Sandow. He has a name as substantial as his strength. He has been christened John Driscoll Sweeney, and "Johnny" has a pair of arms attached to a 30-pound body that are marvelous. His strength is extraordinary. He can hang from the top of a door, trapeze, mantel—in fact anything on which he can obtain a grip with his tiny hands. It is not known how long he can hang by his fingers, as his parents will not permit him to go to a final test, but he never has shown the least inclination to weaken and has not once indicated that he wanted to be taken down.

A feat performed by him not long ago was hanging from the tailboard of a wagon while the horses moved at a brisk trot. He swung back and forth perfectly contented and apparently feeling that he was in no danger of falling. "Johnny" also can turn somersaults with perfect ease. He can stand on his hands while his father takes hold of his heels and can walk along that way for a short distance, displaying remarkable strength in his hands and wrists.

The baby goes through a regular course of athletic training, with his father as trainer. Every morning he takes his exercise, going through the test with wonderful enthusiasm. The boy began to exhibit unusual strength when he was three months old, and since that time his muscles have gradually developed until he is a wonder.

UNCOMFORTABLE CELL.

Indian Policeman at an Ohio Summer Resort Puts His Prisoner in a Bear Pit.

All night in the bear pit at Silver Lake and handcuffed, while two bears poked their noses through the wide bars of the grating at him, was the trying experience of Johann Vaelinski, of Kent, O.

Pete Bey, a full-blood Indian, who recently came from Canada, is doing special police duty at the Silver Lake resort, and his opinion of the law's majesty is very elevated. When he found Vaelinski and two other men nosing around the cottages inside the grounds late at night, he gave a whoop, and caught two of the fellows before they could start to run.

VAELINSKI WAS CAUGHT.

The third escaped. Another got away while Peter was putting the cuffs on Vaelinski. Where to put the prisoner bothered the Indian for awhile, but at last he thought of the bear pit. There is an entrance to the pit three by four feet, and with wide-barred gates on each side. Into this the prisoner was pushed, and though he yelled with fear as the bears came trotting toward him, it did no good. By putting their feet through the grating the bears could come within an inch of touching their visitor, and they made things interesting for him for several hours.

After an investigation next morning Vaelinski was released, it being found that he and the man with him had become lost in going from Cuyahoga Falls to Kent.

New Suit for Every Day.

The greatest dandy in the world is Prince Albert of Thurn, Germany. This fastidious young man attires himself in a new suit of clothes every day—enough yearly to keep 20 experienced workmen going, and to run up a bill of $15,000. Each suit of wearing apparel is highly perfumed with attar of roses, at $25 an ounce. He wears 1,000 neckties during a year, being an average of three every day. His cast-off boots number [illegible] pairs a year.

ODD SPORTING EVENT.

Race Between Tarantula and Cockroach, Which Lasted an Hour and Was Very Exciting.

"The funniest sporting event I ever witnessed was in a Texas saloon a few years ago. It was a race between a cockroach and a tarantula. It lasted an hour and caused upward of $1,000 to change hands."

So spoke Henry L. James, a citizen of Houston, of the Lone Star state, who is making his first visit to the capital of the nation, to a Washington Star reporter.

"The race, I afterward learned, was a common form of amusement for the cowboys of that section. In fact, they gathered nightly in a certain saloon and held their meets. It was so extensive an entertainment that a couple of men acted as bookmakers, and odds were offered and taken right and left. The character of the race was such that bets could be accepted to within a few minutes of its close.

"The animals were furnished by the 'house.' A white line was drawn across the floor at each end of the bar-room, making the course straightaway, and about 20 feet long. The animals were dumped on the floor at one end. As soon as the roach saw the spider he'd start to run. The spider would jump over him, and the roach would run in the other direction, it was for all the world like a bull fight, with the spider the bull and the roach the torreador. As you can see, sometimes the race would be in one direction and sometimes in another. Sometimes the bets would be against the time it would take the spider to get the roach, and sometimes against the shortest time in which the roach could keep free. Sometimes the bets would be that the roach could get across the room first, or vice versa. It was a great thing to watch, and lots of fun for the cowboys. The spider usually won, which always made the odds in his favor."

TRAGEDY IN KANSAS.

Boy Climbs a Cornstalk Which Grows So Fast That He Is Unable to Get Down.

Many remarkable stories are coming from Kansas regarding the wonderful corn crop. Some of them have their humorous side, but this one, taken from a little paper published near Lee's Summit, tells of a tragedy such as well may shock the whole corn belt:

This horrible news comes from Blue Springs that near that town the other day Willie McKeighan climbed a cornstalk to see how the corn was getting along, and the stalk is growing up faster than the boy can climb down. The boy is plump out of sight. Three men have undertaken to cut down the stalk with axes and save the boy from starvation, but it grows so fast that they can't hack twice in the same place. The boy is living on nothing but raw corn, and has already thrown down over four bushels of cobs."

It is reported that the stalk has attained such a dizzy height that the cobs now catch fire and are consumed before reaching the earth.

Scythe in a Cherry Tree.

In a cherry tree on the farm of Henry Deitche, in New London, Oneida county, N. Y., is a scythe that has hung there since 1812. The rusty blade is imbedded deep in the limb over which a hired man hung it when he left the field one morning to enlist in the second war against England. It was learned some time afterward that he was killed. The scythe for a time was forgotten, and when found it was imbedded in the tree to such a depth that the owner of the farm, Joseph Miller, decided to let it remain there. Mr. Deitche purchased the farm three years ago and refuses to move either the scythe or the cherry tree.

CERTAIN RESULTS.

Many a Plainfield Citizen Know How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Plainfield. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I was subject to pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

VACATIONS seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lambs, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

The New Woman Everywhere

IN a restaurant the other day I sat opposite a young couple who evidently had not long been married. The girl had not yet lost the air of triumphant possession that wives of a few weeks wear; the youth still rolled his eyes toward his girl in the adoring, gosling way which characterizes young husbands ere they learn that after all their brides are just made of common flesh and blood like other women. Sweetie declared she wanted just what Dickie desired to eat. Dickie said, oh, no; she must have what she fancied for herself, and presently they settled it by getting partly what one liked, partly what the other liked, which is the best possible way of settling matrimonial differences. Sweetie was a pretty bride, with large eyes, delicate face and the perfect American girl profile. She was tastefully and rather expensively dressed too. So far all was as it should be. She finished luncheon ahead of her husband. Then she made a break in good manners that was as a fathomless chasm. She picked up the table napkin and in the eyes of all mankind deliberately and carefully wiped and polished her pretty teeth with it. Then in a voice purposely loud, nasal and strident, in which the crudities and unculture of generations sounded, she said: "Dickie, when we come here again we'll go to the upstairs dining room. They are such a common, low set of people that eat down here." That girl must have been brought up in the same family as the well dressed young man next me in a train who sat with a toothpick above his ear, put there like a pencil for convenience for use at intervals!

The National Boot and Shoe Workers' union has a woman organizer to travel among her sex employed in the shoe factories and bring them into the association.

It is not enough to have no bad habits. It is even more necessary to have some good ones.

It is now acknowledged that King Edward's safe recovery from his desperate illness was largely due to the indefatigable care of the noble women trained nurses who watched over him. All right. Maybe women's services to the human race will be appreciated by and by.

Helen Gould is earning praise from the new woman all round. Two hundred girl telegraphers in the Western Union offices sent her a petition asking that their pay be raised and setting forth reasons why this was a just and reasonable request. People get helped who help themselves. Miss Gould took the matter into consideration, with the result that the women received a substantial increase of salary.

Girls, notice the poor old women whom you meet every day, feeble, awkward, shabby, stumbling bodies, with their deprecating, ignorant, "'fraid smile," as though they were apologizing to all mankind and the Almighty for being alive. They were satisfied to remain weak and ignorant and timid and to "lean." It was too much trouble to be and do anything else. Is this what you are coming to?

A newspaper says that some New York brokers have decided that they will not allow women to buy and sell stocks and to speculate through their offices. Dear, dear, but this is dreadful!

Buffalo is a good city for women. It has fifty lady physicians in good practice, at least one woman who is making a fortune in the pickling and preserving business and public spirited feminine associations that possess two of the handsomest and most convenient women's clubs in the world. Perhaps Buffalo is near enough to Rochester for its women to be inspired by General Susan B. Anthony.

Miss Theresa Torgatsch is now supervisor of the German teachers in the public schools of Chicago. She is German born and university bred and noted no less for her knowledge than for her teaching ability. Her predecessor in office was a man, Dr. Zimmerman.

When there is a wedding among your friends, send always best wishes. Wait till the pair have been married and have lived happily ten years. Then send congratulations the heartiest.

It has been brought to light that that great man, Professor Gottfried Wilhelm Liebnitz, had one of the lightest weight brains on record. There is now hope for women, isn't there?

At the summer school of the University of California more than half the students were women, and they came from nearly all parts of the earth, particularly from the far orient. The new woman is moving all around the world.

Miss Myra Lloyd Dock of Harrisburg is a member of the Pennsylvania forestry reservation commission and one of the most accomplished botanists and foresters in the state. She is a lecturer on botany.

CHAPTER I.

"Have you a room for rent?" I looked up from the dish-towel which I was hemming. A bony young woman stood before me. She wore a plain gray skirt and jacket, strong shoes showed from beneath the binding of her dress; her hat, a plain black felt was tied on and down with a veil, but in front a bang of curly yellow hair peeped and struggled through. She had a thin face and high cheek-bones, and a laughing, anxious eye—a curious combination.

"Come up on the piazza," I said, "and sit down. How long do you want it for?"

She entered the gate and covered the few steps to the house. I noticed with what a quiet step she walked, and the thought flashed through my mind, "She at least will not disturb Aunt Jane Mary." She took two broad steps upward with the same silent tread, and spoke in a low voice, now that we were close together.

"I cannot tell for how long," she said, answering my question. "I am here on a particular mission. That mission may be accomplished in a week, and it may take six months. Are you willing to let me have the room by the week?"

Now I had never said that I had a room for rent, but evidently she had heard somewhere in the neighborhood that I did let my lower rooms when I could do so at proper rates. It helped me on with Tom's college bills; and Aunt Jane Mary's electricity had to be paid for somehow.

"The room is on the ground floor, I suppose," said my visitor. "I am very much afraid of fire. I have had a very unpleasant experience. I wouldn't go up stairs if you would give me the solar system." She looked down as she said these words, and I was afraid she was going to burst out crying.

"Don't cry, my dear," I said—"don't! Aunt Jane Mary might hear you, and then——"

"Oh, have you other people in the house? I did not know that. Then perhaps I had better say I will not take the room. I can't bear a noise nor——"

"Neither can Aunt Jane Mary," said I, hastening to change the impression that I had given her, for I really needed some income from that room. It had stood empty now for two months, and there was Tom's bill for his foot-ball suit already sent in, and I was expecting another dun every morning. Tom was a good lad, but I thought that sometimes he imagined that his mother was made of money.

"My aunt who lives with me,"—really, I lived with Aunt Jane Mary, but that there was no necessity for explaining, and I thought that I should retain my visitor's respect more fully if I did not mention the fact—"is quite an invalid."

"Does she never come downstairs?" inquired my prospective boarder.

"She never leaves her room," said I. "The doctor promises now that she may be able to get up by the last of August, but I hardly know——"

"Oh, that will be time enough for my purpose," said the girl with a short laugh. "I—I mean that I shall have accomplished what I came for, rest and change, in that time."

"Perhaps you would like to look at the room," I said.

"Yes," replied the young woman, moving towards the hall door.

I laid my dish-towel down in the rocker, where I had been seated, and went into the house. I turned into the first room on the right. "This is it," I said.

She entered and surveyed the premises. The room was a corner one with windows on the veranda—two in front and two on the side—a large, comfortable, old-fashioned bedchamber. The great mahogany bed, that had been my dear mother's, stood ready for the next tired occupant. It had only to be made up with the sweet-smelling old sheets that were laid away in the closet, the pillow cases on top of them, with sprigs of lavender between.

"It's a lovely room," said my visitor. She opened the closet doors—without asking if she might, which I did not exactly like. It shocked my old-fashioned notions, for the room had not been taken by her yet.

"What nice, deep closets! And where does that door lead to?" She indicated a door near the outer wall on the side of the room.

"This room was once used for the dining-room," said I, "and those stairs go down cellar, but we have another small cellar, and with such light housekeeping as mine, (I sighed as I thought of dear Tom's appetite in the holidays, which was a blessing, even if I had to work hard to supply it) we need no other, so this has been abandoned."

"I couldn't have people coming into my room to go down cellar," said she.

"Oh, certainly not," I answered. "If you take the room, it is yours, of course. No one uses the cellar—now."

She opened the door and descended the steps. I could not see what she wanted in the cellar, but thought, after all, it was natural that she should wish to know what was underneath the place where she might be going to sleep. "You needn't come down," she called upward. I could not hear her moving about; she was quiet in all her motions. After a few moments she reappeared.

"One of the windows is broken," she said, "but the hole is not large enough for anyone to crawl through."

"I will have it mended," said I meekly. I was sorry the moment I had said this. It showed her how much I wished to rent the room.

"Well," she said, "I don't know as that is really necessary. There is a good bolt on the door, I suppose."

"What door?" said I.

"The door opening on those stone steps leading up to the back yard." How closely she had observed everything!

"I hardly know," said I. "I haven't been down there in so long."

"Wait! I'll see," and before I knew what she intended, she had disappeared in the darkness of the cellar and was lost from sight. I descended a few steps after her.

"Don't come down," she called back in her low, soft voice, "you fill up the door-way and cut off the light." Whereupon I retreated from my own cellar and from this masterful young woman.

"DON'T COME DOWN."

I waited for a few moments, and then I heard the soft rustle of her skirt—no, not a rustle, nothing about her rustled; it was simply a flap-flap of the front of her dress against the stairs as she came upward.

She held out her hands, showing me the palms of her gray gloves. They were stained a deep yellow. "There is a bolt," she said, "but it sticks so that I cannot move it. Could anyone break in from the outside, do you think? I should die of fright if I thought that some man might burst the door down and come up those stairs, in the middle of the night, to this door. Has this a lock? —Oh, yes, I see, but it must have a bolt too. Will you have one put on? How much will it cost? Will you——"

"I do not care to go to any expense," said I, "unless I am sure that you are coming to me. Those two bolts will be—— Is there anything else that you will want? How about the windows on the piazza?"

"Somehow I don't mind those," she said with a quick, smiling glance to me. "I always slept on the veranda at home——" She sighed.

"I have a little room upstairs," said I, "which I—you are so quiet —you——"

"Yes, my profession requires me to be."

"Your profession?"

"Yes," she answered quickly. "I am a trained nurse. I have to come and go at all hours of the night and day. I should not want to be going up your stairs at night. And your Aunt——"

"Jane Mary——."

"Exactly. Your Aunt Jane Mary might object to it. I told you I am afraid of fire and——"

"You must often have to attend patients who are on third and fourth floors," said I.

"Not if I can help it. Of course, I cannot always choose, but—"

"The ceilings are low," said I. "You could easily drop from the veranda roof to the floor. My boy—" I sighed, I know, for she gave me a quick, sympathetic look.

"You have a boy then? Ah, so have I, a little chap. He is at boarding-school. He little knows what straits his poor mother—but that is neither here nor there. In short, how much do you want for your room?" My heart warmed to this very young mother.

Little Hobbies Ridden by Some of the European Queens

Like the common run of humanity the queens of Europe are given to the riding of little hobbies. There is not a queen throughout all the continent of Europe but what finds enjoyment in some fad or other. They differ from the really fashionable set in America in that their pleasure often comes from doing those things which are possible for the common people. The queen of England, for instance, likes cycling, though the pastime is so common, and bicycles so cheap, that almost the humblest of her subjects may emulate her example and ride a wheel. The society leaders of this country rode bicycles during a part of one season while they were expensive, and before the common people had taken to the sport. But the pastime soon lost its exclusiveness, and when it did the fashionable set quickly dropped it. Not so with Queen Alexandra, however. She has stuck to her wheel through every evolution of the sport, and rides to-day.

Queen Alexandra.

The same is true of any number of the fads and pastimes that may be mentioned. Photography remains a favorite, even though the low price of cameras has made it possible for almost anyone to take pictures.

The queens of Europe follow rather than lead in the matter of sports and pastimes. With automobiling the craze of the rich in both this country and Europe, there are but few of the women members of Europe's reigning families who have taken seriously to the sport. Some of them ride in motor cars, and almost every sovereign has one or more of the machines, but in the great majority of cases they are used, if at all, as a means of transportation rather than as a sport. There is not a queen in all Europe who delights in automobile racing, or who gives her sanction to the dangerous sport. In fact, most of them openly condemn it. There is but one queen in all Europe who can be said to really enjoy the motor car, and that is Queen Helene, of Italy. Both she and her husband are passionately fond of the sport, and spend many long hours together on the beautiful Italian roads.

Queen Alexandra and the empress of Germany both are passionately fond of amateur photography. Queen Alexandra puts her abilities in this line to use in photographing her horses and dogs, and the beautiful country places throughout England. The pictures she gathers in this way are often used for decorative purposes of various kinds, and among these is the decorating of China. A dinner set to be found in the royal china closet shows every piece decorated with one or more of the queen's photos. For this purpose she has utilized her favorite dogs and horses, her chickens and many pretty country scenes. She attempts portraiture with considerable success, and has an interesting group of pictures of her own family taken by herself.

Czarina of Russia.

The empress of Germany makes a specialty of the pets of her children in choosing objects for her camera. Her most interesting collection of pictures is undoubtedly the ones she took at the time of her trip to the Holy Land. That was in the early stages of her career as an amateur photographer, but some of her negatives were wonderful ones at that, and would have been a credit to a professional. This series of photos were exhibited with the aid of a stereopticon throughout Germany for one of the queen's favorite charities, and the receipts were wonderful.

Queen Alexandra of England has another fad aside from photography, and that is her model dairy at Sandringham. It is her pleasure not only to superintend this, but she often aids in the making of butter, and thoroughly understands the workings of a dairy, things she learned in her Denmark home.

Queen Wilhelmina.

The doings of the royal family of Russia is at all times an interesting subject for all of us, yet so meager is the information that comes from behind the castle walls at St. Petersburg that we but seldom get even a glimpse of the domestic side of the ruling family of the great empire. We do not know a great deal about the czarina, but we do know that she has her little fad much after the manner of the rest of humanity, though it is not so common as photographing or cycling. Her fad is the gathering and making of caricatures. She subscribes for a large number of periodicals from the countries of both Europe and America, and from these she selects the caricatures she wishes to save, and is said to have a collection of several thousand. But she does more than collect the work of others: she makes caricatures herself, and there is no one who is oftener the victim of her pen or pencil than the czar. It is even intimated in official circles in Russia that the caricatures of the czaretza have been responsible for some of the reforms in the czar's empire within the past three or four years.

The queen of Greece's favorite recreation is yachting. She is an excellent sailor, and is the only member of the Russian imperial house who bears the rank of an admiral in the Russian navy—a unique honor bestowed on her by Czar Alexander, who was very fond of his beautiful cousin and who knew of her deep love for the sea. When yachting Queen Olga is perfectly happy, and she has many opportunities of indulging in her sea excursions in her Grecian home.

Empress of Germany.

Queen Christina of Spain has, perhaps, fewer hobbies than any of our European sovereign women. The extremely busy life she was obliged to lead during the period of the regency left her little time for relaxation. What time she could spare from the duties of state she devoted mainly to the companionship of her children, and whenever possible she would go with them to her palace at San Sebastian, on the seacoast, where, while her three children went bathing or cycling, she would sit on the strand with her work or a book.

The favorite amusements of Queen Wilhelmina are skating and riding; but as a child her hobby was the keeping of poultry. Her majesty is devoted to animals, and is averse to sport, as she cannot bear to think of the animals in her preserves being slaughtered. Her husband, however, shoots as much as he likes; but formerly, when the preserves were shot over, the queen never appeared or showed that she took the slightest interest in the sport. Wilhelmina is a beautiful needlewoman, and fond of painting, but she is not in the least musical.

Queen Helene of Italy has many interests. Her favorite amusements are shooting and driving a motor car. She is an excellent shot and an untiring walker, having been used to spending days with her father and brothers on the mountains of her native land. The automobile is at present quite the favorite hobby of most of the members of the Italian royal family, and the king, as well as Queen Helene, spends as much of his spare time as he can making excursions in his horseless carriage. This taste is now shared by Queen Margarethe, who was initiated into the delights of motoring by her nephew, the duke of Abruzzi. Queen Helene has other hobbies. She is like her father, a poet of no mean degree, and takes a great delight in writing verses in various languages.

It may perhaps be hardly correct to call religion a hobby, but it is the only relaxation allowed to herself by the queen of Norway and Sweden, and the one real interest that she has outside her family and public life. Her majesty is deeply and honestly religious, and during her long life has devoted every moment that she could spare to forwarding the cause of religion in the countries over which her husband rules. She belongs to the strictly Evangelical party, and when in England was especially attracted by the work done by the Low Church. She is a great supporter of the Salvation Army. In Sweden the followers of Gen. Booth have had the greatest success, and have always had the help and countenance that was possible from the queen. In her work her majesty has as her ardent helpers her second son, Prince Oscar (now known as Count von Wisborg, and his morganatic wife, nee Miss Ebba Munck), whose romantic marriage took place at Bournemouth. Countess Wisborg, who was formerly the lady in waiting of Queen Sophie, had always been deeply religious, and it was greatly through her influence that Prince Oscar has so entirely taken up the work of an amateur preacher to the people.

Queen of Denmark.

"Carmen Sylva," queen of Roumania, has so many interests and so many hobbies that it is difficult to name any one as the chief. During many years one of her greatest delights has been to discover ancient legends—a taste fostered by her life in the pleasant Rhine country, which abounds in every kind of folklore. In Roumania the queen has continued to indulge in these researches, and many have been the poetical treasures that she has unearthed in the romantic country over which she rules. She has taught the people to value the old legends and stories of their forebears, and those who have had a noble tendency she has translated into other languages, and has thus caused many people to take interest in Roumania and the Roumanian people. The queen has many other occupations. As is known, she is an indefatigable writer, and one of her photographs shows her diligently working at her typewriter, which she now uses for all her literary labors. She is also thoroughly musical, and is skilled in fine needlework.

SPORTING NEWS

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Preparations are about complete for a grand matinee at the Plainfield Driving Park Saturday afternoon. There will be a 2:25 class, a 2:35 class, trot or pace, and a free-for-all race. Handsome prizes will be presented to the winners, and it is expected that some of the best horses from Westfield, Rahway, Woodbridge and Plainfield will be entered. The affair will be given under the auspices of the Plainfield Driving Association.

THEATRICAL.

The popularity of "Robert Emmet" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, seems to be almost unbounded. Even the hottest night of last week did not deter the crowds from making a pilgrimage to this mecca of the Irish drama and the warm wave apparently had no effect on the enthusiasm of those who attended. Mr. Tynan, the author of "Robert Emmet," is making a splendid reputation for himself as an actor, as well as a playwright. His impersonation of the young patriot is an ideal one and shows not only a finished art born of good experience on the stage, but also a deep analytical study of the character he portrays. It is not exaggerating in the slightest to say, he is the best acting Irish star we have had before the public in many years. His youth and enthusiasm lend much to the charm of his work, for there is a sincerity in his manner that is magnetic and carries his audience with him in the dramatic scenes. His supporting cast is an appropriate setting for a clever young actor. All the company are players of ripe experience and established reputation; all are well cast and the result is an evenness and roundness of performance that is seldom equalled, even in an "all star" production on Broadway.

Judging from the demand for seats, "Robert Emmet," seems destined to remain at the Fourteenth Street Theatre until October, when the contract of the house with Chauncey Olcott will compel Mr. Tynan and his beautiful play to go on tour for the balance of the season. Several large Irish organizations are arranging for theatre parties this coming week, when they will attend as clubs or societies on their respective evenings.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Miss Florence Symons, of East Third street, is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. M. E. Thorn, of East Second street, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Perrine, of New York.

Mrs. A. B. Lewis and son, Lloyd, of West Fifth street, have returned from a stay with relatives at Bernardsville.

Miss Bertha Mitchell, of LaGrande avenue, has returned from Westerley, R. I., where where she has been spending her vacation.

Mrs. W. L. Force, of Duer street, and Mrs. W. A. Millard, of East Second street, have returned from a two weeks' visit at Asbury Park.

DEMOCRATS ORGANIZED.

City Committee Held Initial Meeting, Elected Officers and Discussed Campaign.

The Democratic city committee met last evening at the Hotel Kensington to re-organize and informally discuss plans for the coming campaign. Andrew J. Nolan was made chairman, Charles L. Moffett was chosen secretary and H. W. Marshall treasurer.

In addition to the members of the committee present, John Moody, of Cranford, and L. Tuttle, of Morristown, were at the meeting and made brief addresses of an enthusiastic nature. The candidacy of DeWitt C. Flanagan for Congress was received cordially and a successful campaign was predicted for him.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A dog with donkey ears is affording amusement to curiosity seekers at Milton just now. The dog is small of stature, and is certainly long on ears, short of tail and abbreviated as to legs.

Whether the dog flops the ears or the ears wag the dog, is dividing the families by discussion, and matters are getting serious. The dog says nothing, but looks wise.

Brought Body Home.

Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Carlton avenue, has just returned from Hartwick, N. Y., where she has been for some time past. While away she was very ill with nervous prostration. About two weeks ago Mrs. Smith had her son's body removed from Hartwick to Hillside cemetery, this city, where it has been interred in the family plot.

Funeral Services Held Over Child.

Private funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the remains of Charles Leslie Dellehunt, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dellehunt, of South Second street. Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, officiated. The casket was covered with flowers sent by friends of the little fellow. Interment was made at Hillside.

Funeral of Mrs. Kneeland.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Patrick Kneeland were held in St. Mary's church, this morning, with a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance. A solemn high mass was conducted by Rev. Father Egan. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Petit Jurors.

Hezekiah Hand, Nathan R. Titsworth, U. B. Crane, John DeMeza, Alex. D. Ayres and John Nagle were announced as the petit jurors from Plainfield for the coming term, this morning.

Patient Doing Well.

Randell Jones, the small-pox patient, is doing very well today at the isolation hospital.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. TO BOND COUNTY FOR GOOD ROADS

Plan Proposed at Meeting of Somerset County Board of Freeholders Yesterday.

NO ACTION WAS TAKEN.

But Freeholders Were Beseiged, the Delegations From Different Parts of the County Who Want Good Roads—Alvah A. Clark Addressed Board on Subject.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 10—At the regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders in the Court House here yesterday nearly all the time was taken up in grappling with the question of the improvement of the roads. Delegations from all sections of the county were present and they made life miserable for the members with their petitions and requests.

First appeared William H. Rogers and a company of friends, who urged the early construction of the stone road in Warren township under the State aid act. Rev. Nicholas Bowers, P. C. Henry and many others, from Basking Ridge, spoke in behalf of the road applied for to be laid from Davidson's bridge to Blazure's corner in that section of the county. They urged an early building. To make the matter more complicated William R. Codington, of Plainfield, spoke in favor of the early building of the road applied for under the State aid act from Millington to Far Hills.

A communication was then read from Hon. John F. Dryden, United States Senator, urging the construction of the road from Davidson's bridge to Blazure's corner. This the board agreed to file.

Hon. Alvah A. Clark then gave his views on the whole matter. He spoke in favor of bonding the county for $500,000 for the purpose of building stone roads. He said the money could be borrowed at a low rate of interest, and that the increased value of the real estate of the county by reason of the roads being built would so increase the taxes that it would soon pay the debt. "Then we will have the improvements and men of wealth will come to purchase, improve and beautify our lands and build largely," he said.

Members of the board expressed doubt whether the taxpayers of the county wanted the Freeholders to borrow the money on the bonds of the county to build the roads.

Mr. Clark stated that the petitioners along the several roads being taxpayers and abutting owners was sufficient evidence that the board would be warranted in going ahead and building the roads.

But the meeting was adjourned without any definite move being made. It will come up at a meeting soon again.

SCHOLASTIC TENNIS.

Boys of City High School Are Already Talking of Tournament.

Although the Plainfield High School has only been in session two days, the boys are beginning to talk of the annual tennis tournament. The tournament was inaugurated last fall and found much favor with the boys. The championship in singles was won by Kenneth Bulkley and in doubles by Fred T. VanAuken and Vincent B. Miner, Bulkley has now left the High School, graduating last June. The other two remain. There will be a number of new candidates for championship honors this fall.

SPECIAL PRIZE.

Given to L. W. Bridgeman for His Essay on Probation Officer.

Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, of Hoboken, who offered the prizes for the best essays on the probation officer by members of last June's graduating classes in the High Schools of the State, has sent a check to L. W. Bridgeman, of the class of '02 of the Plainfield High School. Bridgeman won the local prize but his essay was barred from the State competition on account of its length. It was so creditable that Mrs. Alexander finally decided to send him a prize anyhow.

Will be at Home.

Miss Randolph and Miss Cooley and the teachers of the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School will be at home at the school 303 LaGrande avenue, Monday evening, Sept. 22, at 8 o'clock.

LIVE WIRE KILLED HORSE

ONE OF FRANK RICKERT'S TEAM WAS KILLED ON EAST SECOND STREET.

Fallen Telephone Wire Was Crossed With Electric Light Wire During the Storm Yesterday.

Through the crossing of a fallen telephone wire with a live electric light wire on East Second street, near Richmond street, yesterday afternoon, one of Frank Rickert's handsome truck horses was instantly killed. The animal stepped on the wire and almost immediately fell to the ground, dead.

Its mate stood still until the wire was pulled out of harm's way. The electrocuted equine was valued at $300 and was considered to be one of the finest appearing draught horses in the city.

The wire evidently blew down during the day and with the added wet became charged with a deadly current from the cross. Several teamsters had narrow escapes from injury not knowing its nature and one grocery clerk was about to grasp it to release it from the top of his wagon when he reconsidered and drove off. Shortly after he had passed Rickert drove into it. The proper linemen were then notified and the trouble was remedied without further trouble.

BOYS' CLUB TO OPEN.

Gymnastics to be a Feature of the Organization This Year in Addition to the Regular Classes.

All boys of the city are invited to attend the opening of the Boys' Club which takes place Monday and Tuesday evenings, September 15 and 16. These two nights will be devoted to the enrollment of applicants and their assignments to various classes. Superintendent Olaf Saugstad will be in attendance and will personally arrange matters.

It is the intention of the club officials to make a specialty of gymnastics this year in addition to the regular classes. The subjects to be taught in the manual training department will consist of mechanical drawing, pattern-making, carpentering and molding.

Funeral of Viola Seader.

The funeral of Viola M., daughter of Adam P. Seader, was held from the family residence in West Front street, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and from Hope chapel at 3:30 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Howard and interment was made in the M. E. cemetery.

Eye in Serious Condition.

Col. John F. Wilson, former Mayor of the borough, has been compelled to call in the services of an expert oculist, his right eye being much inflamed and very painful. He takes his usual walk about the borough, however.

WEDDED TO ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S SAILORS

Miss Adelaide Runyon Became Wife of Gunner's Mate Gerald Ollif.

WAS A NAVAL WEDDING.

CEREMONY TOOK PLACE AT HOME OF THE BRIDE'S MOTHER.

Pretty Home Wedding Performed Beneath American Flags—Bridal Party and the Gowns—Mrs. Moffett Played the Wedding March.

A very pretty wedding was witnessed last evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Harriet M. Runyon, of Arlington avenue, when Miss Mary Adelaide Runyon, was married to Gerold Ollif, formerly of Plainfield but now chief gunners' mate in the U. S. Navy and stationed at Naval Academy, Newport, R. I., where he is an instructor. The affair was in the nature of a naval wedding, the groom being dressed in his uniform. The party stood beneath two large American flags which were draped in the centre of a bow window. The decorations were completed with ferns, palms and smilax.

The bride was gowned in white silk mull, trimmed with lace. She also wore a tulle veil caught up with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elma Hay Runyon, as maid-of-honor, who wore a gown of white dotted swiss mull, trimmed with lace and ribbons. Two nieces of the bride, Miss Ethel Runyon and Miss Florence Moffett, served as ribbon girls. They were daintily dressed in gowns of white material. The groom's best man was his brother, James Louis Ollif, of Westfield.

As the bridal party entered the rear parlor, the wedding march from "Lohengrin" was played on the piano by the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles L. Moffett, of this city. She afterward rendered the Swedish wedding march by Soedemann. While the ceremony was being performed by Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, where the bride is a member, Mrs. Moffett played appropriate selections on the piano.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple was showered with congratulations by the guests, after which supper was served. Later in the evening the bride and groom left Plainfield to enjoy a wedding trip. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping at Newport, where the groom is stationed. Their home is now furnished and awaits their coming.

The bride is a most estimable and popular young woman, being an active worker in the Park Avenue Baptist church for many years. She is the granddaughter of Col. Edward Chase, of Walton, N. Y. The groom is the son of Dr. James Harry Ollif, formerly of Auburn, N. Y., but now of Brooklyn. He formerly lived on Arlington avenue, near the home of the bride. It was then that he became acquainted with his wife.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain, while in addition the bride received a large collection of cut glass, silverware, furniture, etc. One present valued highly by the bride is an oil painting, the work of her sister, Mrs. Charles L. Moffett.

The guests at the wedding were from Newark, Westfield, New York, Brooklyn, Closter, N. Y., and Plainfield.

STILL GAY TIMES ON HILL

ALTHOUGH END OF SEASON AT HOTEL NETHERWOOD IS AT HAND.

Many New Guests Registered at That Popular Hostelry Last Week.

Although the season is nearing its close, life at the Hotel Netherwood has in no way decreased in its gaiety. Guests continue to arrive while occasional visitors are more numerous than ever. It is already past the usual time of closing but the inmates of the house are loathe to depart and just when the season will terminate has not been decided upon.

Among the guests who registered at the hostelry last week were the following: R. E. Sweeney, G. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Laurent, E. B. Fuller, Frederick E. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bennett, George W. Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Reed, Kenneth McK. Reed, Miss Brush, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clark, W. C. Wilson, Miss Harrington, Mrs. F. B. Frear, Adolph Bock, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Sharkey, Miss J. F. Sharkey, Mrs. W. A. Hallemae, Fred Lewis, George W. Koon, Mrs. Caldwell, S. Armstemi and Ernest Bruzell, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. Sarah C. Patterson, Miss Marian M. Bowen, Miss M. F. Wallace and J. B. Frear, of Brooklyn; W. Y. Coons, Wilkes-Barre; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Taylor, Newark; Martin S. Hebert, Zadoc Loller, John H. Emerson, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Russell, East Orange; G. O. Smyth, Yonkers; Jabez Guzzle, Acamac, Va., T. Winderson, Ottowa, Canada.

Bound Brook, Sept. 10.—Rev. C. T. Anderson, pastor of the Reformed church at South Bound Brook, and Miss Bethany VanSyckel, of the same place, will be united in marriage today.

WHAT THIRD WARD IS LIKELY TO DO

One Republican Politician Said Ward Will Support Ackerman for Senator.

IS HE A CANDIDATE?

MR. ACKERMAN HAS ALREADY DECLARED FOR SENATOR CROSS.

Third Warder Said That He Believed Ward Would Support Runyon in Event of Contest Narrowing Down to the Two.

There has been considerable interest in county political circles over what position the Third ward Republicans would take in the present fight for the senatorial nomination. If there was any opposition to the candidacy of City Judge William N. Runyon in Plainfield, it was generally conceded that it would make its appearance in that ward. While there has been lots of talk, so far nothing has been done there, many of the prominent Republicans being out of town and the others willing to wait to confer with them on their return.

A well-known Republican from that ward, who has been identified with the Kean faction in the past, made some interesting statements regarding the situation in the ward to a Press reporter last evening.

"We are out for Ernest R. Ackerman," he explained.

"Is Mr. Ackerman a candidate?" asked the reporter.

"He has not announced himself as such," was the reply. "But his friends believe that if the senatorial nomination is coming to Plainfield he is the man who is most entitled to it. Mr. Ackerman has said that he believes that Mr. Cross should be renominated and he still stands by that position.

"In case the contest narrows down to Senator Cross and Judge Runyon, how will we stand? In such an event we will give our support to the Plainfielder without any doubt."

The speaker went on to explain that the delegation which the Third ward would send to the convention would be composed of representative men who could not be dictated to. The delegation would therefore be in the nature of a neutral one which would act as it thought best when the time came and the actions of which it would be impossible to foresee.

THE PRIMARIES ARE CALLED

EARLY DATE SET FOR FACTIONAL FIGHT IN REPUBLICAN RANKS.

Then Will be Decided the Race for the Senatorial Nomination in Union County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Sept. 10—The Union county Republican executive committee met in this city last evening and fixed the date for holding the primaries and the county convention. The primaries will be held throughout the county on Monday evening, September 22, and the convention will be held in Jacobs' Opera House, this city, Wednesday afternoon, October 24, at 3 o'clock. J. White was appointed a committee of one to secure the conveniences for the convention.

A committee, of which J. Smylie Tucker is the chairman, was appointed to draft resolutions on the death of Wm. Mitchell, a late member of the county committee.

The committee learned last evening that Freeholder Tillotson, of Rahway, is a new candidate for Assembly honors, and it was viewed in the light of a disturbing element in the Cross-Kean camp. Yesterday emissaries from Plainfield visited Elizabeth and made a tour of several important places in support of Judge Runyon for State senator. The Kean-Cross faction was not asleep and close watch was kept on the visitors while in the city.

The Plainfield members of the county committee present at the meeting were Collector F. H. Smith, Andrew McCardell, Judge William N. Runyon, Councilman J. F. Buckle and John Keely.

WIFE ARRESTED.

Complaint Against Mrs. Rebecca Emery and David Taylor Made by Husband of Former.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Sept. 10—Constable Harry Purcell, of the sheriff's office, Sunday night arrested Mrs. Rebecca Emery and David Taylor upon warrants issued by Justice of the Peace Bossett, alleging improper conduct.

The charge was made by Watson Emery, a collector of a local house, who alleges that his wife deserted him and their four children on August 5, and went to Lincoln, N. J., where Taylor conducts a roadhouse. Mrs. Emery denies the charge and claims that she was boarding at Taylor's Hotel.

Both Taylor and the woman were released on $300 bail to appear for examination in the First Criminal Court today. The constable was given the warrant two weeks ago, but was unable to find the couple until Sunday night. Mr. and Mrs. Emery formerly lived near Plainfield. Mr. Emery has his children and he now has them in a boarding school.

QUIET WEDDING

Miss Elizabeth W. Reynolds Became Wife of Samuel Hollingsworth.

Announcement reached Plainfield this morning telling the friends of Miss Elizabeth Welch Reynolds, of Lyndonsville, N. Y., and Samuel Hollingsworth, of Scotch Plains, of their marriage at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Henry Petrie, at Lyndonville, Monday. The ceremony was a very quiet one and attended only by the immediate family.

Miss Reynolds is well-known in this city where she spent several years teaching in the Plainfield public schools. Mr. Hollingsworth is the son of Loftus Hollingsworth, one of the most prominent residents of Scotch Plains, and is now head designer at the Potter Press Works. He is a graduate of Stevens Institute. The couple will take up their residence in the Lincoln apartments on West Fourth street on their return from their wedding trip.

Funeral of John Gray.

Funeral services over the remains of John Gray were held yesterday afternoon, from his late residence on West Front street. They were in charge of Rev. Charles E. Herring and Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck. Many relatives and friends were in attendance. At the close of the service the remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT BY CARELESS LINEMEN

Crossed Telegraph Wires Were Responsible for Alarm of Yesterday Afternoon.

MAY REMOVE WIRES.

THE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM IS GREATLY TROUBLED BY TELEGRAPH LINEMEN.

May End in Removal of All Fire Alarm Wires From Poles of the Western Union Company—It is Chief Doane's Wish.

A false alarm, supposedly coming from keyless box No. 12, sent the fire department scurrying to West Front street, yesterday afternoon. When the aparatus arrived no sign of a fire could be discovered and it was learned no one had been near the box. An investigation revealed the fact that Western Union linemen were responsible for the trouble.

The fire alarm system has been put considerably out of gear for the past week owing to the telegraph people altering and changing its lines and the annoyance may be the result of the gong and house wires being placed somewhere else. Several of the circuits are strung on Western Union poles which line the railroad and the company is now adding many new arms to accommodate lines being removed from the Pennsylvania Railroad. A gang has been operating in this city and the linemen are continually dropping wires over the uncovered alarm circuits with the result that the system has been suffering.

It has long been Chief Doane's argument that the Gamewell wires should be placed underground or at least placed above all others as they are on West Third street. On this street nearly all the West End circuits are strung on small uprights, attached to telephone poles, but reaching several feet over the other wires. This practically obviates all danger of crosses and with the removal of the system from the Western Union poles the firemen will be less liable to be annoyed by false alarms. The matter will no doubt be taken into consideration by the proper authorities within a short time.

NO WATER.

So Blaze in South Bound Brook Managed to Bring About $5,000 Damages.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Sept 10—The store, dwelling and barn of S. F. Karno, in South Bound Brook, were totally destroyed by fire Monday. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a gasolene stove. The whole building seemed to be on fire at once, and the family were unable to save a thing, barely escaping with the clothes on their back.

Mr. Karno kept a general store on the first floor of the building, and his family lived above. The first story was of brick and the two upper stories frame. South Bound Brook has no water supply and no fire engines, so that the three companies from Bound Brook responded. The Standard Paint Works has a water supply and hose was attached to that, it taking all the hose in Bound Brook to reach the fire.

Karno's place was beyond control when the firemen arrived, but they saved adjoining buildings. A house next door, belonging to Joshua Moore, was badly damaged. The loss to Karno is about $5,000, partially insured.

Been Missionaries in China.

Rev. D. H. Davis, of Shanghai, China, and his son, Theodore, who is a student of Alfred University, are visiting at the home of W. H. Rogers, of Central avenue. Mr. Davis and his wife, who is a sister of Mrs. Rogers, have been missionaries of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in China for more than twenty years. Mr. Davis will speak at the Seventh-Day Baptist church Friday night and Saturday morning.

To Give Praise Service.

At the Crescent Ave. church a week from Sunday evening, praise services will be given, consisting of selections from Gaul's "Holy City." The choir will be assisted by a chorus composed of local singers who have already appeared in the oratorio. The first rehearsal was held last evening.

Amicably Settled.

The contract cases of Stevens against Smith and Harris against Smith were amicably settled in Justice Hand's court yesterday.

NOTICE WHAT THE FREE SCHOOLS COST THE TAXPAYERS OF THE BOROUGH OF NORTH PLAINFIELD.

Comparison of Plainfield and North Plainfield school taxes Observe how steady the city line is in comparison with the erratic, rapidly rising line of borough taxes. The official figures for 1902 are not shown in the diagram, but as the borough tax has jumped from 78 to 97 the line for this year runs well up to the top of the figure. A school tax of 97 is probably the highest of any borough in the State. With increased appropriations and more buildings this tax will surely go higher. Plainfield's school tax has been reduced a few points for 1902. This is because the wealth in taxable property of Plainfield increased during the past year $299,700, while in North Plainfield the net increase is only $1,170.

PROSPECTS AT PRINCETON

TEAM WILL GATHER FOR PRELIMINARY WORK TOMORROW.

This Year's Schedule Shows All But One Game Played at Princeton.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Princeton, Sept. 10—Old Nassau's football season will open for preliminary work tomorrow, when Captain Davis will lead out his advance guard of gridiron warriors to limber up for regular daily practice. On the afternoon of the 17th, the day on which the university formally opens, all the candidates for the teams will be called out and sent through light drills in passing the ball and falling on it, punting, tackling the dummy and running through signals. Everything is in readiness for the reception of the candidates, and the work should start off without a hitch. "Jim" Robinson, the trainer, has had the field put in excellent condition, and all the apparatus at the field house is ready to be set up on the gridiron at any time.

All the games on this year's schedule, with the exception of the Annapolis game, will be played on Princeton's field. Heretofore the team has frequently urged that the long trips to Ithaca, Annapolis and the shorter jaunts to New York and Easton, coming as they generally did so near the final and championship game, usually took away so much energy that they could not get into the pink of condition by the eve of the Yale battle. As the Annapolis game is set down for October 11, more than a month before the championship struggle comes off, the players will have all the time necessary to round out for all the heavy games that will follow this date.

The following is the schedule of games:

October 1—Swarthmore at Princeton.
October 4—Lehigh at Princeton.
October 8—New York University at Princeton.
October 11—Annapolis at Annapolis.
October 15—Haverford at Princeton.
October 18—Washington and Jefferson at Princeton.
October 22—Dickinson at Princeton.
October 25—Columbia at Princeton.
November 1—Cornell at Princeton.
November 8—Orange Athletic Club at Princeton.
November 15—Yale at Princeton.

Furniture of Highest Character

Appeals to every one, yet it is not always possible for "every one" to enjoy it. The conditions which surround manufacturing are regulated entirely by the cost of producing this or that article, and we presume that there is no branch which offers such a wide scope for the turning out of artistic appealing home furnishings as that enjoyed by the furniture manufacturers.

Take any line your fancy might suggest, start at the cheapest and go along the range of prices and you will find at every step a better article and of course a higher price. This is a condition of manufacture. Now come with us to the store (and there are many) that sells on a basis of value, compare qualities, look at price tags.

Come back to New Jersey's Greatest Store, note the difference. Isn't it remarkable how convincing an argument becomes when you can show a positive saving?

Our lines are most comprehensive, embodying the best of their respective qualities based on a profit added to the cost.

Our styles are also the latest conceptions of the designer's art, and nowhere can you find as great a variety. We are carrying finer goods than ever before, and an inspection of our assortments will prove pleasing and profitable.

TRY TO END STRIKE.

Governor Stone Confers With Widener, Flinn and Elkins.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN URGED TO ACT.

Information as to Progress Made at New York Conference Carefully Guarded—Superintendents Profess Ignorance on Subject.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—"Attorney General Elkin, Senator Flinn of Pennsylvania and myself have been in consultation for several hours today with P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, who is a director in the United States steel corporation and who is associated with Mr. Morgan in many business enterprices.

"Mr. Widener is very anxious to see the strike settled and has taken the matter up with Mr. Morgan. We are doing all we can."

The foregoing statement was made last evening by Governor W. A. Stone as he was leaving the offices of the United States Steel corporation, where the consultation he mentions took place.

Governor Stone's manner plainly indicated that he expected, with the help of J. Pierpont Morgan, the great coal strike will be speedily ended.

"What progress was made at the conference?" he was asked.

"I can say nothing more," was his response.

"Have you been in direct communication with Mr. Morgan?"

"I have nothing further to say."

Morgan Will Not Interfere.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—J. Pierpont Morgan has refused to interfere in the coal strike. In the statement given out for him by Mr. Perkins, his partner, Mr. Morgan said: "We have not heard from Governor Stone since the conference. We have no official statement of what was done at the conference. We cannot discuss Governor Stone's statement or the coal strike."

Strike Not Ended.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 10.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America has denied in the most emphatic terms that the coal miners' strike had been declared off. "You can quote me in the strongest terms," he said, "that the strike is still on. I have received no proposition from the other side, and I have made none to the operators. All I know of any negotiations to end the strike I have read in the newspapers. The strike is still on and will remain so until declared off by the mine workers in convention. It is up to the operators."

A day of quiet followed the day of rioting and bloodshed in the Wyoming region. No disturbance of any kind was reported. Sheriff Jacobs upon his return from Harrisburg said he went to the state capital to seek information. He did not see Governor Stone, but had a long talk with Adjutant General Stewart. The situation in the Wyoming region was gone over, and the adjutant general assured the sheriff if he found it necessary to call for troops any time his request would be immediately considered. The sheriff says he did not ask that the soldiers be sent here and hopes that he will not be obliged to make such a request.

Work has again been resumed at the Maltby colliery, and the Wanamie mine is said to have had a larger output of coal than any day since it resumed.

No Peace, Says Rose.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 10.—General Superintendent Rose of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company's mine department said that he had no knowledge of any negotiations which could possibly lead to a settlement of the strike this week, next week or any other definitely determined time. He said the Delaware and Hudson company stands in exactly the same position it did in the beginning of the strike and had no intention of offering any concessions. This statement by Superintendent Rose is in harmony with similar statements made by Superintendent May of the Erie and Superintendent Phillips of the Lackawanna recently.

Lehigh Miners Busy.

TAMAQUA, Pa., Sept. 10.—Although no soldiers were sent out to patrol the Panther Creek valley, the usual number of men went to work, and the No. 4 and No. 12 collieries of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company are running as usual.

Postoffice Receipts Increase.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A net increase of 9 per cent occurred in the receipts at the fifty largest postoffices in the United States last month as compared with August, 1901. The total receipts at these fifty offices aggregated $4,321,444, a net increase of $357,810. The largest increases were 26.6 per cent, at Des Moines, Ia., and 26.2 per cent, at Toledo, O. New York's receipts increased almost 12 per cent.

Postoffice Robbed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The postoffice department has received dispatches announcing that the postoffices at Fisher, Ill., and Freetown, Ind., have been robbed. All the stamps and money orders in the Fisher office were stolen. At Freetown the safe was blown open, and all the stamps, some cash and probably two packages were stolen.

Policeman's Fight With Thugs.

QUINCY, Mass., Sept. 10.—While giving protection to two men who were threatened with assault by John Bjornson and August Peterson Patrolman [illegible] fired here by [illegible] shot. The officer fired on his assailants, shooting Bjornson through one lung.

THE BOODLE COMBINE

More Indictments For Missouri Legislators.

FURTHER STARTLING DEVELOPMENTS

Seven of the Nineteen Members Wanted Are Still at Large, but the Officers Are Hot on Their Trail.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Seven of the nineteen members of the alleged boodle combine of the house of delegates are still at large, and the police and deputy sheriffs are using their best efforts to find them. Developments in the famous case have come with startling rapidity.

The most important feature of the day's developments was the finding of new indictments against eighteen members of the combine.

J. K. Murrell testified as to the city lighting scandal of 1900, in which each member of the combine is said to have received $2,500 in payment for his services in securing the passage of the bill.

Bonds were fixed at $15,000 for each indictment, making a total of $45,000 necessary to be secured for the release of each of the accused. Early in the day former Delegates J. H. Schnettler, John Helms, Otto Schumacher and Charles Gutke and Delegate J. J. Hannigan, who spent Monday night at their respective homes in the custody of deputy sheriffs, were locked up in jail because of their failure to secure bonds. Charles Gutke was released later under bonds of $30,000 on the first two indictments just returned and is still in custody, having failed to secure additional surety.

Ex-Delegate Bersch was taken into custody during the morning, but was soon liberated, Ed Butler, a wealthy local politician, signing his bond to the amount of $45,000. Butler also went surety in like sum for Delegate C. J. Denny and former Delegate T. E. Albright. He also wanted to secu Gutke's release by filing an addition bond of $15,000, but Judge Douglas refused to permit him to sign any more.

The police and sheriff's deputies are still looking for Delegate Charles J. Kelly, former Delegates Emile Hartmann, Louis Decker, John A. Sherridan, Julius Lehmann and Harry A. Faulkner. The last named was released on bond Monday, and the authorities want him on the new indictment found. Faulkner already has been convicted on the charge of perjury in connection with the Suburban case and found guilty.

Ex-Speaker of the House of Delegates William M. Tamblyn, who has been in Cleveland since Circuit Attorney Folk began his crusade, will return to St. Louis, having been arrested there. Former Delegates Adolph Madera is in Colorado, where the authorities are searching for him at the request of St. Louis officials.

E-Speaker John K. Murrell, Delegate Ed E. Murrell and former Delegate George F. Robertson have turned state's evidence and are where Circuit Attorney Folk can find them when wanted.

Henry W. Grady Missing.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Henry W. Grady, Jr., has disappeared, and his friends and relatives are much concerned over his fate. Mr. Grady is the only son of the late Henry W. Grady, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, who at the time of his death was probably the most popular man in the south. Young Mr. Grady was seen last at Norfolk, Va., on Friday of last week, when he left the hotel where he was stopping with his wife and child in order to secure transportation for the return trip to Atlanta, his home. Since that time no trace of him has been found by any member of his family. Mrs. Grady, prostrated by grief, has returned to Atlanta. Eugene R. Black a prominent attorney of this city and brother-in-law of Mr. Grady, is now in New York in quest of him, having abandoned all hope of finding him in Norfolk.

Married Himself.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 10.—Friends of Major Henry Bundy of 100 Academy street and Mrs. Mary Beeker of 144 Pavonia avenue were surprised to learn that they had been married last Saturday evening. That the marriage was a fact became known when Major Bundy filed a certificate with Clerk Rooney of the board of health in Jersey City. The certificate was signed by the major, who had officiated at his own wedding and performed the ceremony. Major Bundy is seventy-two years old, and his bride is fifty.

Actions Under Crimes Act.

DUBLIN, Sept. 10.—The first prosecutions here under the crimes act has begun. T. McCarthy, editor; Mr. O'Dwyer, manager, and Mr. Holland, publisher, respectively of the Irish People, William O'Brien's newspaper, were summoned for trial on charges of criminal conspiracy and intimidating people not to take unoccupied farms.

Killed Deer Out of Season.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 10.—George W. Huzzey of Lewis county has confessed judgment for the penalty of $100 for violating the game law in having killed two deer out of season in the vicinity of Brantingham lake. Game Protector Harvey A. Gaylord appeared for the prosecution.

California's Natal Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The fifty-second anniversary of the admission of California into the Union was a legal holiday, and the Native Sons of the Golden West celebrated at Santa Rosa, where the festivities attracted visitors from all parts of the state.

" February, 1902,	445,495,483 "

In case of a tie in estimates, the amount offered will be divided equally among those entitled to it. Distribution of the awards will be made as soon after January 1st, 1903 as the figures are obtainable from the Internal Revenue Department of the United States for December.

Write your full name and Post Office Address plainly on packages containing bands. The Postage, or Express charges on your package must be fully prepaid, in order for your estimate to participate.

All estimates under this offer must be forwarded before December 1st, 1902, to the FLORODORA TAG COMPANY, Jersey City, N. J.

You do not lose the value of your bands. Receipts will be sent you for your bands, and these receipts will be just as good as the bands themselves in securing Presents. One band from "Florodora," or two bands from any of the other Cigars mentioned above, will count in securing Presents the same as one tag from "Star," "Horse Shoe," "Spear Head," "Standard Navy," "Old Peach and Honey," "J. T." "Master Workman," "Piper Heidsieck," "Jolly Tar," "Boot Jack," "Old Honesty," "Razor," or "Planet" Tobacco; or one "Sweet Caporal" Cigarette Box Front.

Send each estimate on a separate piece of paper, with your name and address plainly written on each. Blank forms for estimates will be mailed upon application.

Illustrated Catalogue of Presents for 1903 and 1904 will be ready for distribution about October 1st, 1902, and will be mailed on receipt of ten cents, or ten tobacco tags, or twenty cigar bands.

LOAN BILL PASSED.

Cuban House Almost Unanimous For the Measure.

HAVANA, Sept. 10.—The loan bill has passed the house of representatives by 48 votes to 2. President Palma is authorized to make a loan in the name of the nation for the amount of $35,000,000, the minimum price of issue to be 90 and the maximum rate of interest to be 5 per cent. According to the bill, the loan is payable in forty years, payments to begin ten years after the date of issue. Four million dollars of the loan is to be devoted to the encouragement of agriculture and the cattle industry, and the sum of $31,000,000 is for the fulfillment of obligations contracted during the revolution and the payment of the Cuban army.

The army is to be paid in accordance with the decisions of the governing council of the revolution set forth in the decrees of Oct. 24, 1895, and Sept. 14, 1896, and after the army lists have been rectified and classified by congress. The executive is authorized to issue the loan in whatever series he may deem fit. He is also authorized to guarantee the operation with the customs receipts of the nation. In order to provide for the appearance in the regular budget of funds for the payment of interest and to maintain a sinking fund a consumption tax on alcoholic drinks is specifically imposed, besides 10 per cent of the total receipts from customs.

The bill provides for a tax of 2 cents a liter on alcohol, 30 cents a liter on brandy, 40 cents a liter on whisky, 30 cents a liter on wine and 10 cents a liter on beer.

The bill will go to the senate conference committee.

Ex-Mayor Latorre spoke against pledging 10 per cent of the customs receipts for interest and sinking fund. He said that this would give an opportunity to those holding the bonds to intervene and seize the custom house and for a possible entanglement with the United States under the Platt amendment.

Jumped Through Window.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Hugh Robertson, a broker, thirty-five years old, leaped through the closed window of his apartment last night and alighted on the sidewalk. His skull was fractured. At the hospital, where he was taken, it was said that if a difficult and dangerous operation is performed his life may be saved. Mr. Robertson had recently returned from abroad. While in London he was a patient in Charing Cross hospital suffering from a cerebral affection. There he was advised to return home and receive treatment. Robertson's friends had planned to send him to a sanitarium today, and one of them, who was with the broker only twenty minutes before his leap, said Robertson seemed rational.

Miles Starts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Lieutenant General Miles will leave this city tomorrow for the Philippines, but will stop at Chicago and possibly at other points on the way to Portland, Ore., from which city he will proceed leisurely down the coast of California in order to inspect the recent extensive improvements in the coast defense system on the Pacific. His movements will be timed so as to enable him to take passage for Manila on the transport Thomas, scheduled to leave San Francisco about the 30th inst. Mrs. Miles, Colonel M. P. Maus, aid-de-camp, and Mrs. Maus and a stenographer and a messenger from the army headquarters will accompany him.

A Lost Island.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—A dispatch from Paris to Daziel's News agency says the admiral commanding the French naval division in the Atlantic has sent word of the sudden disappearance of the island of Bermeja, in the gulf of Mexico. No reefs have been discovered on the spot formerly occupied by the island, but navigators are recommended to use extreme caution while sailing in that vicinity. The admiral says the volcanoes of Mexico, Yucatan and Guatemala are very active.

Bridge Builders Strike.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 10.—A strike of bridge builders employed on structural work in various cities in Connecticut has been inaugurated as a result of the meeting of the Bridge and Iron Structural Workers' union, at which it was decided to call the men out. The men ask for an increase in the wage scale and a nine hour day. They are now paid from 30 to 35 cents an hour and demand 40 cents.

AGUA DULCE TAKEN.

Revolutionary Warships Enter the Bay of Panama.

SIEGE HAD LASTED OVER A MONTH.

General Berti and Three Thousand Men Well Treated by Insurgents After Capture—Situation at Colon and Panama Serious.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Mr. Ehrman, vice consul general at Panama, advises the state department by cable that Agua Dulce has been surrendered by the government forces. Four revolutionary war vessels are now in the bay of Panama, and the revolutionists are reported to be moving toward the railroad.

Mr. Ehrman considers the situation at Colon and at Panama serious.

The officials of the Colombian legation profess not to be seriously disturbed over the surrender of the government forces at Agua Dulce. The number of government soldiers there is estimated to have been somewhat less than 3,000 men, and, while their loss is admittedly a setback, Colombia's representatives declare the effect will be to stimulate the government to greater activity to crush out the rebellion. The general understanding here has been that the government had about 7,000 men under arms on the isthmus. While this may be an overestimate, legation officials say there are sufficient men left to offer strong resistance to any efforts the revolutionists may make to take the Panama railroad or the cities of Colon and Panama. The revolutionists are thought to be in the vicinity of these places.

Since the capture by the insurgents of the gunboat Boyaca the government is without naval representation on the Pacific coast, though the Bogota, recently purchased in the United States, is now on her way down from Seattle. This vessel, the officials say, will be more than a match for the whole rebel fleet. No advices regarding the surrender of the government forces at Agua Dulce have reached the legation.

SURRENDER CONFIRMED.

Particulars of General Berti's Brave Defense of Agua Dulce.

PANAMA, Colombia, Sept. 10.—The surrender to the Colombian insurgents of the government general Morales Berti and the troops of his command at Agua Dulce, which has previously been reported and which was generally believed to have taken place, has now been confirmed. This news reached Panama through some former Conservative prisoners of the insurgents who were liberated at San Carlos as a result of the landing there of an expedition from the government fleet of gunboats.

General Berti, who had been besieged at Agua Dulce by the insurgents since July 28, only surrendered when his cause was hopeless. In the act of surrender the insurgent general Benjamin Herrera declares he recognizes the abnegation of General Berti and his men, whom he succeeded in dominating because of the superiority of his forces and the quantity of munitions of war of all kinds at his disposition. He promises to hold inviolate the lives and honor of his prisoners, and he allows General Berti to retain his sword as a mark of honor in recognition of his heroic defense of Agua Dulce.

The surrendered generals and officers have been paroled at Penonome and Santiago de Veraguas. The act of surrender also sets forth that in consideration of General Herrera's respect for the bravery of the men who withstood his siege they will not be compelled personally to surrender their arms.

The insurgent general deplores the fact that he is unable to accord more generous terms to General Berti and his men, who well merit better treatment. He says the necessities of war compel him to keep them as prisoners, but that he may exchange them for some of the thousands of Liberal prisoners now in possession of the government.

In the last article of the act of surrender General Berti makes it known that he only capitulated to the enemy when compelled to do so by absolute lack of food of any kind for his men and the conviction that the government could not send him timely help.

General Morales Berti was one of the most popular of the government leaders, and he has the sympathy of everybody in his present reverse. It is recognized by all that he could not have done otherwise than he did.

It is believed in government circles that the surrender of General Berti at Agua Dulce simplifies the situation for General Salazar, governor of Panama, who can now devote the forces of his command to the defense of Panama and Colon.

Physician Kills Himself.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Dr. M. T. Pultz, a practicing physician, fifty-eight years of age, vice president of the Dutchess Medical society, a member of the New York State Medical association and the American Medical society, committed suicide at his home in Stanfordville by shooting. He was found by his mother, a widow, eighty-two years of age.

IMPROVEMENT NEEDED.

It was not so long ago that The Daily Press called attention to the decidedly unsightly condition of affairs in the neighborhood of the new bridge which spans Green brook and connects Madison avenue and Doer street. At that time, some action was taken by the authorities and private property owners in the neighborhood and the conditions very much bettered. Today, however, the view from the bridge is anything but edifying and needs immediate attention.

Since the Babcock building fire, a varied assortment of rubbish has gathered in the brook. It is not to be expected that, after such a fire, the grounds immediately surrounding the building should be clean and well kept. A portion of the wreck has been removed from the building itself and heaped up there. This is no excuse, however, for the collection of debris now distributed with a generous hand over the bed of the brook.

In addition to these unsightly decorations, the weeds have been allowed to grow along the borough side of the thoroughfare leading up to the bridge, making it unpleasant for women who pass that way at night and happen to be attired in light gowns. Furthermore, such neglect so near to the heart of the city speaks anything but well for the enterprise of the community. The weeds, which bordered the western side of Madison avenue, have just been cut down, thereby making a great improvement. A similar fate should be allotted to those on the borough side.

Attention was called in these columns yesterday to the fact that the eastern side of Madison avenue is still blocked although all danger from falling walls is past. Pedestrians are forced to cross the street where there is no cross walk or take the middle of the roadway.

The Daily Press received a communication, sometime ago, regarding this recent trial of a fireman before the Common Council, criticizing such a course as being injurious to discipline in the department. The writer believed that such cases should be left to the chief of the department and the fire committee to be investigated in secret as are such affairs in the police department. For the benefit of that correspondent and others, it is well to explain that the State law is responsible for such a course and that the city cannot do otherwise while the present law remains in force. There is no doubt, however, that in the vast majority of cases the good of the service would be the gainer by quiet investigations and no public trials. No employer is forced to bring out publicly the details of any minor quarrel or disturbance among his employes. The foreman or superintendent looks into the facts and settles the case for the best interests of the establishment and so as to preserve discipline if possible.

Within a few weeks work will start on the new bridge across the Raritan river to connect the Amboys. It will require nearly a year to complete it. There can be no doubt in the minds of reasonable men that such a bridge should have been built years ago. It will mean much for the two Amboys and will undoubtedly bring prosperity to both. New Brunswick may suffer somewhat but the advantage to the entire county will be very much for its betterment.

The public schools of city and borough have opened for the fall and the children are fast falling into the usual routine which will soon go forward without a break until Thanksgiving Day. Both municipalities are fortunate in having schools considerably above the standard and to which children may be sent with a full realization that they will receive as good education as is given in any part of the State.

Union county has another candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff. An Elizabethan by the name of Coyne has publicly announced that he is a candidate for the place.

The first casualty to mark the erection of a new court house at Elizabeth came Monday when a heavy plank fell on the head of a mason and fractured his skull.

OPENS SEPT. 2.

DAY AND NIGHT.

May Attend in Body.

It was decided at a meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., last evening, that at the next meeting of the post an opportunity would be given all the members to decide whether they will go to the National Encampment at Washington in a body. It was believed that the post would not go in a body, but during the past few days there has been a change in sentiment. At the next meeting a vote will be taken to decide the question.

Quarantine Removed.

Inspector Addis released from quarantine today the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kelley, of South Second street. Their little daughter, Ruth, has recently recovered from an attack of scarlet fever.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The much talked of automobile case of the township against Herman Unger, one of Newark's well known business men, was again adjourned by request of the defendant's counsel, W. A. Coddington, until Tuesday, September 16, at the same hour. Mr. Unger was arrested by Township Committeeman Theo. Bruchman on Labor Day afternoon, for speeding his auto at an eighteen-mile an hour gait. At the time Mr. Unger asked for an adjournment until he could procure counsel. This was granted, W. R. Stansberry going his bond for his appearance on Tuesday afternoon of last week. When the case was called and counsel asked for adjournment, and the case was again set down for yesterday afternoon. But counsel was not yet ready and a still further adjournment was granted by the court.

HOW A CHRISTIAN CAN DIE.

Wm. Hewson Writes Concerning Last Hours of John Gray.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The following is presented with the presumtion that it may be helpful to somebody in their religious experience, because it presents before us the example of one who had honestly believed in God's Word, accepted His promises and invitations, and became a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ and His blessed work upon the accursed tree for us.

John Gray, a citizen of Plainfield, a sinner saved by the grace of God and but three weeks born into the kingdom of his Lord, died Saturday morning, September 6, at 5:30 o'clock, aged forty-one years. He was fully conscious to the last, without pain or suffering; and speaking words of sympathy and of love to his family. Saying also before all present in the room: "Jesus loves me;" "Jesus lover of my soul I give myself to Thee;" "I am wholly Thine;" and turning specially to his wife, whom he loved dearly, exclaimed rejoicingly, "Oh I am so happy, Jesus loves me." Jesus and His love was the burden of the conversation of his last moments.

Truly may we say from the character of his words, that his dear soul is "Asleep in Jesus." I would that my dying hour might be like his.

Wm. Hewson.

STRIKE AT DUNELLEN.

Helpers at Roundhouse Struck and Their Places Filled at Once.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, September 10—Dunellen has at last felt the strife which goes on between labor and capital and is now experiencing its first labor strike. So far it has been confined to the roundhouse of the New Jersey Central, the helpers in which declared they had a grievance and laid down their tools, yesterday. The places of the men were immediately filled by workmen from Jersey City and the brief cessation of industry was hardly perceptible to the system. It is hardly likely that the remainder of the road force will go out in sympathy.

SPECIAL TROLLEY CAR FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Westfield's Plan to Care for Children Who Formerly Attended Garwood School.

RESULT OF A DISPUTE.

GARWOOD SCHOOL NOW CONDUCTED BY CRANFORD AUTHORITIES.

Garwood is on Dividing Line Between Westfield and Cranford Townships—Couldn't Agree on Joint Support of School.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Sept. 10—The Westfield Board of Education has decided to purchase 500 or more trolley tickets and secure a special car of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company to convey the children of Garwood parents to and from the main schools in the township. At a recent meeting of the board, Trustee H. L. Fink was authorized to procure the tickets and make arrangements for the car.

Several years ago a schoool was established in Garwood, and has from the start been maintained under the direction of the Cranford Board of Education, Westfield paying its pro rata for the tuition of its pupils. The Westfield trustees objected to the last bill rendered by Cranford. One item of the bill amounted to $20 for the expenses of Cranford's supervising principal for visits to the school. This the Westfield trustees agreed to pay, but refused to pay another item for a proportion of the salary for services of Cranford's supervising principal. Westfield rejected the bill as not being in accordance with the terms of its contract with the Cranford board, and ordered the district clerk to inform Cranford that the bill would be paid when this item was omitted. The Cranford trustees have referred the bill to County Superintendent Shearer for his opinion.

The controversy over the bill between the trustees in both towns has not been a very pleasant one. Cranford has given Westfield to understand that it wanted all the room at the Garwood schoolhouse for the use of its own pupils. The Westfield Board of Education decided not to enter into another contract with Cranford, but to arrange for the transportation of pupils from the Garwood section to the main schools.

The manufacturing section of Garwood is located in both townships, the principal business street being the dividing line. It is the manufacturing section of both towns and is steadily growing. There were twenty-four pupils in Westfield who crossed the street into Cranford to attend the Garwood school last year, and, according to the resolution passed by the Westfield trustees, all children must ride a considerable distance to get to the main schools.

The citizens of Garwood, having enjoyed the privilege of sending their children to a nearby school, held a meeting to discuss the situation and appointed a committee to confer with the Westfield trustees and ask that they reconsider the proposition of bringing small children to Westfield. Several citizens attended the meeting who stated that the residents desired to keep their children in school at Garwood, and asked the board to secure quarters there if arrangements could not be made with Cranford. The trustees explained to the citizens of Garwood the condition of affairs and assured them that the small children would be well cared for going to and from school, and that they would do much better work in the main schools of the town, which are graded. The board assured the visitors that after their children had attended the graded schools of the town they would not go back to the plan of sending them to a small outlying school.

According to the action of the Westfield board it will not hereafter aid in the maintenance of the Garwood school, which Cranford will have to run on its own responsibility.

Miss March to Speak.

Miss Emily C. March, who is well and favorably known in Plainfield, has been secured to address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. George E. Garrettson, of New York, handbell soloist, will render pleasing musical selections. All men are invited.

COMING TO FRONT.

Norwood Athletic Association Reorganized and is Planning for Football and Other Things.

The Norwood Athletic Association has been reorganized on a basis which seems to assure the future success of the club. Preparations have already been made for the formation of a football team, which, from present indications, will be among the strongest juvenile teams in the State. Besides a football eleven, the association expects to put a fine hockey team on the ice this winter and it is almost certain that the association will be represented next year by both baseball and tennis teams. A special committee is scouring the city in search for suitable club rooms. It is the object of the members to have a club house of no mean proportions.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: W. H. Sebring, Jr., president; C. K. Mason, vice president; H. Messersmith, treasurer; H. L. Nelson, secretary; R. Cohen, clerk.

The following committees have been appointed: Membership committee, H. Egan, chairman; W. H. Sebring, Jr., C. K. Mason, H. Messersmith, H. L. Mason, R. Cohen, N. Hockridge, G. Adams, L. Wilson. Finance committee: W. H. Sebring, Jr., chairman; C. K. Mason, H. Messersmith. Temporary football committee: H. Messersmith, chairman and business manager; C. K. Mason, captain of team; E. Overton, field manager; H. Egan, P. Emmons.

FIRE CHIEFS THERE.

International Association of Fire Chiefs to Meet in New York Soon.

The convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, which is to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, September 16 to 19, will be attended by Chief Doane and Auguste Saltzman, of this city, both of whom are members. A most elaborate programme has been prepared for the occasion, including business sessions, exhibits, displays of fire companies, band concerts, boat excursions, theatre parties and fire drills. The wives of the delegates will also be given automobile rides about the city, 100 of the machines having been engaged for the occasion. Among the exhibits in the Palace will be the new Plainfield combination chemical and hose wagon, intended for the West End house.

ASHEVILLE'S WARM GREETING.

President Roosevelt Addresses Large Audience in Courthouse Square.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 10.—Asheville extended a warm greeting to President Roosevelt. Fully 10,000 people occupied the courthouse square, where the president addressed them from an improvised stand.

The president spoke of the pleasure it gave him to speak before the monument of the late Senator Vance, which is near the stand. He was glad, he said, to meet people whose forefathers had fought under Marion, glad to be greeted by men who served in the Confederate army. He told of his visit Sunday to the battlefield of Chickamauga and repeated the declaration that the man would be but a poor American who did not come from the scenes commemorating the valiant deeds of those armies a better American.

The presidential train left Asheville in the afternoon for Washington. The largest crowd encountered on the run from Asheville was at Hickory. The president was introduced by Senator Pritchard, who accompanied him from Asheville, and the short speech he made to the people was enthusiastically received. He said:

"Traveling today through North Carolina and yesterday through Tennessee, I have been struck by the evidences of industrial growth, of which this town is itself an example. The industrial awakening of the south, of which there have been so many evidences during the past few years, is a feature fraught with great benefit to the south and to the entire country, because, remember, my fellow citizens, we are going to go up or down together."

The president was heartily cheered as the train pulled away. At Statesville, where several hundred people had assembled, the president was introduced by Congressman Blackburn, who also accompanied him from Asheville. He addressed the crowd for a few moments, and then a picture was taken of the president and his party grouped on the rear platform of his car.

At Greensboro President Roosevelt was accorded a very enthusiastic reception. Fully 6,000 people were at the station when the train arrived, and they cheered the president when he appeared on the platform of his car and also at the conclusion of his brief address.

Boy Confesses to Train Wrecking.

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 10.—The mystery surrounding the wrecking of a Norfolk and Western passenger train on the Shenandoah Valley division forty miles north of Roanoke last Sunday has been cleared up. Johnnie Barger, an eleven-year-old boy who lives near the scene of the wreck, confessed that he placed a spike in the joint between the rails and hammered it half way down with a rock for the purpose of seeing it flattened by the train and that he did not think it would throw the train from the tracks. Barger is too young to be prosecuted for train wrecking. Fireman Anderson, who was injured in the wreck, may recover, but Engineer Swain will die from his injuries.

A Maine Shooting.

WILTON, Me., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Josie Holbrook, wife of Herbert E. Holbrook, was shot either by her own hand or that of her husband while in her chamber at the home of her husband's parents and after lingering in an unconscious state died last night from the effects of the wound. Holbrook was arrested, but vehemently declared that his wife killed herself after firing two shots at him. An investigation failed to show any trace of bullet marks in the room, and this, with the cry of the elder Holbrook, "Herb has shot Josie," as he rushed out of the house, seemed sufficient evidence to the authorities to cause Holbrook's arrest.

Booths Out of the Army.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A former officer of the Salvation Army, who does not wish to be mentioned in the matter, said that Herbert Booth, who recently left the army, is now in America, having arrived a few weeks ago, and that it is highly probable that General Booth will arrive in this country within a few weeks to make an effort to bring about a reconciliation between himself and his children, six of whom are now out of the Salvation Army. General Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, at his home in Montclair, N. J., refused to discuss the matter in any form.

To Leave Northern Martinique.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—A cablegram has been received from M. Lemaire, governor of the island of Martinique, saying that measures have been taken to insure the evacuation of the northern part of the island. Gendarme posts have been established outside the zone of danger, the dispatch continues, and the cremation of the dead at Morne Rouge and Ajoupa Bouillon is progressing.

Judge Durand Will Run.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 10.—Despite the paralytic stroke which he suffered a week ago and from which he is now slowly recovering, Judge George H. Durand of Flint will remain the Democratic candidate for governor and will head his party's ticket in the fall campaign. This decision was arrived at at a special meeting of the Democratic state central committee here.

Close Call For Fifty Men.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 10.—Fifty laborers, deceived by the apparent quietude of the Soufriere volcano, were working within the fire zone when an outpour of gas drove them to shelter at the base of the mountain, where they passed a frightful night, forked lightning darting in all directions around them. Marvelous to relate, they were unhurt.

AGAINST THE MOROS.

General Sumner's Command Nearly Ready.

MANILA, Sept. 10.—The column of troops which Brigadier General Samuel S. Sumner, commanding the department of Mindanao, is to lead against the Macin Moros will probably leave Camp Vicars at the end of this week.

The column will consist of portions of the Eleventh and Twenty-seventh infantry, two troops of the Fifteenth cavalry and a mountain battery, about 1,100 men in all.

Serious opposition is not expected by the military authorities. It is believed the plan is to segregate the Moros and friendlies and keep the latter neutral.

It is expected that the Macin movement will be followed by an expedition against the sultan of Bacolod, Negros island, if he continues hostile.

The Federal party gave a banquet to Governor Taft, during which the native speakers complimented the governor, expressed faith in and affection for him and promised to support his administration.

ADMIRAL KILLICK DEAD?

Such a Rumor Reaches the Public Ear.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 10.—Rumors have been in circulation here that Admiral Killick, a doctor and two sailors were killed on board the Crete-a-Pierrot when she was sunk by the German gunboat Panther, but the news lacks confirmation.

The Haitian steamer Mancel has left here for Cape Haitien loaded with rifles, cannon and ammunition sent by the provisional government to General Alexis Nord, the Haitian minister of war, who has been active in the field.

A number of partisans of the revolutionary leader, General Firmin, have been imprisoned.

Preparations are being made to send troops against St. Marc and Gonaives. Gonaives is the seat of the Firminist government.

The Porte Will Settle.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Minister Leishman, at Constantinople, has informed the state department that he will depart from his post at once on leave of absence, placing Mr. Spencer Eddy, secretary of the legation, in charge of American interests. It is understood that Mr. Leishman has secured satisfactory assurances from the porte that there should be no further delay in the adjustment of the various questions which have been the subject of negotiation between the American minister and the Turkish government for many months past. This does not include the Stone case, for it is stated that in the absence of knowledge of the exact facts connected with this famous kidnaping case the state department has not submitted any formal claim for reimbursement of the ransom, being unable yet to determine with which country the responsibility lies, Turkey or Bulgaria, and so saving its rights by a mere notice that the matter would be taken up later.

Anarchist Sentenced.

NAPLES, Sept. 10.—Vincenzo Guerriero, the alleged anarchist who last May threw two stones through the windows of the train which was bearing King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena to Palermo, has been sentenced to be imprisoned for six years and eight months and to pay a fine of $160.

Grand Circuit Races Postponed.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Rain and a heavy windstorm caused a postponement of the grand circuit races here yesterday after a heat had been pulled off in each of two races before a crowd of 8,000 people.

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

SEASONABLE SALADS.

Toothsome Mixtures Which Are Also Quite Inexpensive.

Salads are among the most appreciated of dishes at this season, and they can be prepared in such variety that every taste may be suited. One of the popular ways is to select large fine leaves of curly lettuce and place on them several spoonfuls of peas, chopped beans and carrots cut into fancy shapes. The salad is then chilled, and the dressing consists of vinegar, pepper, salt, oil, mustard and, if procurable, a tiny dash of table claret.

Cauliflower and Onion Salad.—Slice two Bermuda onions rather finely and soak them in a little salt and vinegar for an hour. Have a cooked cauliflower thoroughly chilled and separated into small sections. Drain the onions and arrange in alternate layers with the cauliflower. Serve with French dressing.

Harlequin Salad.—Cut into small cubes red beets, potatoes, pickled cucumbers and raw tomatoes. Rub the hard boiled yolks of four eggs through a sieve into a bowl and mix in carefully. Add oil and vinegar enough to make the dressing like a cream, season with salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of anchovy paste and add to the prepared vegetables. Toss lightly and turn into the salad bowl. Ornament with sliced eggs, beets cut into fancy shapes, gherkins, stuffed olives and the heart of a lettuce head.

PREPARING THE VEGETABLES.

Fruit salad may be made with any fresh fruit served on lettuce with French dressing. This always should be chilled before serving.

BEATRICE MILLER.

HOW TO TRAVEL.

A Few Timely Hints to Women—Always Dress Simply.

It is when she is traveling that you can tell whether a woman is a lady or not—in fact, never so much as then. To be a good traveler is an art that only few acquire, but it is worth cultivating if only for the sake of the impression a woman makes.

In the first place, let me urge you to dress simply. A dirty train was never intended to be the place for the exhibition of your best hat or even your second best, with its wreath of flowers or feathers. Wear a hat especially designed for the occasion, a rough straw trimmed in a smart manner, with a couple of wings or a chic ribbon bow. To soften the somewhat severe effect as well as to preserve your hat from the dust wear a loosely tied chiffon veil draped around the brim, but be sure to have the ends neatly hemmed. A plain dress covered with a dust cloak or a simple, beautifully fitting, tailor made, with a smart shirt waist, is the proper costume. Your dust coat may be of silk or mohair, just as you please, but it must be plain, without frills.

A SIMPLE DRESS.

Do not carry paper parcels or pasteboard boxes. A plain leather or canvas dress suit case will hold all your belongings, and it can easily be carried to and from the train. In addition to this, a small alligator skin bag is sometimes useful.

Try to arrive at the station in time to purchase your tickets in a leisurely fashion and to attend properly to the checking of your baggage. This can be done if you use a little forethought. Above all, keep your presence of mind.

Before I close I want to make one more remark. It is about the woman who buys everything which is sold in the car and passes her time munching candy, bananas, sandwiches and popcorn. Such a proceeding is both injurious to the health and disgusting to fellow passengers. If a woman cannot think of anything else to do, let her read the magazines.

HELEN CLIFTON.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Shall you want any meals?"

"No, I am so uncertain that I shall get my meals where I am. Just now, though, I might like my dinners here, as I have no engagements at present. Understand me, I can have any number, but I truly need a rest." She looked so.

"Shall you want your washing done?"

"No, I will see to all that. Perhaps a few small things sometimes. I should like a good cup of coffee in the morning at eight o'clock, with a piece of toast or bread and an egg, and then my dinners at—what time do you dine?"

"I will suit you," said I. "There is no one to consult. Aunt Jane Mary never comes down, and—"

A smile lighted up her features.

"I could not have found a place that would suit me better. How much, then?"

"Five dollars a week," said I, slowly, watching her from under my lids.

At her pleased, acquiescent smile I saw that I might as well have asked ten.

"And no extras?" she said.

"Oh, that's only for the room," said I. "The breakfasts and dinners will come to five dollars more."

"Very well," she replied without demurring. "And now, that is really all, not another extra of any kind?—lights, fires, everything included? However, I don't suppose I shall want a light much, and I will arrange with your servant——"

"You had better tell me," said I, "and I will see——"

There was a silence, during which I saw that she was taking in the fact that all the service in the house was done by me, its mistress.

"And about the bolts?" she said. "But no!" seeing me demur at the extra expenditure—"I will pay for those myself. There is no hurry at least until after—— Very well, then, ten dollars a week, all told."

"When do you wish to come?"

"Now," said she, "at once!"

"Your trunks will come later, I suppose?"

"Yes, I have my satchel with me, enough to get along with at present."

"Satchel?" I said, looking about on the veranda floor, for we had emerged from the room.

"Yes, it's out there by the gate, with my wheel. Do you mean to say you didn't see me ride up? There's the wheel, under that old elm tree. Shall I bring the satchel in?"

Without waiting for answer, she ran down the steps, seized upon the satchel and came through the gate, pushing the wheel awkwardly along, the satchel banging against her thin knees. It proved to be a dress-suit case, and was marked "J. A. D."

"It's a man's case," she said, "but I find it holds more than my bag. It's my brother's."

"Your brother's?" I said, tentatively.

"Yes, but you needn't bother about Jamie. He's gone the way of his kind. I shall never see him on this earth again."

"How long was he ill?" I asked, sympathetically.

She turned away and brushed her hand across her eyes with a boyish gesture.

"He wasn't ill at all. He went off in a moment, as it were. They do sometimes. We none of us knew of it until it was too late to do anything. But there! I have talked enough for one day." She yawned politely behind her gloved hand. "How soon can I have the room? I'm dead tired."

"Will you sit on the veranda while I make it up?" said I. "The maid is——"

"Yes," said she, cutting into my explanation and saving me a black mark in the book of the Recording Angel, "but hurry, please, for I am really worn out."

As she seated herself, I saw that her shoes were very muddy—not with wet mud, for the day was bright and sunny, but with mud that had been wet and had dried.

"You are looking at my shoes," she said, laughing as if she enjoyed the situation. "I had to walk some distance from my last engagement. It was the night before last. The man died, and there was nothing more for me to do. The roads were muddy, if you remember, and I had left my wheel at the lodge. They had no idea that he would die so soon, and, in fact, neither had I. Well, his troubles are over. But, do pardon me, and do get the bed ready for me, or I shall go to sleep out here."

She leaned back in my rocker, with her eyes closed, her yellow bang showing. Her hair, which was coarse and curly, poked out beneath her veil.

I went into the room and opened the closet-door. I took down the sweet-smelling sheets and the pillow-cases. I removed the checked cover from the spread and blankets, and then I went to the window, the pillow between my teeth, the pillow-slip between my two hands. "Don't you think——" I began. The rocker was empty; there was no one there. I put my head out of the window to see where my new lodger had betaken herself to. There lay the dress-suit case, and there stood the wheel; then she had not vanished just as I had become easy about those baseball bills. As I looked, she came round the corner of the house. She yawned again as she saw me, and said, "I am trying to keep awake until you get that everlasting room ready. I have been taking a survey of the premises. You seem to be pretty lonely out here."

"Oh, no!" I said. "This is the high-road. Lawyer Jennison's house is only half a mile farther on, and Farmer Barker, you know, is just a little way back, not more than a mile or so."

"Getting crowded!" said my new boarder, with a laugh. "And whose is that large house that I see way off there on the hill? I suppose those great iron gates that I passed are the entrance? It seems a fine place."

"Oh, that's the Darlington place. Don't you know about the Darlingtons?"

She turned and clutched the piazza rail. "I am so tired," she said; and really, I saw that she had grown pale under her coat of tan. "I will hurry," I said. "So you haven't heard about the Darlingtons?" Country people think that strangers must know all about their magnates.

"The Darlingtons? How should I know about the Darlingtons? What should I know about the Darlingtons? I know nothing about anyone here; I come from another county. All I know is"—she burst out laughing and yawned again—"all I know is that I must get to bed, or I shall sink down on the piazza floor."

She flung herself into the rocker, and I retreated from the window to hasten the making of the bed. When it was ready I called to her softly from the open door, but she had really fallen asleep, and so I left her until I got fresh water and towels. Then I closed the window softly and went to her side. I rested my hand lightly on her shoulder. "Your room is ready," I said. She did not awake at once, and I gave her a gentle shake. She sprang to her feet and stood blinking at me, holding on to the chair for support.

"Jim!" she said. "Jim, is it you?"

Age Lines on Fish Scales.

To tell the age of a tree by counting the annual rings of growth in its wood is a familiar experience, but many will be surprised to learn that a similar index of age is found on the scales of some fish. An exhibit in proof of this was recently made by the Marine Biological association in London. The lines on the scales are more widely separated in that part formed during the warm season of the year, and the alternation of wide and narrow bands gives a series resembling the "annual rings" of a tree.—Science.

The Silent Burglar.

Towne—My wife used to get nervous every time she heard a noise downstairs, but I assured her that it couldn't be burglars, because they're always careful not to make any noise.

Browne—So that calmed her, eh?

"Not much. Now she gets nervous every time she doesn't hear any noise."—Philadelphia Press.

Electricity in the Fields.

An effort is being made in Sweden to use electricity in agriculture. A seed field is covered by a network of wire and a strong electric current is turned on during nights and chilly days, but cut off during sunny and warm weather. The system was invented by Prof. Lemstrom, of Helsingfors, Finland.—N. Y. Sun.

Meat in the Philippines.

In the Philippines beef is 60 cents a pound, mutton 45, pork 60, veal 60, halibut 60, blue cod 56, salmon 60, pigeons $2 apiece, beef tongues $2.50, geese $3.50 apiece, wild ducks $1.75, and tame ducks $2.25 apiece. The meats are all Australian frozen. Butter is $1 a pound and milk $4.50 a gallon.—Indianapolis News.

HE WAS LOCKED OUT

Funny Predicament of a Prominent Washington Citizen.

Everybody Laughed at His Discomfiture, But It Took a Long Time Before He Could See the Fun of It.

Snap! The front door blew shut and a prominent N street citizen was locked out. It was three o'clock in the afternoon and there was no one else at home. This, says the Washington Star, wouldn't have mattered much but for the fact that it had been a warm afternoon. The prominent citizen had removed his clothing and slipped on pajamas; he had come downstairs to look at the thermometer and find out just how hot it really was—and there he was in his own vestibule with nothing on but pajamas, with the inside door locked behind him and the public highway filled with pedestrians and equipages in front of him.

He quickly closed the outside door and leaned against the wall to think it over. Three o'clock! No one could possibly get home before five! Two hours of suspense! And then he discovered it was exceedingly warm in the vestibule; warmer, in fact, than the hot room upstairs, which he had thought stifling, and to learn the approximate temperature of which he had gotten himself into this predicament.

"I am a man of sound mind and body," he said to himself, "and have spent my life coping with emergencies. There is no use worrying over a little accident like this. I will solve the difficulty. Not only that, but I will deliver myself from this dilemma unaided. It would never do to let Maria know. I would never hear the last of it. I must compose myself and think. I must reason out some way of getting back into the house or safely around to the back door."

But Mr. Prominent Citizen found it hard to concentrate his mind in a temperature of 95. He was soon mopping his brow with the sleeve of his pajamas and swearing and kicking at the door. He also scraped the skin off his toes and bruised and scratched his hands trying to force the door open against its will and determination to stay shut. He even wished he had not been so particular about burglar-proof locks.

Finally he shouted. A few people whom he could see through the crack in the outer door stopped in front of his house and eyed it critically and wagged their heads, as much as to say:

"There's something crooked going on in there," and then passed on. Vainly the thoroughly enraged man yelled to his neighbors. They, too, must have been lying down, for there was no response.

For two terrible hours he raved and fumed, and then he did a daring thing. Watching his chance when there were no women and but few men on the street, he flung the outer door open, sprang into the porch of his next-door neighbor and jabbed furiously three or four times at the electric push button. Then, before the astonished onlookers could recover their surprise, he darted back into his own vestibule.

Joy! At last! His neighbor's door opened. With a glad cry the prisoner yelled: "Come over here. I need your help." The neighbor came and heard the awful story. He was considerate enough not to laugh, and without comment went to the back of the house, where he broke open a window, and in due time rescued his pajamaed neighbor.

He was sworn to secrecy, but he betrayed his trust, and now a whole neighborhood is laughing at the episode, and the prominent citizen is beginning to see the funny side of it.

Concert at Popular Prices.

Several young people in a Nova Scotia town got up a concert and fair, and one of the organizers, a girl of 12 years, wrote the poster, which read as follows: "There will be a concert and fair in Mrs. Parson's sitting-room today, July 20, at two o'clock sharp. Admission, five cents; children, two cents; babies, two for a cent."

Mixed in His Metaphors.

An orator in London, while verbally lashing rapacious landlords and capitalists, suddenly electrified his audience by exclaiming: "If these men were landed on an uninhabited island, they wouldn't be there half an hour before they would have their hands in the pockets of the naked savages."

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

Manager Monahan's aggregation will give battle to the victorious Scotch Plains team, Saturday. If the men are in any kind of form and play steady there is a chance of their coming away with a scalp.

After playing the two scheduled games with the All-Plainfield team, it is the intention of Manager Heywood of the Y. M. C. A. to secure a third game with Westfield. In the event of failure to do so he will negotiate with Manager Johnson for another try at the Scotch Plains contingent.

The Policemen's baseball team left on the 12:09 train for Newark this afternoon where they will make an effort to whitewash the Fourth Precint team. The coppers were accompanied by a good sized delegation, including three reporters, an artist and two photographers. Bulletins are expected any moment.

Next Wednesday will be the last and "rubber" game of the series between the Police and Firemen. Each has one victory to its credit and both aggregations intend going in for "blood." The proceeds from the game will be donated Muhlenberg Hospital and this fact coupled with the prospect of an exciting contest should insure a large crowd.

From indications all roads will lead to Westfield, Saturday when the Plainfield aggregation journeys down the line. The one topic of conversation among the cranks of Saturday's game and Mount Ararat will have an influx of fans such as has not been seen in many a month. If rooting has any influence in winning games, the Plainfielders will not lack for vociferous yells and it will be a great disappointment to the local cranks if the pick of the city does not do itself credit.

Before hand remarking that it is not meant to kick a man while he's down, Second Baseman Moore was "way off" in more ways than one, Saturday. Not only did he make more errors than in all the rest of his games this season combined, but he struck out twice, something he has never done before. But for all this it may be said that Moore has been playing such good ball all season that the contrast was more noticeable than in those who have been doing the same thing all along.

Almond Clark, the new teacher of science and mathematics in the Borough High School, will undoubtedly be a great addition to the school's baseball team next spring. Mr. Clark pitched for Amherst last year and he made a most enviable record. If he is not allowed to pitch for the borough team his experience will be of incalculable value to the team as a coach. The boys in the schools who are fond of athletics now feel that there will be an increase of interest and enthusiasm in the various forms of amateur athletics and they look to Mr. Clark to stimulate this to some extent.

GOLF.

H. F. Baker, of Bound Brook, who has been prominent in the play for the Golf Committee cup at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, has returned from Asbury Park, where he has been spending the summer, and will resume his play for the trophy at Hillside.

The great success which met the scratch competition for the club championship of the Park Golf Club may end in the arranging of another scratch competition at that club. There were a number of the better players of the club who were unable to be on hand Labor Day and were thus unable to qualify for the championship. Arrangements are now being made to start a similar event for a suitable trophy which will be offered by several of the individual members. If the plans go through, the qualifying round is likely to be played Saturday afternoon.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The Alis' football squad resumed light practice this afternoon. Captain Phillips expects soon to announce the successful candidates for the team.

The Somerset A. C. has decided to put a team on the field this year. The first practice was held Monday night when thirteen candidates turned out. There is plenty of good material and it is likely that they will have a strong team. Practice games will begin shortly. The season opens October 4.

TENNIS.

An exciting tennis match was played on the courts of the Bronx Tennis Club Saturday afternoon. Briggs and Rocap, of the Bronx Club, defeated Richardson and Craig, the crack team of the Dunellen Tennis Club, in three straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

BOROUGH'S REGISTRATION.

There Were 1,415 Voter Registered in Borough Yesterday.

Complete returns from the two districts in North Plainfield places the total registration at 1,415; divided in districts as follows: First, 699; second, 716. Yesterday, the last day of registration, 63 names were added in the first district and 55 were added in the second district. This total is unusually large for a municipal election and is some criterion of the interest being taken on the question.

Will Talk of Painting.

The tri-county committees from Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties will meet this afternoon at the Jefferson avenue bridge to consider the question of painting the structure. This bridge was built a year ago and it is now considered a wise plan to paint it. Somerset county will pay half the expense, while the other two counties will each pay a quarter.

New Bowling Alleys.

Work has been started on some new bowling alleys for Saengerbund Hall. The alleys, which are being provided by the women of the society, will be ten feet longer and one foot wider than the ones formerly in use.

Dance at Dunellen.

Clarence Brokaw and Willard Martin, of this city, are arranging for a dance to be held in Apgar's Hall, Dunellen, probably on Thursday, October 2.

Change in Euchre.

The euchre scheduled for Friday night at Hotel Netherwood will be held tomorrow evening instead.

Elephant Party.

There will be an elephant party in the lecture room of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, tomorrow evening.

—Louis M. Dunavan has been transferred from fire headquarters to No. 3 hose house in the West End.

The Summer Season

is full of dangers particularly for the children, who not knowing the result of eating unripe fruit, indulge themselves with the usual griping pains in the stomach as a consequence; mothers should have on hand at all times a bottle of Painkiller (Perry Davis) which will at once relieve the sufferer; it is a safe, simple remedy and it should be kept in every house. Large bottles 25 and 50 cents.

Cut this out and save it.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Miss A. T. Faber, of Willow avenue, has returned to this city from Brandford, Conn.

Mrs. H. E. Bowen has returned to her home on Watchung avenue from Woodstock, Conn.

Eugene H. Hatch has returned to his home in West Eighth street from Southwest Harbor, Me.

J. W. Yates, of East Seventh street, has returned home from a visit at Lake Minnewaska, N. Y.

A. E. Faber, Jr. and family, and family, of Mercer avenue, have returned from Brandford, Conn.

Mrs. Edward Gilbert has returned to her home in Crescent avenue from an extended stay in Gloucester, Mass.

Mrs. A. J. Leader, of Duer street, went to Brooklyn today to spend a few days with her aged mother, Mrs. McKee.

O. W. Dunham, who has been spending the summer at Mt. Pocono, Pa., has returned to his home in East Fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. VanAlstyne, of Park avenue, have gone to Chatham Centre, N. Y., where they will remain some time.

Miss Helen S. Cressler, of Chambersburg, Pa., who has been visiting Miss Abbie Lewis, of West Eighth street, has returned home.

F. T. Woodhull and family who have been spending the summer at Lake Hopatcong, have returned to their home on West Front street.

T. C. Jennings and family, of Rockview avenue, who have been spending some time at Newport, R. I., have gone to Jefferson Highlands, N. H., for the remainder of the summer.

RETURN TO DUTY.

Alfred H. Wardle Will Temporarily Return to Y. M. C. A. Work.

After spending three busy and enjoyable weeks at his old business as clerk for L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, Alfred H. Wardle leaves today for Concord, N. H., to take up once more Y. M. C. A. work as State secretary for New Hampshire. In June last Mr. Wardle, after completing eight years as general secretary at Poughkeepsie, accepted a call to go to New Hampshire. During the summer he asked to be relieved from this promise in order to re-enter business and selected Plainfield as the city in which he desired to make his future home.

The needs of the Y. M. C. A. work in New Mampshire, however, have been urged upon him so persistently that Mr. Wardle has postponed the permanent return to a business life for a time, and will at once engage himself heartily into association effort in the granite State. During his stay in Plainfield Mr. Wardle has made many friends who will wish him success in his new field.

HEADQUARTERS OPENED.

Annexationists Have Facts and Figures for All.

The Union Association, the official name for the annexationists, has opened headquarters in the Eggerding building on Somerset street. A spirited campaign will be carried on by its members until after the election next Tuesday. There will be an informal discussion of the question at the headquarters tonight. Facts and figures are on file there and the "antis" are invited to drop in and ask questions.

New Quarters for Class.

Owing to the over crowding of the North Plainfield High School, it has been found necessary to engage quarters for Miss Anderson's class in the See property at 114 Somerset street. Under the new arrangement full time will be given to this class, instead of from 1 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon as formerly.

Saengerbund Plans Fair.

At a meeting of the Saengerbund held last evening, a committee was appointed to complete arrangements for a fair to be held in the society's hall from November 10 to 15 inclusive.

To Open Studio.

Miss Mary Adelaide Luckey, teacher of elocution and physical culture, is soon to open a studio in the Randolph-Cooley school. Miss Luckey's home address is 19 Craig place.

A Sad Disappointment.

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. L. W. Randolph.

TROLLEY TROUBLES.

The Somerville Commissioners Are Having All Sorts of Troubles With the Trolley.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 10—The Board of Town Commissioners had a lively time of it Monday night, discussing trolley matters. Member Houston said he had seen Manager Walsh of the traction company and that he had again promised to put the seven-for-25-cents tickets, good between Somerville and Raritan, on sale again.

The only thing that is causing the board to lose sleep just now is the moving of the tracks in East Somerville to the centre of the road. The town wants this done, but the company refuses to do it, arguing that when the road was constructed the property owners urged having the cars run along the side of the road at that point. Now the manager does not see why they have changed their minds. It would mean considerable expense to the company. Member Taylor was of the opinion that, since the people at first wanted the tracks at the side of the road, the board cannot now compel the trolley company to put them in the centre.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

In an article in the Good Roads Magazine in favor of a through road from Massachusetts to Michigan, W. L. Dickinson, president of the Connecticut Valley Highway Association, says among other things:

"The State of New Jersey, the first State in the Union to give State aid, has been building roads since 1891. That State has secured the best results of any State giving State aid because it went at this work in a business-like way and has a plain, practical system. There were 549 miles of State road built prior to January 1, 1902, at a total cost of $2,650,000. Of this amount the State paid $866,000, the counties paying the remainder. The increase of $27,000,000 in the value of taxable property in New Jersey is attributed in a large measure to the excellent roads.

The cost of these roads have not been a burden. The benefits derived are found in the greatly increased valuation of property, a large increase in population of a desirable class and in all lines of trade. The farmers find a great advantage in the easier passage of their products to market and a large saving in the wear and tear of their horses and vehicles. Over a continuous good road heavy loads are hauled with a less number of horses than were formerly required for a small load on a poor road. The attendance of the schools and churches noticeably increased and free rural postal delivery was made possible as a result of good roads."

Netherwood Home Closed.

The Netherwood Fresh Air Home is closed. The last of the children in the charge of Miss Sara Curry returned to New York this morning and the first season of the home came to an end.

CARRYING WAR INTO JUDGE RUNYON'S WARD

His Political Enemies Are at Work Trying to Start An Opposition There.

ARE WORKING QUIETLY.

MOST PROMINENT FIGURE IS FORMER ASSEMBLYMAN R. F. MURRAY.

Conferences in Club Cars and Homes Have Started the Ball Rolling—After Delegates and Members of County Committee Too.

A month ago it looked as if City Judge William N. Runyon would find serious opposition to his candidacy for the senatorial nomination in the Third ward of this city. It was there that the possibility of a split delegation on the senatorial question seemed to exist. Since that time, the situation has changed and it is generally conceded by those who know that the Third ward will, if Ernest R. Ackerman is not a candidate, lend its support to Judge Runyon. Now come rumors of a campaign which the political enemies of the City Judge are carrying right into his home ward, the Second, with the hope of turning it against him and thus seriously injuring his chances by making it appear that his own ward has gone back on him.

Quiet conferences on the club-cars, little gatherings at the homes of certain Second warders, and industrious work by embassies of the Kean faction in this city and Elizabeth are being noised abroad and the voter of the Second ward finds a factional fight developing where peace and harony once prevailed. The utmost secrecy has been observed in the conduct of this campaign but rumors of its growth are already afloat and the people are beginning to talk about it.

So far the most prominent figure in this rather remarkable campaign has been Fomer Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, who is recognized as a firm advocate of the Kean faction. He has been buttonholing various Republican workers of that ward and has attended several of the quiet little conferences there. It is rumored that the fight will be made, not only on the delegation but on the members of the county committee from the ward. An attempt will be made to elect dlegates to the convention unpledged to Runyon and willing, if their vote will be of any use, to support Senator Cross. Avowed Kean men will be selected for the county committee.

Of course, this means a fight at the primaries. Last fall an attempt was generalled by Mr. Murray and other Kean advocates from the Third ward to bring about the defeat of the friends of Congressman Fowler in the county committee from the Second ward but it failed. In fact, the fight was of little importance. There is prospect, however, that this year's campaign will be some what stronger as it has been started well in advance and is now working quietly but actively to bring about the defeat of City Judge William N. Runyon.

Former Assemblyman Murray was interviewed by a Press reporter, this morning, and denied attending any conference in the Second ward. He admitted that he had discussed the situation with a number of Second warders individually, but declared that he was not engineering any campaign in the Second ward. From what he had heard, he said, he thought that there was going to be a hot fight there.

PASTOR TO WED.

Invited His Congregation to Attend the Ceremony Next Week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Whitehouse, Sept. 11—Rev. Henry T. Jones, pastor of the Reformed Dutch church, here, has invited his entire flock to attend his wedding in that edifice Thursday, Sept. 18. The bride is to be Miss Mabel Bailey Large, the accomplished daughter of Stephen K. Large. She is a niece of John K. Large, of Plainfield, and a graduate of Smith College.

This will be the first marriage ceremony performed in this $15,000 edifice, which was dedicated Oct. 10, 1901.

PLAINFIELD'S BEST TO MEET WESTFIELD'S NINE

First of Series Will be Played at Westfield Grounds on Saturday Afternoon.

WESTFIELD'S LINE-UP.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR RECEPTION OF THE PLAINFIELD GUESTS.

Grounds Ample to Receive All Who Attend—Special Accommodations for Carriages—Suggestions for the Local Team.

The "Plainfield Consolidated" is the term to be applied to the team which will journey to Westfield, Saturday, and inaugurate a series of games between the two places. This name has been decided upon in order to distinguish it from the "All-Plainfield" and other teams which have been made up of players drawn from the City League. The Consolidated team will be entirely different in its personnel than any heretofore seen on a local diamond.

Manager Denman, of the Westfields, states the game, Saturday, will commence at 3:30, sharp, and that ample accommodation will be provided for the reception of a large crowd. The double umpire system will govern the contest, the Westfields using their regular man, Rudyard. One is to be selected from this city and it will in all probability be James Brown, of the League, who is conceded to be one of the best umpires in the county. National League rules will prevail.

The line-up of the Westfields will be as follows: Burke, c; Robertson, p, Jones, ss; McGrath, 1b; Parcell, 2b; Barry, 3b; McManus, lf; Pollard, cf; Mallen, rf. Robertson, who is slated for the box, was Yale's 'Varsity captain, last year, and is a very good man. The remainder of the line-up is the one which has been carrying everything before it during the past season and which has made the name of Westfield familiar in every part of the State.

The Consolidated line-up has been decided upon with the exception of two positions, and these will be determined today. At present there are numerous applicants for the places and it has been difficult to show any discriminations, as all are first-class players. Practice games have been going on and from the showing made in these, the pick will be completed.

The local fans continue to suggest teams more to their liking than that already made, and this one is the latest: Burns, p; Allen, c; Winn, 1b; Martin, 2b; Schoonmaker, 3b; Bolsterli, ss; Wilhelm, rf; Lederer, cf; Moore, lf; on the bench: Barnes, Enright, Dupee, Shortman; umpire, Young. All these men are batters, the great point to be considered, base stealers and good catchers. It differs but little from the original and only goes to show that this city has many players, each of whom has his backers and staunch supporters.

KNIGHTS AT SHORE.

Grand Commandery of Knights Templar Holds Field Day at Asbury Park Today.

The Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of New Jersey holds its annual field day at Asbury Park today and thither many of that Masonic organization have journeyed. The Grand Commandery held its meeting last evening when the grand officers, including Dr. D. C. Adams and Jacob Kirkner, of this city, were present.

The parade and field day will be held this afternoon but it does not promise to be on quite as extensive a scale as on some occasions. Trinity Commandery, of this city, will not turn out in a body but individual members, to the number of perhaps a score, will probably parade with other commanderies of the State. Among the members of Trinity Commandery who went down this morning were Samuel Bingaman, L. B. Woolston, Robert A. Meeker, G. W. Crouse, G. M. Macintyre, and James A. Stafford.

Spencer's Hall for Boys.

Provision has been made by the Borough Board of Education for the re-seating of Spencer Hall, on Somerset street, to accommodate all of the boys in class 5 B. Under this arrangement the boys and girls will be separated, the girls of the class remaining at the High School.

Leal's School to Open.

John Leal's School for boys will reopen for the fall and winter term Tuesday, September 16. It is expected that there will be a notable increase in the number of students.

NEWARK POLICE TOO STRONG FOR LOCALS

Second Game With Fourth Precinct Team Played at Newark Yesterday.

THE SCORE WAS 16 TO 6.

NEWARK'S SECOND PITCHER WAS TOO MUCH FOR PLAINFIELD POLICE.

New Catcher for Plainfield Began to Drop the Balls, and Newark Scored Many Runs in Consequence—A Dinner Followed.

Turn about is fair play even in baseball. So thought the members of the Newark Fourth Precint baseball team, yesterday afternoon, when the local police team lined up against them on the Irvington avenue grounds, at Irvington, yesterday afternoon. The Plainfielders were swamped bad but for a lucky streak in the first three innings when the Newarkers were worried for some time, they might have been whitewashed. The final score was 16 to 6 as against 10 to 7 when the Fourth Precint was defeated in this city.

Winn was in the box for the locals and pitched a most remarkable game, striking out seventeen men. Bolmar had been substituted for Conroy as catcher and did very well until the seventh inning when he began to let the balls pass him, the result proving costly in runs. If Winn had received better support in the field it would have been a far different story. The rest of the team did not make so very many errors but they were painfully slow in fielding. McGinley and McCarthy made some clever stops that won the plaudits of the 1,500 spectators and Conroy showed them how a man in left garden could cover ground when he tried.

The Newark team had been strengthened considerably by the addition of two new men, both of whom showed up well. Carr twirled the first inning but in the second, Reilly took his place and barring two innings did himself nobly. As a whole the playing of the team was not superior to their opponents but they all had the happy faculty of being in the right place at the right time. The men also connected with the sphere just when a hit was most needed and coupled with the unfortunate errors, they were enabled to pile up the runs. As each team now has a victory to its credit it is probable that a third game will be arranged to take place before the season closes.

Following the game, the players and their guests, numbering in all 300, adjourned to Bergenhower & Bowman's Hotel at Morris and South Orange avenues where the sting of defeat and the exultation resulting in victory were forgotten while the elaborate repast was being disposed of. The Fourth Precinct men had left nothing undone to make this part of the day a successs and it was in the superlative degree. The eatables and service were excellent and when cigars were lighted, a prepared programme of vocal and instrumental selections was introduced which continued without cessation until 8:30. In addition to the team fifty Plainfielders partook of the repast.

The summary of the game is as follows:

CITY YOUNG FOLK WEDDED

MARRIAGE OF MISS MARGARET M. CAMPBELL AND FRED A. SHEPPARD.

Ceremony at the Home of Pastor Schenck and Reception at Their New Home.

With the relatives and a few intimate friends to wish them all success in their matrimonial venture, Miss Margaret M. Campbell, of West Fourth street, and Fred A. Sheppard, of the same street, were quietly wedded last evening at the home of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Schenck at 7:30 o'clock. The newly married couple and the guests immediately assembled at Mr. Sheppard's new home in the Hart building, 430 Park avenue, where an informal reception was held.

While the ceremony was a quiet one, it proved a most happy affair. The bride was attired in pearl chiffon, trimmed with white and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by Miss Susie Allen, of Easton, whose gown was white organdie over pink. Her bouquet was of pink asters. She received a sapphire ring as the gift of the bride. The best man was James Wagner, of this city. His gift from the groom was a stick pin. Many valuable presents were received including a silver service from J. C. Pope and son.

The groom is now a brakeman on the Jersey Central but was formerly employed in this city where he was well and favorably known. They have gone to Atlantic City on their honeymoon but will take up their residence in the Hart building after a short trip.

CORIELL IS A CANDIDATE

ANNOUNCES THAT HE IS IN RACE FOR THE SHRIEVALTY.

Letter From Local Councilman Finally Outlines His Position As to Nomination.

The possibility of Councilman B. Frank Coriell, of this city, as a candidate for the shrievalty nomination in Union county was heard of sometime ago. At that time, however, Mr. Coriell refused to say whether or not he was a candidate. He has now openly announced the fact that he is in line for the nomination if it comes his way.

The following letter was received from him this morning:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Having been urged by numerous friends in the county to become a candidate for the office of sheriff, I desire to say that if the Republicans of this county shall honor me with the nomination, I shall be pleased to accept, and should I be elected, I will in every way endeavor to faithfully and impartially perform the duties of the office.

Very respectfully yours,
B. Frank Coriell.

September 11, 1902.

Following close on the statement of the candidacy of Fred W. Coyne, of Elizabeth, for the shrievalty, Mr. Coriell's announcement lines up the two factions in Union county Republican circles. On the Kean side is Senator Cross and Mr. Coriell for sheriff. The Fowler advocates are supporting Judge Runyon for Senator and Mr. Coyne for sheriff.

NO RACES SATURDAY.

Matinee Races at Plainfield Driving Park Postponed a Week.

A sudden change has been made in the plans for the matinee races at the Plainfield Driving Park. Owing to the fact that the horses from Westfield, Woodbridge and New Brunswick, which were expected to compete with the local trotters, have another engagement for Saturday, it has been decided to postpone the meet entirely for a week. There will be no events at the track Saturday afternoon, as was previously announced. Instead the matinee races will be held on Saturday afternoon, September 20.

Euchre at The Netherwood.

The euchre planned for tomorrow evening at the Hotel Netherwood will be held this evening instead. A large number of Plainfield people are expected to be present.

Embossing Works Enlarged.

The improvements being made to the Crescent Embossing Works, on West Second street, are nearly completed, thus giving the much-needed extra room.

—Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet this evening and a full attendance is desired.

SOME REASONS WHY BY ASSESSOR FRENCH

Explains Why Net Increase in Borough Valuation Was So Small.

SO MANY DEDUCTIONS.

ASSESSOR FRENCH HAS RECEIVED MANY LETTERS ON THE SUBJECT.

Makes Public His Reply to A. V. D. Honeyman for the Benefit of the Others Who May Wish Information on the Subject.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept., 11, 1902.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—As several inquiries have been made relative to the assessments in North Plainfield I send you a copy of a reply I have made to one of them, thinking it may be of interest to your readers.

Elston M. French.

A. V. D. Honeyman, Esq.,
Plainfield, N. J.

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter containing a request for information in reference to tax matters, asking for a list of deductions for indebtedness, names of persons and all changes in valuation, and I would state regarding the assessments that the books have been gone over by the Borough Council and compared item by item with the books of last year; notations being made by the members of the Council of all changes and deductions which were made this year and you can possibly get the detailed information which you desire from them. As the law requires me to turn the duplicate over to the collector in a very limited time, and, as I am now writing up the duplicate and using it continuously every day, I do not see how I can comply with your request, especially as it would take me two or three days to compare them.

As your letter came yesterday shortly before I left town for the day, it would have been impossible in any event to prepare the figures which you desire by 6 p. m., today.

As every item has been passed upon separately and the assessment confirmed by the Council I do not feel that it is necessary to comply with the first and second requests contained in your letter, as, when the books are turned over to the collector, you can get all of this information at any time you may desire. However, I am always willing to furnish to borough tax payers such information as they can in reason demand, and, when not in use, my books are always accessible to them and I am perfectly willing to give you an abstract of the gross amounts deducted as compared with last year.

The figures are as follows:

	1901	1902
Debts, personal	$ 2,575	$25,820
Soldiers and militia	18,800	20,700
Firemen	27,300	29,750
Churches and charitable Inst.	53,200	56,100
Public property	5,500	5,550
Cemeteries	2,000	2,000
Schools	41,000	41,000
	$150,375	$180,920

This shows that the deductions are greater this year than last by $30,545. In other words the natural increase in the taxable valuation for new buildings, etc., amounting to over $30,000, has been almost entirely offset by the legal exemption such as shown by the above statement. I would further state that all deductions for debt have been made strictly in compliance with the law and affidavits have been taken by me from all persons requesting the deductions, and, further, I am satisfied that these people owe the money for which they claim deductions and are legally entitled to them.

In reference to the third request contained in your letter in regard to increasing the rate of the Board of Health, I would state that the rate of the past two years has been insufficient to raise the $550 voted by the people for this purpose and it has been customary to make the rate three cents every third year in order to make up for the shortage for the previous two years, and it is the intention this year, in case there should be a slight surplus in this fund, to apply such surplus to the special school tax as the rate of 97 cents will not be quite sufficient to make up the amount required by the School Board.

Very truly yours,
Elston M. French.

FOUR-CORNERED LEAGUE OF FOOTBALL TEAMS

Alis A. A., Company K., Westfield and Roselle Plan to Complete Organization.

A MEETING ON MONDAY.

ALIS A. A. FINALLY DECIDED TO JOIN THE LEAGUE.

Out-of-Town Teams Admitted That They Had No Chance With the Crack Plainfielders, But Joined for Financial Reasons.

There is now every prospect that the local footb ll enthusiasts will have a series of league games to witness this fall. As a result of a conference held last evening, the plans for a city football league have begun to take definite shape. It will be a four-cornered combination, consisting of teams from the Alis A. A., Company K, Westfield and Roselle. Another meeting will be held Monday night when the organization will be formally completed and the details arranged.

At last night's meeting, representatives were present from the Alis A. A., Company K, Roselle, Westfield, the Orange Field Club and the O Be Joyfuls. Harold A. Chandor, manager of the Alis A. A. team, was made chairman of the meeting. Robert M. Clark, who appeared for Company K, declared that the company would have a team averaging 185 pounds. While Westfield and Roselle admitted that they would have no show of winning if Alis went in, they were willing to join the league on account of the pecuniary benefits. The general sentiment seemed that a league composed of the four teams could be successfully run. Alis' manager would not announce what course his team would pursue. The meeting then adjourned to meet Monday night when a formal organization will be formed. In case the Alis A. A. decided not to join, it was decided to allow the Orange Field Club to join.

A meeting of the Alis officials was held later in the evening when it was decided that the Alis A. A. would put a team in the league While it was admitted that the contest would be rather one-sided, it was thought that league contests might prove a drawing card. In the event of Alis not going into the league, it was feared league games would prove a rival attraction which might seriously interfere with the attendance.

CHANGES IN UNIFORMS.

City High School Cadets Will Closely Observe State Military Uses.

A representative of the firm of D. Klein & Brothers, military tailors, of Philadelphia, will be at the City High School Wednesday afternoon, September 17, to measure members of the battalion for uniforms. It is estimated that more than half of the cadets will be uniformed during the coming year and the uniforms will probably be delivered about October 1.

While the uniforms of the privates and non-commissioned officers will remain the same as heretofore worn, there will be some important changes in the uniforms of the commissioned officers. In place of the black stripe worn last year, the commissioned officers will wear the regulation white stripe of the State, and the regulation square-topped hat will also be adapted instead of the cadet cap. The State insigna of crossed guns and the letters "N. J." will form the design worn on the collars of the commissioned officers. Above in the angle formed by the guns will be the letters "P. H. S." The design for the caps will consist of the State eagle and the letters "P. H. S." The cadet corps uses the regulation army chevrons and leggins and gauntlets will be worn by field and staff officers.

North Plainfield Mass-Meeting.

On Friday evening, Sept. 12, those who oppose annexation to Union county will have a mass-meeting in Saengerbund Hall, to which all voters of that borough are invited. Gallery reserved for women until meeting opens. Hour, 8 o'clock. Speakers, W. W. Howland, chairman of meeting, A. V. D. Honeyman and R. V. Lindabury. Meeting under auspices of the North Plainfield Citizens' Association. 9 11 2

All Provided For.

The Borough High School is now being run on a regular schedule. Although the school has been a little crowded, thus far every student has been provided for.

THE WHITE RIBBONERS IN ANNUAL SESSION

Reports Received and Officers Elected for Local W. C. T. U. at Meeting Yesterday.

SOME NOVEL FEATURES.

WELL-KNOWN TEMPERANCE LEADERS WERE IMPERSONATED BY MEMBERS.

Then There Was a Grumblers' Period When a Variety of Complaints Were Heard—Mrs. E. A. Parse Was Re-elected President.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the rooms on Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon, with a good attendance of the members. The president, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, occupied the chair, and directed the business of the afternoon, which included reports from the various departments.

Reports were presented as follows: Evangelistic, Mrs. R. V. Case; soldier and sailor, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; social, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson; Loyal Temperance Legion, Miss May E. Howlett; colored, Mrs. R. K. Case; flowers and literature, Mrs. DeForest; Sunday-school and Sabbath observance, Mrs. Winter. They all showed progress and were of an encouraging character.

The report of the treasurer, Miss Mary E. French showed the receipts during the year to be $621 and the disbursements, $560.77, leaving a balance of $60.51. The membership of the Union is two hundred, a slight increase over last year.

The election of officers and selection of vice presidents from the various churches resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse; honorary vice presdents, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson and Mrs. J. W. Yates; corresponding secretary, Miss Jessie Pruden; recording secretary, Mrs. John H. French; treasurer, Miss Mary E. French; vice presidents, Crescent Avenue — Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, Miss C. R. Yates; Park Avenue Baptist—Mrs. David Smalley, Mrs. Seely Edsall; First Baptist—Miss Anna Boice; Trinity Reformed—Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, Mrs. Julius Williams; First Presbyterian—Mrs. R. V. Shotwell, Mrs. Ramsay Blair; First M. E.—Miss Susan Jackson; Grace M. E.—Mrs. Taft; Warren chapel—Miss Mair, Miss Claypool; Congregational—Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux; Friends—Mrs. Charles E. Vail; Scotch Plains Baptist—Mrs. G. M. Shott.

A novel feature of the meeting were the impersonations given by the members of well-known leaders in the National W. C. T. U. The members would read a short sketch of the life of the woman impersonated and the other members were to guess the name of the woman referred to. The impersonations were as follows:

"Mrs. Susanna Frye," Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson; "Mrs. Stevens," Mrs. John H. French; "Mrs. Mary H. Hunt," Mrs. Winter; "Mrs. Clara Hoffman," Mrs. Julius Williams; "Miss Anna Gordon," Miss Jessie Pruden; "Miss Alice Guernsey," Miss May E. Howlett; "Mrs. Francis J. Barnes," Mrs. Seely Edsall; "Mrs. Ella M. Thatcher," Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; "Mother Thompson," Mrs. R. K. Case.

Another decidedly interesting feature was a "grumblers' period." During this time any person was privileged to grumble and complain of anything that did not suit her. Some complained that the attendance at the meetings does not increase, while others complained that officers giving reports talk so indistinctly that it is impossible to hear them. Mrs. Tomlinson gave a sample of grumbling such as she heard at a similar meeting in Asbury Park. This part of the programme was helpful as well as of interest, and an hour will be devoted to grumblers at the county convention to be held next week Thursday at Westfield.

Before the meeting closed Mrs. R. K. Case introduced a resolution which will be presented to the county convention. In substance it says that the liquor traffic is the worst known evil and it is resolved that all legitimate means be adopted to stop it. This concluded the business, and at the close of the meeting the officers and vice prseidents remained for a short conference.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Everything now seems clear for the Board of Freeholders going ahead and erecting the $150,000 bridge at Perth Amboy, the contract having been awarded and provision made for the issue of bonds to provide money with which to pay for this improvement. This vicinity will not be greatly benefited by the building of the new bridge, but a large portion of the expense must be borne by local taxpayers. The promoters of this enterprise fought long and earnestly for it, and they are entitled to credit for the successful outcome. After the bridge is built not so many automobiles will come this way, which will not be a small loss.—New Brunswick Home News.

"State Assessor John C. Rankin, while in Trenton, Tuesday, vouchsafed the opinion that Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, would be the Republican nominee for State senator, for which Senator Cross has entered for a second term. Being willing to give such an opinion, it may be taken for granted that there is a fight on in Union county between the Kean and Voorhees forces, which way, however, it results, will end in harmony after the primary contest." The above is from the Camden Courier. It is given to show that Mr. Rankin's opinion does not concide with that of the New York Tribune. The latter says that "after election well-informed Union county Republicans say, the struggle for party supremacy will be resumed." The truth of the matter is that Republican factional fights never end at primaries; they go to the polls and they imprell or defeat the party. The rank and file of the Republicans of Union county are tired of factional fights, and will soon take measures to end them.—Elizabeth Journal.

The Pennsylvania Railroad management is generally the pioneer in solving problems of transportation, and it seems as if it was again taking the lead in an effort to do away with freight congestion in city yards.

The managers have decided that more freight can be hauled if the capacity of the freight cars is increased. The big cars will take up less track room and increase the load that a locomotive will draw.

The company having had experience in using the big pressed steel coal cars has ordered 1,500 freight cars capable of carrying 100,000 pounds of freight. These cars will double the capacity of the freight yards, besides increasing the traction capacity of the engines by 50 per cent.

This is possible on the heavy rails and firm roadbed of the Pennsylvania, and the big cars will nearly double the freight capacity of the road.

The old, small cars will be relegated to branch lines, thus keeping them away from city yards, and as they wear out will be destroyed.—Jersey City Journal.

The efforts of The Daily Press to bring about a meeting between an All-Plainfield team and Westfield's crack aggregation have met with success. The refusal, which The Daily Press obtained on games with the Westfield Club, has been turned over to the management of the Y. M. C. A., the winning team in the league. Under the direction of that club an All-Plainfield team will be selected which will meet Westfield on the three successive Saturdays, September 13, 20 and 27. Westfield has a powerful team but Plainfield possesses some good ball players who may make things lively for the team down the road before the series is over. The first and last games will be played at Westfield and the second one here.—Plainfield Press.

The Press deserves credit for engineering the Westfield-Plainfield series and without their aid the series probably would have fallen through. Plainfield must remember that they are going to buck up against the real article in baseball when they play Westfield—Union County Standard.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

Keith's bills are always made up with an effort to show an improvement over the preceding week, and the offering for next week is no exception. The headliner will be Paul Barnes who, with a strong supporting company, will present a sketch called "Wanted, An Aunt," said to be one of the most screamingly comical farces ever written. Mr. Barne's reputation as a comedian of great ability has been somewhat obscured of late by his fame as the author of that popular ballad "Good Bye, Dolly Gray," but he is just as entertaining as ever, and that is saying a great deal. Eva Mudge, the character comedienne, will be seen in her marvellously quick changes of character, getting second place on the programme. Harrigan, the tramp juggler, is back after a long absence and has some brand new tricks. Jess Dandy, admittedly the premier in his line, that of Hebrew songs and parodies; J. Aldrick Libbey and Kartherine Trayer, the well known high class vocalists; The Sa-Vans, in their unimitable acrobatic comedy; Klein & Clifton, in a comedy and dancing sketch; with twenty-three other acts, including two European novelties, new pictures for the stereopticon and new films for the biograph, will all be seen at the Union Square during the coming week. The audiences at this house continue to test the capacity of the theatre at every performance, and its boast of presenting "the best show in New York" is always made good. No really good act escapes Keith's, and in theatrical circles "Keith" means "Excellence." Noon to 11 p. m., 50 cents.

Never before has "Robin Hood" received such attention at the hands of scenic artists and costumers. The revival Monday evening of the De Koven-Smith famous comic opera at the Academy of Music by the Bostonians was on a scale of splendor surpassing any previous presentation of the piece on Broadway. Messrs. Barnabee and MacDonald remained in New York all summer supervising the preparations and the models for the new sets were completed last May. The costumes, properties and scenery will be entirely new. The pictures of Sherwood Forest at early dawn showing the rising mists and the changing lights, the gathering of Robin Hood's "merrie men," the foresters and the archers in their costumes of green, it is promised, afford a most fascinating feast of feudal romance. It was comparatively a new "Robin Hood" that was presented Monday night. True, there was H. C. Barnabee as the Sheriff as of yore, with his "eagle eye and massive brain" and the original "Little John," W. H. MacDonald, the founders of the now world famous comic opera organization that bids fair to be forever known as "The Bostonians." Still, the big stage of the Academy demanded a massive production. An ensemble of over a hundred people and stage settings so enormous that they will have to be returned to the storehouse when the run is over, being too large for the majority of theatres, gave "Robin Hood" the most spectacular presentation of its prosperous career and is in marked contrast to the first puny production over twelve years ago in Chicago. The chorus is on a grand opera scale, being considerably augmented in numbers, and a crowd of auxiliaries disport themsleves in the Nottingham fair scene and in the gambols of Sherwood Forest. The company selected by the Bostonians this season appears to be particularly strong. Grace Van Studdiford is the Maid Marian, Josephine Bartlett, the original Dame Durden, continues in that role, while George B. Frothingham promises an exact reproduction of his first performance of Friar Tuck. Olive C. Moore appears as Alan-a-Dale, Allen C. Hinckley is to sing Will Scarlet's role. The title role, Robin Hood, will be played alternately by William C. Weedon and Harold Gordon, both tenors having equal standing in the company. Sabbery D'Orsell is cast for Anabel and Campbell Donald plays Guy of Gisborne. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday during the Bostonians' run of "Robin Hood" at the Academy.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will meet this evening and a full attendance is desired. There will be nomination of Grand Lodge officers and representatives.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

THE BOODLE CASES.

No New Arrests at St. Louis—Great Revelations Expected.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—The day around the Four Courts, where the municipal boodle investigation is being held, was comparatively quiet, the developments being of less importance than on Monday and Tuesday. Judging from what is expected, it is but the calm before the storm.

No new arrests were made, six of the nineteen members of the alleged house of delegates combine still being at liberty. Delegate Harry A. Faulkner, who was out on bonds aggregating $40,000, came in and gave additional surety to the amount of $15,000. His bonds now equal $55,000, a sum without precedent in the history of the criminal court of Missouri. Delegate J. J. Hannigan was released from jail on bonds of $45,000, and Delegate Edward E. Murrell, who turned state's evidence, was released from custody when friends became surety in the sum of $15,000, covering the one charge of bribery under which he rests.

Ex-Delegate J. K. Murrell, whose recent confession following his return from Mexico resulted in the issuance of bench warrants against eighteen of his fellow members in the house, was also set at liberty. He furnished a bond in the sum of $15,000 in the judge's chambers, where he was taken secretly to avoid any possible trouble, the courtroom being crowded with accused delegates and their friends. Until yesterday evening J. K. Murrell had been in the custody of the circuit attorney.

The grand jury was not in session yesterday, but its members were within call should they be needed to hear any new testimony. That body reconvened today.

THE CUBAN LOAN.

Text of the Bill Passed as Telegraphed to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Mr. Squiers, United States minister at Havana, has telegraphed the department of state the substance of the Cuban loan bill as it passed the house. His telegram said the bill was substantially as follows:

First.—The president is authorized to negotiate for the republic a loan of $35,000,000 American gold at a minimum rate of issue of 90 per cent and maximum interest 5 per cent annually.

Second.—Loan shall be redeemable in forty years, redemption to commence at the expiration of ten years from the first year allotments. Payment of interest and redemption shall be included in general budgets of the nation, as provided in subdivision 3, article 59, of the constitution.

Third.—Loan shall be used in the following manner: Four million nominal dollars for developing agriculture in general and the live stock industry in manner determined by congress. Thirty-one million nominal dollars for meeting obligations contained in the first of transitory provisions of the constitution, it being understood that payment of wages of revolutionary army shall be in accordance with provisions of decrees of October 24, 1895, and Sept. 14, 1896; of council of government of revolution and after rectification of army rolls and their classification by congress.

Fourth.—Executive may float loan in series as he deems advisable, but no interest shall be earned until the money is delivered.

Fifth.—The executive is authorized to give as security for this transaction the customs revenue.

ARBITRATION BILLS.

Governor May Call Extra Session to Consider Them.

STONE AND MITCHELL TO CONFER.

Presidents of Coal Roads Say Strike Will End Only When the Men Return to Work—No Outside Interferance Wanted.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 11.—A committee from the state legislative board of railroad employees of Pennsylvania will go to Wilkesbarre today to meet President Mitchell and the district presidents of the United Mine Workers for the purpose of discussing certain arbitration legislation to be considered by the general assembly if Governor Stone shall call an extra session.

The committee has drafted three bills to be submitted to the mine leaders, and if they are approved by them they will be presented to the governor, with a request that he call an extra session for their consideration. The committee in charge of the proposed legislation has been assured by the executive that if he can be satisfied that the legislature would enact legislation that would settle the coal strike and prevent other strikes he will not hesitate to call the legislature together.

The bills which have been prepared by the committee provide for compulsory arbitration in labor disputes, which shall be submitted to boards and commissions to be appointed by the courts and by the governor and whose decision shall be final. The bills are not yet completed, but drafts have been submitted to several prominent attorneys, who have advised those in charge of the proposed legislation that the measures are not in conflict with the constitution.

No Outside Interference Wanted.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—President Fowler of the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad company makes the following statement: "The strike will end when the men come back of their own accord and on the terms on which they worked before the outbreak of the strike. In no other manner can this strike be ended. We will brook no outside interference of whatever nature—political, humanitarian or of any other origin. When the men go back, it will be at the wages and on the conditions obtaining last spring. After they have returned we will take up any grievances with our own men. We have posted notices to that effect at our collieries, and that has been our attitude right along." President Olyphant of the Delaware and Hudson said that if he was well informed, and he thought he was, there would be no interference on the part of Mr. Morgan. Mr. Olyphant said no outside influence would be heeded and that the strike would continue until the miners grow tired of it and return to work.

Another Colliery Opened.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 11.—Work has been resumed at the Brisbin, one of the largest collieries belonging to the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company. No information has been given out at the colliery as to the extent of the operations begun there, but it was said that a sufficient number of men was at work to enable the company to mine and ship coal. No disturbance attended the resumption of work. The failure of Governor Stone's plan to effect a settlement has put a damper on the hopes of those who were confident that the strike would end by the 15th of September.

A Conference Saturday.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 11.—Some important messages have passed between the executive mansion at Harrisburg and President Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell, who is at Harvey's Lake, telephoned to this city that he had accepted an invitation from Governor Stone to confer with him at Harrisburg on Saturday.

Largest Bank Circulation Known.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The total national bank circulation outstanding at the present time exceeds that of any period in the history of the national banking system. At the close of business the circulation outstanding, as shown by the books of the comptroller of the currency, was $363,626,206. The highest point reached at any previous period was in October, 1882, when the total circulation outstanding was $362,880,134.

Severe Storm In England.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—An exceptionally severe rain, hail and thunder storm has swept over the country. The rainfall almost reached the record. Much damage was done to crops and hops, and there were three deaths and considerable destruction of property as a result of lightning. Hailstones of abnormal size stripped the hops from the poles and beat down the crops.

INSURGENT VICTORY.

Colombian Government Force Defeated at Santa Marta.

HORRIBLE ATROCITIES COMMITTED.

Attack of Revolutionists Entirely Unexpected—Large Force Collecting Between Panama and Colon—Business Suspended.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 11.—The German steamer Valencia, from New York Aug. 23 for Cape Haitien and other ports, which arrived here from Santa Marta, capital of the department of Magdalena, Colombia, brings news of a victory at Santa Marta by the Colombian revolutionists over the government forces.

Captain Gronmeyer of the Valencia says that last Friday the revolutionists made a desperate attack on the outskirts of Santa Marta. The government troops were overwhelmed and forced to retreat, leaving behind them 100 dead. Immediately after the withdrawal of the government forces the rebels started to destroy the railroad tracks. They derailed several trains at various points, demolishing engines and cars, the latter being chiefly fruit vans. Several lives were also lost in these wrecks.

Saturday the revolutionists occupied the banana district of Senega, where they continued to wreck the railroad and at the same time keeping up their advance toward Santa Marta. When the Valencia sailed from Santa Marta Monday, the revolutionists were so near the town that Captain Gronmeyer could see the flashes of their guns. Several buildings in Santa Marta were then blazing, having been ignited by the few troops left there to oppose the attack of the revolutionists. The town at that time was expected momentarily to surrender.

Officers of the Valencia say that horrible atrocities were committed during the fighting by the rebels, who chiefly used machetes. Almost all of the government troops killed were found along the railroad track, their bodies being terribly mutilated. They were partially covered by branches of banana trees.

Santa Marta is entirely cut off from communication with outside points, and the residents of the port have sent an appeal by sea to Colon for protection. It is feared that the revolutionists will sack Santa Marta when they capture it. The stores there are closed, and the greatest terror prevails.

The attack of the revolutionists was entirely unexpected, and owing to the superior numbers of the revolutionists the resistance of the government forces was half hearted.

The British steamer William Cliff has just reached here from Colon, Colombia. Her officers report considerable activity on both sides of the isthmus when the vessel left Colon Monday and that the revolutionists had already occupied Culebra, on the railroad between Panama and Colon, and were advancing in strength.

General Benjamin Herrera is said to be in command of the revolutionary forces, which seem to be concentrating at a point about midway between Panama and Colon. There are strong government forces at both ends of the railroad, and re-enforcements are coming in. Breastworks are being erected at Colon and Panama. Owing to the fact that the government does not know where to expect an attack it keeps its soldiers moving along the forty miles of railroad.

The revolutionists gained possession of Culebra without opposition, and their possession of that point has not been disturbed. The government is maintaining an attitude of defense, and a desperate engagement is expected shortly. Business on the isthmus is suspended, and the people are very fearful, especially since the revolutionist victory at Agua Dulce.

New Hampshire Democrats.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 11.—The Democrats of New Hampshire met in state convention and placed in nomination for governor Hon. Henry F. Hollis of Concord, chairman of the state central committee. Hon. John M. Mitchell of the city was also a candidate, but he received only 146 votes of the 395 votes cast in the first and only ballot taken. Mr. Hollis' nomination was made unanimous.

Hanna to Stump Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 11.—Senator M. A. Hanna will make a campaign tour of the state this fall, either in a special train or a special car to be switched on to regular trains. The details of the trip have not been arranged. The senator will be accompanied by speakers of national prominence.

Large Gathering of Scientists.

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 11.—The seventy-second annual meeting of the British Association For the Advancement of Science commenced here last night. The attendance was larger than at any former gathering of the association, with the exception of that of 1901 at Glasgow.

Five Thousand Drowned.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 11.—Japanese papers contain telegrams stating that 5,000 persons lost their lives by the overflowing of West river in China. There was also heavy loss of property and life in Formosa by floods, followed by a tidal wave.

Would Name Him Prince of Rome.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch from Rome to the Daily Express says that in the event of a son being born to the queen of Italy it has been officially decided that he shall bear the title Prince of Rome. Her majesty's confinement is expected in December.

THE CRAIG INQUEST.

Sittings at Pittsfield, Mass., are Private.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 11.—Former Senator Joshua B. Holden of Boston and Colonel Edwin C. Woods of the Boston Herald were the principal witnesses at yesterday's sitting of the inquest into the death of Secret Service Officer Craig of the presidential party a week ago. These gentlemen, in company with Hon. Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston, were in carriages behind that occupied by the president at the time of the accident, and accordingly they were less than 200 yards away when the electric car crashed into the landau. Both Mr. Holden and Colonel Woods testified that the trolley car was running at a very fast rate of speed at the time.

While the inquest is a private one, it is known that all the witnesses called thus far have testified that the car was running very fast at the time the accident occurred.

It was announced that Motorman Euclid Madden and Conductor James Kelly will be asked to testify at the inquest if they so desire. If they decide to go on the witness stand, their counsel, former Representative William Turtle, will be permitted to be present and will have the opportunity to decide what questions they shall or shall not answer. It is generally understood that Lawyer Turtle has been very much opposed to the men appearing at the inquest, and it is probable they will not do so. All the witnesses so far summoned completed their testimony, and an adjournment was taken until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

SOME CROP FIGURES.

The Usual Yield of Corn, Wheat, Oats and Apples.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The monthly report of the statistician of the department of agriculture shows the average condition of corn on Sept. 1 to have been 84.3 as compared with 86.5 on Aug. 1, 1902, 71.7 on Sept. 1, 1901, 80.6 at the corresponding date in 1900 and a ten year average of 78.8.

The average condition at harvest of winter and spring wheat combined was 80 against 82.8 last year, 69.6 in 1900 and a ten year average of 78.9.

The average condition of oats when harvested was 87.2 against 72.1 last year, 82.9 in 1900 and a ten year average of 79.7. While correspondents report the harvesting of an exceptionally large crop of oats, there are indications that the crop will be very deficient in point of quality.

Of the states having 4,000,000 acres and upward in apples eleven report an improvement in condition during August. All but six of the important apple growing states report conditions ranging from 7 to 32 points above their ten year averages. In Ohio the condition agrees with such average, while Indiana, West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky report conditions below such average.

Electric Mail Delivery.

ROME, Sept. 11.—The minister of posts and telegraphs, Signor Galimberti, and the leading officials of his department have examined a plan submitted by an engineer named Pisciceli for the establishment of a system of electrical delivery of the mails by which letters are to be transmitted in aluminium boxes along overhead wires at the rate of 248 miles an hour. A commission has been appointed to report upon this system before instituting experiments between Rome and Naples. Between these two points the inventor claims that he can deliver letters in twenty-five minutes, while the time to send mail from Rome to Paris by this system, Signor Pisciceli says, could be reduced to five hours.

And appearing by affidavit that the defendant, Herbert S. Thatcher, resides out of the State of New Jersey, and that the process could not be served upon him.

It is on the twenty-seventh day of August, one thousand nine hundred and two, on the motion of Bird & Runyon of counsel with the petitioner, ordered that the said absent defendant do appear and answer the petitioner's petition on or before the twenty-eighth day of October next, or that, in default thereof, such a decree be made against him as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just.

And it is further ordered, that the notice of this order, prescribed by law and the rules of this court, together with this order, shall, within twenty days hereafter, be served personally on the said absent defendant, by a delivery of a copy thereof to him, or be published within the said twenty days in The Daily Press, a public newspaper printed at Plainfield, in the county of Union, in this State, and continued therein for four weeks successively, at least once in each week, and that a copy thereof be also mailed, within the same time, to the said absent defendant, directed to his post-office address, if the same can be ascertained, in the manner prescribed by law and the rules of this court.

By the Statute,
FREDERIC W. STEVENS,
Master.

SHE WON THE RACE.

The More Than Gratifying Outcome of an English Woman's Donkey Ride in Egypt.

The humors of donkey-riding in Egypt have been told by most travelers in the east. The experience of the English governess of the khedive's daughter is told in her book, "Five Years in Egypt:" My donkey was rather an unsociable animal and was not satisfied with winning, but carried me on far beyond even the hearing of my companions. Then at last he thought fit to slacken his pace. As he was thus walking leisurely along I began to examine the contents of my pocket and took out my notebook to make some entries. While I was thus occupied the donkey-boy, who had run noiselessly after me on the sand, suddenly rushed up and with blows urged my donkey on at full speed. I had only time to grasp the reins and away I went, my treasures all scattered behind me and I shouting to the boy to desist. These boys run as fast as the donkeys and in answer to all my scolding replied, "Yes, missus, you very good donkey; he called 'Flying Dutchman!'" and then, to keep the honor of the name, another blow to urge him forward. In a few minutes I was on the bank of the river, long before my companions, and then the boy had the effrontery to ask for bakshish for having got me there first!

Measles and Ammonia.

A Detroit woman who labors among the poor children of the city was telling her experience.

"One day there was a death in the neighborhood—a little girl died, and the children were visibly impressed. They told me about it in unison.

"'It was better for her wasn't it, missus?' one little girl said philosophically.

"'What was the trouble?' I asked.

"'O,' another spoke up, 'she had measles and ammonia on the lungs, and a lot of things.'

"I was, of course, deeply impressed by the 'lot of things,' but more so by the 'ammonia on the lungs.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A STRENUOUS EMPEROR.

William's Guests at Army Maneuvers Get Tired.

FRANKFURT-AN-DER-ODER, Sept. 11.—Emperor William's guests are a yawny and rather haggard lot. Prince Albrecht, as the emperor's representative, entertained all of them at dinner, and it was toward midnight when the party broke up. At 3 a. m. or a quarter past they had themselves called, the emperor having directed that the battle begin at 7. The field of the maneuvers is situated quite a distance by rail from Frankfurt-an-der-Oder, and the princes and generals had to assemble at the railroad station at 4:30 a. m. to catch the special train. Even then the emperor was afield before them.

Tons of gunpowder were burned during the day. Sixty thousand infantry and 200 pieces of artillery were in action. The reports near and distant of the many thousands of rifles, which blended into a sound like the humming of a vast thrashing machine, was broken at intervals by the tearing, ripsawing effect of the firing of the machine guns.

Emperor William, Major General Corbin, Major General Young, Brigadier General Wood, Lord Roberts, General French and the other visitors and the numerous staff, in all 100 horsemen, looked on from a hilltop midway between a portion of the hostile lines.

The opposing forces were freshly rearranged on the field after the guests and unofficial visitors accompanying them had returned from Frankfurt-an-der-Oder, the emperor remaining tirelessly on his horse. The engagement was resumed, and at the end of the day the "blue" army was adjudged to have won superior positions.

The start today was half an hour earlier than yesterday, requiring the guests to be up at 3 a. m. There is some jocular complaining of this "too strenuous life."

PRESIDENT AT HOME.

Southern Trip Ended—Western Trip Begins Sept. 19.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 11.—President Roosevelt has returned from his southern tour. The president was accompanied by Secretary Cortelyou, Assistant Secretary Loeb and Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel. The last three joined him in New York. The president was pretty well tired out and retired at an early hour. Secretary Cortelyou went to his home in Hempstead.

It was authoritatively denied that the United States government has sounded the German government as to the appointment of Bellamy Storer, at present minister to Spain, as the successor to Andrew D. White as American embassador to Germany. It can be stated by the same authority that the successor to Mr. White has not yet been selected.

President Roosevelt will make no more appointments to receive visitors before going on his western trip, which begins on Sept. 19. He will devote the time between now and then in preparing for the trip and in disposing of accumulated business. This will not interfere with the reception to his friends and neighbors of Nassau county arranged for the 15th inst. The hours of the reception will be from 3 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The citizens are making great preparations for the event, and a meeting will be held here tonight at which committees will be appointed and the details perfected.

SOUFRIERE QUIET AGAIN.

But Nobody Ventures Near the Recently Stricken Districts.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, Sept. 11.—The Soufriere volcano on this island is quiet, but nobody ventures near Wallibou, Richmond or the obliterated estates, which are partially obscured by a vast cloud of steam extending from the summit of the Soufriere to the sea. Quantities of dead fish have been washed ashore on the leeward coast.

In the absence of scientific opinion it is uncertain whether lava has been ejected. The matter ejected during the afternoon of Sept. 3 was of sulphur color. Descending the mountain, it ran out to the sea a distance of fifteen miles. The course of the stream is now a deep ravine.

A big upheaval at the base, in the same direction, was witnessed from another mountain Sept. 6. No fine dust fell here during the eruption of Sept. 3. The mineral grit was different from former ejecta either from the Soufriere or Mount Pelee, on the island of Martinique.

Many Woman Missionaries.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Daily Express publishes a dispatch from its Zurich correspondent saying that for some time past there has been a great increase in the number of Mormon missionaries in both Germany and Switzerland. Germany has now 240 such missionaries, while there are several hundred in Switzerland. In Zurich and Bern a systematic mission bureau is in operation, and the propaganda is being religiously spread among the simple Swiss. Sermons are given in English and interpreted by a Mormon apostle. The official church journals of Switzerland remain silent upon this subject, with the exception of one or two, which complain bitterly that the Mormons are allowed to continue their mission work.

Thirty Men Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Madrid says thirty workmen have been killed in the province of Lerida by the caving in of a road which they were repairing. The men were entombed.

Boer Generals Coming Soon.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 11.—It is rumored here that the Boer generals will very shortly visit the United States. They will tour that country before traveling on the continent, as had been previously arranged.

Russia Does Not Want Foreigners In Manchuria.

MINISTER AT PEKING ISSUES ORDER.

Czar's Troops Show No Signs of Withdrawing, as Stipulated—Immigrants Continue to Pour Into the Territory.

PEKING, Sept. 11.—Paul Lessar, the Russian minister here, has advised the Russian commander in Manchuria that the presence of foreigners in Manchuria during the military occupation is objectionable, and he is directed to expel the British imperial customs employees who may be sent to Manchuria to resume charge of the postal service.

According to advices received here from Manchuria, the Russians are making no visible preparations to withdraw from the military occupation of the southeast portion of the province of Shingking, as was stipulated should be done within six months of the signing of the treaty. Russian troops and immigrants are reported to be entering Manchuria in large numbers, but none is leaving the country.

A Tientsin dispatch says that Colonel Baron Kopp, director of Manchurian railroads; General Bolkoff, acting governor, and other Russian officers of Manchuria have gone to Peking in connection with the negotiations for the withdrawal of Russian troops from Manchuria and the restoration of the Shanhaikwan railroad.

KILLICK PERISHED.

Firminist Admiral Went Down With His Ship.

GONAIVES, Haiti, Sept. 11.—An investigation made into the sinking of the Firminist gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot at the entrance of this harbor Saturday shows that Admiral Killick, her commander, personally fired the after magazine of that vessel when the German gunboat Panther attempted to capture her and that he apparently went down with his ship.

The Panther, which had previously attempted to board the Crete-a-Pierrot, the latter being moored to the shore, reversed her engines when the magazine exploded and one hour afterward fired thirty shots from her guns at the Crete-a-Pierrot in order to finish the work of sinking her. The Panther then left Gonaives.

It is claimed here that the rifles and machine guns of the Crete-a-Pierrot have been saved.

The body of Admiral Killick was recovered Saturday afternoon and was buried the same evening.

The surgeon of the Crete-a-Pierrot, who was asleep in his cabin, and two sailors of that vessel also perished.

Telegraphers at Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 11.—More than 200 old time telegraphers, including a few who served in the military telegraph corps during the civil war, are in Salt Lake City attending the annual reunion of the Old Time Telegraphers and Historical Society of the United States Military Telegraph Corps. The veterans were welcomed by Rev. Mr. Simpkins of the Plymouth Congregational church, Mayor Cochran of Montreal responding in behalf of the old timers. Milwaukee was decided on as the place for the next reunion, to take place in September, 1903.

Proposed Forest Reservation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The interior department has received a petition from a large number of people in Lander and vicinity, in Fremont county, Wyo., asking that about 550,000 acres of land lying on the continental divide southwest of Lander be made a forest reservation. The largest fire in the history of the general land office occurred on this tract and is still raging. The citizens contend that reservation of the tract is the best means to prevent such conflagrations in the future.

Unique Plan of Vicar of Gorleston.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The unique plan advanced by the vicar of Gorleston of running theaters in conjunction with churches throughout the villages of the United Kingdom has received the support of no less an authority than Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary. Mr. Chamberlain has written a letter to the vicar in which he sympathizes with this project and says he is always pleased to hear of anything being done to bring light and happiness into the lives of the people.

Dan Patch Draws Crowd.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The announcement that Dan Patch would go for the record drew 25,000 people to the State Fair grounds to witness the continuation of the grand circuit races. The weather conditions were unfavorable, a heavy wind being an obstacle to fast time, and in consequence the record trial was postponed. To satisfy the crowd Dan Patch went two exhibition miles.

Support Pledged Roosevelt.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 11.—The Republican state convention by a unanimous vote sent a telegram to President Roosevelt approving his Philippine and domestic policies, expressing sympathy with his "brave stand for the common people" and pledging support in 1904.

Whitney Buys a Colt.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A colt by Persimmon, out of Surprise Me Not, was bought by William C. Whitney for $15,270 at the Doncaster sales. The sales were noticeable for high bidding, seven colts and three fillies fetching $53,294.

THE LATEST MOVE.

Have you noticed the latest move of the Somerset county Board of Freeholders? It's worth while your attention, borough taxpayer, to see just what that body has now under consideration for it has its significance.

Of course you have heard what some of the opponents of the Greater Plainfield scheme have said about Union county's methods of obtaining good roads. The idea of bonding the county so that the future generations, which will enjoy their benefits as much as this one, might assist in paying for the improvements was roundly condemned. Although nobody benefitted by it, it was pointed out how much more noble it was to settle such indebtedness now and not turn it over to our children and grandchildren to meet. After the impropriety of such conduct has been carefully pointed out, the Somerset county Freeholders are actually thinking of following Union county's example at this late day and bonding their county for nearly half a million of dollars in order to meet the demands from all sides for good roads.

It is really rather hard on the "antis" who had made out their case with so much care. It shows that there is still hope for Somerset county but it also adds a very strong argument in favor of annexation. If North Plainfield comes into Union county, it joins a county covered with good roads for which bonds were issued some time ago. If it remains in Somerset, it must go through the experience from the beginning and in the end will have to meet its share of the indebtedness. As it is now, the county rate in Somerset is higher than it is in Union. What is going to happen when there is the first payment to be made on the bond issue?

North Plainfield has good roads already. The only places of importance which its citizens desire to reach are already connected by macadam roads, chiefly those of Union county. North Plainfield would benefit but little by the establishment of stone roads through that county while the remainder of the county would be the great gainer and yet North Plainfield would have to help pay the bill. Rather an interesting situation, isn't it? What are you going to do about it? Grin and bear it or vote for annexation.

A business man who in early life was a practical printer, "and was fed on advertising almost from the cradle," according to the Philadelphia Record, says that when he wants to reach a limited class of people he uses handsome booklets in addition to his newspaper advertisement; but his "main reliance is on the newspapers, which reach all kinds of people, including those to whom booklets are sent." He affirms that "no matter how useful any other form of publicity may be, nothing can take the place of the newspaper."

While the end of the fight for the Republican Senatorial nomination in this county is not likely to end until either Senator Cross or City Judge Runyon is nominated at the county convention, the fight will be over as far as the voters at large are concerned in less than two weeks. The primaries have been called by the county committee for Monday evening, September 22. That means that both sides will do some hustling in the next few days.

Saturday afternoon will see Plainfield Consolidated, the pick of the local league teams, go up against Westfield's crack aggregation of baseball players. It will be a good game, there is no doubt of that. It is the first of the series which The Daily Press arranged and which is now being carried forward by the management of the Y. M. C. A. team, with the co-operation of the managers of the other league teams.

The Union Association of North Plainfield has opened headquarters in the Eggerding building on Somerset street. There will be found facts and figures bearing on both annexation and consolidation and there every citizen of the borough will be cordially welcomed.

The need of putting the wires of the fire alarm system under ground was demonstrated this week by the several false alarms which have been sent in by crosses with telegraph lines, the result of carelessness on the part of Western Union linemen.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Wirth's is the place to go for the best of bread, cake, pies and pastry. This store is headquarters for all that's nice in the baker's line.

Before purchasing your fall and winter clothing inspect M. Weinberger's stock which has just been received. The quality and price are attractive features and satisfacion is guaranteed.

Shaw's hard water soap is made especially for the water used in Plainfield. It is a "hard water" soap and is just the thing for cutaneous troubles and bath. A sample will be furnished gladly.

Why go to the city to have your pictures framed when the Plainfield Art Store in the Y. M. C. A. building will do it as cheap as any firm in the metropolis. All framing will be done this week at half the regular cost.

This is the season when the women folks want jars and rubbers for canning fruit, and the Gayle Hardware Company has a stock of the best make which is offered at low prices. A full line of hardware is also kept in stock.

Every watch, clock and piece of jewelry repaired at Doane's jewelry store is guaranteed. Glasses are fitted by competent opticians. All defects of vision are corrected, and examination is without charge. 115 Park Avenue.

Charles Conover & Company, of Elmwood place, are prepared to do painting and papering in a most satisfactory manner. They will cheerfully give you estimates on work and if they get the contract will please you in every particular.

As this is canning week, of course a preserving kettle is indispensable. The local store of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company foresaw that and procured a large number of granite preserving kettles which it will give away to its patrons. Don't fail to secure one.

The Belleview Avenue Nursery Company is located off Park avenue, near the Hillside cemetery. Evergreens, herbaceous plants, shade trees and fruit trees are all to be found there. Great care has been taken to have the stock in the best of condition. Those who order early will, of course, have the advantage of first choice.

—Trinity Commandery, No. 13, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday evening, September 15.

—An important meeting of Jerusalem Chapter, R. A. M., will be held this evening when several candidates will be balloted for.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will meet tomorrow evening as usual, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

INTER-STATE FAIR PLANS

MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR TRENTON'S BIG FAIR.

Industrial Displays Will be Very Elaborate—The Other Things That Will be Seen.

The management of the Inter-State Fair, which takes place at Trenton, September 29 and 30 and October 1, 2 and 3, has always endeavored to make the fair not only the greatest agricultural, industrial and domestic exposition in the east, but also the biggest out-door amusement carnival in this part of the country. This policy will be followed out this year.

There will be gathered together in the big exhibition buildings the finest possible displays of agricultural products, machinery and implements, poultry, live stock of all kinds, wagons, carriages and automobiles, and domestic articles. Ample provision for the big industrial display will be made in exhibition building No. 3.

Never before in its history has the fair given such an attractive speed programme as it will offer this year. There are twenty-two races scheduled, including some very fast classes of trotters and pacers. There will be free-for-all races, mixed wagon races, consolation races and double-team races. In all the classes there are many and good entries.

Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum realizes that in selecting his vaudeville attractions the public demands something that involves danger, and those he has already booked cannot fail to please in this regard. Perhaps the most daring is Diavolo's loop the-loop act on a bicycle. He will do his act each day of the fair. Danton's wonderful fire dive: Hutch, the human bursting bomb; the Eck Cycle Whirl, are others of the hair-raising type of attractions which Secretary Margerum has secured. He has also a very long list of standard, novel and up-to-date acts which will be put on the stage in front of the grandstand each day of the fair.

Auguste Saltzman, of Hawley, Pa., who has been visiting Plainfield friends, has gone to Atlantic City to the State Firemen's convention.

Mrs. William Addis and daughter, of Orange place, are home from Beverly, Mass., where they have been visiting Mrs. Clarence Mundy for a few weeks.

DUNELLEN.

Grant Leivers, an employe in Reusch's North avenue bakery, met with an experience while at work yesterday that he will not forget for some time. He was looking at some bread cooking in one of the large ovens and in order to see clearly was using an electric lamp such as is generally used in bakeries. In some way a wire had become exposed and he received a heavy shock of electricity which knocked him down and burned his hand quite badly. He was unconscious for about twenty-five minutes, notwithstanding efforts made by Dr. Brakeley, who was called, to revive him. The man shows no ill effects from his experience, save a few scars.

John Kennedy, a foreman on the Central Railroad, will wear bandages on his hand for several days as a result of the slipping of an axe while splitting kindling wood early this morning. The axe was sharp and took a large slice and part of the nail from the thumb on the left hand. Kennedy hurried to Dr. Brakeley and had the wound dressed.

Anyone desiring to get a good supper can do so by going to the peach tea which will be given in the Presbyterian chapel this evening. Supper will be served at 6:30.

Lewis Churchill, who has been attending Stevens Institute, will enter Columbia University this fall.

Miss Amy Sampson will leave next week for Trenton where she will attend the State Normal School.

J. L. Peters' new house is well under way and the frame work is about completed.

A dance is being planned in Apgar's Hall for October 2 by some Plainfield young people.

SETTLED THE FAIR ESTATE

WM. B. SMITH HAS RETURNED FROM WEST WITH TERMS OF SETTLEMENT.

Mrs. Nelson Gets Over a Million—Brothers Receive $350,000 Each—Other Relatives.

William B. Smith, brother of the late Mrs. Charles G. Fair, has returned from a trip to California and he brings with him the terms of the settlement of the vast estate. He says that Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of Mrs. Fair, receives $1,000,000 in gold and $100,000 worth of Paris property. Charles Smith, of Boulder, Col., William B. Smith, of New Market and Abram Nelson, of New Market, receive $350,000 each. The heirs of Mrs. Minnie Leffler, five children in all, receive $350,000.

Mrs. Hannah Nelson and Mrs. Abram Nelson will return to their home in New Market in October, but they will maintain a winter home in California. William B. Smith has decided to buy himself a winter home in New York, where he will spend the cold weather months. He expresses much delight over the quick settlements and says that all the heirs are satisfied with it.

A. S. Coriell visited in Plainfield yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Tickets for the benefit ball game on September 20 are selling well and from present indications the club will be able to turn a substantial sum of money over to Mrs. Frentz after all expenses are met. Very few are refusing to buy tickets whether they will attend the game or not.

A number in town are trying to start enough interest in football to organize a football eleven to represent the town on the gridiron this season. At present everything is baseball and until that season ends there is very little chance of talking football.

Newark, Sept. 11—Mrs. Rebecca Emery and David Taylor, of Lincoln, appeared before Justice Lambert in the First Criminal court, yesterday, to answer to the charge preferred by Watson Emery, the husband of Mrs. Emery. The complainant had three witnesses on the stand. After hearing his case, the Judge dismissed the two defendants without putting them on the stand. W. S. Angleman, of Plainfield, appeared for Mrs. Emery and Taylor.

Attracted Many.

The Gospel preaching of H. A. Ironside, of SanFrancisco, at the hall, corner of East Front street and Bank place, having attracted a large attendance, the meetings will be continued this and tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. All are cordially invited. No collection.

THANKS FOR DR. CURRIE.

Extended by Miss Curry, Manager of Netherwood Summer Home.

To the Editor of The Daily Press—I wish, if possible, to express through your columns my appreciation of the valuable and faithful services rendered by Dr. N. W. Currie, of 414 West Fifth street, in looking after the physical welfare of the children and the mothers of the Home this summer. Every forenoon he has been there, many times at night also, and some days indeed several times. It reminds me of what I once heard a great preacher say, that faithfulness was success. So I can say of Dr. Currie, his services at the Home have been a success. Several times we have been to death's door, but God gave the doctor skill to bring the little ones through. We have learned a lesson of faithfulness, he never getting weary of well doing. Fine weather or stormy has always found him at his post, with that same warmheartedness, a smile for the mothers and a pleasant word for the children. All have learned to love him, and as it is said that love begets love, his love for the helpless has brought in return showers of love to himself, from those many think incapable of expressing themselves in that way.

I wish again to voice the heart of every mother and child, as well as my own, in expressing to him our thanks. His services have in themselves been as great a sermon as has been preached at the Home this summer, as they have been practical.

Sara Curry, Manager,
Netherwood Summer Home.

THROWN FROM HORSE.

Frank C. Talmadge Injured by Fall While Riding Horseback.

Frank C. Talmadge, of Belvidere avenue, met with a painful accident yesterday while out enjoying his favorite exercise of horseback riding.

He was riding along a country road, when his spirited animal shied at something along the highway. The horse made a plunge to one side so quickly that Mr. Talmadge was unable to get him under control before he was thrown off. He fell to the ground, but he kept hold of the bridle reins, thus preventing the horse from running away and leaving him by the roadside.

While the injuries were not serious, Mr. Talmadge is suffering from several scratches and bruises and is very lame. In a few minutes after the accident he was able to mount his steed and return home, where proper treatment was given to his injuries. Mr. Talmadge will not be detained at home, but will be prevented from playing with the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team against Wee Burn on Saturday.

PROGRESSIVE CADETS.

City High School Corps Makes New Plans for the Winter.

At a meeting of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the City High School cadet battalion, held yesterday afternoon, it was decided to run the organization on more progressive lines. As yet no definite plans have been announced for the future, aside from the fact that exhibition drills and competition drills will be held with other schools. The first drill of this school session will be held tomorrow from 12 o'clock to 1 o'clock. A committee has been appointed to confer with Principal Travell for an entertainment soon to be held for the benefit of the organization.

Delightful Time.

A letter was received this morning from Assemblyman William Newcorn, who is now at Richmond, Va., having left Norfolk yesterday. He says that he is having a delightful time and will return home Saturday.

Decorating Church.

Although there has been some delay in the work of re-decorating Grace M. E. church, it is expected that services there may be resumed a week from next Sunday.

"ANTIS" ANNOUNCE A FINAL MASS-MEETING FOR FRIDAY NIGHT.

Annexation Headquarters Was a Busy Place Last Night—Many Visitors There.

With the borough election on the question of annexation only a few days away, things are beginning to warm up. There have been numerous secret conferences and no end of quiet work. The "antis" are now preparing to fire a final gun. A mass meeting will be held in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow night. W. W. Howland will act as chairman of the meeting and will speak. The other speakers are A. V. D. Honeyman and Richard V. Lindabury, of Elizabeth. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock and the gallery will be reserved for women.

The annexation headquarters was a busy place, last night. Many borough citizens accepted the invitation to step in and talk it over. Some of the active members of the Union Association of North Plainfield were on hand to explain how and why annexation and consolidation were to the advantage of the borough. There was no regular meeting, the discussion being of an informal character. The headquarters will be open again tonight when all will be welcomed to stop in and discuss the subject.

TRYING TO REFORM HIM.

Edward Gifford, Sixteen Years Old, of Somerville, Seems Incorrigible.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, September 11—Edward Gifford, a well-known character of the town, has been sent to Boston, where his brother will try to make a man of him. His father, who is a hard working and respected citizen of this place, declared the boy was incorrigible. He carried firearms, often staid out all night, drank and smoked to excess, and, in fact, had been every kind of bad so long that his mind was becoming dazed. Young Gifford is only sixteen years old.

He was arrested by Officer Henderson and committed to jail by Justice Kitchen. Yesterday his father went his bail and sent him off to Beantown.

COLORED VOTERS TO MEET.

They Will Hold a County Convention at Reform Hall, September 19.

A call has been issued by Secretary Thomas for a convention of the colored Republican voters of Union county to be held in Reform Hall, this city, Friday afternoon, Sept. 19. Besides the great national issues, interests peculiar to them as citizens of Union county will be discussed. Good speakers will address the convention on the leading issues of the day. The basis of representation will be one delegate for every twenty-five colored voters.

St. Mary's School Opened.

St. Mary's Parochial School opened Monday with the largest attendance in its history. Thus far nearly 400 students have been registered and the number is increasing daily. Sister Mary Esther, who was formerly connected with the institution, is the new head of the faculty.

May Give Exhibitions.

The members of the Plainfield Camera Club will meet soon to discuss plans for the winter work and the advisability of giving public exhibitions of the summer work.

Lingering Summer Colds.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 14—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Delight in God's house.—Ps. lxxxiv, 1-4; c, 1-5.

The church is a divine institution. The Old Testament church was instituted by God and the New Testament church by the Lord Jesus Christ. We are told that "the Lord loved the gates of Zion above all the dwellings of Jacob," and Christ's love for the New Testament church was illustrated by the love which exists between the husband and the wife. The New Testament church is called the Bride of Christ. Such being the divine origin of the church of God in the world, it necessarily follows that it has peculiar claims upon all men. The church is not only of divine origin, but its purpose is to carry forward the work of God in the world. Knowledge of God and the way to God are to be set forth above everything else in His church.

The church not only has claims upon all men, but it should be a pleasure and a delight to meet these claims and obligations. It must be confessed, however, that in too many instances this is not the case. In many cases the obligations of the church are ignored or denied, and in many others their fulfillment is looked upon as drudgery and a hardship; purely as a sense of duty the forms of worship are observed in the house of God when there is no interest and no delight manifested in them. This, however, should not be our attitude toward the worship of God in His house. We should find joy and delight in this worship and service.

First.—We are called upon to delight in God's house. "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise" is the exhortation of the Psalms. Thus we are called upon to find delight in the public worship of God, and in response to this call we should come with a spirit of joy and of gladness, of praise and of thanksgiving, into the house of God.

Second.—The house of God is worthy our delight. "How amiable are Thy tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts!" exclaims the psalmist. "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth, for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God. The sparrow hath found a house and the swallow a nest for itself, where she may lay her young, even Thine altars, O Lord of Hosts, my King and my God. Blessed are they that dwell in Thy house; they will be still praising Thee." The worth of worship in the house of God is appreciated by all who enter into it with the right spirit. This was the experience of the psalmist, for he declared that his soul longed for the courts of the Lord. Even the birds of the air delighted to make their nests about the sacred temple, and certainly if the birds could thus delight in the house of God much more should His people, who understand its value and its blessings.

Third.—There are many sources of joy and delight in the house of God. (a) There is the delight of praise. We are to enter into His courts with thanksgiving and with praise, and the heart and voice that truly praise God find delight in this devotional exercise. (b) There is the delight of fellowship with God. God's house is the place of His particular abode. Here above all places He delights to meet His people. Here we can have the best fellowship and communion with Him. It is always a supreme delight to those who are truly His children. (c) There is the joy of Christian fellowship and of Christian service.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. lxvi, 1-15; lxxxix, 1-12; cxiv, 17-19; cxxii, 1-9; cxxxv, 1-5; cxxxvii, 1-6; Matt. xiii, 16-20; Acts ii, 42-47; xx, 28; Eph. v, 25, 29; Heb. x, 23-25.

Salvation.

Salvation, as a growth, is no cheap and fleeting result. It has dignity and endurance, and they who make it theirs to any good degree are the men and women of various and sterling growth upon whom the temple of civilization rests, with all its riches of use and beauty, as on strong columns. Salvation, as the putting forth of our complex life into higher and better growths, is a gradual achievement and cannot be consummated even in this sphere of our existence. For whose nature, enriched as it may be, has culminated in all the perfections of life? The great year of eternity is still a year of growth. Ever the way opens and the ardor rises. We may find indifference low down, but never far up, for ever wisdom and virtue and love and piety know their own value and find in themselves the sufficient motive of progress.—Universalist Leader.

The Struggle Against Sin.

No advance in material conditions, however, can change the need of struggle against sin, the need of effort for individual overcoming and for social service. The new comforts are too often merely new temptations to self seeking, pride and the neglect of brotherly kindness. But here, also, while they may increase our dangers, they enlarge our opportunity. The power of the true disciple in gift and influence never reached so far as it may in the civilization of today. All the resources of the new control of matter are at the service of the church, and all the powers of knowledge throw new light upon the work of God. The world's improvement is the improvement of an instrument. The improvement of the workman can only come through experience of the life that is hid with Christ in God.—Congregationalist.

Yea or Nay?

'Tis but the mortal body of a day
That dies. The spirit passes not away,
But leaves deep impress on the lives of men,
Molded by its resistless yea or nay.
—Era.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 14, "Delight In God's House."
Text, Ps. lxxxiv, 1-4; Ps. c, 1-5.

Various motives influence people to attend church. Some of these are higher and better than others. Going to meeting ought to improve one in many ways and usually is of much benefit. Some go because the number is small and they feel an obligation to sustain the service. There is satisfaction afterward in feeling that one has performed duty. It would be well if many who do not go would have more of this spirit. The habit of frequenting God's house should be firmly established in early years. The nature of our associations and recreations has great influence in making character. We may not have been accustomed to look upon going to meeting as any sort of recreation, but it really is such in the truest sense. There is a restfulness to body and mind in the services of the church after a day of hard work in the home or in business life such as can scarcely be found elsewhere. The excitement is not of the kind found in places of amusement. But it will be more likely to fit one for the work of the next day. No exhaustion of powers and fatigue is likely to follow the attendance upon the services of the church as so often it does the dissipation and strain of mere entertainment.

Relish for all these things is somewhat a matter of cultivation. To get the most profit one must not merely enjoy meeting people, but must relish meeting people whose aim is devotional in their gathering. Something more than mere enjoyment of music in general is necessary. We need to cultivate love of sacred music, not for the science of the artistic finish, but for the sentiments expressed. The songs and hymns aid us to express our feelings toward God, and in so expressing ourselves we find real delight. So in prayer and testimony there are given us the means of communicating to others our heart life as well as our opinions. This part of our nature is of the greatest value to us, and just in proportion as we develop its capacities we enlarge our means of enjoyment.

No use of our powers gives such high satisfaction as praise and worship of God.

No communication of thought and desire to another so relieves the strain of soul and brings such quiet and peace as prayer.

No association of congenial persons is so elevating and helpful as the gathering of Christians for mutual comfort and counsel.

The fraternity of feeling becomes deepened and enlarged in scope, and the filial regard for God is strengthened.

Sometimes there comes a feeling that to go to church so often is tiresome, and our young people need to be on their guard lest they yield to the inclination to stay away. Go, and your interest will increase into delight if you take hold in earnest and do your part. Especially avoid attending the league service only and then forsaking the regular service of the church.

God's Works In Nature.

Nature alone can never tell us all we ought to know of God. It cannot contain Him; it cannot reveal Him. It represents His work at an unfinished stage, and it can only point us toward His goal of work and not explain it. He who knows God only as he finds Him in the powers and manifestations of the material world will have a God to fear and not to love. A common thought, from which men fell by thousands into atheism after the Lisbon earthquake a century and a half ago, was a finished world and a withdrawn and resting Creator. Voltaire poured scorn upon the notion that this is the best possible world and that God's character as revealed by it is wholly good. The fact is that the world is not ideally good, not a finished product in any sense, only a good place for the work it is designed to do. It is adopted for the birth and growth of character—a good place to make progress and to overcome, a gift to be improved, not rested in. But to judge God by its present condition is like the child's judgment of the workman by a slight glance at his unfinished work.—Congregationalist.

We Rise Through Effort.

When we ascend a hill, do we rise in spite of it or because of it? Manifestly we do both. The hill tends to force us back, downward, and so we rise in spite of it. On the other hand, we could not rise without it. Unlimited energy on a dead level will not carry us upward. Our rising in spite of the hill, then, is to be credited to our wisdom in taking advantage of circumstances and making of them an opportunity for rising. In either case we must do—the hill does nothing. Difficulties, losses, sorrows, tend to depress and throw us backward. They are circumstances which we must regard as opportunities. We can rise in spite of them and rise because of them. —Patterson du Bois.

Doing Good to Each Other.

Few of us appreciate our surroundings, advantages and friends. We may not see it now, but some time we will look back and see where we were bettered by having been intimately associated with some true, noble friend. It is a duty, that of doing good to each other, that we perform almost unconsciously. How pleasant to live in this beautiful world, with so many unseen blessings, and yet how many of us think we have nothing to live for; but how desperately would we cling to life were we called to part with it. It would not be hard to die after all, but it would be hard to die and be forgotten.—Christian Leader.

CERTAIN RESULTS.

Many a Plainfield Citizen Know How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Plainfield. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I was subject to pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

VACATIONS

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.

The Rudeness of Women

THE two sat on the veranda. Mary Hollis had reached that part of the latest novel where the rather gushing authoress gave herself up to the luxury of a soliloquy.

"O woman!" she read. "How thou embellishest the plain prose of life and bringest by thy gracious, kindly manners sunshine and happiness into this bleak world of ours!"

"Ah, how sweetly true!" sighed Mrs. Ainstruther sentimentally. Then all at once her expression changed. She sat up very straight and gazed absentmindedly right over the head of a girl who had nodded to her from the street.

"Why, isn't that the girl you were introduced to at the Brixtons' tea?" Mary asked in surprise.

"Introduced? Oh, yes. But what does that count for, I should like to know? Besides, I've found out she isn't anybody at all, quite a stranger in the town, knows hardly a soul. The idea of her being so eager! I'll warrant she saw me sitting here half a mile off and came by just on purpose. No, indeed, I can't be bored. The first thing you know she'll be calling on me next."

Miss Hollis resumed her book:

—"'bringest by thy gracious, kindly manners sunshine and happiness'."—

"Good gracious, Mary Hollis, you've read that already! Do go on to something else!"

The girl closed the book. "You are right," she said. "Why read it? It isn't true. That's about the last thing the average woman wants to do—bring happiness into other lives. At the most she will only make a bluff at doing it for some man for the simple reason that it's to her advantage to appear amiable."

Mrs. Ainstruther positively gasped, but Mary went on. "She was a college girl with the courage of her convictions. Women who are supposed to bring politeness and graciousness into the world, as the author so sentimentally declares, are the very ones who have in reality the least of it. I claim the common laborer often has more real politeness in his heart than a dozen so called well bred women. Why, if you were to take the elements of fear, the desire of pleasing and the hope of gain from the average woman's life she wouldn't even retain the most common outward forms of politeness. Did you ever see women at a bargain counter? There you have their true natures. Watch them elbow, jam, fairly trample on each other. Do they care what hurt they inflict so long as they gain their end? Watch the women in the cars, how they bump into each other without even a beg your pardon, not to speak of their accepting seats from men in stony silence; how they converse in penetrating tones across the aisles—worse than that, across their fellow passengers. Who said men were more selfish? Are they when you consider the relations of women with their own sex? But this sort of rudeness one might almost forgive but for the other which proceeds from want of heart. Did you ever see two women introduced when after the first comprehensive glance one refused to talk to the other, perhaps because she was less fashionably dressed, and confined her attention wholly to the introducer? That is not such an uncommon sight as it ought to be. Did you ever watch a coterie of women who were having a good time snub another woman who was lingering timidly on the outskirts of the group longing to be asked to join in the fun? And there was no reason for their doing this except the natural instinct of a selfish child who refuses to share its toys with a playmate. Did you ever see a group of women gaze superciliously at a newcomer until, being clever, she juggled with all the influential names she knew, and then they fell on her neck and loved her?"

But Mrs. Ainstruther did not answer.

MAUD ROBINSON.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

poor creature! My heart went out to her. Thinking of that dead brother. She had told me that he was just 18 when he went away. Some people use that expression for the more solemn word, death.

She awoke fully at this, and stumbled up the step into the square hall and walked unsteadily towards the door of the room. I took up the dress-suit case and carried it within the room and set it down. Then I went outside and softly closed the blinds. There came a ring from Aunt Jane Mary's bell. I finished closing the blinds and went into the room again. My boarder was sleepily untying the knots in the muddy shoestrings. I looked at the shoes distrustfully. "I wonder who will clean your shoes?" I said.

"I don't know," she murmured; some one will have to. I will pay for it. Do help me, please; you have made this room so dark, I can't see anything. Oh"—she fumbled in her pocket—"I suppose you would like to be paid for the first week."

"I never thought——"

"Here, take it, it's just as well," and she thrust some money into my hand without counting it. I reminded her of this.

"Do let me sleep," she exclaimed, wearily. "No matter what it is. Easy come and easy go," and she had thrown herself upon the bed and was in the land of dreams before I had closed the door.

I had the muddy shoes in my hand as I went down the hall-way. I had taken them with me, for, so far as I could see, they were her only ones; but something else I had seen, and that was, that of the bills which she had thrust within my hand, one of these was of the denomination of fifty, and another was numbered one hundred.

I was almost afraid to have so much money at once in my possession, and that belonging to another person. As I went to put the bills carefully in my desk, they fell to the floor, and I saw there were four, the third and fourth being numbered five and five respectively. "I will keep these small bills," I said to myself—"it is exactly the amount I charge her for a week paid in advance—and restore the rest."

As I folded them to put them where my small savings were hidden away, I saw two dots or marks upon the very edge. Looking closer, I discovered that they were the letters "A. D."

"J. A. D.," said I to myself, remembering the initials on the dress-suit case. "Some relation, probably. I wonder if he marks all her bills." I looked at the others, and there in the corners of each were the letters "A. D." "I imagine I shall know a good deal more about my boarder than I do now before I finish with her," said I to myself; and I was not mistaken.

Just then Aunt Jane Mary's bell rang again, but for once I allowed it to ring apparently unheard. I wrote a hurried list for the village store, went to the back-hall window, called Baldy Towner from his wood-splitting, and sent him post-haste to the village. Then I took a half sheet, folded a five-dollar bill within it, wrote on the outside "From Mother," and addressed it to Tom, stamped the letter, called Baldy Towner back, and gave it to him; then I locked my desk and hurried across the hall to Aunt Jane Mary's room. I opened the door very quietly. I heard a whisking sound, and found that Aunt Jane Mary was panting and breathing uneasily as I entered. Had I not known that it was quite impossible for her to move or stand I should have thought that she had been getting up all by herself.

"It's such an exertion to reach that bell," said Aunt Jane Mary. "And how long you do take in coming. I thought I heard voices."

"You did, Aunt Jane Mary," said I, putting the hand-bell close to the edge of the table. "I've let the lower front."

"Without consulting me?" said Aunt Jane Mary.

"Why, Aunt Jane Mary, you know we've talked it over and talked it over, until I thought you were tired of the subject, and I let it the last time and you seemed pleased. Besides, I hadn't time."

"Hadn't time for what?"

"To consult you. If I hadn't clinched the bargain she would have thrown it up."

"Who would?"

"The boarder."

"What's her name?"

"I'm sure I don't know," I said wearily.

"What! Take a boarder and not know her name?"

"It does seem queer, now I think of it, but she has paid me for the room in advance."

"For how long?"

I might have said for a nearly a twelvemonth, had I been so inclined, but I knew that Aunt Jane Mary would demand the care of the funds, so I said only:

"Oh, for a week. I am to give her her breakfast and dinner."

"How do you know she isn't walking off now with my mother's sheets and pillow-cases?"

I laughed aloud as I thought of the poor, tired, overworked nurse and her one pair of muddy shoes. I said:

"Because your mother's sheets and pillow-cases are upstairs in the little hall closet. Those are my own, the ones she has—those that the ladies at the Hall gave me when I went to housekeeping." I sighed.

"The clock, then."

"The clock is mine too."

"The Holy Bible with the card-board marker."

"All those things are mine, Aunt Jane Mary. That room is furnished with my own things. Poor creature! She doesn't want to walk off with anything. She's a trained nurse. She's tired out. She has just come from her last case. She is nearly dead. The man died——"

"What of?"

I sat down stunned. "I never thought of that," I said.

Aunt Jane Mary held her hands out as if to ward me off. "Go! go!" she said. "Out of my sight! Out of my presence! Go, and fumigate yourself, and when you are sure that you can bring me no infection, come back to me and tell me the rest."

As I arose to leave the room, I cast a backward glance at the helpless occupant of the old-fashioned bed. Aunt Jane Mary was a very stout old lady. She had her head shaved and wore a black cap and a false front. She tied the ends in front in rabbit's ears. She wore a flowered sacque with large ruffles. She was not pretty, but she was my mother's sister, and the house was hers, and I had no where else to go. She needed a great deal of waiting on, and she scolded me unpleasantly sometimes, but if I left her, where would Tom come for his holidays? —my dear boy Tom! And I must say right here that she allowed me to take half of all sums coming in from the boarders in consideration of my doing the work. She needed an immense amount of waiting on, on account of her rheumatic gout, but there could be no question of my declining the service. She was helpless and she gave me a home.

I ran down stairs as swiftly as possible. I could not believe that J. A. D. had brought infection to us, certainly not willingly. Her profession of nurse must have taught her to be careful, and she had, I was sure, come from nothing worse than a sudden death from heart failure or something similar.

I went out on the veranda and resumed my discarded hemming. I had not sat there many minutes when I saw a man coming along the road leading out from Galtersville. He was on a wheel, and, as J. A. D. had done, he stopped at my door and jumped lightly to the ground. He leaned the wheel against a tree and opened the gate. There was no click of the latch, and in coming towards me he walked on the grass, which angered me a little, as I hated to have a path made in my small lawn. He came and stood at the foot of the steps and looked up at me with a pleasant pair of brown eyes. He wore whiskers and mustache. He was a man of about thirty-five, strong and stocky, but with the lightest, deftest movements I ever saw in anyone. He had on knee-breeches and an old gray coat, very much worn. From his lower pockets protruded several papers, and from his breast pocket stuck up the rubber head of a peneil. I knew at once that he was a newspaper man. I wondered if he had come to ask questions about the great family on the hill. If he had, he might as well go away again; my lips would be sealed forever on that subject. It was too dear a one to me, too near and too dear. I saw that he was speaking, but our great dog, Bill, was barking at the stranger, and I could not hear what he said.

NATIONAL DEBT OF PRUSSIA.

In 1900 It Amounted to About 8,200,000,000 Marks—How It Was Chiefly Incurred.

An article on the "National Debts of the World" appears in the North American Review. It is on "The Public Debt of Prussia," and is from the pen of Dr. Adolph Wagner, professor of political economy in Berlin university. Prussia appears to be in a very happy case. Summing up his description of her financial obligations, which were mainly incurred in purchasing or constructing railways, Dr. Wagner says: "Prussia's state debt, including her share in the imperial debt, amounted for the year 1900 to about 8,200,000,000 marks, entailing an outlay of about 321,000,000 marks (not reckoning the sinking fund of the imperial debt). That is to say, it represents about 244 marks of capital and 9.5 marks of annual charges per head of the population, against 314 marks and 12.5 marks in Great Britain, and 629 marks and 21.2 marks in France. But, in these latter countries, both the interest and the repayment of the debt have to come almost entirely out of the pockets of the people; whereas in Prussia, as in the whole of Germany, this is entirely achieved by the surplus from the state railways and other government property—a surplus so large that it suffices besides to cover nearly half the expenditures of the army and navy, so that only the other half and the charges of the civil administration have to be provided for out of the taxes."

MOST VERSATILE OF PEERS.

An English Nobleman Who Is a Preacher and a Schoolmaster in Turns.

One of the most peculiar of English dignitaries is Lord Normanby, who is a clergyman living in a castle, who not only attends strictly to the duties of his ecclesiastical office, but runs a school as well. Many sons of noblemen have been trained at Lord Normanby's beautiful Mulgrave castle, overlooking the North sea, near Whitby, and the marquis, who is at once proprietor and headmaster of the school, has won for it a lasting reputation. His boys are perhaps the only boys in England to call the holder of five titles of peerage "headmaster." It is said that Lord Normanby gently wields an iron rod and that his discipline is of the strictest kind, but no boy has ever left him, it is said, with anything but the happiest of recollections.

A story which ought to be true has been told of the marquis, who is, moreover, a canon of Windsor and a friend of the king. The wife of a millionaire, the story goes, wrote to Lord Normanby proposing to send her son to his school and asking if his lordship was careful about the social position of his pupils. She must have been astonished by Lord Normanby's answer, which ran: "Madam: For so long as your son conducts himself well and pays due attention to his work I shall make no inquiries as to the antecedents of his parents."

SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE.

Not Enough Attention Paid to It by Young Men in the Colleges of To-Day.

Secretary Wilson believes that not enough attention is paid to scientific agriculture by the colleges of to-day, and he has taken up the agitation of this matter as a hobby, reports the Brooklyn Eagle. Wherever he makes a speech he tells his hearers that the department utilizes the services of every young man it can find who has had a thorough training in some branch of scientific agriculture. There is a great demand for this kind of service, and the department has the utmost difficulty in holding on to its experts because of the growing outside calls that are being made on them. There are about 2,000 people in the department of agriculture who are engaged on scientific agricultural work, yet hardly one of them came into the government service fully equipped. Secretary Wilson calls attention to this fact to emphasize his statement that the colleges should give more thought and attention to the development of agricultural sciences. There are some 50 agricultural colleges in the country calling for competent teachers, and some 60 or 70 agricultural experiment stations, where there is always an opening for a trained scientist. There is money in becoming an agricultural expert, and Secretary Wilson thinks that our young men would do well to choose such a profession rather than the overcrowded fields of law and medicine.

Criminals' Fingers.

Remarkable testimony to the value of the new system of identifying criminals by their finger impressions was afforded in the case of a man charged at London with theft. While in Holloway prison the accused had finger impressions taken, and they were found to accord with those of a man sentenced at Reading in 1899 to six months' had labor for a jewel robbery. Prisoner, who gave a different name, admitted that he was the man.

Barred Skittles.

Some time ago the customs authorities seized a box of skittles that arrived in Constantinople on the plea that the balls were hard and heavy and might be used as cannon balls, which would be exceedingly dangerous. It was not till one of the embassies had taken a lot of trouble that the balls were given up.

An Extraordinary Order.

Recently a London merchant received from a crack regiment an order for a peck of fleas. The officers wanted the "varmints" to put in the bed of an unpopular subaltern.

SPORTING NEWS

GOLF.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team will go to Stamford, Conn., Saturday, to play the team from the Wee Burn Club. Captain Dumont, of the Hillside team, has planned to strengthen the team very much with the hope of winning the match.

The first individual championship of the East Jersey Golf League was held at Baltusrol and the second at Montclair, Howard A. Giffin, of the East Orange Golf Club, winning on both occasions. Giffin is no longer a schoolboy and consequently has less time for practice than formerly, so that he is certain to have a hard time of it in defending his title this fall.

Members of the East Jersey Golf League are wondering where their individual championship will be held this fall. The matter has not definitely been decided as yet, but President Paul Heller expects to have everything settled within the near future. There are a number of links where the league golfers would be made perfectly welcome, but from good authority it has been learned that there is a decided leaning toward the Essex County Country Club.

Frank O. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, who beat Travis at Morris County and later was in the semi-finals for the amateur championship, made his first appearance since Glenview at the seventh annual tournament of the Westbrook Golf Club yesterday and lived up to his reputation by winning the gold medal for the low score in the qualifying round. He won with a score of 78, 81—159, the best ever made in this round at the tournament.

This course at Hutton Park would make a capital place for the league championship. The playing distance for the eighteen holes is rather short, but this is easily made up for in other ways, as the Country Club is admitted to have one of the sportiest links in New Jersey. The first championship of the New Jersey State Golf Association was held at Essex county, and it was there that Archie Graham won his title of State championship, since won twice by Allan Kennaday.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Manager Johnston, of the Scotch Plains team, will probably play Albert at second base in the game with St. Mary's, Saturday, as Baldwin will be unable to play on account of the injury to his foot. Albert's place at left will probably be filled by Harvey or Davis, as both pitchers will be with the team for the rest of the season. Game will be called at 3:30.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

The candidates for the Alis A. A. football eleven were out for light practice last evening, under the direction of Captain Roy T. Phillips. Eighteen men turned out and much interest was shown. The candidates will meet again for practice, tomorrow night.

RUTGERS READY.

Prospects of a Good Football Team From the College at New Brunswick.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Sept. 11—Professor W. E. Breazele, of Paxton, Mass., has arrived here and will occupy the chair of mathematics in Rutgers College until the return of Professor Edward Albert Bowser, who is in Europe on a year's leave of absence. Professor Breazele was here several years ago as Professor Bowser's assistant. The college will reopen week after next.

The students already here are talking more about football than mathematics. Last year's eleven was not a conspicuous success, but there is reason to believe that material is available this year to make a winning aggregation. Four good players who graduated last year were Captain Wykoff, of this city; A. E. Brown, of Rahway; F. E. Foertner, of Hurley, N. Y., and F. L. Randel, of Brooklyn. The remainder available includes C. M. Herbert, of Manasquan; Stephen S. Malven, of Port Jervis, N. Y.; Ralph C. Morris, of Newark; William H. Stewart, of Kingston, N. Y.; M. C. Eagle, of Medford; Captain Alfred E. Hitchener, of Bridgeton; R. F. Moon, of Trenton; Fred Volkert, of New Brunswick; D. R. Edgar, of Metuchen.

The team is weak at the tackle, but a good deal of trust is being placed in the freshman class, which will include many members of the championship preparatory team of last year. The captain, Hitchener, has had two years' experience at guard. He is the finest line captain Rutgers has had in half a dozen years.

GUEST GONE.

So is the Major Portion of Proprietor Burns' Wardrobe at the Crescent Hotel.

A person who registered at the Crescent Hotel on Somerset street, last evening, under the name of H. R. Mullins, of Easton, Pa., disappeared early this morning with two valises containing, it is supposed, most of the wardrobe of Proprietor Burns. The missing articles include four pairs of trousers, two coats and two vests, several suits of underwear, sundry handkerchiefs and stockings, and one watch chain. As yet no clue of the man's whereabouts has been obtained.

Mullins appeared at the hotel early in the evening and after registering, requested to be shown to his room. His movements from that time are not known. The robbery was not discovered by Proprietor Burns until about 8 o'clock this morning. It was evident at that hour that Mullins had been absent for some time.

Mullins is of rather muscular built, about six feet tall, weighs about 165 pounds and has a smooth face and dark hair.

Peter B. Hodge, of Plainfield avenue, is spending a week in Atlantic City. Frank Fulton, an apothecary in the navy, is in charge of Mr. Hodge's pharmacy during his absence.

WHO'S TO MAINTAIN NEWARK PLANK ROAD

Hudson County Must Pay Three-Eighths and Essex County Five of the Cost.

IS THE COURT'S VIEW.

HAS FINALLY FILED HIS OPINION IN MUCH LITIGATED CASE.

How Court Determined the Relative Proportion to be Borne by the Two Counties Respectively —Substance of the Opinion.

Vice Chancellor Stevenson has filed his opinion in the much litigated Newark plank road case, in which he decided that Hudson county should bear three-eighths and Essex county five-eighths of the expenses of maintaining this thoroughfare.

The method adopted by the vice chancellor in determining the relative benefits derived by each county from the road is interesting, apart from the actual cost it assesses against the counties involved.

In the first place, he holds that the road is of little benefit to the abutting properties and that it is practically a continuous bridge between Newark and Jersey City. On this ground he assumes to apportion the cost of maintaining the entire road and not simply that of the cost of maintaining the bridge over the Passaic between the two counties of Essex and Hudson.

The decision does not apportion any of the cost to the Plank Road company or to the North Hudson Street Railway Company, and mentions the fact that, after all the testimony has been taken, the plank road and trolley companies were by consent of all the litigants stricken from the records as parties to the suit.

In taking up the different elements that might be factors in determining the proper proportion of cost to be borne by the two counties the vice chancellor says that the transportation of passengers in electric cars over the two bridges of the road is presumably for the equal benefit of the two counties. He holds the same view as to foot passengers and traffic in light vehicles. This reduced the points in dispute to that of the heavy trucking.

The testimony of a day's count of 1,612 trucks is taken up. Of these eighty per cent. belonged in Newark, twelve per cent. in New York and eight per cent. in Jersey City.

That portion of the trucking from Newark to Jersey City that embraced a carting of wares from Newark to be sold in Jersey City, the vice chancellor held, was an equal benefit to both cities. It was an exploded theory, he said, to hold that the city that sold the wares got all the benefit of such traffic. If the people in the purchasing city were not benefited also they would not buy.

Vice Chancellor Stevens said it was difficult to determine what proportion was engaged in traffic between Newark and New York only, and he said "great caution should be observed in adopting uncertain conclusions in favor of Hudson county, as the commerce between two large cities like Newark and Jersey City may well be presumed to be equally beneficial to those cities, except so far as the contrary is proved."

Death of R. J. Kilpatrick.

Robert J. Kilpatrick, aged twenty-three years, died last evening at his home, 526 West Sixth street, after a long illness. The funeral services will be held from the late residence tomorrow morning at 9:15 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9:45 o'clock, where a requiem mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

IN NEW ENGLAND.

Heavy Frosts Have Ruined Corn Crop in Northern New England.

Farmers in this section of the country may well be glad they do not live in the northern part of the New England States. In a letter to his son in this city, E. D. Cutting tells of a heavy frost which has ruined the corn crop to that extent that it is a total loss. Potatoes on account of the continued wet weather are a failure and all garden truck is more than half a loss. It is something unusual for the frost to appear so early in the fall and has caught all the farmers in that section and placed them in a very bad position.

WHAT ROGER MURRAY SAYS ABOUT POLITICS

Declares All His Activity Has Been in Behalf of E. R. Ackerman's Candidacy.

TALKS OF THIRD WARD.

DENIES REPORT THAT HE HAD AGREED TO GIVE DELEGATION TO RUNYON.

Says That He Has Favored Mr. Ackerman First, Last and Always—Lots of Talk About Possible Fight in Second Ward.

There was quite a little stir occasioned in local political circles, last night, when the possibility of a fight in the Second ward, as related in The Daily Press, was noised about. Everybody was curious to know just where the opposition was orginating and what strength it had assumed. When Former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray happened in the neighborhood of City Collector Smith's office on North avenue, last evening, he was plied with all sorts of questions.

"I admit," declared Mr. Murray to a Press reporter when the general bombardment has ceased, "that I have talked with a number of Second ward men but every conversation I have had has been solely in the interests of Ernest R. Ackerman for State senator.

Then Mr. Murray was asked about the rumor which has been drifting around to the effect that in the Third ward Mr. Murray had agreed with Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk that the Third ward delegation should be favorable to Judge Runyon for senator.

"Another fairy tale" he pronounced it and absolutely denied the story. "I have always," he explained, "favored the nomination of Ernest R. Ackerman and still continue to favor it.

"I have been talking," he continued, "with Mr. Fisk with the object of preventing any outside interference with the Third ward primary, and Hamilton Kean, chairman of the county committee, has promised both Mr. Fisk and myself that he will positively take no part in the primary in the Third ward. It is the desire of Mr. Fisk and his friends, as well as myself, that the people of the Third ward should be allowed to elect an absolutely independent ticket composed of the best men in the ward. It is hoped that arrangements can be made for a nominating primary to be held at least three days before the elective primary."

While the news of the likelihood of a contest at the coming Republicn primary in the Second ward was a surprise to many, it was not denied by those interested. The movement has been conducted so quietly that but very few outside of the circles interested have had any idea of what was happening. Now, however, that the prospect of a fight has been made public, both sides are beginning to prepare for the conflict. From the present appearance of things, the Second ward is going to furnish the only excitement of the coming primaries as far as Plainfield is concerned. It is possible other wards may have contests but nothing sensational has developed in that line as yet although any quantity of rumors have gone the rounds of strange activities and the sending of campaign funds.

Suggestions for Time-Tables.

An exchange says that the officials of the New Jersey Central have issued a circular letter to its employes asking them to make suggestions in getting out the fall time-tables. This is a recognition of the fact that the train hands often know the situation better than the superintendent.

BAYONNE PEOPLE WORRIED

OVER STANDARD OIL COMPANY'S THREAT TO LEAVE.

Attributed to Government Opposition to Needed Pier Extension on Kill von Kull.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bayonne, Sept. 12—The threatened removal of the Standard Oil Works from Bayonne to Philadelphia continues to cause consternation in Bayonne among the company's workingmen and among tradesmen.

Business men of Bayonne, who are only interested indirectly, are astounded at the threatened removal of the plant, which for years has proved the financial mainstay of the city. A panic would probably result here should the Standard attempt to carry into execution the threat made recently in Washington, D. C., by its attorney before the Assistant Secretary of War and the Army Board.

Sometimes the company indulges in extensive bluffing, and opinion locally is divided as to the earnestness of the threat to remove from Bayonne because the request to extend lines 100 feet has been denied by the War Department.

Many prominent citizens of Bayonne do not believe any real danger exists of the Standard plant going to Philadelphia. The cost and the loss to the company, as well as to Bayonne, would prove enormous.

Officials of the company in Bayonne refuse to be interviewed, pleading ignorance of the entire situation.

However, the question of pier extension on the Kill von Kull is considered of vital importance to the Standard, and the company will probably continue its efforts with unabated vigor and determination. An appeal to the Secretary of War and Congressional legislation are both said to be probable in the near future.

Opposition to extending the piers is credited locally to the Pennsylvania and the Lehigh Valley Railroad companies. They have asserted pier extension would prove a serious menace to navigation, owing to the narrowness of the channel. Further pier extension, it is feared, would create an unusually swift current in the kills between old Constable Hook and Staten Island. This would greatly increase the difficulties of the towing traffic through the kills conducted by these two railroads. Both send numerous lighters and tows through the kills at this point.

New Jersey's Riparian Board has granted the Standard's application for pier extension. Its shipping from Bayonne is enormous, and its facilities are known to be inadequate.

FED THE ELEPHANT.

Novel Social Affair Held at Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church Last Evening.

An elephant party was given in the parlors of Mt. Zion M. E. church last evening, under the auspices of the Charles Sumner Club. A large number were in attendance. Those present were attired as rag-muffiins, prizes being awarded to the two who were the most grotesquely dressed.

The entertainment gets its name from a contest called "feeding the elephant." A large picture is pinned upon the back of some member, the rest are blindfolded, and the point is to pin a bag of peanuts on the elephant's trunk.

The judges of the contest were Mrs. Rebecca Voorhess, Mrs. Josephine Tiel, Mrs. Lucy J. Henry, E. B. Maynard and Theodore Hooper. First prize, a basket of fruit, was awarded to Miss Evelyn Wilson and the second prize, a handsome vase, to Miss Mary Randolph.

Active Worker Gone.

New Jersey is to lose one of its most energetic Endeavor workers. Fred Arlington Taft, of Newark, superintendent of the correspondence department in the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, has been obliged to tender his resignation, owing to the fact that his business duties call him to New York city. Mr. Taft has done much to increase the efficiency of the department of which he is the head, having contributed liberally both time and money during his incumbency of the important post. The department is one which requires constant attention and much energy. These the State superintendent has given unstintedly and the work will necessarily suffer by his removal from the State.

To Build Foundations.

The New Jersey Central has decided to relay the foundations for the piers of the bridge across the Lehigh river at Easton that were damaged by the flood last February. The estimated cost is $75,000.

WARREN BOYS MADE A HIT

BY THEIR APPEARANCE IN THE ATLANTIC CITY PARADE.

Expected Home Tonight—While in Atlantic City, Were Guests of United States Company.

The members of Warren Fire Company, of North Plainfield, will return this evening, from Atlantic City, where they have been in attendance at the State Firemen's Relief Association Convention. They left this city Tuesday afternoon, forty-five strong, and accompanied by a drum corps. While in Atlantic City they were the guests of the United States Company.

The parade held yesterday was a big success and was viewed by thousands. The local company, which had a prominent position in the line, was the recipient of much applause by the crowd. The company was headed by Capt. W. C. Smith, to whom much praise is due for the fine display of the company. By his untiring efforts it has become one of the best drilled companies in the State.

The parade was in command of Chief Engineer Isaac Wiesenthal, of Atlantic City. Mayor Stoy, city officials and delegates followed in carriages. The City Band, of Camden, and Chief Wiesenthal, with assistant Chiefs Williams and Spiedel, headed the marching men, the United States Fire Company, the pioneer of the Atlantic City department, with the First Regiment Band of Philadelphia, in the lead. Atlantic City's first fire engine, a hand power apparatus, now owned by the May's Landing firemen, was a unique feature of the demonstration, as was also Jim, the oldest fire horse in the city, which was lead by Captain Clark.

Among the companies and apparatus in line were the Pleasantville Fire Company, Ocean City Fire Company, Atlantic City Fire Company, Neptune Hose Company, Atlantic City; William Penn Hose Company, Stockton, N. J.; Reliance Engine Company, Ocean City; Rahway Hose Company, Rahway; Rescue Hook and Ladder Company, Atlantic City; and the Warren Company, of North Plainfield.

ANOTHER HORSE SHOW.

Bernardsville is Arranging for Its First Affair of Kind Sept. 20.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bernardsville, Sept. 12—Bernardsville will have its first horse show September 20. It will be held on the Somerset Polo Club's field. The competitions number sixteen, and are for harness horses, tandems, jumpers, saddle horses, ponies and farmers' teams. The committee in charge are Archie Alexander, C. Ledyard Blair, C. M. Chapin, Walter P. Bliss, Seymour Cromwell, J. E. Davis, Clarence Blair Mitchell, George B. Post, Jr., Percy R. Pyne, Robert L. Stevens, E. T. Talmadge, Ramsay Turnbull and W. S. Blitz, secretary. This show will not interfere in any way with the annual horse show at Morristown, which will be held nearly three weeks later than the Bernardsville one.

Found His Brother.

Francis J. Blatz has received a letter from his father and mother, who are now in California, stating that Mr. Blatz had found his brother, Louis Blatz, whom he had not seen in thirty-six years. He knew his brother was California, and when he went west determined to find him if possible. Louis Blatz lived on the mountain back of North Plainfield, but left home when he was eighteen years old. This is the first meeting since that time.

Reception to Pastor.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel gave a reception and entertainment at the chapel Wednesday evening in honor of the return of their pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, and his wife from their vacation. The chapel was prettily decorated for the occasion with flags and flowers. During the evening a pleasing programme of music and recitations was presented, after which refreshments were served.

Owner Slept—Pony Walked Away.

John Guisseppe, of Newark, appeared at police headquarters, this morning and asked the police to help him find a black pony which strayed away from him last night. He was taking the animal to Rahway and the other side of Fanwood he put it out to graze while he enjoyed a nap. When he awoke the pony had disappeared and he hasn't found a trace of it yet.

No Quorum.

Owing to a lack of a quorum there was no business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street chapel last evening. Another date will be set for the meeting.

CITY'S BEST READY TO PLAY

Consolidated Nine Named to Meet Westfield at Westfield Tomorrow Afternoon.

WILL BE GREAT GAME.

Best Players of City League Have Been Chosen to Represent Plainfield Against Westfield's Crack Aggregation—The Game Will be Called at 3:30 o'Clock.

The Daily Press is able to announce definitely today the lineup of the Plainfield Consolidated team which will cross bats with the crack semi-professional Westfields, at Westfield, tomorrow afternoon. As may be seen it consists of the best all-round players in the City League, not only surpassing in the field but as batsmen, base stealers and the possessors of cool heads. They are as follows: Burns and Allen, Dupee and Barnes, batteries; (former of the Safe Works and latter from Y. M. C. A.) Egan, 1b (Y. M. C. A.); Martin, 2b (Hope); Cooney, 3b (Safe Works); Bolsterli, ss (Y. M. C. A.; Franklin, rf (Safe Works); Moore, cf (Y. M. C. A.); Lederer, lf (St. Marys.)

These men have been picked after due and careful consideration and it is strictly a Plainfield team. Not a man is hired for the occasion or receives any renumeration whatever and if the team is defeated, it means that Plainfield does not possess a nine that can do the trick.

As every baseball crank knows, the Westfields have been sweeping everything before them for the past two seasons, this summer's record being nineteen victories and but three defeats. It will be more than a feather in the cap of the Consolidated aggregation if it humbles the Westfields with a little Plainfield dust and from present indications there may be some flying about the diamond. The line up of the Westfield team was chronicled in a recent issue of The Press.

Manager Denman, of the Westfields, announces that the game is to commence promptly at 3:30 and that there will be ample accommodation for all comers, including carriage room. The Plainfield team will be accompanied by a large delegation of local fans. As this will be the event of the local baseball season, all who wish to see a good game, should not miss it The return game is to be played in this city a week from tomorrow.

FUNERAL OF R. J. KILPATRICK.

Services Were Held From St. Mary's Church This Morning.

St. Mary's church was filled with relatives and friends, this morning, when funeral services were held over the remains of Robert J. Kilpatrick, the young man who passed away at his home, Wednesday night. The obsequies were most impressive and were conducted by Rev. Father Egan. In the gathering of mourners was nearly the entire membership of the local Plumbers' Association, of which the young man was a member.

The casket was almost hidden with the profusion of flowers contributed by friends among which were set pieces from the Plumbers' Association and the employes of A. M. Griffen and a large pillow from the family. At the close of the service the remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery. The pall bearers were Michael Higgins, James Harper, James Fosbre, Harry Reilley, Daniel Hibbits and Edward McCann.

Too Much Business.

Owing to a rush of orders and the large amount of work on hand the Saturday half-holiday at the Taylor Iron and Steel Company works in High Bridge has closed. Heretofore the holiday has been extended to October.

Gift to Schools.

Councilman E. E. Pray has recently shown his interest in the Plainfield public schools by presenting them with Schedler's Planetarium an apparatus for explaining many questions in astronomy and geography.

A Big Load.

It is officially reported that the lines of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company carried 43,750 people, Labor Day.

New Odd Fellows Lodge.

A new lodge of Odd Fellows was organized at Bernardsville a few days ago with fifty charter members.

AN EVENING OF EUCHRE

MR. AND MRS. BERNARD BRADY ENTERTAINED AT THEIR HOME.

Guests Were Chiefly From Park Avenue Hotel and VanCourt Inn, at Roselle.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Brady, of Central avenue, was the scene of a brilliant assemblage, last evening, when a large gathering of friends was entertained at a progressive euchre. Most of those in attendance were from the Park Avenue Hotel and VanCourt Inn, at Roselle, where Mr. and Mrs. Brady have been spending the past summer and the affair was a continuation of many of a similar nature they have enjoyed during the season.

In honor of the occasion, Mr. Brady's beautiful home was lavishly decorated with foliage, golden rod and plants, while Dutch streamers formed a novel background. In the dining room the decorations were all of a Dutch nature and were alike unique and novel.

Ten tables were used in the euchre and the playing was brisk and spirited. At the close of the evening the winners were announced as follows: Women's prizes, first, Miss McDavitt, chop dish; second, Mrs. Hassell, comb and brush tray; third, Mrs. Henry Stothoff, bisque Indian head. Men's prizes, first, Harry Stothoff, Sir Ivanhoe; second, Joseph McDevitt, colonial head; third, J. H. McManus, smoking set.

Following the clearing away of tables, the guests proceeded to the dining room where an elaborate supper was se ved. The affair terminated at midnight.

Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stothoff, Mr. and Mrs. John H. McManus, Miss Helen McManus, Mrs. Somerville, Miss Somerville, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. G. Harry Squires, Mrs. Dodd, Frank Allen, Jarvis Conover, Hugh Pierce and Harry Stothoff, from the Park Avenue Hotel; Mrs. T. A. McDevitt, Miss Hose McDevitt and Joseph McDevitt, of VanCourt Inn; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Longman, Mr. and Mrs. Hassell, the Misses Ella and Rose Brady, John Brady and Mr. Daily, of Bayonne; Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Cogan, of this city.

CHURCH PAINTED.

Announcement Made at Meeting of Consistory of Trinity Church.

The Consistory of Trinity Reformed church met last evening in regular monthly session. One of the very satisfactory incidents in connection with the business transacted was the announcement of the wardens that the painting of the exterior of the building had been completed and paid for as also had the new slate roof on the edifice, both improvements costing about $1,100. Another enjoyable feature of the meeting was the reading of a letter from Deacon E. E. Anthony, of Wiccopee, N. Y., written in Mr. Anthony's well-known humorous vein, giving the Consistory a history of his experience as a farmer and truck raiser.

Euchre at Hotel.

The euchre party given at the Hotel Netherood last evening was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the fall season. There were fourteen tables and the playing throughout was spirited and very close. The prizes for the women were won by Mrs. Handy, Mrs. Halterman and Miss Louise Comes, while the prizes for the men were won by C. C. Clark, W. I. Comes and Mrs. Laud Brown. After the games the participants enjoyed refreshments.

A Birthday Surprise.

In honor of the anniversary of her birthday, Mrs. Oscar Moore, of Belmont avenue, was tendered a pleasant surprise party, last evening, by her friends. A delightful time was had with music and games and in listening to excellent vocal solos by Miss Minnine Hossinger, Miss Tiny Smith, Oscar Moore and Lewis Brucher and recitations by F. O. Smith. The affair was arranged by the clerks of Hill & Shupp's store.

Lutherans to Build Church.

In order to obtain funds with which to build a church edifice, the congregation of the Gethsemane Lutheran church, has secured Rev. A. Aaron, of Passaic, to solicit subscriptions. Mr. Aaron was pastor of the congregation last summer and is well acquainted in this city. He is an earnest worker and with his assistance it is hoped to secure a sufficient amount to begin actual work on a building.

Y. M. C. A. WORK IN COLLEGES

WHAT THE ASSOCIATION DOES FOR THE FRESHMEN.

Assists in Finding Rooms and Then Opens New Ways for Them of Earning Money.

Harvard, Yale and scores of college and university Young Men's Christian Associations have written the majority of the young men entering these institutions this month, offering freely the friendly services of the association.

The first thing a freshman looks for is a boarding place in the colleges where the dormitories are not large; in this the Y. M. A. C. of the colleges is able to serve him, as lists of rooms have been made up by a committee before college opens.

In some of the western colleges the Y. M. C. A. men hire express wagons to take the freshman's baggage without charge or for a nominal rate.

For men who work their way through college the association has an employment bureau and a committee of experienced upper class men who know how to advise with men who must earn all or part of their way.

Instead of being in dread of the junior and senior collegian the freshman now comes to look upon him as his personal friend. In this way the college Y. M. C. A. members treat the new men, some of them days ahead of the opening day, in order to make their preparations for the freshman's reception committee.

The association room becomes a club to the man, and his associates are among its members. In this way the membership of the college Y. M. C. A. is kept up to 40,000 in 650 institutions.

Robert E. Speer declares that "the safest and most religious atmosphere for a young man is not at home but at college," and the Y. M. C. A. by its friend-making and stranger-serving ways has been a prime factor in this.

The membership in college Bible classes last year was 20,000, and the weekly attendance at the religious services was 30,000.

The largest associations are employing regular secretaries to direct their work and securing permanent buildings in which club rooms and dormitories are a feature.

A man can pass through few colleges without feeling the wholesome influence of the Y. M. C. A.

PEACH FESTIVAL.

Began Under Auspices of Epworth League of Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Last Night.

The peach festival held last evening in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, under the auspices of the Epworth League, was a successful affair, both socially and financially. The church was very prettily decorated with scarlet sage and with hydrangeas and the arches hung with Chinese lanterns. Besides the tables for the sale of peaches and cream, there were three booths where candy, flowers and fancy work, respectively, might be purchased. Some delightful music was furnished by the Misses Ulrich and Randolph.

Miss Susane Pound was the chairman of the committee having this festival in charge. Those who presided over the booths were: Candy booth, Miss Rose Adams and Miss Etta Randolph; flower booth, Miss Charlotte Aldrich; fancy-work booth, Miss May Pound and Miss Mary Beekman. The waitresses were Miss Beulah Kline, Miss Olla Kline, Miss May Brown and Miss Daisy Brouard.

The festival will be continued this evening.

North Plainfield Mass-Meeting.

On Friday evening, Sept. 12, those who oppose annexation to Union county will have a mass-meeting in Saengerbund Hall, to which all voters of that borough are invited. Gallery reserved for women until meeting opens. Hour, 8 o'clock. Speakers, W. W. Howland, chairman of meeting, A. V. D. Honeyman and R. V. Lindabury. Meeting under auspices of the North Plainfield Citizens' Association. 9 11 2

For Educational Work.

A meeting of the educational work committee and instructors of the Y. M. C. A. will be held tomorrow evening, to arrange the educational work for the coming year. George E. Garretson, the noted bell-ringer, of New York, will be there to entertain, and refreshments will be served.

New Bridges.

As soon as the preliminary work is completed the contractors will commence the work of building the two new bridges in the east end of the city, one on Jackson avenue and the other on Berckman street.

HIGH SCHOOL CADETS HOLD FIRST DRILL

Many Promotions and New Plans Announced by the New Commanding Officer.

DIVIDED IN COMPANIES.

PLANNING FOR A CYCLE COMPANY FOR THE BATTALION.

City High School Boys Expect to Compete in the Drills at the New York Military Tournament. Several Other Plans.

The Plainfield High School battalion held its first drill at noon today in the school yard. There are about 150 members in the battalion and three companies were formed. Most of the time was spent in sizing the companies and regular drills will commence next week.

The following orders and plans for the coming year were published:

Headquarters, P. H. S. Cadets,
Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 12, 1902.
Series 1902-1903.
Orders No. 2.

The following information is published for the benefit of the battalion:

Promoted. First Lieutenant R. S. Lane to be captain; First Lieutenant F. T. VanAuken to be captain, Second Lieutenant and Adjutant G. A. Babcock to be first lieutenant and adjutant, Second Lieutenant and Quartermaster L. T. Koons to be first lieutenant and quartermaster, Second Lieutenant V. W. Brooks to be first lieutenant, Second Lieutenant M. T. Moynihan to be first lieutenant, First Sergeant E. K. Anderson to be second lieutenant, First Sergeant V. B. Miner to be second lieutenant, Sergeant L. L. Sheppard to be sergeant major, Sergeant M. H. Long to be quartermaster sergeant, Sergeant N. C. Hill to be color sergeant, Sergeant H. C. Fenno to be first sergeant. Sergeant C. F. Neagle to be first sergeant, Sergeant H. A. Brownell to be company quartermaster sergeant, Sergeant R. R. Eckert to be company quartermaster sergeant, Sergeant E. I. Weseman to be company quartermaster sergeant, Corporal A. F. Yeager to be sergeant, Cadet C. L. Slocum to be corporal, Cadet J. G. Loizeaux to be corporal.

Examinations. Another series of examinations will be held on September 25, at which time it is hoped enough will qualify not only to fill existing vacancies, but also to form a list from which officers and non-commissioned officers may be chosen to supply the cycle company which we hope to form a little later.

Medals. The Commandant's medal will be again offered upon the same terms. In addition to this, hundred per cent. medals will be offered for regularity and punctuality. Cadets must be present at all of the regular drills and exercises of the battalion, if owning uniform must wear it on all such occasions, and must attain an average of "B" in the bimonthly reports. If the cadet is an officer or non-commissioned officer he must be present at all of the regular officers' meetings and wear full uniform. To be counted present cadet must be in proper place before the roll is called and must remain there until battalion or meeting is dismissed.

Reports. Cadets will hereafter be marked for attendance and deportment and said marks will be placed on the report cards.

Officers' meetings. Regular meetings of the officers and non-commissioned officers will be held twice a month on dates soon to be announced and attendance will be required. All cadets must wear proper uniforms.

Guns. Cadets will be furnished with rifle and side arms and they will be required to take the same care of these that they do of their other school property, the condition of the piece being noted in making up the reports.

Special events. During the year we hope to offer the following special events to the members of the battalion. About the last of October it is expected to give a military entertainment, the details of which are being worked out. In the middle of April a sham battle will be given with blank ammunition will be arranged between the companies of the battalion. We want to organize a cycle company and we want to take this and our color company in to the military tournament in New York. The exhibition drill will be similar to that of last year.

Excuses. Cadets finding it abso-

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT FOR TROLLEY RIGHTS

Three Syndicates Are After Street Railway Franchises in Atlantic City.

PENNSY AND READING.

TWO BIG RAILROADS ARE INTERESTED IN TWO OF THE COMPANIES.

Peoples' Traction Company Makes a Strong Bid for the Privileges of Laying Its Tracks—Some Exciting Bidding Expected.

A three-cornered fight for a monopoly of the street railway franchises in Atlantic City has begun, which, it is said, is sure to enter into the contest for municipal offices and which may be felt even in New Jersey politics, for the Pennsylvania and Reading roads, rivals for seashore business, are admitted to be behind two of the rival corporations.

The three applicants for street franchises are the Atlantic City and Chelsea Street Railway Company, the People's Traction Company and the Sadler syndicate, which has its headquarters in Trenton, and is back of the project to build the Trenton-New York end of the propoed line from Philadelphia to New York.

In addition to these three there is another company in the background, which is understood to own franchises in Atlantic City secured many years ago, and is only awaiting the opening of the battle to assert its rights.

The Atlantic City and Chelsea Company is, it is admitted, backed by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The company asks the right of way over the principal streets and promises to pave Atlantic avenue at a cost of $250,000. Their project has already been presented to the Atlantic City councils. It is asserted that the Pennsylvania is also acquiring desirable rights of way from Camden to the seashore, in order to shut off possible rivalry in the shape of a Camden-Atlantic City trolley road, so long boomed by William J. Thompson, of Gloucester.

The People's Traction Company is the second bidder for franchises, and on Monday evening asked City Councils to pass ordinances for lines which would practically gridiron the city. The president of the company is I. A. Sweigard, former general superintendent of the Reading Railway, whose relations with the Reading officials are still very close.

The People's Traction Company is building many miles of trolley lines in south Jersey, and has charters for lines in nearly all the southern counties. When Mr. Sweigard was told that the Pennsylvania Railroad people had offered to pave Atlantic avenue at a cost of $520,000, he said:

"We will pave every street we pass over with any kind of pavement the city demands, and will keep it in repair forever without any cost to the city."

It is said that the People's Company has been at work for two years, and has secured the consent of most of the property holders along whose fronts the proposed trolley lines would pass.

The Sadler syndicate has also had agents at work for months, and when the City Councils take up the various ordinances in the fall the Pennsylvania and Reading will probably be found arrayed against each other, with one or two other bidders standing by ready to take a part in the contest.

Beware of the Knife.

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Save cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. "I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothes and heals. L. W. STORY OF SUCCESSFUL CAREER ON RAILROAD

Rise of General Superintendent Huntington, of Central, by Railroad Employe.

LITTLE KNOWN HERE.

BUT HE IS A WONDERFULLY POPULAR MAN IN THE SERVICE.

The Railroad Employe Publishes a Sketch of His Career, and It Tells Something About the Man Himself.

Among the new officials of the New Jersey Central, General Superintendent C. W. Huntington is probably one of the least known to Plainfield people. While those who have had occasion to meet him have found him courteous and obliging, it will interest the rest of the public to hear what The Railroad Employe has to say about him. In its current issue it prints an excellent likeness with the accompanying article:

"The same determination, coupled with the fixedness of purpose which has characterized the career of General Superintendent C. W. Huntington, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, who rose from a farm hand on the western plains and brakeman on a freight train, through the different grades of the railroad service to his present high position, would have won for him success in any line of commercial activity, for there are few men of this day and generation who are better equipped to deal with the knotty and complex problems of every day business life than Mr. Huntington.

"Born in Newark, N. J., May 31, 1857, in which city his father was for many years a respected and representative business man, and a member of the Common Council of 1867 and 1868, during which time the late T. B. Peddie was mayor, Mr. Huntington received his early education in the public schools and the Newark Academy, and early in life entered the wholesale drug house of Smith & Townley, now C. B. Smith & Co., on Broad street.

"In 1871 Mr Huntington's father removed with his family to Boston, Mass., where he engaged in business, and here he met with financial reverses during the panic of 1873.

"In 1876 the subject of this sketch decided to seek his fortune in the west, and removed to Iowa. Not afraid of work and imbued with a determination to do something he took the only thing that offered itself at the time, a position as a farm hand. This was in the spring of the year and he worked on the farm all that summer. With the suspension of farming in the fall he was compelled to obtain other work, and in September of that year he secured a position as brakeman on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad. Braking was hard work in the west in those days, but Mr. Huntington was equal to the task. He familiarized himself with his duties, and it was not long before he attracted the attention of his superiors in the service, and promotion followed.

"He remained with the Rock Island in various capacities for sixteen years or until June, 1892, when he was made superintendent of the D. M. N. and W., now the D. and M. Division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, where he remained until November, 1894, when he was made general superintendent of the Iowa Central, retaining that place until he was called to his present position on the New Jersey Central. During his connection with the Iowa Central, Mr. Huntington served under four presidents and an equal number of general managers.

"Mr. Huntington came with the New Jersey Central confronted with conditions which would have caused a man of less force of character and determination, of purpose to have given up in despair. The structure of the service was wrecked and shattered, the employes were demoralized, and the rolling stock was in the worst possible condition, but he accepted cheerfully and without complaint the conditions as he found them and gradually but surely he is bringing his road up to a high standard of excellence.

"Personally Mr. Huntington is a man of great force of character and determination of purpose. He never jumps at conclusions, but when he acts it is with promptness and to the point. With the people he meets in every day business life he inspires a feeling of good will and confidence, and this applies especially to those over whom he has direction. As a man understanding the intricacies of practical management we doubt if the American railroad service contains anyone better fitted by natural ability, education or experience to handle the operation of a big railroad system than C. W. Huntington.

"From the beginning of his career on the New Jersey Central the relations between Mr. Huntington and his employes in all branches of the service have been most harmonious and reciprocal. From the very day he assumed his office a better feeling prevaded the rank and file of the service than had been in evidence for many long and weary months during which time matters had been going from bad to worse until it seemed that the relations between the employes and the management were at the breaking point. The men in the service accepted Mr. Huntington, as they had a short time previously accepted General Manager Besler, for what they have since proven to be just and conscientious employers, gentlemen of the highest type and ideal railroad men.

"We have endeavored to tell the story of Mr. Huntington's life plainly and simply, that all who read it may profit thereby. It tells of the successful career of an intelligent American boy, who made his way in the railroad world unassisted by wealth or influential friends, surmounting every obstacle on the road to success, but at the same time retaining the love, confidence and respect of his fellowmen. It is a story with a moral and every railroad man who reads it should profit thereby."

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. Take it after meals. L. W. Randolph.

PRAISES ROOSEVELT

Utah Campaign Opened by Senator Beveridge.

BEET GROWERS CONTROL CONVENTION

Mention of Cuban Reciprocity Omitted From Republican Platform, but the Administration Is Otherwise Indorsed.

OGDEN, Utah, Sept. 12.—United States Senator Beveridge of Indiana opened the Republican campaign in Utah last night, speaking at the Opera House before the delegates to the Republican state convention.

The senator received close attention and was frequently applauded. He said of President Roosevelt in closing: "Do you name courage? Theodore Roosevelt represents it. Do you name honesty? Theodore Roosevelt is its personification. Do you name patriotism? Theodore Roosevelt named his on the field of battle. Do you name consideration for every interest of the republic? Theodore Roosevelt judges every interest in its relation to every other. No section owns him. He belongs to the nation. No influence controls him. He listens to the voice of the whole people. The humblest citizen may meet him face to face and have as full hearing as the richest man in the land, and he will give wealth and property their just and legal rights in spite of demagogue or mob. Simple justice to all, this is the spirit that rules the mind and heart of the chief magistrate of the American people. How may that which is best for all be practically accomplished? This is the question he puts to every problem that confronts him."

United States Senators Clark and Warren of Wyoming were also present and spoke briefly.

The Republican state convention nominated Joseph Howell of Wellsville, Cache county, for congress and Judge William McCarty of Sevier county for supreme court justice and adopted a platform in which mention of Cuban reciprocity was omitted. On this point the beet sugar interests of the state won after a somewhat bitter and protracted debate in the committee on resolutions. Friends of Congressman Sutherland, who was one of the Republican "insurgents" on the reciprocity question in the last session of congress, were determined that specific indorsement of the president's Cuban policy should have no place in the platform, and they prevailed. In this they were aided by the Church people, who insisted that a compromise platform cordially indorsing President Roosevelt's administration be adopted, but leaving out direct reference to the proposed 20 per cent reduction. So strong was the feeling over the feature that had the original programme as regards the order of business been carried out it is probable that an unpleasant incident would have ensued.

The platform as adopted deplores the death of President McKinley, recognizes in Theodore Roosevelt his worthy successor and expresses unqualified approval of his administration. It indorses the Republican national platform of 1900, favors the protective tariff as it now exists, recognizes the right of labor to organize for its own protection and favors a national board of arbitration to decide controversies between capital and labor. It favors the passage of laws providing for governmental supervision and control of trusts.

Motormen's Strike Still On.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The motormen's strike on the Hudson Valley railway trolley system is still on. It was expected to resume operations yesterday, but not a car was sent out, the reason assigned being that the sheriffs of Saratoga, Warren and Washington counties cannot secure enough deputies to afford the necessary protection. Company L, Second regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., has been ordered to hold itself in readiness.

Dangerous Shoal In St. Lawrence.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 12.—United States government surveyors working in the St. Lawrence river have discovered a large and dangerous shoal heretofore unknown near Morristown in the channel used by the Ogdensburg-Chicago line boats. It is but fifteen feet under water, with 150 feet of water on both sides. Four boats and thirty-five men are engaged in surveying the American and Canadian channels.

Furniture of Highest Character

Appeals to every one, yet it is not always possible for "every one" to enjoy it. The conditions which surround manufacturing are regulated entirely by the cost of producing this or that article, and we presume that there is no branch which offers such a wide scope for the turning out of artistic appealing home furnishings as that enjoyed by the furniture manufacturers.

Take any line your fancy might suggest, start at the cheapest and go along the range of prices and you will find at every step a better article and of course a higher price. This is a condition of manufacture. Now come with us to the store (and there are many) that sells on a basis of value, compare qualities, look at price tags.

Come back to New Jersey's Greatest Store, note the difference. Isn't it remarkable how convincing an argument becomes when you can show a positive saving?

Our lines are most comprehensive, embodying the best of their respective qualities based on a profit added to the cost.

Our styles are also the latest conceptions of the designer's art, and nowhere can you find as great a variety. We are carrying finer goods than ever before, and an inspection of our assortments will prove pleasing and profitable.

FAILED TO BEAT RECORD.

Thirty Thousand Witness Trotting Events at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Under weather conditions that were considered favorable, with the exception of a slight breeze that bothered a bit in the final quarter, Dan Patch, with McHenry up, went for the record at the State Fair grounds here. Patch went the half mile in 0:59¼, which was the best he had ever done except at Readville, and excitement reached fever heat in the crowd of 30,000 people watching the event, for it was thought he stood a good show to beat his own record of 1:59½. The third quarter was done in good time, but facing into the breeze on the home stretch he lost time and finished in 2:00¼. The time by quarters was 0:29½, 0:59¼, 1:30 and 2:00¼.

A sensational feature of the day's events was an exciting race to wagons between The Monk, driven by Mr. Billings, and Lord Derby, piloted by Mr. Smathers. At the beginning of the mile dash The Monk had a shade the better of it, but Lord Derby soon pulled up, and from the three-eighth post to the half it was nose and nose. Lord Derby forged a bit ahead and in the stretch was a half length ahead.

Memorial Services at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The anniversary of the death of President McKinley next Sunday will be appropriately observed by a special service at the Metropolitan M. E. church, where he worshiped while in Washington. At other churches also addresses commemorative of the life and services of the lamented president will be made by the pastors. The District commissioners, following the action taken by governors of various states, have asked the people and the churches to observe the day with appropriate services.

Haitian General Sentenced to Death.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 12.—The revolutionary general Chicoye, the Firminist commander who was defeated at Petit Goave Aug. 8, has been tried by a military tribunal and sentenced to be executed at Jacmel Oct. 9. Preparations for an attack by government forces upon Gonaives, the headquarters of the Firminist revolutionists, are being continued. The movement promises to be an important one. Port au Prince is quiet.

Fathers of Girls to Be Knouted.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—In a dispatch from St. Petersburg the correspondent there of the Daily Mail relates that the commander of the Cossack station at Wertschink, anxious that his district should show a preponderance of males, has ordered that the father of every girl baby born in the district shall receive fifty strokes with the knout. Several men, says the correspondent, have already been knouted under this ruling.

TO ENFORCE TREATY

Battleship and Cruiser Ordered to Panama.

GRAVE CRISIS ON THE ISTHMUS.

The Panther to Carry a Force of Marines, Whose Duty It Will Be to Land and Keep Transit Clear From Panama to Colon.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The commanders of the Cincinnati and Wisconsin, ordered to the isthmus by the navy department, will be instructed to enforce our treaty stipulations with Colombia strictly by preventing any interference with traffic across the isthmus and also to prevent a bombardment of Panama from the sea on the ground that this in itself would constitute a menace to traffic. Neither the Wisconsin nor the Cincinnati carries very large marine contingents, but any lack in this respect, it is said, can be made up by equipping jackies for shore duty should it become necessary to land a force on Colombian soil to enforce the guarantees of the treaty or to protect American interests.

The sudden turn of events near Panama came as a surprise to officials of the state and navy departments. Affairs in that quarter had quieted to such a degree that only the little gunboat Ranger kept watch. The Marietta was keeping a close eye on the trend of affairs in Venezuela, and the Cincinnati was performing similar duty in Haiti. The emergency arose so suddenly, therefore, that Haiti must be left unwatched by an American war vessel during the interval between the departure of the Cincinnati for Colon and the arrival of the Montgomery in Haitian waters.

It is thought that the center of trouble is likely to be at or near Panama City, and it is for that reason and because of the small size and complement of the Ranger that the big Wisconsin has been dispatched to the scene. Later in the day the officials of the navy department decided to take no chances of an insufficient landing force in case of an emergency on the isthmus, and orders were sent forward to the United States steamer Panther, which is now en route to League Island, to take aboard a battalion of marines upon her arrival and proceed to Colon. Orders were issued for the organization of the marines, who will number 380 men and will be commanded by Lieutenant Colonel B. R. Russell, with Major Barnett as second in command. Captains Porter, Butler and Marix will command three of the four companies, and Captain Lemly will act as quartermaster. It will be the duty of the marines to keep transit across the isthmus clear. The marines performed a similar service in 1885.

The news that a great crisis had been reached in the revolution in Colombia and that foreign interests were threatened aroused the navy department thoroughly. Secretary Moody at once telegraphed to the commanders of the battleship Wisconsin, now at Bremerton, and the cruiser Cincinnati at Cape Haitien directing them to proceed as soon as possible to the isthmus of Panama, the Wisconsin re-enforcing the Ranger at Panama and the Cincinnati taking station at Colon.

It will take the Wisconsin fully twenty days to make the long trip of over 4,050 miles down the Pacific coast to Panama.

The Cincinnati will only consume a few days in her trip across from Cape Haitien, so that by the beginning of next week she should have reached the other terminal of the Panama railroad. The destruction of Admiral Killick's flagship swept away the entire naval force of Haiti, and naval officials believe that the Cincinnati can relinquish her post there with safety.

Rebels Advancing on Panama.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 12.—A special to the Observer from Asheville, N. C., says: "Consul General Gudger has received a telegram from his son, who is vice consul at Panama, in which was conveyed the information that the revolutionists are advancing on the city of Panama. The message says the outlook appears grave, as only about 3,000 government troops are in Panama, while the insurgents have twice that number."

Southern Cotton Mill Burned.

STONEWALL, Miss., Sept. 12.—Fire from a spark in a shaftbox in the card room of the Stonewall Cotton mills completely gutted the spinning and carding rooms of mill No. 1, destroying 28,000 pounds of cotton in process and doing damage to the mill and machinery to the amount of $125,000 and probably more. The loss is covered by insurance.

September 15—Meeting of football league.

September 15—Opening of Boys' Club.

September 16—The annexation election in North Plainfield.

September 16—Opening of John Leal's School.

September 16—Continuation of opening of Boys' Club.

WHY?

According to announcement, Lawyer Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark, the hired attorney of the United States Steel Corporation and of the "antis," will speak against annexation tonight. With all respect for the good intentions of the "antis," some of their methods are truly not calculated to impose confidence in their cause.

They twice declined a challenge to debate given by the Union Association. They gave out figures early in the campaign and saw them completely refuted by official facts and figures which the annexationists repeated at a public meeting and afterwards printed in plain black and white on pamphlet form. This testimony has never been refuted because it is official and beyond dispute. And now, just three days before election, one of New Jersey's greatest lawyers is called in to use his ready wit and clever tongue to work upon the emotions rather than the sensible consideration of the people. The facts are there and the annexationists are willing to rest the case on them. It does seem as if the cause of the "antis" lacked strength when a clever lawyer, with absolutely no interest in the subject, is summoned at the last moment.

The people of the borough are warned that an able lawyer, like Mr. Lindabury, can give black the seeming appearance of white. Do not be carried away by any whirlwind of oratory. The facts are there and Mr. Lindabury or any other speaker cannot get around them. Just keep them in mind.

There are signs that some of the good folk of Somerset are waking up to the fact that that county has been slumbering while its neighbors have been hard at work. It was not so long ago that the county prepared to issue bonds to build an armory for Company M, of Somerville, to be used jointly by the Board of Freeholders. Then there is strong agitation, particularly among the legal lights of Somerset, to secure new county buildings. Now the Freeholders are actually thinking about bonding the county for good roads. There isn't any doubt as to the need of all these things but the trouble is that they all cost money. Somerset's county tax is well above Union county's now and just think of the huge advantages which the resident of Union has over his brother over in Somerset. And the most important fact is that the Union county man is paying less money. No wonder North Plainfield wants to get into Union.

There is a prospect that the attempt to organize a football league in Plainfield this fall will succeed. While it was soon evident that there were not enough evenly matched teams in Plainfield to form such an organization, the difficulty has been somewhat overcome by opening the membership to Westfield and Roselle. Even under the present arrangements, it leavse the Alis A. A. with a practical cinch on the championship. No one knows yet what kind of a team Company K may develop but past seasons have demonstrated the fact that neither Westfield nor Roselle has anything which can begin to make any showing against the crack eleven of the Alis boys. It is to be hoped, however, that the league can be succesfully arranged and that it will assist in promoting the most popular of all fall sports and keeping it in a high amateur plane.

It's really too bad that the Republican forces in Union county should get into such family jars as are going forward at present. If Plainfield could only be united and Elizabeth satisfied, it would be a sort of soul-satisfying situation. Then every Plainfielder would gladly see Councilman B. Frank Coreill come forward as a candidate for sheriff as there is no doubt that he would fill that office with much success. Those who have met him in a business way know what a careful and conscientious man he is and how well he would fill any public office if elected to it. The trouble is that now his candidacy with that of others is almost overshadowed by the factional disturbances and that the final decision seems likley to be made on factional issues instead of according to the ability of the men.

An underhanded attack is being made on one of Plainfield's city officials for political purposes. A contemptable story, which has not the slightest foundation of truth, is being circulated through the city. Certainly someone has sunk very low indeed to utilize such means to attain his political ends.

Tonight the "antis" have a mass meeting. They have also engaged Saengerbund Hall for Monday night but have not yet announced what they are going to do with it.

GOOD DISCIPLES.

Plainfield Fishing Club Has Been Reorganized for Season.

The Plainfield Fishing Club, better known as the Izaak Walton Angling Association, has reorganized for the season by electing the following officers: President, Elvaine VanName; secretary and treasurer, Edward Crosby; guide, John Butler; sergeant-at-arms, William Messler; engineer, John Porter; pilot, C. M. Meeker; captain Ephriam Compton; directors, Harry Dreier, "Pat" Muldoon and Eugene O'Reilly.

The club held a meeting, Wednesday evening, at headquarters on East Front street, and decided to have its launch renovated and put in first-class condition. Plans for fishing trips were discussed and in the near future the club will have an outing. One strict rule adopted by the club, Wednesday evening, is that anyone detected giving misleading information as to certain fishing places or the number of fish caught will be severely reprimanded. During the coming winter the club will no doubt give a banquet.

Pulpit Supply.

Rev. W. J. Swaffield, pastor of the Summit Avenue Baptist church, Jersey City, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. He is a magnetic speaker and is having a most successful pastorate in Jersey City.

Soon to Take Possession.

Manager Mills, of the U. S. Express Company, expects to take possession of his new quarters at the North Avenue station within a few days. The work of preparing the place for occupancy is nearing completion.

County W. C. T. U. Convention.

The Union County W. C. T. U. convention will be held at Westfield next week Thursday and the Plainfield Union will have a large representation.

DUNELLEN.

Peaches reigned supreme in the Presbyterian chapel, last night, when Mrs. Hamilton's Sunday-school class gave a peach tea. Supper was served at 6:30 and the waitresses were kept busy attending to the number of hungry people who flocked there for their evening meal. The Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club helped make the occasion more enjoyable by its presence. It gave an excellent programme. The chapel was prettily decorated and everything passed off successfully.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley and Cornelius Taylor went to Flemington yesterday as witnesses on the case of Vail against the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company. The case was adjourned till next Tuesday.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Presbyterian church, will hold a sale of homemade cakes and pies Saturday afternoon in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

J. N. Apgar and wife and Frank Wynoop returned yesterday from Atlantic City where they have been attending the firemen's convention.

The Democratic primary to elect delegates to the Congressional convention will be held a week from tonight.

H. A. Ironside, an evangelist, will hold an open meeting in Apgar Hall Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Fred Ward, of Newark, has been spending a few days with Mrs. Garrabrandt, of Prospect avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Tynan, of Cincinnati, are visiting Mrs. John Logan for a few weeks.

The firemen will hold a drill this evening and will wash out some of the hydrants.

William Beekman has entered the night school of the Plainfield Business College.

Frank Mohan has purchased a house on Jackson avenue near Green Brook.

John Tinsman has resigned his position in Dealaman's store.

G. T. Schenck and family are moving into their new house.

Mrs. Henry Vail will move to Reading, Pa., October 1.

Fred Wrage is now able to walk without a cane.

Fred Dayton is spending a week's vacation at home.

Band practice was held last evening as usual.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The annual list of dogs has been posted by Assessor French. One hundred and eighty is the total number on the list. French must have been around while a number of the canines were enjoying their summer outing as 180 can almost be counted in the street through town on almost any pleasant day.

The many friends of Miss May Cotton, a former member of the corps of teachers in the public school but now teaching in New York, will be pleased to learn that she is recovering very nicely from her recent severe illness at Union Valley, N. Y., and will soon be able to resume her position again.

Manager Johnston's colts will line up against the St. Marys, of the Plainfield City League, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. One of the largest Saturday crowds of the season will no doubt be present as the visitors will be attended by the usual crowd of rooters. A good game is assured.

The weekly teachers' meetings of the Baptist Sunday-school, which were discontinued during July and August, have been resumed again the first meeting being held at "The Manse", last night.

Wm. Martin, of Glenside Park, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever, is improving very nicely and will soon be around again.

"The Two Sons" will be the topic discussed at the Friday evening prayer meeting at the Baptist church tonight. Rev. Mr. Shott will lead.

Beginning with tonight the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church will be held Friday evenings instead of Saturday.

George Baldwin, who was injured quite badly at Campbell's repair shops, Plainfield, Monday, is improving very nicely.

A number from town will attend the picnic and dance of the Berkeley Heights Social Club at Hess's Grove, tonight.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., met and transacted routine business last night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Thomas Brantingham, chairman of the Township Committee of Piscataway township, has posted notices of a special meeting of the committee which will be held Thursday afternoon, September 18, at 2 o'clock, at the Nelson Hotel, New Market. The meeting is for the purpose of considering the application made by the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company for permission to change the location of its tracks from the east side of the bridge crossing Green brook and Raritan avenue, at East Bound Brook. All persons interested in the matter are urged to attend the meeting and make known any objection or grievance against the granting of the application.

The bi-monthly convenant meeting of the Baptist church will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The pastor's address will be on the subject, "Faith in the Immortal Life."

Mrs. P. C. Johnson visited her daughter-in-law, of Roselle, last Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thorne spent yesterday at Somerville.

GIVEN A CALL.

Pastor of Somerville Baptist Church Wanted at Haddonfield.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Sept. 12—Rev. Frank A. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist church in this place, has received a call from the Baptist church at Haddonfield. At a meeting of the members there a few nights ago he received the unanimous vote. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. Charles C. Earle, December 1, 1901.

For over ten years Pastor Smith has been at the head of the Baptist church here and his friends are legion. He is also secretary of the New Jersey State Baptist Educational Society.

When asked if he had accepted this call, Mr. Smith said he was not prepared to say what he would do.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Rogers Seafood Company is now receiving its largest and best shipments of oysters. Just at this time the bivalves are unusually fine in flavor and those at Rogers are no exception.

Gavett has a coal saver in the Backus Heater, a complete open fire place, Gas log and steam heater all in one. No watch, no smoke. No flue neccessary, heating capacity of gas inreceieved sixteen times.

To have the feet properly fitted with shoes makes life's troubles seem very light and easy to bear. Willett & Son, of Park avenue, carry in stock just the kind of shoes that are fit to wear and at prices that cannot fail to attract.

If you have not examined Putnam & DeGraw's stock of fall goods you have no idea of the many good things this firm is offering. The stock is complete and of the best quality. A well-appointed men's department is also maintained.

There is no doubt that F. H. Firstbrook, the Liberty street grocer, offers specialties that attract custom. His business is steadily increasing and all through giving his patrons their money's worth. Watch the advertising columns for quotations that can't be equalled.

Canning week is about over but there are still some choice shipments of fruit at T. L. Walsh's North avenue market. Peaches predominate but there is lots of other fruit in large quantities received fresh every day. Walsh's market is headquarters for fresh vegetables, too.

There is such a thing as having your laundry cleaned sufficiently but have you noticed that it is sometimes returned to you in a frayed and ragged state? This is often the case but not when it is done at Meissner's hand laundry. Exceptional care is taken that the linen is not injured in any way.

There is only one standard at L. W. Randolph's drug store in West Front street, that is the highest. The greatest care is exercised in compounding prescriptions and the best quality of drugs used. Mr. Randolph has an established reputation for selling the best soda, as well as Huyler's confection.

While waiting for your trolley car, just stop in E. S. F. Randolph's pharmacy and have a glass of his delicious soda. It is made of pure fruit juices and is just the kind that is popular. This pharmacy, located at North and Watchung avenues, has one of the best equipped prescription departments in the State.

PERSONAL.

Captain Price, of the Newark fire department, was a visitor at headquarters in this city, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. John D. Case, of the borough, who has been staying at Martinsville for some time past, has returned home.

Mrs. Josephine Lowerre and Mrs. H. O. Hance, of Grandview avenue, have returned after a few weeks stay at Asbury Park.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards and family, of East Front street, have returned from their summer vacation spent at Chatham, Mass.

Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank and daughter, Miss Helen, of Belvidere avenue, returned today from Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., where they spent the summer.

ATHLETICS AT HIGH SCHOOL

TENNIS WILL BE THE CHIEF ATTRACTION THIS FALL.

There is Not Enough Candidates to Make a Football Team Likely.

A few days will see the call issued for the annual meeting of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association when the board of directors for the year will be chosen by the school at large and the officers elected by the board. Five directors are elected by the pupils while Principal Travell has the appointing of a faculty and a graduate director.

As soon as the board of directors can be chosen, it is expected that no time will be lost in arranging for a tennis tournament for the championship of the High School in singles and doubles. This will be the second annual tournament of that kind. There is some talk of trying to arrange an invitation scholastic tournament for either this fall or next spring. Some of the schools of this neighborhood were approached on the subject last spring and showed considerable interest, promising to send their best players if such an event was arranged. The advisability of such a competition will be considered by the board.

From present appearances there is little likelihood that the City High School will have any football eleven on the gridiron this fall. There are few, if any, heavy players in the school and any team which could be organized would not be powerful enough to make any kind of a showing with other school teams. It was with great difficulty that the eleven was kept together last fall and now it is believed that, as several of last year's best men are not available, it will be best to give up the idea of having any team at all.

Increased Interest in Unity.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., met last evening, re-instated one member and received the application of another member for re-instatement. There now seems to be increased interest in the lodge and prospects for a successful fall and winter are bright. The members did not nominate Grand Lodge officers and representatives as originally intended.

Primary Union Anniversary.

The members of the Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will observe the seventh anniversary of the organization Monday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. An attractive programme has been arranged for the occasion.

Heavy Purchases of Land on Staten Island, Opposite Elizabeth, May Mean That.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, September 12—Unusual activity in the last few days in real estate on Staten Island between Mariners' Harbor and Howland's Hook, directly opposite Elizabeth, has started up all sorts of conjecture as to what is in the wind.

An agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has been making extensive purchases of land this side of Mariners' Harbor, both meadow and upland, and it is rumored that the Baltimore and Ohio contemplates the removal of its repair shops from Baltimore to Staten Island.

The railroad has applied to the State officials at Albany for permission to cross the wagon road along the shore with a four-track railroad. This and the proposed deepening and widening of the channel through the sound has led some to believe that the railroad intends to establish the long deferred Erastus Wiman terminal for New York harbor on the land purchased.

Another rumor has it that the new shipbuilding combine wants an eastern location for the Bethlehem Steel Company, which has been seeking a site in the east before the combine was formed. The advantages of the site in proximity to the Crescent shipyard makes the story probable.

Other stories have it that the great iron and steel firm of Milligan Brothers proposes to erect a big establishment on Staten Island.

In any event these rumors have raised the price of land in that part of Staten Island. A New York party came down to purchase a fifty-acre plot of land a few days ago and made an offer. The owner replied that he wouldn't take the offer for the whole plot at that price per acre. Attempts have been made to extend the holdings on the other side of Mariner's Harbor, but the prohibitive prices along the shore there may mean that the extension will be toward Elizabeth.

MOROS WANT WAR.

Many Queer Pretexts For Opposing Americans.

FILIPINOS SCATTER FALSE REPORTS.

Tell Chiefs That We Are at War With Russia and Spain—An Unfriendly Letter Forged by Warlike Dattos.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Manila papers just received at the war department contain reports from Major [illegible] regarding the Moro problem, showing what the various sultans and datos are doing, together with correspondence that has passed and conversations that have occurred between army officers commanding in that island and the different chiefs.

It appears that the Moro chiefs were informed by Filipinos from Luzon that Russia and Spain were at war with the United States. One of the sultans when asked why he would not be on friendly terms with the United States authorities said that the Moros were all under the direction of the sultan of Stamboul, and they had been informed that there was enmity between the sultan of Stamboul and the United States government.

Captain Pershing, in command of the cavalry, told him that this was entirely a mistake. Another datto made the claim that the Moros always had been in undisturbed possession of the Lake Lanao country and that even the Spaniards never had attempted to interfere with them, and they did not want the Americans to do so.

There had been considerable friendly correspondence with the sultan of Bacolod, but finally a very unfriendly letter was received from him, warlike in tone, which greatly surprised the American officers. By another Moro chief the Americans were informed that the ugly letter was a forgery perpetrated by two of the dattos under the sultan of Bacolod. These dattos were very anxious for war, one of them claiming that he could hold his fort against any force that might be sent against it. The war party was stronger than the peace party and was taunting the Moros who wanted to be on peaceful terms with the Americans by calling them cowards.

The Filipino insurgent Ruffino was found to be in that region making trouble for the Americans.

In another communication from the Moro country it is stated that Colonel Baldwin tried to get all the sultans and dattos to meet him in a friendly conference. The sultan of Bacolod professed friendship, but asked for three months in which to communicate with the various tribes over which he was chief. Moros in the camp of Colonel Baldwin said that this was simply a ruse to gain further time and prepare for war.

King Edward In a Kilt.

BRAEMAR, Scotland, Sept. 12.—King Edward, wearing a kilt and with a thistle stuck in his Glengarry bonnet, attended the picturesque Braemar gathering and watched the highland games, for which the place has long been famous. With his majesty were many members of the royal family, including Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales and their children and the Duke and Duchess of Fife. Troops were present, and highlanders flocked to Braemar from the surrounding counties. The sports went off excellently, and the king and queen received a great ovation. Their majesties exhibited the keenest interest in the games and subsequently returned to Balmoral castle.

Honors For Life Savers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The crew of the Holland-American line steamer Potsdam at Hoboken witnessed the awarding of honors to Captain Potjer, First Officer Metz, Boatswain Landena, Quartermaster Schwafand and several of the men. The deed for which they were honored was the rescue on June 25 in mid Atlantic of the crew of the bark Bishop Brun, which was on the point of foundering in a heavy sea. Presentation of medals was made by Captain T. M. Nichols at the request of the Benevolent Life Saving Station of New York.

Wireless Messages Across Alps.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The following cablegram has been received by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America from London: "Have received following from Marconi: 'Perfect messages received inside Gibraltar harbor and throughout entire course of Mediterranean tour direct from Poldhu across France, Spain and Alps. All telegrams for king and minister received correctly on tape off Spezia.'"

Boiler Makers' Strike Off.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The strike of the boiler makers at the Oil Well Supply company's plant here, which was begun six weeks ago because nonunion men were employed, has been declared off. The men return to work as individuals, without obtaining any concessions.

Electric Facilities For Valparaise.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Sept. 12.—A concession for the construction of an electric light plant and the establishment of a street railroad line in Valparaiso has been secured by Saavedra Benard.

Queen of the Belgians Ill.

SPA, Belgium, Sept. 12.—The queen of the Belgians has been seized by a severe attack of asthma, and a physician has been hurriedly summoned from Brussels.

MADE CHARGE WITH KAISER.

American Generals Take Part In the German Army Maneuvers.

FRANKFURT-ON-ODER, Germany, Sept. 12.—Major General Young and Brigadier General Wood and their aids-de-camp, Lieutenants McKinley and McCoy, charged with the cavalry led by Emperor William yesterday.

The Americans did not draw their swords, but they rode with the Gard du Corps, one of the household regiments and the emperor's body guard. This charge was the climax of the maneuvers.

About 9,000 horsemen, lancers, cuirassiers and dragoons, fell upon the flank of the retreating "blues" (defending army), capturing thirty of the latter's guns and 2,000 of its infantry. The cavalry started at daylight, made a twelve mile curve and at about half past 8 swept over rolling meadows and upon the enemy's forces, which had been theoretically disorganized by a heavy infantry attack. The 9,000 cavalrymen made a front of a mile and a half, and in the sunlight over the open country they rushed at a hard gallop upon the artillery and infantry, which did not cease firing until the horsemen were near at hand.

When the cavalry were within a hundred yards, the infantry quickly formed in close platoon groups, which the horsemen broke up, galloping between the groups and the guns.

Several horses fell dead.

The emperor, mounted on a white Arab horse, directed the movement and at the finish galloped ahead as recklessly as any trooper. The empress was present on horseback.

NINE THOUSAND DEAD.

Entire Army In Borneo Wiped Out by Cholera.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—Nine thousand dead bodies, of which 4,000 have been recovered and the rest have been swept away by the waters of the Batang Lupan river, tell the disaster that has overtaken the military forces of Borneo, as reported by advices from Honolulu. Through the ravages of cholera nearly an entire military corps of natives, sent from Simanggang to punish the head hunters of Borneo, was wiped out of existence. Scarcely 1,000 survivors reached home.

Seven hundred boats, carrying 10,000 of the best soldiers of the island, started up the river. During the first two days cholera appeared, and instead of being able to attack the villages of the head hunters in large force the command was able to detach only about 1,000 men as a flying column to advance on the enemy. Nearly 2,000 died in four days.

Hard on Card Players.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A cable to the Daily News from St. Petersburg says: "Drastic decrees against gamblers have been issued by the governor of Manchuria. All card players will receive a hundred lashes at the whipping post and will be compelled to wear metal rings around their necks. Persons who permit card playing in their homes, in addition to being lashed, will be expelled from the city in which they dwell."

Dedication at Gettysburg.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The equestrian statue of Major General Henry Warner Slocum, erected on the Gettysburg battlefield by the state of New York, will be dedicated on Friday, Sept. 19. Governor Odell and staff, the members of the Gettysburg monument commission and the members of the family of General Slocum will attend.

FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

The Correct Fall Fashions For Little Girls and Boys.

Busy fingers are now at work making pretty and useful things for the school children. For those who can afford it there are so many things all ready to put on for sale and they are so reasonable in price that it is best to buy them. But there are odd bits of material which can be utilized so that there is always something to do. And it must be admitted that while the "store suit" looks better at the outset it does not wear so well as the one the mother makes. This is partly because factory made garments must all be cut with an idea to the closest economy. Thus seams are not taken in as deep as they should be. While the saving on one suit would be trifling, it must be remembered that thousands are cut the same day, and half an inch saved on the different grades means yards in the aggregate. And, besides this, the seams are not fastened as the home maker would do them. The little garments are given out by the ton to poor women to finish, and as the pay is almost nothing the work is hurriedly done. So a clever mother who buys these garments would do well to go over the ends of the seams and buttons.

I am thankful to be able to say that those ill conceived and uncomfortable girls' dresses with the long French waists are rarely seen in the new fall frocks. The Russian blouse shape for little boys is to be popular, and many small girls will also have some sort of Russian blouse, but it is more likely to take the form of coats rather than of dresses.

There are several kinds of Russian suits, one being in sack form, with a belt of patent leather or white canvas. There is a wide sailor collar and any kind of trimming that one likes best. This blouse is suitable for boys from three to six. The next is a blouse laid in Norfolk, kilt or side plaits. Little overcoats of quite heavy woolen goods are made in the same way except that the overcoats are made much larger and are trimmed with fur in some cases. The loose belt is indispensable.

Little schoolgirls should be dressed plainly for obvious reasons, but they should have prettily made garments. Plaits and folds of all the different kinds known to womankind are suitable, according to the thickness of the cloth. Side and deep box plaits are the best for heavy goods, while the others look best in the finer materials.

I saw a handsome model frock for a girl of nine or ten, and it can be developed in almost anything, though this particular one was of fine Scotch plaid in clan design. The skirt was laid in side plaits all around, turning backward from the wide box plait at the center of the front. The side plaits formed a hollow box at the back, and the blouse was plaited down the front.

Some gulmpe frocks are seen, mostly "for nice," and they are made quite dressy by the addition of lace and ribbon. Sashes are worn again. Ribbons are made into fancy bows and set at the shoulder, and narrow ribbon to match the color is tied at the temples to hold the hair back. Long ringlets are once more the fashion, and all children whose hair will stay in curl wear curls instead of the fluffy flying bunch of the last few years.

For school dark, all wool goods are best, for if soiled they can be washed, while mixtures cannot. There are homespuns and plaids, cashmeres, cheviots and many more. All these make durable and pretty dresses. Much time has been expended this year in devising dainty white aprons for wear with the dark dresses. Nothing is so good for this purpose as linen lawn.

For small girls there are cunning little jackets that are reefer in front and box in the back. Some of these have side loops and the hanging loose blouse belt.

The everyday hats are to be of very soft felt, with scanty trimming, including a quill. The big hats are slimpsy and woolly, with a silky surface which is very rich and elegant. Silk cords and tassels, with a beautiful bird of some brilliant plumage, are seen on some. Others have a big fluff of ostrich plumes.

Quite a number of the long coats intended for cold weather have linings of bright plaid silk or are made of the double faced goods.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

Woman Diamond Expert.

A woman died lately in New York who was believed to be the best judge of diamonds in America. She was Mrs. Mary Ann Mills, head of the diamond firm of Mills & Coleman. She became very wealthy. Her occupation pleased her, and she kept actively engaged in it till her death at the age of eighty. She had been a dealer in gems forty-three years.

Of Mutual Benefit.

The president of a college says of coeducation, "This intertraining and equal training take the simper out of the young woman and the roughness out of the young man."

MYSTERIOUS MISS DACRES

By MRS. SCHUYLER CROWNINSHIELD.

Copyright 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

"Be quiet, Bill!" said I, giving the great creature a useless push with my knee. "What did you say?"

"I heard in town that I could get a room out here."

"It's a good way from the city," said I.

"Oh, that's nothing. I can take the trains and leave my bike at the station when I go in. Have you a vacant room?"

"Yes," said I, "but I don't know that it will suit you."

"Let me see it." As he said these words he came up the steps, his rubber shoes making no noise. I thought I heard the blinds of the lower front rattle, but it must have been my fancy, for the girl was sound asleep, I felt sure. I went in at the front door, and looked around to see if he was following. Yes, there he was, right behind me.

Now, back of the room which I had just rented to J. A. D. was another room, somewhat smaller, it is true, but very comfortable withal. Its back window looked out upon the wood-shed and chicken-coop; its side window upon the veranda.

"Have you other boarders in the house?" he asked me, after a cursory survey of the room.

I hesitated.

"I see you have," he said in his soft voice. "Very well, then, it won't do for me. I detest a racket."

"Well," I acknowledged haltingly, "I have one boarder."

"I may as well go," said the stranger; "some noisy fellow, I suppose, who——"

"I should not let my room to a noisy fellow," said I. "It is a young woman. She came only this afternoon. She is lying down in there."

"In where?"

"In there, in that room," said I, pointing to a door which made the rooms communicating ones.

"Never do in the world! What's her name?" The softness of his voice robbed the words of their bitterness.

"I do not know."

"What! Not know the name of your own boarder?"

It sounded so like Aunt Jane Mary that I could but smile.

"No, I don't know her name," said I. "She came up here a while ago,

"NO, I DON'T KNOW HER NAME."

tired out, poor thing, and I didn't ask her name. Her initials—at least of her dress-suit case—are J. A. D."

"J. A. D.," said he, "J. A. D. Well that doesn't tell me anything. Some gabbling girl, I suppose! She'll have half the village here in the early evenings, on the side veranda, when I am trying to sleep. And she's certain to have them in the daytime. I work hard and late at the office of the Star Union, and I must have my sleep."

"Then you are a newspaper man?" I said.

"What else?" said he.

Of course I knew it. I don't know why I asked. William was a reporter when I married him. I knew the signs but too well.

"Did—did—you come with any particular object about the—the family on the—the hill, because if you did——" He started. There! What a fool I always was. Why couldn't I have kept quiet? putting him on a scent which I was only too anxious not to have talked about.

"The family on the hill? and who pray, are the family on the hill?"

Then he didn't know.

"And who, pray, are the family on the hill?" he repeated.

"Oh, then you don't know? The Darlingtons. I thought perhaps since the Squire has just died, and the papers want so much to get at the news if his will, and where he left his property, that——"

The stranger laughed very merrily

"Hush!" said I, putting up my hand; "she is asleep."

"Who? Oh, the girl! Oh, no, no!" he said, smiling broadly and shaking his head. "You mistake me entirely. I get my living by much more difficult ways than writing scandals and society news. I do hard, legitimate work for my daily bread, but I see I may as well be going on. If I can't have a quiet place, there is no use——"

"Don't you call this room a quiet one?" asked I.

"Well, possibly. But that girl in there's an uncertain quantity. How long is she going to stay?"

"I don't know," said I.

"Doesn't she?"

"That I can't tell you, and she must stay her week out; besides, why should I turn her out to please you?"

She had paid me in advance, but I considered that none of his business.

"Are you sure she's quiet?"

"That's just what she asked about the house. I wouldn't dare take anyone who wasn't equally so. She came first, you know."

"Yes, I know she did," said he, smiling.

"I should—have to—to ask some sort of reference," said I, hesitatingly. "You know I am alone here, with my invalid aunt. We are far from the next farms, and I must know whom I take into the house."

"Why, certainly," said the stranger. "You are perfectly reasonable in that. I'll tell you what I'll do with you. I won't come to-day, but I'll come out to-morrow, at about this hour, and you'll have time to send the lady away. You say she has paid for a week in advance" (I had not said so), "but I really don't see why that should stand in your way. You could return it. How much do you charge her?"

"I don't see that that's any——"

"Of my business? Right. So it isn't! Now I'll tell you what I'll do with you. I'll go back to town, and do my night work, and bring a testimonial from my employer, the editor of the paper, and the manager, too if you like, and I'll agree to pay $2(a week for the room and board, if you'll let the young woman go."

I had never let the room for anything like that sum. It was a back room and much smaller than the one occupied by J. A. D. At once it seemed to me that I had let her have her's too cheaply, and I sighed, and decided to raise the price the following week.

"I couldn't turn her out," I said "She is so tired—almost ill, I think I really couldn't."

"Well," said the stranger, "perhaps I had better try it for a week. If she's noisy, I shall go myself." He deposited a pad and several pencils on the table and divested his pocket of papers, among which were the morning and evening editions of the Star Union. He saw me looking at the paper and picked it up, holding it towards me and pointing with an inky forefinger to a column on agriculture. He ran his finger down the page to the signature, "Henry Mallard."

"Here," he said with pride in his tones.

"Where?" said I.

"There, that's me, my nom de plume. I wrote that." He looked at the printed name with a conceited air. He ceased the contemplation of the mystic words suddenly and turned quickly to me.

"This room seems cold," said he.

"That's because there's a cellar underneath it," said I. "It will soon warm up with a fire."

"A cellar!" he exclaimed quickly. "How do you get to it?"

"From the lady's room," said I. He laughed. "That's capital," he said.

"Capital?" said I.

"Yes, capital—that it doesn't open out of mine. I hope she'll see her company down there. Very well, then, off I go. You'll see me back at this time to-morrow with a pile of credentials that high." He measured a foot of space between his hands, walked quietly along the matting-covered hall, went out of the door and down the steps, retraced his way over the grass, mounted his wheel and was gone. As I came back into the front hall, the new boarder was standing in her doorway.

"I heard voices," said she. "Where were they?"

"It—it must have been in the back room," said I.

"What back room?"

"The room back of this."

"Is that where that door leads to?"

"Yes," said I shamefacedly.

"You never told me there was a room back of this. Have you any other boarders? I thought that I was the only one."

"Really," said I falteringly, "I do not think that you should expect me not to let my rooms when I can. They have stood unoccupied so long, I must let them when possible——"

"Oh, have you only just let it? Was it when I was asleep?

"Yes," said I. "The stranger came just after you lay down. He likes likes the room and I shall have to let him have it. He will pay me well; he pays more than you do, and I cannot afford to lose him."

"What does he look like?"

"Oh, he's pleasant faced."

"Clean shaven?"

"No," said I. "He has whiskers and a mustache."

"I hate a man with whiskers," she exclaimed. "What is his name?" The same question he had asked about her.

"I really don't know," said I. "He is coming back with his credentials to-morrow."

"And you take a boarder, an utter stranger into your house without even asking his name. He might murder me all alone down here."

MITCHELL'S FLYING TRIP.

Strike Leader Goes to Consult With Governor Stone.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 12.—President Mitchell has completed arrangements for a flying trip to Philadelphia and Harrisburg. At 8 o'clock this morning he met a committee from the state legislative board of railway employees of Pennsylvania, and in the afternoon he leaves for Philadelphia, where he will address the United Labor council of that city. Tomorrow morning he will start for Harrisburg, where he will hold a conference with Governor Stone. He expects to return to Wilkesbarre the same evening.

H. Gaylord Wilshire, the well known socialist, was closeted with Mr. Mitchell for some time last evening. Mr. Wilshire is of the opinion that unless the strike is settled in a short time there will be a social revolution in the country.

The officials of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company claim the output of coal at their mines and washeries has steadily increased since they resumed operations. The report is discredited at strike headquarters.

President Mitchell says his reports from the entire strike region show that no miners are returning to work and that the output of coal at the few washeries is not what it is claimed to be.

People's Alliance Have a Plan.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—The conference committee of the People's alliance appointed at the convention at Hazleton last Thursday appeared before Governor Stone and submitted a plan for effecting a settlement of the anthracite coal strike. Their plan consists of calling an extra session of the legislature to enact laws for compulsory arbitration, better control of foreign corporations doing business in Pennsylvania and enforcing the sixteenth and seventeenth articles of the constitution.

ALL SEEK CLEMENCY.

St. Louis Boodlers Offer to Turn State's Evidence.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—The principal items of interest in connection with the investigation being carried on by Circuit Attorney Folk into the alleged boodle combines in both branches of the municipal assembly are the return of former Delegate William Tamblyn from Cleveland in the custody of an officer and the sessions of the grand jury. Before being placed in a cell Tamblyn asked to see Mr. Folk. His intention was to tell all he knew about the doings of the combine in the house of delegates, but he finally decided not to say anything at this time, for the circuit attorney told Tamblyn that if he desired to make any statement about matters that were being investigated he must do so voluntarily without hope of clemency. Mr. Folk said that he had all the evidence needed to convict the members of the house combine.

Circuit Attorney Folk says that almost every one of the indicted members of the house of delegates combine has offered to turn state's evidence, but he declined to accept more than two or three with a promise of clemency. Before J. K. Murrell's return and confession the members of the combine, Mr. Folk said, were so sure of their position that offers of the authorities to take care of the informers were spurned. Now the situation is different.

The Porte In Hard Lines.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 12.—Only one-half of the amount of money required for the payment of salaries, etc., upon the occasion of the sultan's anniversary, Sept. 8, was obtained from the provinces, and these collections were only made by threats that the provincial tax collectors would lose their positions unless the money was forthcoming. The balance of the sum required was made up by contributions from the fund for military purchases, customs receipts, etc. The money thus taken from the last named sources will interfere with the porte's payments to the Cramps of Philadelphia and to Herr Krupp of Germany for war materials.

Christian Science Cures Trotter.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Local turfmen are astonished to learn that a prominent trotting horse owner has put an ailing equine star in the hands of Christian Science practitioners, and the outcome of the treatment has astonished the horse's owner, who declares that the animal is once more fit to race for any man's money. The horse is Lord Vincent, winner of the famous ten thousand dollar Transylvania stake at Lexington, Ky., and the owner is William Todd.

Austrian Drummers Must Be Healthy.

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—The ministry of commerce has published the provisions of a new law which requires every commercial traveler in Austria to furnish a certificate of character and a medical certificate, the latter to show that he is free from infectious disease or physical marks of a repulsive character. The certificates must be dated within a fortnight of the time they are presented, and the authorities will thereupon issue the traveler a permit valid for one year.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

Patrolman Maurice Higgins says Wednesday's game ought to have been won by Plainfield. He says that the Plainfield police played the better game except for a few unfortunate errors.

That postponed game between the firemen and police is scheduled now to take place Wednesday afternoon. The firemen were a happy crowd, yesterday, when they read the story of the defeat of their opponents in Newark for they thought they saw another victory for themselves looming up ahead. Wednesday's game has showed several weaknesses in the police team which will have to be strengthened.

Having succeeded in defeating the pennant winners, the Y. M. C. A. team, the Scotch Plains boys are now going to try their hand with the team that brought up at the other end of the league. Although the St. Mary's did finish last in the race for the pennant they are capable of playing winning ball and they may be expected to give Scotch Plains a good fight when the two teams meet at Scotch Plains tomorrow afternoon. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock.

Some good baseball is in prospect for those Plainfield fans who journey to Westfield tomorrow afternoon to see the Plainfield Consolidated nine meet the crack aggregation which represents Westfield on the diamond. The general expectation is that Westfield will win, but it will be well not to be too sure as Plainfield has some good players and they are going to play fast ball that will make the Westfields hustle to win. The grounds at Westfield are very convenient to the trolley, so it is expected that many from this city will go that way. Then the Westfield management announces that it will be ready to provide for all who come in carriages.

Plainfield's crack twirler, Warren McLaughlin, will without doubt be in the National League, next season and probably too with the champion Pittsburgs. This team gave him a trial in its game with Philadelphia yesterday and baseball fans throughout the country are loud in his praises. The Quaker City people were defeated by a score of 8 to 3 and the credit of the victory is acceded to McLaughlin. He allowed but six hits and shut the opposing team out until the seventh when two runs were made. The remaining run was made in the ninth. He also struck out three men against the opposing pitcher's six. In addition McLaughlin made one hit and stole one base. He will be retained for the present by Pittsburg and will undoubtedly wear its uniform next season.

TENNIS.

The fourth and last tournament for the Ladies' cup will be played at the Hillside courts tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Egtries may be made any time in the morning before that hour. Next week, Wednesday, the final match will be played for possession of the cup.

Cut this out and save it.

LINE FOR RARITAN CANAL

QUEEN ANNE'S RAILROAD MAY RUN STEAMERS THROUGH IT.

The Steamboat Line Will Go From Lewes, Del., to New York —Its Plans.

The Maritime News and Review, of Baltimore, says:

There is believed to be a stronger possibility now of the Queen Anne's railway being extended down the eastern shore of Virginia to Cape Charles or some other equally inviting point near the southern extremity of the peninsula than at any time since the advisability of such a stroke of enterprise was first broached.

It has been decided to build two steamships, one to leave Lewes daily for Philadelphia, thence by Delaware and Raritan canal for New York. This arrangement is a forerunner for a coast line of steamers for New York. It is likely in less than a month a contract will be signed for the new steamships and the contract of the railroad extension awarded.

The Queen Anne's railway has developed the peninsula and shown to the business and financial world its future as a factor therein. A million dollars will be subscribed in Baltimore to put the ball in motion.

Since its completion four years ago the road has enjoyed a harvest of gratifying results, and its officers and directors have been seriously considering an extension of its lines down the Maryland peninsula to Chincoteague.

The volume of business handled is shown by the fact that during July and August passenger traffic was five times greater than that of the second year, and more than double that of last year. Freight traffic has shown about an equal percentage of increase.

The road traverses practically the same route that United States engineers recommended for a canal across the Maryland and Delaware peninsula to connect the two bays, but has never been built, owing chiefly to the great cost involved.

It is proposed now to enlarge the present facilities by extending the road from somewhere on the main line near Hobbs in Caroline county down to the Virginia part of the peninsula. It is proposed by this extension to place the products of the lower counties of the peninsula, including Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, in Philadelphia and New York at lowest possible rates and in the shortest possible time.

Fed Political Friends.

Charles P. Sebring, a member of the North Plainfield Township Committee, entertained about twenty of his political friends, last evening, at his home in Greenbrook. The affair was purely a social one, although there was a little discussion of the situation.

Will Give Facts.

The Union Association of North Plainfield will display some interesting facts with the aid of a stereopticon tonight, tomorrow night and Monday night. They will be thrown on a sheet near annexation headquarters on Somerset street.

MAY RESTORE DR. M'GILL

GOVERNOR MURPHY CONSIDERING HIS SUSPENSION BY VOORHEES.

Result May be That Dr. McGill May be Surgeon General of the National Guard Again.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Sept. 12—It is possible that with the next week the order, issued four years ago by Governor Voorhees, and directing the adjutant-general to cease all official communication with Dr. John D. McGill, surgeon-general of the National Guard, will be rescinded by Governor Murphy and that General McGill once more will be placed at the head of the medical department of the National Guard of the State.

Governor Murphy now has the matter under advisement, and a strong effort is being made to have Dr. Mc Gill restored to his full functions in the State's military organization. It is said that Dr. E. L. B. Godfrey, the assistant surgeon-general of the guard, is taking the most lively interest in the rehabilitation of Surgeon-General McGill.

The suspension of official communication with Dr. McGill was the result of a dispute between the surgeon-general and the late Adjutant-General Stryker and Governor Voorhees. The dispute arose during the recruiting of the State troops for the Spanish-American War, and, it is said, was due to the disposition of Dr. McGill to want to conduct the medical end of the volunteer service on the same basis as the medical bureau at Washington conducts the regular army.

Dr. McGill's ideas clashed with those of the Governor and the adjutant-general, who insisted upon adhering to the law, and having the officers appointed directly to the respective regiments and not detailed from the medical department, as Dr. McGill desired.

Dr. McGill declined to give way in the matter, despite the fact that Governor Voorhees was his commander-in-chief, and the result was that the Governor had his way and directed the suspension of all communication with the surgeon-general There was no way to get Dr. McGill out of the service, however, except by court-martial, and he continued to hold his rank of surgeon-general. All communication has since been held with the assistant surgeon-general, and there has been a feeling on the part of the latter official that his superior should be restored. It is not known just how Governor Murphy regards the insubordination of Dr. Mc Gill, so that the restoration of Dr. McGill is but a possibility.

Dr. McGill is a brother of the late Chancellor McGill, and is prominent in the Democratic politics of Hudson county. He has declined to resign his post as surgeon-general.

LITERARY.

In making the effort to present a fairly complete series of studies of the leaders in our American business world, the editors of The Cosmopolitan believed that they would be rendering a distinct service to the general public. Every effort has been made not only to secure disinterested writers, but at the same time to have the work done by men of large experience, who would be capable of understanding difficulties surmounted and appreciating results accomplished. Certainly no serial ever presented in The Cosmopolitan has been so widely read by the general public. Before the conclusion it is intended to cover the industrial world—those who direct in manufactures, commerce, banking, insurance, publishing, transportation—all the pursuits in which organizing talent has been required to achieve present development. In the September issue an insight into the careers of John W. Gates, Charles R. Flint, Sir Hiram Maxim. H. H. Rogers, John Arbuckle and others is presented.

"ANTIS" HAD THEIR SAY

The Anti-Annexation Mass-Meeting Was Held at Saengerbund Hall Last Night.

THE CHIEF ARGUMENTS.

Speeches by W. W. Howland, A. V. Honeyman and Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark—Fire Alarm Interrupted Proceedings — Some Idea of What Speakers Said.

Difficulties of a diverse character beset the "antis" in their efforts to plead their cause before the people, last evening.

Before the meeting scheduled for Saengerbund Hall commenced, many citizens headed for the "anti" conclave, were halted midway up Somerset street by "pro" arguments displayed on a canvas with the aid of a stereopticon interpersed with pictures of a humorous character. The hall was fairly well filled, however, and barring the applause from the crowd watching the banner display, everything went well until the "piece de resistance" of the evening, R. V. Lindabury, of Newark, was introduced.

He had hardly commenced his speech when the fire bell directly across the street began to clang and Mr. Lindabury's arguments against the contemplated movement were lost amid the shuffling of 100 pairs of eager feet that were striving to get their owners outside. It was fully ten minutes after the alarm of fire was found to be false before matters assumed the serenity they were enjoying before the break-up occurred. There was no interruption from then on.

The scheduled time of commencement was 8 o'clock and at that hour the platform was graced, in addition to Chairman W. W. Howland, by A. V. D. Honeyman, Rev. William E. Honeyman, Councilman Charles L. Nichols, Councilman Charles A. Lee, H. A. McGee, David Carney, Edwin S. Hooley, J. H. Cooley, John Linbarger, R. V. Lindabury, John H. VanWinkle, Sr., John H. VanWinkle, Jr., nad Dr. J. H. Buchanan.

The initial address was made by Chairman Howland, who dealt for the most part in personalities referring to Charles A. Reed as the "late senator." He mentioned at some length the much abused "literally bureau" which he claimed was presided over by Senator Reed and from which most of the articles in the local papers, referring to annexation, had their origin. Senator Reed's speech at the recent annexationist meeting, he declared to be so much interspersed with vituperations that the papers would not print it until one of them was cajoled into doing so many days afterward. Referring to Senator Reed's visit and talk with the Governor he exclaimed "I challenge Senator Reed to furnish proof that the Governor said: 'They don't want the riff-raff to vote.'" Continuing in this strain he alleged that the Senator had taken advantage of a number of mistakes he had made in some figures which he (Howland) had given out at the first "anti" meeting and which had been given him purposely by annexationist emissaries.

"Don't you think," he asked, "if Mr. Reed had been a fair minded or an honorable man he would have treated the matter in its proper light? It is my opinion that the Senator is not up in scripture as he is perfectly able to see the beam in my eye but cannot see the moat in his own. I made another mistake in those figures — a gross on, too — but curiously enough it was overlooked by the annexationists. I said Union county was going to build a courthouse at a cost of $500,000 but instead it will represent an outlay of nearly $650,000, the limit allowed by law. Mr. Reed also made a mistake when he said French's carriage factory was assessed $300 more on this side of the brook than on the other and I demand that he come before the people and say he was wrong."

In conclusion Mr. Howland said, "I also want Mr. Saunders to come out and say he made a mistake when he declared Somerset was $18,000 in debt for people, I want to know the whole truth and then let our motto be, 'North Plainfield and Somerset county forever.'"

This brought forth a storm of applause and when it subsided Henry A. McGee read an essay on the Plainfield sewage disposal plant written by Rev. William E. Honeyman. In it he made the assertion that the plant was a gross failure, that although only one half of the inhabitants of Plainfield had their homes connected with the system, the plant could not dispose of the sewage that came into it, that the stench was unbearable at least a mile from the vicinity and also that millions of typhus, cholera and dysentery germs were discharged into Green brook from the beds and yet North Plainfield is asked to add millions more to this number. The article ended with the prediction that Plainfield will eventually be compelled to pipe its sewage to tidewater and an admonition to borough people to "let the Plainfield sewer beds severely alone."

A second paper was read by Mr. McGee from Dr. H. K. Carroll, in which he gave his reasons for standing against annexation; mainly that he saw no good and sufficient reason for doing so, that he was not ashamed to live in the "rural" Somerset county, that he did not believe there would be less county taxes to pay in Union than is now paid in Somerset and lastly if Somerset county is not prosperous it is the duty of its citizens to remain and help to overcome the obstacles.

This led up to the introduction of A. V. D. Honeyman who was referred to as the "man who is well-known on both sides of the brook but who is unpopular with the Plainfield contingent." At the outset Mr. Honeyman remarked that he had prepared "thirty-five facts" as an offset against the "thirty reasons" complied by Mr. Saunders. He touched lightly on the fact that he had been bitterly attacked in a recent meeting and passed over to a statement that politics in Union county were in a turmoil and the borough people didn't want to get over the brook and mix up in them. He denounced the Martin act as a means of extortion from poor people whose property became involved and declared there was no such system in the borough but there would be if annexation came about.

He laid such stress on the statement that the Plainfield papers were printing untrue and one sided articles and that the conspirators who were pushing the movement to gain their own ends were doing their utmost to muzzle the press by taking away printing and cutting off subscriptions. He quoted an article from Thursday's Daily Press relative to Somerset county assuming a bond of $500,000 for roads and branded it as a falsehood and "that whoever wrote it ought to apologize."

"The fact is" said Mr. Honeyman, "at the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders, a man appeared before it and suggested that the county bond itself for that amount to build roads and that man was Senator Reed's father-in-law."

Mr. Honeyman ended with the expressed wish that he would see a greater North Plainfield instead of Greater Plainfield, a mayor with some local pride and common sense about him and not one who attended clam bakes given to show capitalists what good trolley roads could be built along the mountain for their profit and lastly the time when trolley roads would be made to pay for the franchises they are now give for nothing.

What was intended to be the speaker of the evening was introduced in the person of Lawyer R. V. Lindabury but as stated he had hardly entered upon his discourse when he was interrupted by the ringing of the fire bell. The counsellor made himself solid by stating he was a resident of Somerset county and not of Union as alleged and that he was but voicing the sentiments of the rest of the county when he spoke. The borough had no reason for divorcing itself, he said, and

Y. M. C. A. PENNANT WINNERS IN CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Apropos of the recent City League baseball contests in the race for the pennant offered by A. G. Spalding & Company, it may not be amiss to recapitulate the season's victories so far as they concern the Y. M. C. A team, as this aggregation fairly and by simple superiority won the coveted trophy. It was a hard fought battle and as every local baseball crank knows, the result was in doubt even until the last game was played. But the association team withstood the onslaught and literally as well as figuratively pounded its way to the front and stands today as the champion team of the city.

Undoubtedly anyone who is interested in baseball at all knows the personnel of the victorious team but in order that all may become acquainted with the members, The Daily Press reproduces today an excellent picture of all who assisted in pilotting it to the fore. It includes Captain John G. McLaughlin, Manager C. E. A. Heywood, Charles Dupee, left field; Berry Egan, first base; David Pond, left field and center field; Alfred Egan, right field; George Dupee, pitcher; John Barnes, catcher; George Bolsterli, shortstop,; Herbert Moore, catcher and second base; Chauncey Burt, pitcher, and Charles L. D. Smith, center field and third base. The picture also includes League umpires J. B. Young and Lorenzo Townley but unfortunately the features of Third Baseman George Schoonmaker are missing, it having been impossible for him to be present when the photograph was taken.

An old saying asserts that "a poor beginning means a good ending" and it certainly proved true with the Y. M. C. A. team. Its followers were somewhat blue after the opening games on Decoration Day when it assumed last place by dropping its contests with the Safe Works and St. Mary teams but it speedily regained lost ground and from then on until the end of the season it began a steady upward movement which at last placed it above the popular Hopes, who had all along maintained the lead. At the start Manager McLaughlin attributed the losses to a little looseness in systematic playing and set about to overcome the difficulty. That he succeeded goes without saying.

Not only did the team win eight of the twelve games in the series but it has been conceded the base stealing and batting averages, although the latter have not been definitely announced. It is also almost a certain that Herbert Moore will secure the best average for base stealing as hardly a game passed but he secured one or more.

In its games with Hope the Association team won three out of four, the scores being 7-6, 5-3, 9-12, 4-2. It also took three from the strong Safe Works team with the following scores: 4-6, 7-6, 6-2, 6-3. The St. Mary team, which lost every time to the Hopes divided honors the scores being 6-8, 9-8, 3-7, 6-3. Its second game with the St. Mary team was won after two extra innings had been played but in the fore part of the game it looked like a sure thing for the St. Marys. In addition to the League games, the Y. M. C. A.'s also battled the crack Westfields and lost but wrested one game out of a series of three with the strong Scotch Plains nine.

The members of the team are all Plainfield young men and have been identified more or less with local nines. This year was the first the association has been represented on the diamond since 1896 when it fostered a crack organization. Captain McLaughlin was then a member and has also played on various local nines. He is also a brother of Warren McLaughlin who is now pitching in the National League with the Pittsburgs.

George and Charles Dupee have been connected with school and college teams, Berry and Alfred Egan also began playing with school teams, Barnes has played in and about Plainfiled for years, Bolsterli, who is considered one of the city's best players, has been on the local diamond for seven years with the P. A. C., the Clinton Avenues and other teams and also out-of-town nines, Moore is a purely local player, Burt began playing on a college team and Smith is a graduate of the Hope team. The same players will represent the association on the diamond in 1903.

ASSESSOR FRENCH IS READY WITH REPLY

Answers Challenge Made by A. V. D. Honeyman at the "Antis" Mass-Meeting.

GIVES HIM SOME FACTS.

EXPLAINS IN DETAIL JUST WHY TAX RATE HAS GONE UP.

Takes Up Subject of Valuations and Their Increase—The Real Reason Why Net Increase is So Small —Other Questions Answered.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 13, 1902.
To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

At the meeting of the anti-annexationists held last night A. V. D. Honeyman challenged the assessor to explain a number of things in reference to taxation matters, which I will be very glad to do through your columns.

In the first place I want to repeat what I said in my letter to Mr. Honeyman, that my books are always accessable to taxpayers and futhermore I am always willing to aid them in seeking such information from the tax-books that they may desire to have. This office is always open during business hours and the books are here and are the public property of the borough tax payers. Notwithstanding this fact and the fact that Mr. Honeyman's office is almost directly over mine he has never once called to ask for any such information, and I wish to repeat here that if any tax-payer of the borough wishes any information about my books or as to the details pertaining to how the rates are made, I am here to lay my books before him and explain them to the fullest extent.

Mr. Honeyman charges me with unfairness in not publishing his letter to me, and I would reply to this by saying that he has never given me his permission to publish the letter and without his consent it would certainly be discourteous for me to publish it, although I feel at perfectly liberty to publish any letter that I may write to a citizen of the borough pertaining to the assessor's books, which is a public matter.

I wish to repeat the fact that my books were examined item by item, modified and approved by the Borough Council holding three successive meetings and that there was present at the time Messrs. Lee, Arnold, Northrop, and Nichols, and any reflection that he makes upon the way the assessment is made is reflecting upon the Council as well as upon the Assessor.

I would state for the benefit of the tax-payers of the borough, that the total amount to be raised for all purposes this year is $61,801.88, and it does not require a high school graduate to figure that the rate, viz: 2.58 multiplied by the valuation of $2,403,995, will raise exactly $62,023.07 which is $221.19 more than is required to be raised. This excess is to allow for the deductions which are always made in November by the Commissioners of Appeal, and it is very doubtful if this will be sufficient. In any case a rate of one cent less than the present rate will not be sufficient to meet the demands made this year. The assessor has little or nothing to do with the establishing of the rate as he is called upon to raise a certain amount by the different governing bodies and is obliged to multiply the total valuation by such a sum as will produce the amount required.

In regard to the special school rate of 97 cents which Mr. Honeyman would intimate has been juggled. I wish to say that the School Board commanded me to raise this year $23,359, $18,000 of which was voted by the people, and $5,350, they directed should be raised to pay off bonds and interest. Possibly Mr. Honeyman can show me how to raise the sum required at a less rate than 79 cents, but if the reader will multiply the assessed valuation of $2,403,995 by 97 cents he will find that the product is $23,318.75, which is $31.25 less than the sum that I have been commanded to raise.

Mr. Honeyman made a great point over the 1 cent increase in the Board of Health rate over last year, and I admit that I committed an error of memory when I said that it had formerly been 3 cents, as I should have said 2½ cents, but this is almost too small a matter to quibble over. I would state, however, that the Board of Health has never, with the exception of one year, in the past ten years received as much as it was entitled to, and the members of the Board of Health have repeatedly pressed to raise more money on the ground that the amount given them was insufficient. This is the reason for the increase of 1 cent in the Board of Health rate this year, and while they will raise a few dollars more than the amount they require, it will not make up for the amount that they have been short in previous years.

In reference to the increase annually in valuations, I would state that during the first three years of my term of office the valuations were large because the borough property had been underrated, and this fact, together with the natural increase which we have had each year caused the large increase during the three years referred to. In many cases large amounts of property had escaped taxation, and for years had never appeared on the tax-books, but since the

MISS CURRY'S WORK WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Her First Year at Netherwood Has Been Very Satisfactory to All Concerned.

THOSE WHO ASSISTED.

THE HOME WILL BE CONTINUED NEXT YEAR ON SAME LINES.

Did Not Interfere With the King's Daughter's Baby Camp, But Both Were Well Supported by the Public in General.

Without doubt the past season has been the most successful in the interest of Miss Curry's work at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. Although it was the first season in the new quarters at Netherwood Miss Curry has been conducting fresh air work in this part of the State for several years and it is safe to say that it is now in better condition than ever.

Early in the summer there were many who had misgivings as to the advisability of establishing this Home at Netherwood, believing it would have a tendency to injure the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on the mountains. The effect was just the opposite, for instead of injuring it proved a benefit and brought a greater amount of assistance and help not only to the Baby Camp, but the Netherwood Home as well. People soon learned to know both organizations and contributed freely to both. That the people of Plainfield have been very generous to both organizations can be judged by the most excellent work carried on during the summer so successfully.

In no small measure the success of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home is due to Miss Sara Curry and her faithful assistants, which included not only the mothers who came from New York, but several persons from this city. Not the least of these self sacrificing persons is Miss Minnie G. Morse, who acted as trained nurse at the Home and who earnestly and zealously assisted in the care of the children. Her efforts were greatly appreciated by Miss Curry and all those who had anything to do with the management of the Home. This work has and will continue to be one of love and it means considerable sacrifice to many. That the children have been greatly benefitted and returned to New York stronger and better for the time spent in the country is the reward for those who have been untiring in their efforts at the Home.

That the Home will be reopened next spring there seems to be no doubt, and now that it is well established in a comfortable and desirable location each succeeding year gives promises of being more successful than the succeeding one. There was considerable expenese this season that will not be necessary next year, such as the purchase of beds and cots and the expense of putting the Home in thorough repair for occupancy. There are some who hope that it will be possible for the organization to own the Home and thus save the rental on the place. No doubt here are public spirited citizens who will gladly assist in making this a reality and the support of the Home is sure to increase.

The King's Daughters' Baby Camp will not suffer in the least in consequence of this other charity for there are enough people in Plainfield who will stand by the home charity and see that sufficient support is given. Besides the various Circles of King's Daughters are constant contributors to this work which is a most worthy one and is sure to succeed with so many energetic Christian women interested in it.

Will Sue Elizabeth Times.

J. B. Mills, the well-known contractor and builder, has retained two of Plainfield's prominent lawyers to institute suit for heavy damages against the Elizabeth Times for an article which appeared in that paper last night, which Mr. Mills declares was utterly untrue and is derogatory to his character.

THEATRICAL.

With the original Drury Lane production of "The Great Ruby" at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, Minnie Seligman begins her season's engagement as leading lady of the Proctor Stock Company. James K. Wilson, the new and already popular leading man, will be seen as Prince Kassim, Rose Stuart will play Lady Garnet and Florence Reed, Mrs. Ada Levick, Florence Leslie, Paul McAllister, John Wesley and R. V. Ferguson, all Broadway favorites, will be cast in congenial roles. The scenery, properties and lighting effects, as originally imported and used at Daly's Theatre, will be employed in the Proctor revival of "The Great Ruby" and it promises to be the biggest production ever attempted by the Proctor Stock Company. The balloon scene, the cricket match, the military tournament and the other celebrated sensations which first brought the famous melodrama into quick attention, will be faithfully reproduced upon the Fifth Avenue's roomy stage. More than 100 people will be employed in the play and there will be the customary allottment of vaudeville between acts to keep the performance continuous. At the Twenty-third Street Theatre, George Evans, the "Honey Boy," in a complete renewal of his black-face monologue, will be the topping feature of an excellent bill of continuous vaudeville. The Proctor Stock Company will present "Mr. Walker's Ward" at the Fifty-eighth Street with Charles W. Bowser in his original role. Proctor's popular Newark theatre continues the presentation of high class vaudeville programmes as the medium of attracting great throngs of delighted theatregoers. The American Four, singing and dancing comedians, will be next week's top-liners with the Mozart Comedy Four as an extra feature. Charles Leonard Fletcher will be a special attraction in presentations of his clever character monologue.

LITERARY.

Justin Harvey Smith, the author of the papers on "The Prologue of the American Revolution" which are to appear in The Century during the year 1903, has been professor of modern history at Dartmouth since the chair was established in 1897. Professor Smith is a graduate of Dartmouth in the class of '77, and he is said to be the fourth who has received a perfect mark there, Rufus Choate and the late Chief Justice Field, of Massachusetts, being two of the others. Professor Smith was at one time a partner in a large publishing house and was for several years at the head of its literary department, but in 1897 he dropped business and after further travel and study abroad brought out "The Troubadour at Home," a reconstruction of the personalities of the medieval Provencal poet.

PERSONAL.

Charles Schenck, of Somerville, has entered the Plainfield Business College.

John Perrine and family, of Somerville, have taken up their residence in Plainfiled.

George Hooley, of Central avenue, will return to the Bordentown Military Institute next week.

Miss Belle Holcomb, of Somerville, is taking a course of instruction in the Plainfield Business College.

Mrs. Maria VanDoren and daughter, Miss Carrie VanDoren, of Plainfield, are visiting relatives at Millstone.

Charles E. Ball, spuerintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company, has returned from a business trip through New Jersey, during which time he visited many of his agents.

NATURE HAS ENDED THE INSECT PLAGUE

Long Stretch of Wet, Cold Weather Has Effectively Killed Most of Them.

DEATH TO ELM BUGS.

TUSSOCK MOTHS ALSO FELL VICTIMS TO ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS.

How the Cold and Damp Weather Was the Means of Ending the Insect Plagues—They Will Not Appear for Several Years.

The plague of tussock moth caterpillars and elm leaf beetles, which threatened at the beginning of the summer to work incalculable damage to the foliage in this section of the country, has been brought to a sudden end. Nature, as if bent on putting a stop to the ruthless destruction of her trees and shrubs, employed one of her many devices to protect herself, and practically all of the pests have in their turn been destroyed. The long stretch of cool, wet weather during the latter part of the summer was directly responsible for the termination of the plague. The chilly atmosphere killed the young caterpillars of the second generation, while the dampness caused a fungus growth that attacked the beetles.

Both the tussock moths and the elm leaf beetles were epidemic last year, which was the second successive season of the former in this vicinity. Little headway was made in fighting either of them. The caterpillars, or larvae of the tussock moth, were particularly in evidence by the end of the summer, there being three generations of them hatched. The entomologists estimated last spring that there would be at least twenty times as many of them by August as there were during the same month last year, as each female lays from 300 to 400 eggs and about 10 per cent. of the moths are females. When the first crop of caterpillars was hatched, early in the summer, this prediction seemed to be correct, for nearly all the trees in this locality were covered with the little hairy worms. The army of voracious insects did immense harm to some of the finest trees in the city and the surrounding towns.

The elm beetles, which have been prominent for several years, also increased tremendously in numbers this summer. Thousands of leaves riddled with holes show how the beetles have been occupying themselves this summer, while the many withered branches are proof of the bad effects due to the spoliation of the foliage during this and previous summers.

The first part of the second generation of the tussock moth was expected to hatch about a month ago. It was then thought that by this time there would be billions of the caterpillars devouring the green leaves. But the unusually cool weather came, and it is thought that the young caterpillars died as soon as hatched, when they are particularly liable to atmospheric conditions.

The fungus growth was produced by the long spell of cool and damp weather during the hibernating stage of the elm leaf beetle. It is a very low form of animal life, and is a parasite of that insect. The new generation of beetles was very prolific, for the female lays hundreds of eggs. In most cases the fungus formed on and around the insect in its larval stage, and sometimes on the sott part of the beetle, which is the adult stage. The fungus growth caused the body of the insects to decay, so that the beetles and the larvae became helpless and soon died.

The result is that there will be few or no tussock moths or elm leaf beetles hereabouts for several years at least.

Take Care of the Stomach.

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, of Holladay, Miss., writes: Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life. NEW AMBOY BRIDGE.

Contract Awarded to Sandford & Harris Company, of Hoboken —To Take a Year.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders has awarded to Sandford & Harris Company, of Hoboken, the contract for the building the new bridge across the Raritan river from Amboy to Sayreville. The bridge will cost $149,950, and the contract calls for its completion within one year.

This firm has had considerable experience in bridge building and has a force of 500 bridge builders at its command. Mr. Sandford was the originator of the contracting firm of Sandford & Stillman, of Jersey City, which firm is now voluntarily winding up its business.

Among the bridges built by Mr. Sandford are: The Passaic county bridge, foundation for P. R. R bridge across the Hackensack river; county bridge at Jackson street, Newark, and L. & L. Railroad bridge piers.

After awarding the contract to Sandford & Harris, the board returned the bids, deposits and plans of the unsuccessful bidders. It passed a resolution thanking United States Senator John Kean for twice securing the approval of the bridge plans by the war department. The second approval was necessary by the changing of the location of the bridge a couple of weeks ago, putting it 200 feet further up the river.

Miss Grace VanCleef, of Trenton, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Georgie Eick, of East Third street, for several weeks, will go to Westfield on Monday to visit relatives for a time.

NOVEL RETURN POSTAL NOW BEING CONSIDERED

One of Most Important Innovations in Postal Service Has Been Suggested.

IT WOULD SAVE MONEY.

SENDERS WOULD NOT BE COMPELLED TO PAY UNLESS CARDS WERE USED.

Ordinarily Ninety Per Cent. of Return Postal Cards Are Wasted—Means a Big Loss—How the Plan is Expected to Work.

One of the most important innovations in the postal service that has been suggested in recent years is now under consideration by the Postoffice department. It will be of interest and value to every newspaper, manufacturer, insurance company—in fact to everybody who sends out a large quantity of mail with the idea of getting replies thereto.

The plan will be put in operation if the department becomes convinced that there is really a public demand for it.

The proposed service is known as the return envelope and postal card system, and its working is very readily explained. It takes the place of an existing system which, instead of fostering, really places an onerous tax upon inter-state commerce through the mails.

At present, for instance, a newspaper that desires to increase its circulation, sends out a lot of circulars setting forth the advantages to be obtained by the subscribers to that particular paper, and encloses a postal card addressed to itself upon the back of which is printed a blank order for six months or a year's subscription, asking the recipient to sign and drop into the mails.

In the case of a business institution seeking to introduce its goods, the wording on the back of the postal card is, of course, changed to suit the occasion. Now each postal card costs one cent. Each thousand of them, therefore, represents an investment of ten dollars which, together with the expense of printing the cards and the accompanying circulars and mailing the whole out to possible customers, makes this form of advertising very costly; it is all the more so when it is considered that the returns rarely, if ever, exceed ten per cent. and in some cases fall below that.

A great many people have a habit, when receiving these cards, of removing the printed matter upon them and using the postals for their own convenience, or else they simply throw the cards away. As a result about ninety per cent. of the postal cards is a dead loss to the advertiser. There is a corresponding profit to the government without the rendering of any service.

One newspaper in Chicago, for instance, has been sending out 500,000 cards each year. Assuming it has received returns to the number of ten per cent. this paper is taxed $4,500 a year, or is presenting the government with this amount, for the privilege of using this form of advertising.

Under the new system which it is proposed to adopt, this tax on the people will be abolished. The government will receive pay for the amount of mail it actually carries. For this purpose it is proposed to authorize the use of a special form of envelope and postal card which are to be sold at reasonable price per thousand by a company holding the patent for the same. These envelopes and postal cards will bear a stamp designed to show that they can be dropped in the mail and carried to their destination, where the postage will be paid by the addressee before delivery.

The government, while thus receiving pay for services actually performed, will be guaranteed against loss, while the newspaper or business firm will save about $9 per thousand on the cards sent out; on envelopes about $15.

The new envelopes and cards will be distributed as the present ones are—in circulars, catalogues or with packages of goods, but if the recipient desires to throw the envelope or card away he can do so without entailing a loss of one cent or two cents upon the sender, while at the same time he cannot use the envelope or card for any purpose except that for which it was intended.

Clarence B. Vail, of the First National Bank, has returned from a pleasant vacation.

Mrs. Charles H. Smith, of Grove street, is spending some time at Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

The Summer Season

is full of dangers particularly for the children, who not knowing the result of eating unripe fruit, indulge themselves, with the usual griping pains in the stomach as a consequence; mothers should have on hand at all times a bottle of Painkiller (Perry Davis) which will at once relieve the sufferer; it is a safe, simple remedy and it should be kept in every house. Large bottles 25 and 50 cents.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

It will probably be necessary, after all, for the Legislature to prescribe the rate of speed at which automobiles and similar vehicles may be propelled in the public roads and streets. Last winter, when bills were under consideration seeking to limit the rate of speed, it was decided to leave that to the municipalities, and the law of 1902 authorizes the governing bodies of cities and towns to regulate by ordinance the use of automobiles and to impose a penalty of not exceeding five dollars for violations. The law requires that such machines must carry lighted lamps from one hour after sunset until daylight, but it also provides that the penalty shall not be imposed upon a non-resident.

Middlesex county proposes to forbid the use of the county roads to automobiles excepting between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4. p. m., and to restrict their speed to fifteen miles an hour. Farmers complain that the machines have made it impossible for them to use the roads at night. The penalty proposed is $50 fine, which, according to the law just referred to, will be illegal.

The Trenton ordinance limits the rate of speed to six miles an hour, Hamilton township to eight miles, and Hopewell to twelve. When the other townships have legislated on the subject, a chauffeur will probably be compelled to carry a schedule in order to know just what gait to strike, and will also need to be pretty well informed as to the municipal lines or he will get into trouble.—Trenton Times.

Although it is still early, the candidacy for the State senatorship is narrowed down to Cross and Runyon.

Senator Cross has to his credit two terms of honorable service. Mr. Runyon has had no legislative experience, but he is a young man of ability, and integrity, honored in his own city and respected throughout the county, and there can be no doubt that all he lacks to fit him for the office of State senator is experience.

If the Republicans of Plainfield insist on Mr. Runyon's nomination, their claims cannot be lightly regarded, for it must be admitted that they gracefully withdrew their candidate when Senator Cross was nominated, and gave him their support.

Plainfield can always be relied on (with Westfield) to give a Republican majority for the county and State and national ticket. She has had but few offices, and if her Republicans have concluded that now is their time, and dare to insist that they and not Elizabeth shall say for what office they desire to present a candidate, are they not right in their insistence?

Elizabeth has been plucking most of the plums for years past. She has at the present time the U. S. Senator, the Congressman, the Sheriff, the Surrogate, and has just had the Governor of the State. Is it not time for her to divide up?

If Plainfield can be persuaded to stand aside again, in favor of Elizabeth, well and good; Senator Cross is worthy in every respect. But if not, with such a candidate as Judge Runyon in the field, it will be hard to convince many Republicans outside of Elizabeth that Plainfield's modest demands should not be respected.—Westfield Leader.

It is fortunate for the Republicans that up to this time there are no signs of serious disaffection in their party in any of the counties, with the single exception of Union, where an unpleasant, if not threatening, factional contest exists between the supporters of the present Senator Cross, of Elizabeth, and ex-Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, for the senatorial nomination. This contest, unfortunately, extends beyond the senatorial issue, because of the combined partisan and individual differences and strife which it has engendered, going so far as to touch the membership of the Union County Republican Committee. As set forth by plain spoken and conservative Republicans, it is a struggle between two factions for the control of the party in Union county. Upon the surface there are no visible indications that this summary of the situation prevails, but underneath there is abundant evidence that the dangerous strife exists. There are, however, Republican assurances that the present trouble will be overcome, and that, after the county convention has been held and the legislative ticket nominated, there will be unity with the Republican party, and that the triumphant re-election of Congressman Fowler and the entire county ticket will be assured. After the election, well informed Union county Republicans say, the struggle for party control will be resumed. The Democrats are, of course, pleased with the reported Republican conditions in Union, and upon their possible continuance largely base their dreams of success.—New York Tribune.

Miss Hanrihan, of the local telephone office, will resign her position this week.

FIERCE FOREST FIRES

Farmhouses, Barns and Timber Swept Away.

SMOKE CAUSES NOONDAY DARKNESS.

Cascade and Coast Ranges From British Columbia to California Line Swept by Fire—Many Towns In Peril.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13.—Forest fires are burning over the Cascade and coast ranges from British Columbia to the California line, destroying millions of feet of timber, many farmhouses, barns and much live stock. Two people are known to have lost their lives, others are missing, and scores are hurrying to places of safety.

At Bridal Veil, Ore., the Palmer sawmill and the Brewer mill have been burned. Elsie Palmer, proprietor of the Palmer mill, was burned to death, and a man named Trickey is missing. About forty men are in danger of being surrounded by fire.

On Mill plain, near Vancouver, eight farmhouses were destroyed, and Mrs. Hendrickson and her two children are missing.

In Washington the town of Enumclaw, on the northern Pacific in King county, is in great danger.

Forest fires of the most severe nature are pressing upon every side. Every team is being pressed into service to take people to places of safety. The water supply is cut off by the burning of the mains, but every effort is being made to protect mill property.

Word cannot be received from Elma or Aberdeen, the wires to those points being down. It is known, however, that six large lumber mills and ten houses have been burned about six miles south of Elma. Many similar reports are being received from Washington points.

At Ducora, forty-five miles south of Tacoma, the town was in total darkness at noon. Many people refused to believe that the phenomenon resulted from forest fires and congregated on street corners, predicting dire disaster. At Centralia darkness stopped all business.

The last report from Shelton was to the effect that nearly all the mills in Mason county were on fire. The town of Mitlock, that county, was in imminent danger when last heard from, and timber a hundred feet high was burning.

Sixteen miles from Olympia the Bordeaux string of camps in the Black Hill district are in great danger. Forty men on horseback have gone to rescue women and children.

In Tacoma a heavy darkness settled down. Boats could not pass the narrows on account of darkness. At Olympia the electric light plant shut down, and at noon it was as black as night.

Labor Federationists.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The convention of the state Federation of Labor has come to an end. There were several lively tilts between President Murphy and the element opposed to him during the afternoon. At one point Mr. Murphy took the floor and severely arraigned the members of the American Federation of Labor, whom he declared were interfering with the state organization. He referred to President Gompers of the American Federation in caustic terms and said that he had hoped to meet him on the floor of the convention. At the conclusion of President Murphy's speech John G. Nolan of Newark paid his respects to President Murphy, declaring that he had ruled the convention with more than a Caesar's red hand and had held it in an iron grasp. An animated discussion followed. Schenectady was chosen as the next place of meeting. Martin F. Murphy of Buffalo was re-elected president.

Wilson Reports Good Crops.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Secretary Wilson, who has just returned from a trip through the west, summarized the agricultural conditions in the states he visited. These states included Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. He said there was a great abundance of crops generally in that region. "There will be a good corn crop," he said. "Corn now is substantially out of the way of the frost. The corn crop in parts of Kansas, Nebraska and Indiana probably is the finest on record. There has been more hundreds of millions of dollars depending on the ripening of this crop this year than the ordinary person has ever realized. While the crop is a little bit late, any danger of its failure can now be considered over. The crop is a good one. The wheat crop is also one of the best ever known.

Trotting at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Fully 15,000 people saw the closing events in the grand circuit races at the State Fair grounds. The weather was good and the track fast. A big drawing card was the attempt of Conner, 2:03¼, and Darial, 2:03¼, to beat the world's pacing team record of 2:08. They were driven by A. P. McDonald and made fast time to the stretch, where Darial broke, and all chances for at least hugging the record were off. The time for the mile was 2:10.

Platt's Candidate Won.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The president has appointed Representative George W. Ray United States district judge of the Northern district of New York, vice Alfred Coxe, who has been appointed United States circuit judge. The appointment settles a long controversy. Mr. Ray was Senator Platt's candidate. Attorney General Davies and Representative Sherman of New York had been prominently mentioned as candidates. The latter was warmly supported.

MITCHELL SPEAKS.

In a Speech at Philadelphia He Says Strikers Are Firm.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America came here last night and was presented with about $3,000 by the organized workmen of this city for the benefit of the striking mine workers. The presentation took place at a joint mass meeting of the United Trades association, the allied building trades and the Central Labor union held at Labor Lyceum hall. The money was gathered by these organizations through house to house collections, jars placed on street corners and other places and proceeds from picnics.

The miners' chief arrived at the hall from Wilkesbarre at 9:20 o'clock and was given an enthusiastic reception by the great crowd within the building. After the relief money had been formally presented to him Mr. Mitchell made a short address. He thanked the donors on behalf of the "great army of men, women and children who are making a great struggle for living wages." He said the mine workers' fight was a fight for trade unionism, without which the workmen of the country could not get fair treatment from their employers. The spokesman of the operators, he continued, contended that they are making a fight for individual liberty and for a principle; but, Mr. Mitchell claimed, the operators are battling to give wages satisfactory only to the coal trust. He said the strikers are just as firm today as they were four months ago.

STRIVING FOR RECIPROCITY.

England Extends Period Allowed For Ratification of Treaties.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—To save what chance might remain of the approval of the pending reciprocity treaties by the next congress the British government has been steadily extending the period allowed for the final ratifications of each of the treaties which have been drafted by Mr. Kasson and are now pending on the executive calendar of the senate.

Mr. Raikes, the British charge of embassy, came to Washington from Newport during the day for the purpose of securing another extension of the West Indian treaty. He called at the state department and with Mr. Adee, the acting secretary of state, signed an article amendatory to the treaties in the case of Jamaica, British Guiana, Turks and Caicos islands, extending for six months the period allowed for the exchange of ratifications. This amendment will consequently carry the treaties along as pending business before the senate until next spring.

FIRMINISTS ANGRY.

Their Leader Has Issued a Violently Worded Proclamation.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 13.—General Firmin has issued a violently worded proclamation to his partisans concerning the death on board the Crete-a-Pierrot of Admiral Killick. He engages his followers to fight until the end against the provisional government of M. Boisrodd Canal, which he accuses of having excited Germany against him to the point of effecting the destruction of the Crete-a-Pierrot by the Panther.

The population of Gonaives and St. Marc, both in the possession of the revolutionists, are greatly excited. Bills expressing hatred of the Germans are being posted there, and cries of hostility to this nation are frequently heard on the streets.

The advance guard of the government army has started against Gonaives, and the greater part of the army left for that objective today. Port au Prince is quiet.

Quiet on the Isthmus.

COLON, Colombia, Sept. 13.—The situation on the isthmus remains unchanged. The government continues to be exceedingly watchful and is determined not to be surprised by any sudden movement on the part of the revolutionary general Herrera. All the approaches to the town of Colon are well garrisoned and defended. Trains are running across the isthmus as usual. The government gunboat General Pinzon is still here.

THE CRAIG INQUEST.

Governor Crane a Witness at Pittsfield.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 13.—Governor W. Murray Crane testified yesterday afternoon before the Craig inquest, his appearance being somewhat in the nature of a surprise. It was generally understood that he would be one of the witnesses, but Special Justice Charles L. Hubbard, who presides over the inquest, and Chief of Police Nicholson, who has charge of the witnesses, had declined to state what plans had been made as to receiving the governor's testimony.

In his evidence the governor said that, in company with President Roosevelt and George B. Cortelyou, secretary to the president, he was driving on South street on the day of the accident and was nearing the foot of Howard hill, when he heard the gong of the approaching car. At that time the leading horses were on the track, and he quickly arose to his feet to see how close the car was to the carriage. He was dumfounded to find that the car was but a short distance away and that it was approaching at a very fast rate of speed. The governor could not tell just how the collision occurred. He remembered nothing as to how he was thrown and only remembered assisting the president from the carriage.

Among the other witnesses was Mrs. Ellen H. Horton, a passenger on the car. Mrs. Horton said the car was running at a fair rate of speed when the collision occurred. She sat on the front seat directly behind the motorman. As the car approached the president's carriage the greater portion of the passengers stood up to get a good view of the occupants of the carriage. Suddenly she heard Motorman Madden exclaim, "Oh, my God!" He then jumped to the brakes and worked, as she said, as she never saw a man work before.

In all sixteen witnesses were examined, and at the close of the afternoon hearing the inquest was adjourned until Monday at 10 a. m.

FOOLISH BURGLARS.

Stole a Fortune, Drank Wine and Were Soon Caught.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Two burglars arrested with about $10,000 of cash and jewels in their possession confessed in the Harlem court that they got the booty in the apartments of Mrs. Rosa M. de Balsinde, the wealthy Cuban widow, at 155 West Twenty-third street. They were held in $10,000 for the grand jury.

Captain Titus, chief of detectives, says he believes they are the gentlemen burglars who have been looting the Spanish quarter and for whom he has been so long seeking.

In their hurry to get away with the booty they forgot $10,600 that lay in the trunk where they got the other money. All the plunder was recovered except $337.50, which they say they do not know how they spent, as all they have to show for it is two new hats and aching heads as the result of wine they drank. They got $2,000 cash and jewels valued at $8,000.

It was by trying to pay for a sixteen cent lunch with a handful of jewels while drunk that they caused themselves to be arrested. The men give the names Frank Roberts and William A. McNamee.

CHINA IS UNEASY.

Russia's Delay In Restoring Manchuria Causes Trouble.

PEKING, Sept. 13.—The Chinese government is disturbed at the apparent determination of Russia to delay the restoration of Manchuria. It claims that Russia promised to evacuate Newchwang and return the Manchurian section of the Peking-Newchwang railroad when the Chili section of the line was returned by Great Britain.

Members of the imperial government are frequently in conference with Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China, and are urging upon him the fulfillment of Russia's promises. The refusal of Russia to co-operate in restoring the British section of the Peking-Newchwang railroad is delaying the return of the British section of the line.

Chu Hung Che, the member of the foreign board who was responsible for the alleged error as a result of which the likin was declared to have been abolished, has resigned his post because he has been accused of ignorance. The empress dowager has refused to accept his resignation.

Naval Movements.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—According to a cable message received at the navy department, the flagship Illinois and the cruisers Chicago and Albany of the European squadron have left Gibraltar for a cruise in the Mediterranean prior to their departure for the United States to take part in the winter maneuvers. The fleet will make its first stop at Ville Franche.

Tribute to McKinley's Memory.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—A tribute to the memory of the late President McKinley was paid yesterday by the school children of Chicago in most of the educational institutions throughout the city. Music, singing of patriotic songs and addresses by well known men made up the general programme.

Made College President.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 13.—Mr. C. A. Woods of Marion has been elected president of the South Carolina college. The nomination was unexpected to him, but probably will be accepted. He is president of the State Bar association and trustee of Wofford college and of Winthrop college.

Colorado Nominations.

DENVER, Sept. 13.—James H. Peabody of Fremont county was nominated for governor and Franklin E. Brooks of El Paso county was nominated for congressman at large by the Republican state convention.

VAST SCENE OF RUIN

Professor Heilprin Tells of Pelee's Latest Convulsion.

ERUPTION OF MAY 8 SURPASSED.

Destruction of the Several Towns Was Simultaneous, and Death Resulted From a Terribly Swift Hot Blast.

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, Sept. 13.—Professor Angelo Heilprin, president of the Philadelphia Geographical society, who is in Martinique in the interests of the National Geographical society, has made the following report of the recent eruptions of Mont Pelee:

"The scene of destruction in the last eruption of Mont Pelee far surpasses in extent that of the eruption of May 8, when St. Pierre was destroyed, and includes the broad area lying between Macouba and Carbet and involves Haute Tours de Bourbon, Basse Pointe, Morne Balai and Ajoupa Bouillon, where alone upward of 300 persons were killed, as well as Morne Rouge, with a death list of probably not less than 100 persons; Morne Capote and the heights somewhat this side of Fonds St. Denis, the blast, however, leaving the last named place untouched.

"Great cinders fell also over the region of Grand Riviere, and Precheur is covered deep with ashes. In Carbet the ashes lie one foot deep, and nearly the same amount covers the ruins of St. Pierre. All of Morne Rouge, with the exception of about four houses and the beautiful church, has been swept to the ground, and the greater part of the town has been burned up. At Ajoupa Bouillon, where one-half of the town has been prostrated, there is no trace of fire of any kind.

"The destructive blast instead of confining itself to a section or area, as was the case during the first eruption, was distributed radially, crossing the low summit of the volcano near the knob of Morne Jacob and skipping zones between its rays. The danger from Mont Pelee is thus materially increased, and perhaps no position in the north of the island is absolutely safe. The government has judiciously ordered the evacuation of all points reached by a radius of about eight or ten miles from the crater.

"The recent phenomena were precisely like those of May 8, death resulting in most cases from contact with the terribly swift and hot blast which burned and which suffocated. The sulphur emitted from the crater during the recent eruptions was comparatively insignificant, although it densely penetrated the ash cloud which fell over Precheur. The electrical illuminations during the storm were wonderful and greatly surpassed those of July 9. There was no barometric disturbance to indicate a coming eruption.

"During the time I was on the volcano on the afternoon of the eruption Mont Pelee was in terrible activity and refuge from flying bombs had to be sought in a hole. The great zone could not be seen. On the way down the mountain the party was enveloped in ashes and mud, the center of the ash and steam clouds being almost vertically over us.

"The destruction of the several towns and localities was simultaneous, occurring at ten minutes past 9 in the evening.

"There is much uneasiness all over the island of Martinique, and this is intensified by the knowledge that La Soufriere, on the island of St. Vincent, is again in full activity. The illumination of the eruption on St. Vincent as seen from here the night of Wednesday was most terrifying, and on Thursday morning the ash cloud from the St. Vincent volcano carried darkness to Fort de France for a period of nearly six hours. No details of the casualties on St. Vincent have as yet been received here."

Death of A. B. Shepherd.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—A private telegram received here from Batopilas, Mexico, announces the death there of Alexander B. Shepherd, who was vice president of the board of public works of the District of Columbia during the territorial government of the District in 1871 and two years later governor of the District. He was sixty-seven years of age. The cause of death was peritonitis, brought on by an attack of appendicitis.

Negro Murderer Hanged.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 13.—Bolsy Bryant has been hanged here for the murder of Town Marshal Hynds. Mrs. Etta Hynds Parker, daughter of the murdered officer, watched the execution from the scaffold trap. As soon as Bryant was pronounced dead Mrs. Parker with her father's knife cut the body of the murderer down.

The New Campanile.

VENICE, Sept. 13.—The cornerstone of the new campanile will be laid April 22, 1903, and the authorities are projecting much ceremony for the occasion. All the debris will have been cleared off a month hence. At present the courtyard of the doges' palace is entirely occupied by fragments of the collapsed tower.

Sent One Car Through.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The Hudson Valley Railway company succeeded in sending a car operated by nonunion men and guarded by sheriff's deputies over the line from Stillwater to Schuylerville and return without incident.

Ecuador Will Exhibit.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Sept. 13.—A bill authorizing Ecuador to participate in the St. Louis exposition has been approved by the chamber of deputies and is now in the senate.

THE MORAL SIDE TO ANNEXATION.

There is a moral side to this question of annexation which should not be obscured by other and more material arguments. By the laws of this State cities are allowed to regulate and govern the sale of intoxicating drinks in their own way through the governing body at home, while borough liquor licenses are fixed by the county courts. The result of this is that Plainfield saloons are regulated by a high license more than three times that of the borough; the city saloon door is closed at 11 o'clock at night, while across the brook drinking places are allowed to remain open all night, Saturday night only excepted. The borough thus becomes a dumping ground for the worst elements of our population, the night hawks, the bums and the loafers. This state of things may not be appreciated by people who do not live in the neighborhood of lower Somerset street, but as Rev. Mr. Honeyman, who does live there, expressed it in an interview favoring consolidation in The Daily Press a few years ago, "These people make the night hideous." Is it any wonder that the saloons are arrayed to a man against annexation? It is reported on good authority that saloon money has already been used to beat this measure and that a well known frequenter of borough saloons is employed daily to work the liquor vote. Whether this be true or not it cannot be disputed that every rum dealer in the borough is working against the measure. As one of the largest saloon dealers expressed it to ex-Mayor Saunders, "This bill if it goes through will close up half my places." Do the good people of the borough want these places closed? Every vote cast against annexation is a vote in favor of what the saloon dealers want, a vote against a great moral issue.

Plainfield's best in the line of baseball goes to Westfield this afternoon to meet the crack semi-professional team from that place. It's the case of the professional against the amateur and naturally the former ought to win but there's no telling what's going to happen. The local fans are going down hoping much but saying little.

Mrs. S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, together with relatives, is spending two weeks at Ocean Grove.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

One of the most successful fruit seasons which they have had in their history, has just been enjoyed by Neuman Brothers. They have received daily from two hundred to four hundred baskets of peaches and a proportionate number of pears, plums and other fruit. The two weeks just passed have been heavy in sales of fruit and they are now preparing for a few more heavy days from belated housewives who have not completed all their canning. For this reason they will have displays which cannot be surpassed, the first few days of next weeek.

Bound Brook Messenger Boy Broke His Record Descending From Tree.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Sept. 13—Percy Aller, a messenger in the employ of the Western Union Company, sought to while away time between messages, yesterday, by climbing a tree in Railroad Park. He reached a high point when a limb snapped and Percy fell twenty feet faster than he ever thought of delivering a telegram. When he awoke in the Somerville Hospital he found he had broken an arm in two places, was badly bruised and will remain in the institution for at least a week.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

The present plant of the Levering & Garrigues factory, at West Dunellen, is now practically completed and at present about one hundred men are employed there. There are shops still at New York and Philadelphia, and it is probable that they will be brought to this plant before long. If they are, the present building will be greatly enlarged and a force of men will be employed several times as large as the present one. The demand for houses in Dunellen will then be greater than the supply and a building boom is likely to result which will greatly benefit the town.

The Y. M. C. baseball team will play a game with the New Market team this afternoon, at 3:45. This is the third meeting of the season, and the result will be watched with great interest.

A recent report that Christian Schepflin will shortly remove from his present residence is denied by Mr. Schepflin. He expects to remain where he is for the present.

The young women of Mr. Hamilton's Sunday-school class cleared about $20, by their recent peach tea.

Craig Manufacturing Company has lately increased its working force in preparation for the large fall trade.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bercaw has returned to Easton, after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Edmund Teel.

J. H. Peters' new house is rapidly nearing completion and will probably be finished by November 1.

A business meeting of the Banjo club will be held Monday evening, with Miss Flora Wilguss.

Miss Mary Ward, of Newark, spent several days this week with Mrs. Horace Garrabrandt.

H. C. Ginder, of Wayne Junction, has been visiting friends in town for a few days.

The bed of the Central Railroad, through town, is being laid with stone.

Rev. Frank Fletcher is not expected home from his vacation until next week.

No drill was held by Defender Fire Company last evening, because of the rain.

William Farmer, of Newark, spent yesterday with relatives in town.

Joseph Thomas, of Brooklyn, spent Thursday with Lewis Churchill.

F. H. Opdyke entertained friends from Plainfield, yesterday.

Mrs. Edmund Teel and son are visiting relatives in Easton.

NEW MARKET.

The baseball team is going to make an effort to defeat the Y. M. C. team today at Dunellen, as they have lost both of the former games.

Rev. Frank Fletcher will not return from his vacation until next week and his pulpit will be supplied tomorrow.

Regular services will be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church today. Rev. L. E. Livermore will officiate.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Fortunita Miller Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Johnston, to Lloyd Thompson, all of Westfield. The happy event will be solemnized at the First Presbyterian church, Westfield, Thursday evening, September 25, at 8 o'clock. Miss Johnston has many warm friends in the village, made while a member of the corps of teachers at the public school last year. All will unite in wishing her all happiness that can possibly be hers in the new contract about to be entered upon.

Constable George Allen, Special Officers Guerrier and Pangborn and a posse journeyed to Graceland Thursday evening to dispossess a gang of tramps who have been occupying the E. M. Johnston property for some time past. When the posse arrived the tramps had flown and no arrests were made.

John Miller, inspector of the electric light circuit through the village and borough, denies the report appearing in several papers that he had been shot by a gang of tramps near Graceland. He says he not only had no such experience or had any trouble with any of them.

Services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be: Sunday-school, 9:30; morning preaching by pastor, subject, "Thirst, Satisfaction and Following," 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7; evening preaching service, subject, "Building the Sanctuary," 7:45.

The trustees of the Methodist church are arranging to make a number of necessary repairs about the church property this fall. Wm. H. Johnston has the contract to paint the building and expects to begin the work next week.

The local baseball team, during the season nearing a close, has played twentv-five games, winning twenty-two and losing three, a remarkable record and one that the whole town takes pride in.

The enrollment of pupils in the advanced primary department at the school has exceeded the seating capacity, and a number of desks have had to be added to accommodate the little ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Newark, are staying for a while at the home of Mrs. Charles N. Flanders, of East street.

The picnic of the Berkeley Heights Social Club at Hess's Grove last evening, was enjoyed by a number from town.

Scotch Plains and St. Marys, of Plainfield, are to battle for honors on the local diamond this afternoon.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. J. D. Patterson has returned home after a visit of two weeks with her father-in-law, D. S. Patterson, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Voorhees and son, of Brooklyn, are guests of Oscar Thorne.

J. D. Patterson is entertaining a friend, Mr. Gabelle, of New York.

Regular services will be held in the Baptist church tomorrow.

James Joncs is entertaining relatives from out of town.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Regular services at Holy Cross Episcopal church will be resumed a week from tomorrow.

—The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow.

—The waiting rooms of the trolley station in Watchung avenue have been equipped with electric lights.

—Rockdale print and creamery butter is absolutely the best. Neuman Brothers are the sole agents in this city.

ENTERTAINED HER CLASS.

Miss Anna A. Searing, of Orchard Place, Was the Hostess.

Miss Anna A. Searing, of Orchard place, entertained her Sunday-school class from Trinity Reformed church at her nome Thursday evening. Games and music, with informal sociability, passed several hours pleasantly and at the close refreshments were served. Those of the class who were present were the Misses Mary Gray, Katherine Bodine, Minnie Nischwitz, Florence Scribner, Irene Hope, Jessie Matthews, Lizzie Davenport, Nettie Thompson and other guests, Miss Anna Bodine, Miss Mamie Davenport and Miss Ethel Searing.

Lingering Summer Colds.

Don't let a cold run at this season. Summer colds are the hardest kind to cure and if neglected may linger along for months. A long siege like this will pull down the strongest constitution. One Minute Cough Cure will break up the attack at once. Safe, sure, acts at once. Cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. The children like it. L. W. Randolph.

"ANTIS" HAD THEIR SAY

Somerset county doesn't want it. North Plainfield people, he said, would not get proper representation in Union and as regards statements about the various debts and ratables, there should be no juggling of figures as everyone could find out the truth for himself.

"By going into Union county," he continued, "you not only assume part of its large debt but you also take along your own. Somerset county is over 200 years old, yet it has never issued a bond or has a dollar of bonded debt while Union county is going along piling up expenses for future generations and you, if they can induce you, to assume. Get over to Plainfield and it will elect four councilman to your one and then you will get just what they want to give you as they will have the balance of power. By all means, retain your independence for after all local self-government is the thing."

In short Mr. Lindabury's address was a continuation if it was absorbed by Plainfield, that the city wanted it so that it would have more power and look larger to the rest of the world and that it was well enough where it was.

As the audience was dispersing Mr. Honeyman made a last plea for all voters to be at the polls, Tuesday, and also to be sure and get a copy of his thirty-five reasons before leaving.

HOT SHOT FOR "ANTIS"

FIRED FROM STEREOPTICON ON SOMERSET STREET LAST NIGHT.

Great Crowd Gathered in Street, Laughed at Pictures and Took in Important Facts.

Hot shots were fired at the "antis" by a stereopticon at last night's meeting of the Union Association. From a position opposite the association's rooms he trained his gun upon a huge canvass which covered nearly the entire front of the annexationists quarters and shortly after 8 o'clock turned the lime light upon the opposition.

At that time a large crowd had gathered along the west side of the street and extended for nearly a block in either direction. Among them were many attracted from the mass meeting of the anti-annexationists in the Saengerbund Hall. For an hour spectators drifted back and forth between the two places. The special plate which had been prepared lost some of their effect owing to the fact that the camera was a trifle too small. A number of the epithets, wihch were aimed at the opposition, individually, were amusing and met with considerable applause. The exhibition ended shortly after 9 o'clock. This method of campaign work will be continued the two remaining evenings before election.

Suit for Damages.

Within a short time Lawyer Chas. L. Moffett will bring a suit for damages against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company, as counsel for Frank H. Moffett, of Stirling, and Mrs. Edward Stulz, of Rahway. As yet the amount of damages has not been fixed. They were hurt in a trolley accident.

Big Figures.

100,000,000 bottles of Perry Davis' Painkiller sold in 60y ears. Just think! Nearly enough placed end to end to reach around the world. What other remedy can boast such a record of services to humanity in curing stomach and bowel complaints and the many other ailments and accidents constantly occurring even in the most careful homes. There is only one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Beware of imitations.

Banquet to Merchants.

At a meeting of a committee from the Retail Clerks' Association, last evening, it was decided to give a banquet Thursday evening, September 25, at the Hotel Kensington, to the merchants of Plainfield and a few city officials. The affair will be given to the merchants who close their stores at 6 o'clock. The officials to be invited are Mayor Jenkins, Chief Doane, City Judge Runyon and Chief of Police Kiely.

Surprise for D. M. Torrey.

A happy birthday surprise party was given to D. M. Torrey at his home in Netherwood last evening. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Torrey and among those present were Miss Sara Curry, Dr. Currie and the mothers from New York who have been at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. The evening was passed in singing and listening to piano solos, after which refreshments were served.

Drill Company Located.

Ground was broken yesterday at Phillipsburg for the new plant to be erected by the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company. The plan is to transfer the entire plant from Easton to Phillipsburg, where the company has purchased 250 acres of land. The company will employ 2,800 men.

—Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, will administer the rite of confirmation at St. Joseph's church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Clarence B. Vail, of the First National Bank, has returned from a pleasant vacation.

VENEZUELA'S WAR.

Report of Recent Fight Was Exaggerated.

PRESIDENT CASTRO STILL INACTIVE.

General Matos, the Rebel Leader, Declared to Be a Traitor and Ordered to Trial For Piracy.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Sept. 13.—It has been learned here from Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, that the report recently issued by Torres Cardenas, secretary of President Castro, that the revolutionary army under General Luciano Mendoza was annihilated Sept. 8 near Tinaquillo was a gross exaggeration. The engagement of that date was not an important one, and only the vanguard of the revolutionary forces was engaged.

It has been learned with certainty that a serious battle has commenced in the vicinity of Tinaquillo between about 4,000 revolutionists under the command of Generals Mendoza, Batalla and Riera, and government troops to the number of about 4,100 men under General Garrido, minister of war. It is impossible to receive news of the progress of this fight, as all lines of communication have been cut. The result of this engagement will doubtless have a decided effect upon the fate of the Matos revolution.

President Castro is still inactive near Ocumare, where he is inspecting the army. General Matos is located at Altagracia de Orituco, about sixty miles southeast of Caracas. Ocumare is about thirty miles southward from Caracas.

General Matos a Traitor.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Sept. 13.—The government has published a decree declaring General Matos, leader of the present revolutionary movement in Venezuela, to be a traitor and ordering him to be tried on the charge of piracy and for having offered control of the finances of the government of Venezuela in case of the success of his movements to outside capitalists on the same basis as prevails in Egypt.

Probing the St. Louis Steal.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13.—The grand jury spent yesterday examining witnesses supposed to know something about the operations of the municipal assembly that passed the city lighting bill, for which $47,500 is said to have been paid to members of the house combine and another large sum to ringsters in the council. The inquiry will be continued. Former Delegate Tamblyn, who attempted without success to turn state's evidence, was examined at length, as was also Edgar A. Mepham, a former delegate. Before going into the grand jury room Mr. Mepham expressed his willingness to tell all he knew. Several other minor witnesses were examined. Delegate Charles F. Kelly, who has been missing from his usual haunts since his indictment on several counts charging bribery and perjury, has not yet been arrested.

Miraculous Cure of Cancer.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The Daily Chronicle says that a Mrs. Notterman has returned to her home in London from a pilgrimage to Lourdes, France, where, to all appearances, she was miraculously cured of an internal cancerous tumor. Mrs. Notterman was unavailingly treated for cancer before going to France by experts in the London hospitals. On entering the waters at Lourdes she experienced a fainting sensation, accompanied by pain. In a few minutes this passed away and with it the swelling of the tumor. Both at Lourdes and since her return to London Mrs. Notterman has been examined by doctors who pronounce her absolutely cured. She attributes her cure to the agency of the blessed Virgin. Her case created a great sensation among the English pilgrims.

Senator Stewart's Wife Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Mrs. William M. Stewart, wife of the senior United States senator from Nevada, was killed at Alameda, Cal. Mrs Stewart was riding in an automobile with Henry Foote and a young man named Taylor. Through an accident the machine ran into a telegraph pole. Mrs. Stewart was thrown against the pole with great force and was so seriously injured that death soon followed. Her home was at Washington.

Locomotive Trust Profitable.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The first annual report of the American Locomotive company, giving results of operations of its eight plants for a period slightly more than twelve months to June 30 last, shows gross earnings of $26,398,394; operating expenses, $23,291,217; net earnings, $3,107,177; fixed charges, $103,865. This leaves a surplus of $1,251,312, the greater part of which has been applied to additions to the property.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

PETERSBURG, Va., Sept. 13.—Miss Virginia H. Lassiter, daughter of Dr. D. W. Lassiter and sister of Congressman Lassiter of the Fourth Virginia district, has been killed in a runaway accident. The young lady attempted to leap from the carriage, when her dress was caught and she was thrown head foremost to the pavement, her head striking the railway track, fracturing the skull at the base of the brain.

Astor's Daughter Dead.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—William Waldorf Astor's daughter Gwendoline, aged nine years, is dead of consumption at Cliveden. Her body will be taken to New York for burial.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; west winds.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Great Industrial Activity In All Lines.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Industrial activity is greater than at any recent date. Many new factories and mills have been added to the productive capacity, facilities are being increased at old plants, and idle shops resumed through the settlement of labor controversies. West Virginia coal miners have returned to work, and production in Pennsylvania is steadily increasing. A coke blockade still exists, the railways being unable to handle the output, which is above all records and in urgent request. Despite the rapid development of transportation facilities the nation's needs have grown still faster, and the situation is distressing for shippers and consumers.

Low stocks of wheat and poor grading of receipts, together with fears of frost in corn sections, sustained quotations when a decline would have been imminent if full confidence were placed in official returns of conditions. The latest government statistics point to the largest yields of corn and oats ever harvested and a wheat crop but twice exceeded. Incredulity is also shown as to the cotton report, the discrepancy being in the nature of an underestimate in this case, unusually heavy receipts promising more cotton than the department's low figures.

Textile mills are well occupied, with prices sustained in all cases and moderate advances in some cotton goods which are in demand for quick delivery. Conditions favor sellers, buyers no longer desiring concessions, but seeking to place forward contracts at present quotations.

Failures for the week numbered 205 in the United States against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada against 18 a year ago.

STEEL PRODUCTION.

Statistics Show Unparalleled Output In Pennsylvania.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 13.—The advance sheets of the forthcoming annual report of James M. Clark, chief of the state bureau of industrial statistics for the year 1901, show that Pennsylvania produced 1,406,532 gross tons of steel rails during the year. The production of plate and sheets was 1,590,502 gross tons, including black plate and other sheets made by the tin workers, which is practically the same production as in 1900. The production of cut nails and cut spikes for 1901 was 37,349 gross tons. Other rolled products for 1901, including structural shapes, bar and rods, billets, etc., amounted to 5,633,954 gross tons.

There is an increase over 1900 of 1,065,943 gross tons of iron and steel rolled into finished form and 109 per cent over 1896. The value of the entire production of 1901 of the 8,668,337 gross tons of rolled iron and steel not including the production of the tin plate works was $298,284,259.

The number of workmen employed was 86,086, and they were paid wages aggregating $53,334,787. The average yearly earnings, skilled and unskilled, was $619.55, and the average daily wage was $2.21.

Allegheny county leads in production, with 5,095,608 tons, that county producing nearly 59 per cent of the entire production of the state.

Will Not Teach Negroes.

JAMAICA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Two young schoolteachers, Miss Orr and Miss Hill, are said to be about to resign their positions because they have been transferred to teach in the colored school here. This is only one indication that the color line war in the public schools threatens to become serious.

VACATIONS

seem to have awakened the sleeping appetite and we're glad of it. Business seems goes in a whirl. We don't know which goes faster. Everybody seems to want chickens, everyone seems to want lamb, everyone seems to want beef, and we have a big call for our delicious bivalves. Thus far we have been able to satisfactorily supply the enormous demand and expect to continue doing so. It has given us an excellent chance to prove our motto—Goods Right, Price Right, Treatment Right.
